in. The trolley company has consented to undertake the improvement, although not anxious to do so.

"After an investigation I find that there will be plenty of room for wagons and automobiles on East Front street and Watchung avenue and as there will be only one car on the tracks at a time at any one point, it will not interfere with traffic. It will greatly improve our trolley service and prevent the holding up of cars at Watchung avenue and on West Front street, where the single track begins. It will enable the company to operate its cars on a correct schedule. The Public Service Corporation wants to improve its service here and I hope that the resolution will prevail. If the men who signed the protest were here now I believe that I should convince them that the improvement will be for the best interest of Plainfield. I want every member to vote for the best interest of the city, and if I were a member of this body I would vote for the resolution because I believe it will be the best thing possible for the greatest number of people.

The atmosphere in the council chamber being too cold for the comfort of the members of the Common Council, President Daniel suggested that an adjournment be taken to the Mayor's office. This was done and the argument continued.

In opposition to the proposed action of giving the company further privileges, Councilman Tyler declared Mayor Fisk to be an interesting and persuasive person. He also had the same opinion of the Public Service Corporation officials.

"They argue well," said Mr. Tyler, "but I have carefully weighed the arguments in this matter and I don't think that the city should give the company additional privileges in perpetuity without adequate compensation. Those who favor the proposition say we will have better service, but this is not adequate. Our sins against the city are sins of the past. The company are getting rights that will be of enormous value to them and it is not right or fair to the city to give them away, simply on the promise of better service. Let the company pay for these rights according to the proportionate future value. Once these rights are given away we can never get them back.

"On the other hand I don't believe that we will get the better service. It will only relieve the congestion of trolley traffic coming east from Dunellen and North Plainfield. Between Watchung avenue and ourth street and East Second street there will still be a single track and the relief will only come at one end of the line in the city. By giving such rights away we may lose even greater advantages than the promise of better service and for these reasons I shall vote against the resolution.

Another member who opposed the resolution was Councilman Gloak. He recalled three years ago, when he was chairman of the street committee and the same matter was before the Common Council. He said that the question was thoroughly considered and it was the belief of the committee that the company should be willing to pave the street from curb to curb for the privilege of double tracking. Mr. Gloak said that he was still of that opinion and would vote against granting the petition unless the company was willing to pave the entire street.

In support of the resolution Mr. Mellick said that he was convinced that the people who use the trolley are most unhappy over the present service and while some property-owners have their own ideas on the subject he believed the improvement would be for the best. He concurred in what Mayor Fisk had said, that it is a question that concerns the people of the entire city. He declared that good trolley service cannot be given unless the city is willing to lend its aid. He expressed faith in the Mayor, who has made a close study of the proposition and he believed that what he said was right.

Referring to the Public Service Corporation, Mr. Mellick said that he felt sure the company would do the right thing and that the granting of the petition would cement the ties of friendsip beween the city and the company. The company offers advantages and it has the right to expect the square deal. Mr. Mellick added that the corporation counsel had informed the members that the city can enforce its rights and if necessary resort to the adoption of an ordinance. He thought no mistake would be made in passing the resolution.

After Mr. Mellick's remarks, the vote was called for and the resolution was passed. There were four officials of the Public Service Corporation present, Col. Hine, Farley Osgood, J. J. Gettings and L. D. H. Gilmour, the latter the assistant counsel for the company.

After the meeting Mr. Gilmour informed a reporter for The Daily Press that the company would be ready to begin work inside of forty-eight hours and that it would not interfere with the brick pavement on East Front street or Watchung avenue.

HARTJE SCANDAL BARS GIRL FROM SCHOOL

Miss Ida Scott, of Pittsburg, sister of Mrs. Augustus Hartje, has been temporarily suspended from Miss Dana's seminary for girls at Morristown, N. J., where she has been enrolled as a pupil since the opening of the present school term.

It was explained at the school yesterday that this action was taken because of the sensational allegations concerning the girl's connection with the divorce proceedings.

Miss Scott left the institution on Saturday in company with a relative from Pittsburg. It was not until the statement was made public that Miss Scott's love letters to her sweetheart in Pittsburg had been sold that the school authorities were aware that the Miss Scott referred to in the divorce proceedings was the pupil in the seminary.

Hot Bowling Match Tonight.

John Campbell's alleys on East Second street will ge the scene of a hot team match tonight between the fast Ironsides and the "undefeated" Amrights. The latter team claims the city championship and the Ironsides have asserted it can't be held by them as long as they are in the field, consequently some awful pinhitting is looked for. The teams will be composed as follows: Ironsides, Kiely, Voehl, Blatz, Nasn and Willett; Amrights, Britton, Campbell, Radin, Skelly and Meyer. A big crowd of rooters will be on hand to keep up the enthusiasm.

To Meet New York Champs.

The local Y. M. C. A. nine has arranged for a game with the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. team, to be played at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The Brooklyn team holds the baseball championship of Greater New York. The game will be called at 3:30.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In "Woodland," which Henry W. Savage will bring to the New Plainfield Theatre tonight, the authors, Pixley and Luders, have chosen a theme which affords a splendid chance for poetic and picturesque treatment, and that the piece has been one of the most pronounced of hits is not surprising. They have gone to the forest for their characters and made them all birds, evolving a dainty story dealing with the adventures of the feathered tribe. It is an idyllic conceit and its employment has furnished something entirely new to the American stage. The production has been made on a lavish scale and the scenic effects are said to be magnificent, the costumes elaborate. Musically, "Woodland" is declared to be Mr. Luder's most ambitious and impressive work.

It should be remembered that "The Walls of Jericho" is not a religious play. Its title has led many a theatre-goer to believe that he is about to behold a biblical play of an extremely sombre nature and that its very thought was deeply religious. This is not the case. "The Walls of Jericho," which is Mr. Alfred Sutro's first great success, as it is his first brilliant play, pictures the smart set of London, and the many evils of excessive indulgence in bridge whist, among other things. The tendency of modern society women to gamble and to neglect their homes and children is vividly set forth in language that is at once choice, strong and graceful. This is a play with a purpose splendidly portrayed. That the play is great and popular is proved by the fact that it ran for two whole seasons in London, and a whole season in New York. It will be at the New Plainfield Theatre Thursday night.

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon, who occupy an affectionate place in the esteem of theatregoers who are always sure to revel in artistic acting, will doubtless command deserved consideration at the New Plainfield, next Friday night, on which occasion these firmly established co-stars will offer, under the direction of Ernest Shipman a drama in four acts, entitled "Bridge" and which is from the pen of the distinguished English authoress, Alice Ramsey.

The play deals in no small measure with a game, which of late years has become immensely popular in society, and the story told amidst such surroundings, is said to be one of absorbing interest, involving the experiences of a young girl who on the death of her father is forced to live with an aunt whose manner towards her is anything but conducive to peace of mind.

"Laugh and grow fat," is an old saying and one that applies particularly to Broadhurst & Currie's production of the "Lady from Lane's," which will be the atraction at the New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday night. George Broadhurst has written a very funny book and the lyrics and Gustave Kerker has composed the best music which he has written since the "Belle of New York" days. This new comedy with music is scintillating with fun and humor and is guaranteed to drive away the blues. A large company of clever funmakers has been engaged comprising such Broadway favorites as Thomas Wise, Truly Shattuck, Ida Hawley, Adele Rafter, Walter Percival, Georgie Lawrence, Lionel Walsh, P. V. Bronson, Mrs. E. A. Eberle and William Barrows. And there will be a chorus of forty good singers and dancers—all pretty girls.

Among the leading attraction to visit this city none claims more notice than Oscar Figman in "The Lightning Conductor," which will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday night. This clever comedy is a dramatization by Harry B. Smith of the novel bearing a like name by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, authors of "The Princess Virginia" and "The Princess Passes."

NEW HOSPITAL BUUILDING NEARING COMPLETION.

Structure is Designed to Care for Cases of Contagious Diseases.

The separate building at Muhlenberg Hospital for the care of cases of contagious diseases is nearly completed, the plumbers being engaged in giving the finishing touches to the work. The structure has been named "The DeGraff Building," from the name of the donors. Although of limited size, it will probably be sufficient for present needs. It is intended, however, as a nucleus for a group of two or three buildings, the plans being arranged with a view to such extension.

The building will be used for the care of such cases as scarlet fever, diphtheria and other contagious and infectious diseases, except small-pox, as it may not be convenient to treat at the homes of patients. The demand for its accomodations is not likely to be very great, for the reports of the Board of Health each month show a very small percentage of cases of such disease. The building was erected by Mr. and Mrs. James W. DeGraff, of Central avenue. They are greatly interested in hospital affairs and some time ago decided to contribute the money needed for such a structure.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"I stumbled as though I had been hit in the face, and fell back into one of the chairs on the sidewalk. I tore off the wrappings and spread out the diamonds on the cafe table; I could not believe they were real. I twisted the necklace between my fingers and crushed it between my palms and tossed it up in the air. I believe I almost kissed it. The women in the cafe stood up on the chairs to see better, and laughed and screamed, and the people crowded so close around me that the waiters had to form a bodyguard. The proprietor thought there was a fight, and called for the police. I was so happy I didn't care. I laughed, too, and gave the proprietor a five-pound note and told him to stand every one a drink. Then I tumbled into a fiacre and galloped off to my friend the Chief of Police. I felt very sorry for him. He had been so happy at the chance I gave him, and he was sure to be disappointed when he learned I had sent him off on a false alarm.

"But now that I had found the necklace, I did not want him to find the woman. Indeed, I was most anxious that she should get clear away, for if she were caught the truth would come out, and I was likely to get a sharp reprimand, and are to be laughed at.

"I could see now how it had happened. In my haste to hide the diamonds when the woman was hustled into the carriage, I had shoved the cigars into the satchel, and the diamonds into the pocket of my coat. Now that I had the diamonds safe again, it seemed a very natural mistake. But I doubted if the Foreign Office would think so. I was afraid it might not appreciate the beautiful simplicity of my secret hiding-place. So, when I reached the police station, and found that the woman was still at large, I was more than relieved.

"As I expected, the Chief was extremely chagrined when he learned of my mistake, and that there was nothing for him to do. But I was feeling so happy myself that I hated to have any one else miserable, so I suggested that this attempt to steal the Czarina's necklace might be only the first of a series of such attempts by an unscrupulous gang, and that I might still be in danger.

"I winked at the Chief and the Chief smiled at me, and we went to Nice together in a saloon car with a guard of twelve carabineers and twelve plain-clothes men, and the Chief and I drank champagne all the way. We marched together up to the hotel where the Russian Ambassador was stopping, closely surrounded by our escort of carabineers, and delivered the necklace with the most profound ceremony. The old Ambassador was immensely impressed, and when we hinted that already I had been made the object of an attack by robbers, he assured us that his Imperial Majesty would not prove ungrateful.

"I wrote a swinging personal letter about the invaluable services of the Chief to the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and they gave him enough Russian and French medals to satisfy even a French soldier. So, though he never caught the woman, he received his just reward."

The Queen's Messenger paused and surveyed the faces of those about him in some embarrassment.

"But the worst of it is," he added, "that the story must have got about; for, while the Princess obtained nothing from me but a cigar-case and five excellent cigars, a few weeks after the coronation the Czar sent me a gold cigar-case with his monogram in diamonds. And I don't know yet whether that was a coincidence, or whether the Czar wanted me to know that he knew that I had been carrying the Czarina's diamonds in my pigskin cigar-case. What do you fellows think?"

CHAPTER III.

SIR ANDREW rose with disapproval written in every lineament.

"I thought your story would bear upon the murder," he said. "Had I imagined it would have nothing whatsoever to do with it I would not have remained." He pushed back his chair and bowed stiffly. "I wish you good night," he said.

There was a chorus of remonstrance, and under cover of this and the Baronet's answering protests a servant for the second time slipped a piece of paper into the hand of the gentleman with the pearl stud. He read the lines written upon it and tore it into tiny fragments.

The youngest member, who had remained an interested but silent listener to the tale of the Queen's Messenger, raised his hand commandingly.

"Sir Andrew," he cried, "in justice to Lord Arthur Chetney I must ask you to be seated. He has been accused in our hearing of a most serious crime, and I insist that you remain until you have heard me clear his character."

"You!" cried the Baronet.

"Yes," answered the young man briskly. "I would have spoken sooner," he explained, "but that I thought this gentleman"—he inclined his head toward the Queen's Messenger—"was about to contribute some facts of which I was ignorant. He, however, has told us nothing, and so I will take up the tale at the point where Lieutenant Sears laid it down and give you those details of which Lieutenant Sears is ignorant. It seems strange to you that I should be able to add the sequel to this story. But the coincidence is easily explained. I am the junior member of the law firm of Chudleigh & Chudleigh. We have been solicitors for the Chetneys for the last two hundred years. Nothing, no matter how unimportant, which concerns Lord Edam and his two sons is unknown to us, and naturally we are acquainted with every detail of the terrible catastrophe of last night."

The Baronet, bewildered but eager, sank back into his chair.

"Will you be long, sir?" he demanded.

"I shall endeavor to be brief," said the young solicitor; "and," he added, in a tone which gave his words almost the weight of a threat, "I promise to be interesting."

"There is no need to promise that," said Sir Andrew. "I find it much too interesting as it is." He glanced ruefully at the clock and turned his eyes quickly from it.

"Tell the driver of that hansom," he called to the servant, "that I take him by the hour."

"For the last three days," began young Mr. Chudleigh, "as you have probably read in the daily papers, the Marquis of Edam has been at the point of death, and his physicians have never left his house. Every hour he seemed to grow weaker; but although his bodily strength is apparently leaving him forever, his mind has remained clear and active. Late yesterday evening word was received at our office that he wished my father to come at once to Chetney House and to bring with him certain papers. What these papers were is not essential; I mention them only to explain how it was that last night I happened to be at Lord Edam's bedside. I accompanied my father to Chetney House, but at the time we reached there Lord Edam was sleeping, and his physicians refused to have him awakened. My father urged that he should be allowed to receive Lord Edam's instructions concerning the documents, but the physicians would not disturb him, and we all gathered in the library to wait until he should awake of his own accord. It was about one o'clock in the morning, while we were still there, that Inspector Lyle and the officers from Scotland Yard came to arrest Lord Arthur on the charge of murdering his brother. You can imagine our dismay and distress. Like every one else, I had learned from the afternoon papers that Lord Chetney was not dead, but that he had returned to England, and on arriving at Chetney House I had been told that Lord Arthur had gone to the Bath Hotel to look for his brother and to inform him that if he wished to see their father alive he must come to him at once. Although it was now past one o'clock, Arthur had not returned. None of us knew where Madame Zichy lived, so we could not go to recover Lord Chetney's body. We spent a most miserable night, hastening to the window whenever a cab came into the square, in the hope that it was Arthur returning, and endeavoring to explain away the facts that pointed to him as the murderer. I am a friend of Arthur's, I was with him at Harrow and at Oxford, and I refused to believe for an instant that he was capable of such a crime; but as a lawyer I could not help but see that the circumstantial evidence was strongly against him.

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1907.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 1.

BE IT RESOLVED (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Strike out the proviso in section three of article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, and at its first session after each United States decennial census thereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange the counties of this State into districts for the election therein of members of the General Assembly. Each assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory, in a compact form; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Errors and Appeals is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into assembly districts of the counties of this State, for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division or any part thereof is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void, the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

PETIT JURORS DRAWN.

Will Serve for Two Weeks Beginning Monday.

The drawing of the petit jurors to serve for two weeks beginning Monday next, took place before Judge Atwater, at Elizabeth, yesterday. Those from Plainfield are as follows:

Plainfield—John C. M. Van Dyke, Charles Suhr, Theodore La Rue, Louis J. Van Alstyne, John McKeon, Hugh R. Knox, Samuel S. Dayton, Joseph A. Haines, Clarence E. Field, William S. Campbell, Charles H. Raybert, John L. Brower.

The trial of Circuit Court cases began yesterday morning before Judge B. A. Vail. Before a jury was sworn Judge Vail announced that action upon an application recently presented by Louis F. Yadkowski for permission to change his name, would be postponed one week and John J. Hurley, Henry A. Rath and William Miller were appointed by the court as commissioners of sewer improvements in Elizabeth.

The first case for trial yesterday was that of William A. Harrison against George A. Hennecker, on contract, but owing to the serious illness of an important witness it was laid over until later in the term, and the case of Hippolite A. De Raismes, of Elizabeth, against the North Jersey Street Railway Company substituted.

Mr. DeRaismes, the plaintiff, who is represented by Lawyer James C. Connolly, sues the company to recover $1,000 damages as the result of an accident which occurred on the evening of April 28 last, while an automobile owned by him was being given a trial trip on Newark avenue. When the auto neared the crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks across Frelinghuysen avenue, the machine ran into an excavation which had been made by the trolley company between its tracks, with the result that the occupants were thrown out and the machine wrecked.

Plainfield Women in Golf Match.

The third and last of the district team matches under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, was decided yesterday afternoon at the Essex County Country Club. There were eleven players on a side, and the B team, captained by Mrs. S. S. Lefferts, of Englewood, won by a score of 4 to 10. This makes two victories for the B team. In the absence of Miss Elsa Hurlbut, who is abroad, Mrs. E. F. Sanford, of the home club, had charge of the other team. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, who headed the A team, defeated her opponent, by 3 up by default, and Miss Maud Van Boskerck was 2 up on her opponent, Mrs. C. W. Park.

FORMER PASTORS SPOKE

"Auld Lang Syne" Meeting a Feature of Methodist Diamond Jubilee.

A NOVEL MEETING

All the Living Former Pastors Present Except Two—Reception Follows Service.

"It is a good thing for us to stop once in every seventy-five years and shake hands, in this life of hurry and rush. This is a time to revive old friendships and cultivate new ones." So said Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell in his address at the First Methodist church last night, and the evening's meeting, with the reception which followed was a time when the large congregation took opportunity to put into practice the words of the speaker. Novel among church affairs in the enthusiasm and interest felt in former pastors and early days in the church history, the "Auld Lang Syne" meeting at the church last night was an especially pleasant feature of the church people's celebration of their diamond jubilee.

The historical and social meeting of the Methodists, presided over by James W. Jackson, president of the board of trustees of the church was attended by another of the large congregations which have marked every service of the celebration. Of the eight living pastors of the local church, excluding Dr. McCrea, six were present at last night's meeting and made addresses: Rev. J. B. Van Meter, who was pastor of the church for two years, beginning in 1886, though he expected to be present, did not put in an appearance at the church. Dr. Van Meter is now dean of the Women's College at Baltimore. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, the local pastor from 1897 until Dr. McCrea was called, was also unable to attend, church duties in his parish in Perth Amboy preventing.

After opening the service with a hymn and a selection from the psalter, Mr. Jackson, who is the oldest member of the local church, having affiliated himself with the parish forty-one years ago, introduced Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurbut, pastor of the local church from 1874 to 1877. He spoke of the strong ties formed in the parish during his residence of eighteen years in this city as pastor and layman in the church. He attributed the success of the church to three things—the democratic spirit of the church in the blending of all social elements in the congregation for unity, the broadminded stand regarding other churches and faiths, and the fact that the parishioners seemed so fully imbued with the spirit of God. Rev. A. H. Tuttle, the speaker at the church last Sunday morning, was the next speaker. He dwelt especially on what the church had done for him during his pastorate here for three years, beginning 1883. He spoke at some length of the influence of the old parishioners in the church work and paid high tribute to the influence of Dr. Hurlbut upon him, when he came to the pastorate in 1883 as a "callow youth." He concluded with a strong appeal to the church to continue its growth by ever looking onward. Rev. Dr. J. M. Meeker, presiding elder of the Newark district, who acted as a supply in the church during the illness of Rev. T. H. Stockton, pastor just previous to Dr. Tuttle, next made a few remarks referring to the lasting effect of the influence of some of the parishioners during his pastorate of five months.

A refreshing element of humor was injected into the meeting by the address of Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, the speaker of the evening service Sunday. Dr. Mitchell, who was pastor of the church from 1888 to 1892, spoke of the significance of the occasion as being not so much to hear the benefits to "callow youths," a phrase used by several previous speakers, so much as to have a reunion which should revive old friendships and cultivate new ones. He said in part:

"An important part of the business of religion is to develop the social element in your character. This is sometimes overloked in the haste of our daily life. By this means you can strengthen the church unity, cultivating church pride and church loyalty. Be broad in your attitude toward the church, but don't be so broad that you have no depth. Love all churches, but this church best of all; you can't have too much church loyalty. The biggest organization you can ever belong to is the church of the Lord Jesus Christ, be always always loyal and true to that. Anecdotes and witticisms of the speaker caused much merriment and enthusiasm during Dr. Mitchell's discourse. Rev. Dr. Charles R. Barnes, who was pastor of the church from 1893 to

HUNT CLUB SELECTS MR. FISK FOR PRESIDENT

The annual meeting of the Watchung Hunt Club was held at the Casino, last night, when reports were received and officers elected for the coming year. Those chosen were: President, Charles J. Fisk; secretary and treasurer, Harvey Fisk; master of the hounds, Lewis E. Waring. Christopher Comins was engaged for another year as keeper of the kennels. The reports were encouraging and the new year starts under most promising conditions.

It was reported that the weekly hunts are now being held and that the fall schedule will be announced soon. The club is now in better financial condition than ever and plans are already being discussed for the annual steeplechase to be held next year. E. S. Hooley, Peter Hauck, Jr., and Harvey Fisk were reelected stewards.

BOY LOSES EYESIGHT WHEN SLINGSHOT SLIPPED

As the result of an accident while playing with a sling-shot near his home in Westfield, yesterday afternoon, nine-year-old Preston Swaney, son of Clark R. Swaney, has lost the sight of his left eye, and though two operations have been performed, it may still be necesssary to remove the eyeball.

The accident happened in a peculiar manner. Young Swaney was holding the wooden crotch of the toy in front of his face, holding the leather sling in his teeth as he stretched the rubbers. He lost his hold on the crotch while the rubbers were taut, and the wood, snapping back, struck him squarely in the eye. The lad's cries brought his mother and Dr. Robert R. Sinclair was summoned. He advised that the boy be immediately brought to this city for operation at Muhlenberg Hospital. This was done, and two operations were performed; it was impossible to save the lad's sight, though the physicians say that it may be possible to save the eyeball and that in time the boy may be able to distinguish light.

The boys' father, Clark R. Swaney, is well known in Westfield. He is a prominent member of the golf club and belongs to several fraternal orders.

HOPATCONG COTTAGE TOTALLY DESTROYED.

Structure Was Formerly the Property of Floyd T. Woodhull, of This City.

"Casadora," the beautiful summer home of Dr. C. D. Cox, of Brooklyn, situated on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The flames are supposed to have originated from a defective flue and had made great headway before they were discovered. Dr. and Mrs. Cox, Miss Marion Cox, Miss Dorothy Chace and Dr. Cox's brother, all residents of Brooklyn, escapel from the burning building in their night robes and sought shelter at nearby places.

The cottage was one of the handsomest of the Lake Hopatcong colony and was formerly the property of Floyd D. Woodhull, of this city, who sold it to Dr. Cox, three years ago. It was situated at the upper end of the island directly across the lake from Nolan's Point, and was the first cottage built on the island, erected as Mr. Woodhull's summer home fourteen years ago. The structure was elaborately furnished and the loss will reach $10,000.

Remember the "Treasurer's Booth."

One place at the Casino where the "Clans" will gather tomorrow night, and about which little has been said, is the "treasurer's booth." This will be one of the most attractive spots for here will be found the two august heads of the whole institution, Mrs. John Edgar Corlies and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, who will be delighted to welcome everyone to the fair and gladly answer all inquiries either in regard to the attractions or about the work at the hospital. Contributions both large and small can also be left at this booth with the treasurer, Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney.

No Bail, Sent to Jail.

Because no one furnished his bond of $500, placed by Justice of the Peace Snape at his hearing Monday night, Leonardo Russo was taken to Somerville yesterday afternoon by Marshal Lemuel Pope, of the borough force. He will be held there to await the action of the grand jury at the meeting of the December term. Maze Green, who got twenty days for drunkenness, also was taken to the county lockup.

TELLS OF MILK SUPPLY

Health Officer Thurlow Reads Interesting Paper Before Medical Society.

REVIEWS A CAMPAIGN

After Three Epidemics Caused By Impure Milk, the Standard of Supply Has Been Raised.

The Plainfield Medical Society was entertained last night by Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, and after an excellent dinner, the members listened to an interesting paper by Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow on "The Milk Supply of Plainfield."

The paper treated local milk conditions exclusively, referring to the fact that Plainfield has suffered from three epidemics, traced to contaminated milk. The first was a scarlet fever epidemic in 1897, 74 cases with no deaths; the second, a mild epidemic of diptheria in 1899, 15 cases and no deaths; and the third, scarlet fever again, in 1900, 73 cases and one death.

Immediately after the first epidemic in 1897 the question of securing pure and safe milk was agitated. Ordinances were passed by the Board of Health and in 1900 first setps were taken toward dairy inspection, which has been continued ever since. In 1902 the preesnt sanitary code was adopted, bring the milk dealers under the control of the Board of Health.

Mr. Thurlow stated that Plainfield's present milk supply is obtained from 96 dairies from within the city limits to a distance of thirty miles. About 1302 cows supply the 10,850 quarts sold daily in the city. This milk is distributed by 86 dealers holding permits. There has been practically little adulteration of milk to contend with here. The question of bacteria in milk was discussed at some length, showing that the presence of bacteria is not always to be considered harmful.

Mr. Thurlow declared that the campaign in Plainfield for pure milk has been one of education among the dairymen, endeavoring to show them how they can obtain a better, cleaner product by employing cleaner methods. In connection with the dairy inspection, dairy score cards are used, making classification of dairies possible. The card is divided into five sections on a basis of the following percentage: Cows, 20; stables, 25; milk house, 20; milkers and milking, 15; handling the milk, 20; 100 per cent. being a perfect score.

Mr. Thurlow presented a schedule showing the advance in price of feed and increase in the cost of production. The totals for all kinds of feed used show $1,448.93 in 1899 as against $2,188 for the present year. Mr. Thurlow estimates that the farmer today produces milk at a cost of 4.68 cents a quart, which allows for supervision and labor of the farmer $10 a week.

GOES TO ANNAPOLIS.

Dover Boy to be Named from the District.

The competitive examination held under the direction of Congressman Charles N. Fowler, at Elizabeth, on Saturday, for the purpose of selecting a midshipman at the Annapolis Naval Academy, from the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, resulted as follows: (1) A. Bennett Anderson, Dover; (2) Sifrein Fontaine Maury, Morristown; (3) H. Woodruff Scott, Cranford; (4) Paul N. Crispin, Phillipsburg.

Mr. Anderson, therefore, will be nominated as midshipman, and the others as alternates in the order named.

Golden Wedding G. V. Van Doren.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret V. Van Doren, of Finderne, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, Monday, by entertaining friends from Newark, New York, Plainfield, Somerville and other cities, at an elaborate dinner. The aged couple were the recipients of a number of handsome gifts, and the guests were their five children and two grandchildren and two grandchildren. The children are: Miss Charlotte Van Doren, of Bound Brook; Miss Annie Van Doren, of New York; Mrs. A. V. Kershaw, of New York; Garret Van Doren and John Van Doren, of Finderne.

Jesse Norman Cook.

BILL BOARDS CRUSADE

Town Improvement Association to Seek City Fathers Aid to Abolish Them.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Scheme of Taxation Suggested to Rid Municipality of Alleged Eyesores—Mrs. Mali at Work.

Hoping to rid the city and borough of all bill boards, the Plainfield-North Plainfield Town Improvement Association plans to have a taxation scheme introduced at the next meeting of the Common Council which Mrs. Piere Mali, the president, claims will prove effective. The idea of the members of the association is that the bill boards disfigure the municipality and that to make a city beautiful they must be banished. For some time they have been considering the matter and the agitation was brought to a climax at the annual meeting yesterday when Mrs. Isaac L. Miller read an exhaustive paper on the way other towns are treating unsightly posters.

Mrs. Miller told of the efforts of the improvement societies in Los Angeles, Cal., Peoria, Il., and other cities, along this line. In Los Angeles, she said, prizes were offered for photographs of the most ugly sections of the city and in nearly every case bill boards were to be seen in the pictures submitted. These photographs were published in the daily papers and ultimately resulted in having the alleged nuisance abolished. The system of taxation was also brought out by her. This includes the idea of levying a tax on all bill boards at so much per square foot, and the association decided that it would prove the best solution.

Mrs. Mali was re-elected president of the association and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh and Mrs. Frank D. Warren were chosen vice presidents. Mrs. Taliferro was named as secretary and Miss Isabelle Tweedy as treasurer. A prize of $5 was awarded for the best kept front yard, a West End woman winning the money.

BRASS BAND WILL LEAD AUTO TOUR CAWPAIGNERS

When J. Franklin Fort, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, makes his whirlwind tour of Union county on Tuesday, Oct. 29, he will go through with "bells on" for a brass band has been engaged to head the pageant which will consist of seven automobiles. The second auto will be occupied by the nominee and County Chairman Frank H. Smith and in the other cars will be the county candidates and some campaigners who will assist Mr. Fort in the spellbinding expedition.

The itinerary is practically that exclusively announced in The Daily Press but yesterday there was some talk of reversing it so that the start would be made in Elizabeth instead of in Plainfield. Wherever the music dispensed by the brass band can collect a crowd, Mr. Fort will make a speech. Stops will be made at factories and at all other places where any considerable number of men are employed. It is arranged to devote the entire day to the tour. At night, as exclusively told in this paper, Mr. Fort will address mass meetings at Rahway and Elizabeth.

This will mark Mr. Fort's third visit to Plainfield for he is booked to speak at Plainfield tonight.

"Marrying Justice" Keeps Busy.

William A. Cook and Miss Mary Lanningan, a Westfield couple, called at Justice Hezekiah Hand's home last night and had him pronounce the words that made them man and wife. The ceremony was performed with the 'squire's customary embellishments and he extended trading stamps when the fee was paid over by the groom. The justice has been marrying so many out-of-town couples of late that he declares his intention of going in on the wholesale plan by giving rebates on railroad fares.

Luncheon for Miss Martin.

In honor of Miss Helen Martin, whose marriage to Henry Davis Bushnerr will take place Saturday afternoon at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Miss Lucy Otterson gave a luncheon today at the Plainfield Country Club. Covers were laid for fifteen. The decorations were autumn leaves and chrsyanthemums.

Peaches are scarce but some nice ones are still to be had at Neuman Bros. Many other fruits in the big assortment shown every day.

VOTING MACHINES REMAIN

Senator Frelinghuysen's Reason for Not Urging Their Removal from Borough.

MAJORITY FOR THEM

Only 300 of the 1,400 Voters Wanted a Return to the Antiquated Balloting System.

Notwithstanding that more than 300 Republicans and Democrats of North Plainfield filed a petition with Secretary of State Dickinson requesting the removal of the voting machines from the borough, the antiquated way of voting will not be used in that place at the forthcoming election and it has remained for State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen to tell the why and wherefore. The petition in question was presented to Mr. Dickinson some weeks ago by Walter Linbarger, a Democratic county committeeman, and the former informed the boroughite that as is the custom he would be guided by the wishes of the state senator.

For the purpose of getting Mr. Frelinghuysen's consent, Mr. Linbarger visited him at his office in New York and was met with a cordial greeting notwithstanding stories to the contrary that allege that the county chairman made some derogatory assertions regarding the standing of the signers. Mr. Frelinghuysen did not tell Mr. Linbarger that he believed that there were many foreigners among the names attached to the petition. On the contrary what he did say was that he would investigate the matter and if he found the sentiment of North Plainfield opposed to voting machines he would ask for the removal although he personally believed that they were beneficial inasmuch as they prevent any corruption at the polls.

After consultations with a number of representative citizens of the borough, the senator ascertained that only 300 of the 1,400 voters favored the old way of casting ballots and that the majority of intelligent voters coincided with his views as to the purity of the ballot attained by use of the machines. Consequently he declined to ask the Secretary of State to abolish the machines.

Fought With His Housekeeper.

Informed of a lively neighborhood fight on Chatham street late last night, Marshal Lemuel Pope hurried to the scene to find Julia Saueracher and John Fleet engaged in the exchange of compliments of doubtful taste. Securing the aid of Marshal Peter Kiernan, Pope arrested Julia, then went to Recorder Dolliver's house and rousing the borough official at shortly after midnight, secured a warrant and returning, arrested Fleet, who had taken refuge in his house, at Chatham and Warren streets. According to the neighbors, Fleet came home drunk late and proceeded to put his apartments in careless disorder. Julia, his housekeeper, put him out of the house, and his verbal opinion of her, uttered because of this exclusion from his quarters, stirred the neighbors to summon the police. The two will come before Recorder Dolliver at the session of borough court tonight.

Cherhio Was Mussy.

John Cherhio, an Italian who has been employed on the brick paving work, was arrested yesterday for getting mussy on West Front street. He was discharged by the foreman and after loading up on rum came back to the job and argued that he had been cheated out of a dollar. He was very mild this morning and Judge Runyon let him go with a warning.

Judge Schenck Tries Somerset Cases.

Judge Schenck took up the trial of indictments in the Somerset County Court yesterday. In the case of Salvatore Sferra, charged with atrocious assault on Peter Romano, at Bound Brook, the state had its evidence all in when adjournment was reached at a late hour this afternoon.

Harvest Home.

A harvest home festival will be held at Bethel chapel, tomorrow night. Rev. F. D. Tildon will preside. Rev. M. A. Alexander will speak on "Leaves"; Rev. Henry Diggs on "Vegetables"; Rev. G. W. Bailey on "Grain," and Rev. Thomas Symons, "Fruit."

P. C. C. Trustees Meet.

The trustees of the Plainfield Country Club met at the Casino, last night and transacted routine business. Reports showed the club to be in excellent condition and it was the opinion that the present season had been the most successful in the history of the club.

CHAMBERS AGAIN TRIES FOR $20,000 FROM P.S.C.

The second trial of the case of Newton W. Chambers, of this city, against the Public Service Corporation, was moved for trial in the Union County Court at Elizabeth, this morning. Craig A. Marsh represents the plaintiff, who seeks $20,000 for injuries received by him on December 28, 1905.

Mr. Chambers was a passenger on a trolley car running between this city and Netherwood. It is said that while trying to alight from the car it suddenly started up and threw him. His injuries are such, it is claimed, that he has never recovered from them. The suit was tried about a year ago, but at that time the plaintiff failed to recover damages.

TOMMY CELEBRATED WITH CIGARS AND HANDSHAKES

Cigars and handshakes were plentiful on North avenue in general and "Tommy" Timbo's restaurant in particular today. Both were being dispensed by the genial proprietor of the "Congressional Cafe" in honor of the tenth anniversary of his entrance to the food dispensing business and all the "regulars" have been extending the honors he deserves. Congratulations have been pouring over the cigar cases as fast as the fragrant weeds went the opposite way.

"Tommy" began the quick lunch business on North avenue, October 16, 1897, in a store that has since been made the entranceway to the cab company stables. It was on a very small scale but from the start the trade increased and it was only a short time before larger quarters had to be secured. He moved to the Woolston & Buckle building as soon as it was completed and has remained there since. One store was occupied at first and later another was added, the second being exclusively for the restaurant trade. "Tommy" and his able assistant, Erwin Y. Neighbor, have always exercised personal supervision and their successful catering to the public wants has made the place one of the best known in the county.

"Tommy's" popularity has kept pace with the business growth and the congratulations have been as hearty and whole-souled as he has been in asking the boys to "have one."

ROBERT FOUNTAIN'S FUNERAL.

Large Gathering Attends Service Conducted at the Late Home.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Robert M. Fountain was held at his late home on Jackson avenue, last night. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Episcopal church of the Holy Cross, was the officiating clergyman

The gathering included a large delegation from Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., and the Episcopal obsequies were followed by the Masonic burial service. Past Worshipful Master William N. Runyon was in charge, and was assisted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, as chaplain, and Frank Wynkoop as marshal. There were numerous floral tributes.

Burial was made at Hillside cemetery this morning, the pall bearers being Dr. J. H. Cooley, Elmer Winckler, Andrew Winckler, William O. Taylor, Edward A. Overton and Councilman Francis L. Montgomery.

College Honors for Plainfielders.

Mr. Hand is one of the most prominent debaters in the university and is actively engaged in cross country work and wrestling. Leonard W. Cavett, of P. H. S. recently president of the junior class at Cornell has been elected general athletic director of the senior class by unanimous vote.

Deserter from U. S. S. Kansas.

Harry Hall, of Greenfield, Ill., a seaman on the battleship Kansas, who deserted on September 25, when the vessel was at League Island was arrested Monday by former Freeholder John A. Whitenack, jr., at Far Hills, who brought him to Somerville and turned him over to Sheriff Cooper. Hall was taken back to his ship yesterday afternoon.

Wants a Receiver Appointed.

W. H. Fulton, of Dunellen avenue, who has been engaged in the wholesale lumber business in New York, has made application for the appointment of a receiver that he may go through bankruptcy proceedings. His liabilities are reported to be $23,000 and the assets less than $8,000.

FORT AS FISK'S GUEST

Mayor to Entertain Republican Gubernatorial Candidate This Evening.

BIG MEETING HERE

Colby and the Nominee to Address Plainfield Voters at the New Plainfield Theatre.

Mayor Charles Joel Fisk will be the host of Gubenatorial Candidate J. Franklin Fort when he invades Plainfield today. He is expected to arrive here late this afternoon and Mr. Fisk and a few personal friends will meet him at the station. The party will go direct to Mr. Fisk's palatial home in West Seventh street, where dinner will be served. After the guests "smoke up," cars will be in waiting to convey them to Westfield where Mr. Fort will address a large mass meeting of Republican voters. Just as soon as he can get away from there he will return to Plainfield to talk to the voters here.

State Senator Everett Colby will occupy the stage at the New Plainfield Theatre tonight, while Mr. Fort is talking in Westfield. Mr. Colby can expect a hearty welcome here for a large percentage of the voters are believers in his "New Ideas." At the request of County Chairman Smith, State Senator Frelinghuysen, the county chairman of Somerset, has named former State Senator Charles Arthur Reed as chairman of the meeting as exclusively told in The Daily Press. North Plainfield will furnish a large proportion of the audience.

Mhen Mr. Fort leaves Westfield to address the Plainfield Republicans, Assemblyman Barber will speak to the Westfield audience. A brass band has been engaged to enliven the meeting which begins promptly at 8 o'clock.

CONGRESSMAN J. J. DILL FAVORS BOROUGH SEWERS.

The tax list prepared by Borough Tax Collector George F. Brown for signatures by North Plainfielders desiring a special election on the question of installing a sewer system in the borough has already been signed by about a dozen boroughites. The list was prepared at the request of the borough sewer committee, and copies of the petition will be circulated by members of the committee for the signatures of property owners.

A request for the signature of Congressman J. J. Dill, who owns the three stores on Somerset street at Lincoln place brought permission to sign from the congressman, who lives at Steubenville, Ohio. The letter said in part:

"I note your inquiry whether I wish you to sign for me as one of the real estate owners in favor of calling an election to authorize sewers, and I most certainly do authorize you to sign and sincerely trust the outcome may be favorable to the proposition. It is amazing to me that everybody does not vote for it, and the voting of a majority against it would be all the evidence necessary to show that the inhabitants of the borough of North Plainfield are half civilized."

The assessed value of Congressman Dill's borough real estate is about $7,000.

Teachers' Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association was held at Raritan, on Saturday, Dr. W. A. Ackerman the president being in the chair. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Sarah W. Farquhar, the teachers listened to a talk on "Industrial Education in the Grades," by Prof. Seuser, of Trenton. His idea was that "It was cheaper to educate than to restrain or support." He said that the present course of study was more calculated to prepare pupils for the professions. Rev. C. E. Hesselgave, of Chatham, gave a talk on "Macbeth." After a luncheon served by the Raritan teachers a trip through Duke's farm was taken.

Armrights Lose.

With a record of three games lost out of a series of five, The "mighty" Armright bowling team went down to defeat, last night. Hitherto claiming the city championship, they challenged the recently organized Ironsides and as a result had it "handed to them." The games were rolled on the Plainfield Academy alleys and were witnessed by a large crowd of rooters, equally divided in their sympathies.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. Howland at 135 De Lacy avenue, North Plainfield.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

As a result of a recent meeting of the Board of Education, the trustees of the Methodist church have consented to allow the use of the church bell as a storm signal to the school children, and Superintendent Meseroll has been furnished with a special key to the church so that the signals will hereafter be given in this way. In case of no morning session, the bell is to be rung at 8:30 in the morning, and ringing at 1 o'clock in the afternoon will signify that there will be no afternoon session.

Funeral services for "Uncle John" Tingley, who died last week, were conducted at his late home, at Gallagher's Corner, Monday afternoon. Rev. Frank Fletcher, formerly pastor of the local Baptist church, officiated. Peter H. Bennett, Eden Bennett, Merton Bennett, Joseph Tingley, Lewis Tingley and Walter Tingley, six nephews of the deceased, acted as pallbearers. The interment was in Middlesex Hillside cemetery.

The newly formed New Market Field Club will hold a masquerade ball and dance Friday evening, October 25. Music will be by Broshart's orchestra, and great interest is being taken in the affair, the first social function of the new organization. The commitee in charge consists of William Piddington, Frank Brown and Claude Penrose.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Whitford and family, formerly of this borough, are now setled in their new home at Alfred, N. Y. The doctor and his eldest son are at present completing arrangements to return to Oklahoma, where they have taken a tract of government land.

The regular mid week service will be held in St. John's church tonight.

LOTS OF COMPANY.

This Is Not An Isolated or Individual Case in Plainfield.

What is told by this resident of Plainfield will prove invaluable to many people who go through the same daily experience. This short statement of the relief obtained from far too prevalent annoyances should convince the greatest skeptic that the merit of the article referred to is just as represented.

Mrs. J. Mottley, of 546 Sixth St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "About two months ago I was seized with a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back of my head. I could not rest nights, and had little desire to do housework and my strength seemed to be about all gone. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's drug store and can truthfully say that they gave me relief from my sufferings. My back and head do not ache and I am strong and vigorous, rest well at night, and have some ambition again. I am convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills are a first-class remedy for troubles arising from the kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Great Show $4.75 Hats

The window display, on the New Street side of the building, which we are making of our $4.75 Trimmed Hates, will reveal to you more clearly than all the words we might put in type the high character, novelty, individuality and beauty of these very low priced hats.

You will admit, we think, when you see them that they look for all the world like hats that cost twice as much. $8 and $10 would be considered fair prices for them by many stores, but we keep our workers busy designing and trimming these popular priced hats and turn them out in such large numbers that we are able to keep the price down to the lowest notch, giving you styles that are far beyond the commonplace, materials that while not fine are good, and colorings of the most fashionable sort. Silks, velvets, wings, birds, feathers, flowers and ornaments are used in the trimming.

The window show on New Street is in six divisions, each devoted to hats of a color, making a most attractive showing.

STATIONERY AND TOYS.

HARPER,

411 PARK AVENUE

Brother Nacarins, of St. Joseph's School, Metuchen, who was run over by an automobile a couple of weeks ago, receiving a fractured arm, is now able to walk about the hospital. He hopes to return home soon.

Miss Eudora Beekman has resigned her position as assistant in the office of City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, and she has been succeeded by Miss Mary Dunham, who will combine the duties of the clerk's office with those of the street commissioner where she has been for some time.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The City High School football eleven will play Westfield H. S. on Hope Common today, and on Saturday the crack Commercial High School eleven of Brooklyn, will be their opponents on the Common.

Prince Marayah, the nineteen-year-old football candidate at Cornell, is the son of the maharajah of one of the big provinces in India.

Capt. Douglass, of Annapolis, who has not been in good condition this fall, is expected by the middies to be ready to play throughout the Harvard game.

Harlan is doing some great drop kicking and placemen goal kicking for Princeton.

It has developed that the right name of the Carlisle Indian candidate who has been designated as "Man-Afraid-of-a-Beard," is "Man Afraid-of-No-Bear." Coach Warner says he isn't afraid of anything else, either.

Andover misses the big men who have made the team powerful in the past.

Kersberg, Harvard's right guard of last year, is at Goldfield, Nev., mining.

The Johns Hopkins University football squad is gradually rounding into form under the leadership of Capt. Ridgeley and Coach Abner Sayler. The team is light, but is reported to have lots of speed.

Amherst has developed the forward pass and the outside kick to a degree of proficiency this year. Several times this season they have made up penalties for illegal passes by onward kicks and forward passes.

Eddie Cochems, whose St. Louis University team had a clean record last year, is after the same honors again, as it means games for 1908 with several strong Eastern college teams.

Brown should have a most successful season this year. The crowds are larger than at any New England college except Harvard, not excepting Yale.

Yale is better versed in passing the ball accurately for distance than for catching it.

Cambridge is wondering if at last Lockwood will develop into the back he promised to be long ago, when he made his first appearance against the Pennsylvania team. Against Maine he made dashes of sixty, forty, and twenty-two yards with little or no interference to help him.

The N. P. H. S. football eleven will play the team from Bernardsville High School at the latter place this afternoon. With one or two exceptions this year's eleven is identical with that of last.

The game scheduled for Saturday between P. H. S. and the Commercial High, of New York, should be one of the best of the season. It will be played on Hope Common.

While the Red and Blue team has no wonder punter in the backfield, they possess a crew of backs who can do some strong kicking. Edward Griene has the best distance, Hollenback can place his drives best, and Folwell is surest on a water-soaked field because of his gigantic size.

At the University of California the rule preventing freshmen from playing on the 'Varsity team has been abolished.

MR. BEATON GIVES $100 IF FAIR NETS $6,000

The clans will begin to gather tomorrow afternoon, when local society will work for charity at the mammoth fair to be held in the Casino afternoons and evening for a week. George F. Beaton has offered $100 to Muhlenberg Hospital if Mrs. John Edgar Corlies, manager of the fete, proves that the net receipts amount to more than $6,000, the sum representing the net proceeds of the carnival for the hospital last year.

Whenever and wherever the "Clans" may gather some will seek out a cozy nook and a pleasant book to complete their joy. The book shelf will be well stocked with wares. There will be not only the newest books, but those not so new which the people have already learned to love. Books of travel, adventure and sport, books of poetry, fancy and fashion, books of tales, juveniles, picture books and solid learning, all will be represented in this booth.

Most of the books have already been tested and have the approval of readers upon whose verdict the buyer may rely. The marked prices are such as would make the book trust shiver.

Mrs. Henry A. McGee will be chairman of this booth, and her assistants will be Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. A. V. Heely, Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. Allan Cowperwaith, Mrs. Francis De Lacy Hyde, Mrs. George D. Hallock, Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, jr., Mrs. Walter McGee, Miss Tracy, Mrs. Lemuel Serrell and Mrs. C. W. McGee.

Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney will be the chairman of the industrial booth and ice cream parlor. Her assistants will be Mrs. John J. Kenney, Mrs. Arthur A. Cannon, Mrs. J. L. Slevin, Mrs. A. J. Slevin, Mrs. James E. Bailey, Mrs. G. W. Neff, Mrs. W. E. Dunn, Mrs. Edward Feiring, Mrs. Hillaire Blatz, Mrs. James Harper.

The young women who will assist are the Misses Anna Slevin, Jeanette Summers, Ella Renard, Sara Gilligan, Elsie Knowlton, Mary Smith, May May Berkhan, Gertrude Berkhan, Margaret Kenney, Helen Rafferty, Maud Emmons, Myra Emmons, Anna Daley, Marie Carty, Hazel Walters, Mary Hines, Mamie Brady, Elizabeth Rafferty, Mary Daley, Ella Mullen, Margaret Rafferty.

The assistants will have charge of the industrial booth, where there will be more serious commodities related to household matters, such as table linens, towels, aprons, soaps, dinner sets, plates, silverware, etc. The young women will divide their time between the booth and ice cream parlors.

Charles Faber will be chairman of the committee in charge of the cigar booth. His assistants will be Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. A. Faber, Jr., Mrs. W. R. Faber, Miss Shreve, Miss May Shreve, Miss VanDeventer, Miss Duyckinck, Miss Stewart, Miss Sarah Mae Howell, Harry McGee, R. B. Duyckinck, Harry M. Slauson and W. R. Faber.

NELSON MORRIS' WILL.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 16.—The will of the late Nelson Morris was filed for probate late Monday. The petition accompanying the will estimates the estate at not over $20,000,000. Of this amount more than $18,000,000 is in personal property and the balance in real estate.

The bulk of the estate is left in trust to the executors for the various members of his family. The sum of $300,000 is to be paid immediately to Mrs. Morris, and she will participate also in the income from the estate at large.

Judges Circuits May be Changed.

A number of new Supreme Court precincts, it is understood, are soon to be established. Justice Pitney, it is said, will take the Hudson county circuit, replacing Judge Fort. There will be no change in Justice Swayze's circuit, who prefers to remain in the Union and Middlesex district. Justice Parker, recently appointed to succeed Justice Fort, will take the Morris, Somerset and Sussex circuits. The Passaic and Bergen district may be taken by Justice Bergen, Reed, Hendrickson and Trenchard will remain in South Jersey. There is much speculation as to the probable successor in Chancery of Vice-Chancellor Bergen. The name most prominently mentioned at this time are those of John H. Backes, of Trenton, and Bayard Stockton, of Princeton.

STATE W.C.T.U.'S SESSION

White Ribboners Listen to Addresses at 34th Annual Convention.

HELD AT JERSEY CITY

Mayor Fagan Failed to Show Up—General Daggett Opposes the Army Canteen.

A great throng of white ribboners assembled in the Lafayette Methodist Episcopal church at Jersey City, yesterday, for the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey. Such well-known persons as the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, of the Dutch Reformed church; Brigadier-General Aaron S. Daggett, U. S. A., and Henry Snyder, superintendent of public schools, spoke in the cause of temperance. Mrs. Emma Bourne, of Newark, president of the State W. C. T. U., opened the convention and introduced the speakers. Mrs. Isabella Story, president of the Hudson County W. C. T. U., made the first address of welcome in the name of the workers in her county. Mrs. Story said in part: "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is making its influence felt. We will go on and on and on. We are here to make our influence felt, in this country as well as abroad. We need sentiment to enforce the laws in this city and to insist upon the enforcement." Mrs. Story was followed by the Rev. R. K. Boyd, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, who spoke a word of welcome in the name of the churches of the city.

The Rev. Cornelius Brett and School Superintendent Henry Snyder also spoke.

There was a ripple of excitement among the assemblage when Mrs. Bourne asked if Mayor Mark M. Fagan was in the audience. Mayor Fagan was scheduled to speak from the politician's viewpoint, but he failed to put in an appearance.

Miss H. D. Nicoll, of Summit, made a fitting response to the greetings of the several speakers.

Mrs. Bourne introduced Brigadier-General Daggett, whom the audience greeted with a waving of tiny flags and their Chautauqua cry of "White Ribbon" thrice repeated. General Daggett spoke on the army canteen.

The Rev. Jasper S. Hogan, of Lafayette Reformed church, Jersey City, pronounced the benediction.

1897 spoke after Dr. Mitchell, simply congratulating the parish upon the position attained, the growth along various branches of church work and the spirit of the parish.

Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, who came to the church as pastor at the critical time of the church history in the year 1866, was the last speaker. Dr. Whitney is the oldest of the living pastors. He spoke briefly of the lasting value of the evening's speeches and said that to him church life seemed the essence of God's love. Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, introduced after Dr. Whitney, was greeted with applause. At his suggestion, the congregation adjourned to Vincent chapel, where a social hour was spent, talking over the old days and partaking of ice cream, cake and coffee, served by a committee of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The committee for the affair was in charge of Mrs. L. M. French as chairman, including Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse, Mrs. Samuel Bingamin, Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, Mrs. A. S. Alpaugh, Mrs. N. Y. Hull, Mrs. A. V. Edgar and Mrs. E. C. McNaughton. The decoration committee, consisting of Mrs. H. A. McGee, Mrs. J. H. Howell and Mrs. J. C. Peek, assisted the pastor. Rev. A. C. McCrea in receiving, and the refreshments were served by a delegation from the men's brotherhood of the church and a corps of the young women of the parish. There were more than a hundred people at the reception.

FROM "LUNNON TOWN" DIRECT TO PLAINFIELD.

"Tom Jones" to be Produced Here For First Time in America.

Unusual attention has been bestowed upon the American production of the English comic opera "Tom Jones," which Henry W. Savage will offer for the first time in this country in Plainfield, Thursday, Oct. 31, following this performance with two nights and a matinee in Atlantic City and a week in Washington at the Columbia theatre, before opening the New ork engagement. Edward German, the celebrated English composer, who wrote the score for "Tom Jones," came to this country expressly to rehears Mr. Savage's company in the music, while Robert Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson, authors of the libretto, came over to supervise the staging of the production. Mr. Courtneidge is one of the best known producers in England. He has made a reputation with several of the biggest and most elaborate productions in London.

The visit to this country of these three eminent men direct from the Apollo Theatre, London, lends much distinction to the American production of "Tom Jones."

SAVE THE BABY
from the croup, and relieve the spasms of whooping cough.
"Dr. Drake's German Cough and Croup Remedy"
is a guaranteed remedy for croup, whooping cough and colds. One dose will relieve the heavy labored breathing of croup; gives the child relief and sleep. Whooping cough is a stubborn and annoying disease but it yields quickly to Drake's German Syrup, given four times a day it lessens the frequency and violence of the coughing spells.
Don't let the children suffer, when they can be helped, and we guarantee they can—or money refunded if it fails—at

"Randolph's Egg Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil."

This is a very valuable remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis.

It is different from many kinds of Cod Liver Oil, in that it is pleasant to the taste and easy to take. Being very nutritious, it soon builds up a run down system.

CHEERS FOR FORT IN HUNTERDON COUNTY

Judge J. Franklin Fort, Republican candidate for Governor, finished a day's campaign through Hunterdon county by addressing a large mass meeting at Lambertville at 9 o'clock last night.

Accompanying Judge Fort in the trip were George H. Large and John H. Rose, the Republican candidate for assembly from Hunterdon county. Early yesterday morning the party left Somerville and went by train to Hampton Junction, where they addressed a mass meeting which was held in H. M. Bigelow's hall. They then drove to Glen Gardner, where a brief reception was held, and from there to High Bridge, where they were shown through the Taylor Iron and Steel Company's plant, and Judge Fort spoke to an audience of eight hundred employes.

From High Bridge the party preceded to Clinton in automobiles and met with an enthusiastic reception at a mass meeting in Music Hall at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The ten miles from Clinton to Flemington were covered at a rapid rate and the party reached that town in time to inspect the Foran Foundry and Machine Company's works and the Fulper Potteries before addressing a mass meeting shortly before 7 o'clock.

In the course of his speech Judge Fort said that he should advise the extension of the system of macadam roads throughout the country. He also asserted that one of his first steps as governor, if elected, would be to ask for a law permitting the investigation of all the state departments by the governor.

Judge Fort then went in an automobile to Lambertville, where he made his closing speech. He was introduced by Assemblyman John Barber and was greeted with enthusiasm.

Companion Court of Foresters held a sociable and dance in Club Hall last evening. Delegations from Cranford and Plainfield were present.

DIED.

FRAZEE—On Tuesday, October 15, 1907, Anna C., wife of Henry Frazee.

Funeral services at her late residence, 306 Richmond street, on Thursday, October 17, at 1:30 p. m. Interment at Rahway.

One precious to our hearts is gone,
The voice we loved is still.
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.

Our Father in His wisdom called
The boon His love had given;
And though on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon will be seen here in a new play bearing the brief but significant title of "Bridge." The production of this dramatic work, for which Alice Ramsey is responsible, will invite attention next Friday night at the New Plainfield theatre and unless all signs fail a dramatic entertainment of rare importance may safely be counted upon. Ernest Shipman, under whose managerial auspices Mr. Kelcey and Miss Shannon are now appearing, gives absolute assurance that nothing has been overlooked in order that the presentation of a worthy play shall have all the advantages of an elaborate and picturesque staging, and that the company engaged in support of his newly acquired stars is all that careful selections can guarantee.

"The Walls of Jericho," the now famous play, is from the pen of the gifted Alfred Sutro, and bears an astonishing record of success in London and New York. This drama has the distinction of having won not only the unanimous praise of the press and the public, but of the pulpit as well. Few plays written these days are sufficiently strong, purposeful or brilliant to convince all classes of people, but this, "The Walls of Jericho," is said to have accomplished. In a literary sense it is said to be as brilliant as the works of Sheridan and other eminent writers for the English stage. In theme it is a powerful criticism of London society of today and its arraignment of the smart set of London has been declared to be the most scathing that the frivolous set of the world's metropolis has received in a quarter of a century. "The Walls of Jericho" will be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

"The Lady from Lane's," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday night, was written to drive away all melancholy. The author, George Broadhurst, is the most successful writer of farces since the days of Charles Hoyt. All the world has laughed at his "What Happened to Jones," and "Why Smith Left Home." Gustave Kerker has composed the score which is said to be the best that he has written since the "Belle of New York." Truly Shattuck and Thomas Wise will be seen in the principal comedy roles and Ida Hawley, Adele Rafter and Walter Percival have the chief vocal numbers. The cast comprises more Broadway favorites than have been seen together in recent years.

The Shuberts' merry English musical whirl, "The Earl and the Girl," with Alexander Clark and 60 other clever companions, holds forth at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. It's only quite recently that the piece closed a remarkably long run at the Casino theatre in New York city. "The Earl and the Girl," also ran for more than two years at the Lyric theatre, London. The piece abounds with sparkling comedy, a brilliant array of beautiful girls in lavish costumes, fascinating music and the chorus is said to be remarkable for its terpsichorean ability and its vocal excellence, the feminine voices being selected with great care. "The Earl and the Girl" is handsomely staged and moves with plenty of spirit, and none of its humor gets over the heads of the audience. There has been a very large call for seats and a capacity house is assured.

Oscar Figman as John Winston in "The Lightning Conductor" has made a decided hit. The play taken from the novel of the same name is full of sparkling dialogue and cleverly constructed situations. The cast is a notable one. All the scenery is elaborate and beautiful. It will be one of the successes that the New Plainfield theatre will present this season, appearing next Tuesday night.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"Toward early morning Lord Edam awoke, and in so much better a state of health that he refused to make the changes in the papers which he had intended, declaring that he was no nearer death than ourselves. Under other circumstances, this happy change in him would have relieved us greatly, but none of us could think of anything save the death of his elder son and of the charge which hung over Arthur.

"As long as Inspector Lyle remained in the house my father decided that I, as one of the legal advisers of the family, should also remain there. But there was little for either of us to do. Arthur did not return, and nothing occurred until late this morning, when Lyle received word that the Russian servant had been arrested. He at once drove to Scotland Yard to question him. He came back to us in an hour, and informed me that the servant had refused to tell anything of what had happened the night before, or of himself, or of the Princess Zichy. He would not even give them the address of her house.

"'He is in abject terror,' Lyle said. 'I assured him that he was not suspected of the crime, but he would tell me nothing.'

"There were no other developments until two o'clock this afternoon, when word was brought to us that Arthur had been found, and that he was lying in the accident ward of St. George's Hospital. Lyle and I drove there together, and found him propped up in bed with his head bound in a bandage. He had been brought to the hospital the night before by the driver of a hansom that had run over him in the fog. The cab-horse had kicked him on the head, and he had been carried in unconscious. There was nothing on him to tell who he was, and it was not until he came to his senses this afternoon that the hospital authorities had been able to send word to his people. Lyle at once informed him that he was under arrest, and with what he was charged, and though the inspector warned him to say nothing which might be used against him, I, as his solicitor, instructed him to speak freely and to tell us all he knew of the occurrences of last night. It was evident to any one that the fact of his brother's death was of much greater concern to him, than that he was accused of his murder.

"'That,' Arthur said contemptuously, 'that is damned nonsense. It is monstrous and cruel. We parted better friends than we have been in years. I will tell you all that happened—not to clear myself, but to help you to find out the truth.' His story is as follows: Yesterday afternoon, owing to his constant attendance on his father, he did not look at the evening papers, and it was not until after dinner, when the butler brought him one and told him of its contents, that he learned that his brother was alive and at the Bath Hotel. He drove there at once, but was told that about eight o'clock his brother had gone out, but without giving any clew to his destination. As Chetney had not at once come to see his father, Arthur decided that he was still angry with him, and his mind, turning naturally to the cause of their quarrel, determined him to look for Chetney at the home of the Princess Zichy.

"Her house had been pointed out to him, and though he had never visited it, he had passed it many times and knew its exact location. He accordingly drove in that direction, as far as the fog would permit the hansom to go, and walked the rest of the way, reaching the house about nine o'clock. He rang, and was admitted by the Russian servant. The man took his card into the drawing-room, and at once his brother ran out and welcomed him. He was followed by the Princess Zichy, who also received Arthur most cordially.

"'You brothers will have much to talk about,' she said, 'I am going to the dining-room. When you have finished, let me know.'

"As soon as she had left them, Arthur told his brother that their father was not expected to outlive the night, and that he must come to him at once.

"'This is not the moment to remember your quarrel,' Arthur said to him; 'you have come back from the dead only in time to make your peace with him before he dies.'

"Arthur says that at this Chetney was greatly moved.

"'You entirely misunderstand me, Arthur,' he returned. 'I did not know the governor was ill, or I would have gone to him the instant I arrived. My only reason for not doing so was because I thought he was still angry with me. I shall return with you immediately, as soon as I have said good-by to the Princess. It is a final good-by. After to-night, I shall never see her again.'

"'Do you mean that?' Arthur cried.

"'Yes,' Chetney answered. 'When I returned to London I had no intention of seeking her again, and I am here only through a mistake.' He then told Arthur that he had separated from the Princess even before he went to Central Africa, and that, moreover, while at Cairo on his way south, he had learned certain facts concerning her life there during the previous season, which made it impossible for him to ever wish to see her again. Their separation was final and complete.

"'She deceived me cruelly,' he said; 'I cannot tell you how cruelly. During the two years when I was trying to obtain my father's consent to our marriage she was in love with a Russian diplomat. During all that time he was secretly visiting her here in London, and her trip to Cairo was only an excuse to meet him there.'

"'Yet you are here with her to-night,' Arthur protested, 'only a few hours after your return.'

"'That is easily explained,' Chetney answered. 'As I finished dinner to-night at the hotel, I received a note from her from this address. In it she said she had but just learned of my arrival, and begged me to come to her at once. She wrote that she was in great and present trouble, dying of an incurable illness, and without friends or money. She begged me, for the sake of old times, to come to her assistance. During the last two years in the jungle all my former feeling for Zichy has utterly passed away, but no one could have dismissed the appeal she made in that letter. So I came here, and found her, as you have seen her, quite as beautiful as she ever was, in very good health, and, from the look of the house, in no need of money.

"'I asked her what she meant by writing me that she was dying in a garret, and she laughed, and said she had done so because she was afraid, unless I thought she needed help, I would not try to see her. That was where we were when you arrived. And now,' Chetney added, 'I will say good-by to her, and you had better return home. No, you can trust me, I shall follow you at once. She has no influence over me now, but I believe, in spite of the way she has used me, that she is, after her queer fashion, still fond of me, and when she learns that this good-by is final there may be a scene, and it is not fair to her that you should be here. So, go home at once, and tell the governor that I am following you in ten minutes.'

"'That,' said Arthur, 'is the way we parted. I never left him on more friendly terms. I was happy to see him alive again, I was happy to think he had returned in time to make up his quarrel with my father, and I was happy that at last he was shut of that woman. I was never better pleased with him in my life.' He turned to Inspector Lyle, who was sitting at the foot of the bed taking notes of all he told us.

"'Why in the name of common sense,' he cried, 'should I have chosen that moment of all others to send my brother back to the grave?' For a moment the Inspector did not answer him. I do not know if any of you gentlemen are acquainted with Inspector Lyle, but if you are not, I can assure you that he is a very remarkable man. Our firm often applies to him for aid, and he has never failed us; my father has the greatest possible respect for him. Where he has the advantage over the ordinary police official is in the fact that he possesses imagination. He imagines himself to be the criminal, imagines how he would act under the same circumstances, and he imagines to such purpose that he generally finds the man he wants. I have often told Lyle that if he had not been a detective he would have made a great success as a poet, or a playwright.

"When Arthur turned on him Lyle hesitated for a moment, and then told him exactly what was the case against him.

"'Ever since your brother was reported as having died in Africa,' he said, 'your Lordship has been collecting money on post obits. Lord Chetney's arrival last night turned them into waste paper. You were suddenly in debt for thousands of pounds—for much more than you could ever possibly pay. No one knew that you and your brother had met at Madame Zichy's. But you knew that your father was not expected to outlive the night, and that if your brother were dead also, you would be saved from complete ruin, and that you would become the Marquis of Edam.'

"'Oh, that is how you have worked it out, is it?' Arthur cried. 'And for me to become Lord Edam was it necessary that the woman should die, too?'

"'They will say,' Lyle answered, 'that she was a witness to the murder—that she would have told.'

"'Then why did I not kill the servant as well?' Arthur said.

"'He was asleep, and saw nothing.'

"'And you believe that?' Arthur demanded.

"'It is not a question of what I believe,' Lyle said gravely. 'It is a question for your peers.'

"'The man is insolent!' Arthur cried. 'The thing is monstrous! Horrible!'

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all; and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

This is the Square Pot
Patented
Found only in
Boynton Furnaces

Did you ever operate a furnace made with the old-fashioned round fire pot, with its sloping sides to catch ashes and retard combustion; its grate bars of uneven length constantly requiring raking; its big waste of fuel?

Then you will appreciate the many advantages of the square fire pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces. Walls are perpendicular, instead of slanting; a touch of the shaker removes all ashes without clogging or the necessity of raking.

Gives 25 per cent greater heating efficiency than any other pot of equal diameter

This is the only construction in which the grate bars operate with even motion under the whole fire bed, giving quick, perfect combustion and the fullest benefit of every ounce of fuel.

There's but one square pot—found in all Boynton Furnaces. Your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith will gladly show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

WOMEN IN TRIPLE TIE.

Keen Play in Open Golf Tournament At Englewood.

There was a triple tie for low score honors in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the women's open golf tournament at the Essex County Country Club yesterday. Miss Julia R. Mix, of Englewood; Miss Kate Harley, of Fall River, and Mrs. S. F. Lefferts, of Englewood, all returned a score of 94. They agreed to play off the tie this afternoon during the handicap which has been scheduled as the side attraction.

Out of sixty-odd entries an even forty teed up yesterday, and all tried to qualify in one of the three eights. Closely following the three leaders came Miss Elizabeth Porter, of Brooklyn, who carried her match with Miss Margaret Curtis to the seventeenth green in the third round of the national championship tournament over the links of the Midlothian Country Club last week. Miss Porter returned 95 and then came Mrs. N. P. Rogers, of Plainfield, president of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, with 96. Those with scores of 102 or better qualified in the first eight.

The luck of the draw has resulted in the bracketing of several of the leading players for the first round. The most prominent pair are Miss Harley and Mis Mix, and judging by their even work in the qualification test, the match will be hard fought. Mrs. N. P. Rogers will meet Mrs. L. W. Callan, of Englewood.

N. P. H. S. vs. Bernardsville.

The borough high school eleven wil play the opening game of their schedule today, when they will journey to Bernardsville to meet the town eleven there. The school boys do not consider this a regular game, but will take a big squad down and have a team tryout for positions. Parsons and Day will not be able to go, but the squad will start from the school at 1 o'clock in a stage. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock.

COLLEGE MEN AT GOLF.

Robert Abbott is Defeated by H. H. Wilder of Harvard.

Yale and Princeton won their matches in the first round for the team championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association over the links of the Nassau Country Club yesterday. They will meet in the thirty-six hole final round today. In yesterday's matches Yale defeated Harvard 13 points to 6½, while while Princeton won at the expense of the University of Pennsylvania team to the tune of 9½ to 2½ points.

Before the players started out it was generally conceded that Princeton would come in a reasonably sure winner, but there was some doubt as to the outcome of the other match. Robert Abbott, of this city, a former intercollegiate champion, who played No. 1 for Yale, was opposed to H. H. Wider, of Harvard. Inability to keep his long drives on the course got the Yale man into no end of trouble. Wilder, on the other hand, played steadily, going out in 40 and home in 37 for a 77, and Abbott finished 6 down.

Principal Travell Defeated.

In the championship tournament at the city high school yesterday, Principal I. W. Travell was defeated, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, by Douglass Davis. Moses Rubenstein won from James Fleming in three sets, 9-7, 4-6 and 8-6, closely contested games. The play was at Briggs' court on Albert street. The match play will be concluded this week, a silver cup being the award to the title winner of the school.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Indian was the subject of an interesting paper by Miss Mary Coles read yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church held in the lecture room. The unjust treatment of the Red Man in the early days of Spanish conquest and his distrust and hatred of the white man, whom he believed meant not only to despoil him of his lands but destroy his people were described by Miss Coles, who also told of the results of the irrepressible conflict between these natives of the soil and the early settlers of the republic. Custer's assertion that "an Indian cannot be himself and be civilized" was given, but the results of education and evangelization show that under the power of the Gospel the Indian can become a new creature. The transforming influence of the Gospel over these wild men was shown by Mrs. S. T. Wilson's paper on "Mission Work Among the Indians." The examples taken were the Kiowal of Oklahoma and the Hopis of Arizona, to which tribes the Woman's Home Mission Society has sent missionaries.

The papers were preceded by the devotional service led by Mrs. J. A. Powlison, the subject being: "In Humility Following in His Footsteps."

Mrs. Henry Frazee.

Mrs. Anna C. Frazee, wife of Henry Frazee, died suddenly at her home on Richmond street yesterday morning, following a stroke of paralysis. She was formerly Mrs. Annie Underhill and was married to Mr. Frazee two years ago, she being his third wife. She leaves a son and a daughter. The funeral will be held at the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 1:30. Burial will be at Rahway.

Organize Auto Concern.

Paul Gillette, who has been in charge of the Plainfield Motor Company's business, has resigned the position in order to become manager of the Star Motor Vehicle Company, of Newark, incorporated by local people. Lester B. Harris, of West Front street, is president, and Leon Harris, his sonfi is treasurer. The concern will have a large store on Halsey street.

Honeymoon in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Woodard, who were married at Newburg, N. Y., on Thursday night, have been visiting Mrs. Woodard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Joseph. They will go to Europe on a wedding trip and on their return will reside at Bayside, Long Island.

TOWNSHIP G.O.P. RALLY PLANNED FOR MONDAY

North Plainfield township's Republicans will hold a big mass meeting at Texier's mills on Monday night. Speeches will be made by the Somerset county candidates including Joseph A. Mets, of Somerville, who is after the surrogateship, Kay, who wants the shrievalty job and W. W. Smalley, who aims to go back to Trenton.

Postmaster George Smith, of Watchung, will act as chairman and State Senator Joseph S. relinghuysen, of Raritan, the county chairman, is expected to be present. Charles Parkhurst Sebring will head a large delegation representing the J. Franklin Fort Republican Club of Greenbrook. On behalf of that organization, Mr. Sebring on Monday presented a large bouquet of chrysanthemums to Mr. Fort, who had them sent to his wife in Orange.

MISSING GIRL RETURNS.

Miss Carrie Beam, Absent Over Three Weeks, Is Now at Brother's Home in Vernoy.

Califon, Oct. 16.—After an absence of over three weeks, Miss Carrie Beam, sixteen years old, daughter of George Beam, a farmer, near Middle Valley, has returned to the home of her brother, John Beam, at Vernoy. She refuses to give an account of her whereabouts during the period of her absence. It is thought by relatives that part of the time was spent at Easton, Pa.

Miss Beam left her home, September 20, without advising her father of her intentions. She had previously removed her effects, and it was reported that a certain young man had assisted her in making her departure. No efforts on the part of relatives were made to locate her.

The girl ran away once before.

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

CHURCH FAMILY REUNION

Monroe Avenue and Grace M. E. Congregations Worship Together Jubilee Week.

HELD A LOVE FEAST

Rev. C. B. Mitchell, In Whose Pastorate the Branches Were Formed, Haled As "Father of the Family."

If Tuesday night's services in connection with the diamond anniversary of the First Methodist Church can bereferred to as an "Auld Lang Syne" meeting of Methodism in this city, then last night's meeting in Vincent Chapel an old-fashioned "love feast" of the sort which is dying out nowadays, was pre-eminently a family reunion" of local Methodism—a time when the first church as the mother church, welcomed the representatives of te Monroe Avenue M. E. Church and the Grace M. E. Church as the children. Postponing his return to Cleveland, Ohio, made urgent by the scope of his parish work, Rev. Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell, who may well be called the "father" of the two branch churches, lent enthusiasm to the meeting by his remarks of welcome and encouragement to the members of the other two churches present.

The service was in charge of the Rev. Daniel Halleron, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district, who conducted it according to the customs of an old-time Methodist "love feast." Music was a feature of the meeting, and Miss Sharpe officiated at the piano; there was also spirited singing of the old Methodist hymns, with Dr. Halleron as precentor. Greeting the congregation which, while small, was composed largely of the older members of the church, full of enthusiasm, Dr. Halleron said that the mother church extended a hearty welcome to the children. As the official mouth piece of the older child, Monroe Chapel, Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the church, gave a brief history of its growth since the foundation, about fifteen years ago. It began as the Union Sunday-school, situated on Evona avenue; this school was founded by Rev. Dr. Woodruff, a former pastor of the Dunellen Methodist Church, and George Angleman, of Dunellen, later superintendent of this school. James McGee was influential as the mainstay of this organization until after its admission to local Methodism through the first church here in 1890, when the Monroe Avenue Chapel was dedicated. The church had steady growth, on December 31, 1896 there were 102 members, 11 probationers and 160 in the Sunday-school, while ten years later at the time of the decennial anniversary, there were 250 members, 14 probationers and 400 in the Sunday-school. The condition of the church at the present time was reviewed and the outlook for the future presented.

Because of the illness of Dr. Charles W. Parsons and the absence from town of Dr. H. K. Carroll, W. J. Conroy summarized the history of the Grace M. E. Church. The church began as a Sunday school in Dr. Mitchell's time and later the chapel was established on land purchased by subscription of the first church members. On the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of the church last winter, there were 350 members and conditions were flourishing, with no debt.

At the conclusion of these histories, men and events of church life of the past were reviewed by speakers from the floor among whom were W. W. Johnson, Superintendent James R. Joy and Dr. Mitchell, who said in part:

"Inasmuch as the two branch churches were formed during my pastorate here, I may call myself the father of them. I am proud of them both, I don't know which is the elder, but think they are twins. It is a significant fact that there was no factional split in their formation, I merely thought that three branches would be better than a single main church. I believed that with James McGee as my assistan in the west end and Dr. H. K. Carroll in charge on the north side of the brook, I considered, myself fortunate in being at the head of such church life. I never knew of two churches to leave a mother churc and start in for temselves under such sweet conditions and relations. As the father of the two local curches which have thrived so successfully since my pastorate here, let me say 'God bless you'."

Rev. A. C. McCrea, as "step father" of the churches spoke of the value of the meeting as a re-charging impulse for greater things to be accomplished in future. The meeting concluded with the benediction by Rev. Dr. Mitchell, the "father" of the branch churches, and many of tose present remained to exchange social greetings and to examine pictures and records exhibited in connection with the history of Methodism in Plainfield.

PLAINTIFF ARRESTED WITH MAN HE COMPLAINED OF

The truth of the old saw that the law is a double-edged tool has come home to Walter Johnston, colored, who is today locked up in a cell at the borough police court, in company with John Brown, against whom he made a complaint yesterday. Johnson will be brought before Recorder Dolliver tonight to answer charges of conducting a disorderly house and in addition will share with Brown the blame for a disgraceful street fight at the time of the arrest on warrant.

The two are newcomers in the borough and have been living in a house on Jefferson avenue since their arrival here. With them was one Adeline Marsh, a dusky belle whom Johnson claimed as his wife. Jealousy of Brown, who is also in the good graces of the woman, led to Johnson's complaint aaginst him secured from Recorder Dolliver yesterday afternoon. Johnson claimed that Brown was "hangin' round" his house and could not be persuaded to go away. When Marshals Pope and Kiernan went to the house with the warrant for Brown's arrest, Johnson lost control of his temper at sight of the rival and pitched into him on the sidewalk. The officers took them both along, but could not separate the combatants until the end of one of Johnson's arms had landed on Brown's left eye, effecting a color scheme of black and blue, and causing a prominent facial bulge.

When locked up in adjoining cells, Johnson confessed to the chief his lack of relationship with the Marsh woman, and seemed prepared to accept the inevitable at the hands of the law. It appears that other men and women lodge in the house and that a Lewis Moon and Johnson pay the rent for the place. The hearing will be before Recorder Dolliver tonight.

SUDDEN DEATH OF WALLER STIRS UP FAMILY FUED

The sudden death of William Waller last night as the result of an epileptic fit while at work carting crushed stone for Contractor C. M. Meeker on the Somerset street job, has caused intense rivalry between two local undertakers and has brought out the fact that Maggie Bell, who claimed to be Waller's wife, was never legally married to him and therefore can have no share of the man's bank account, amounting to more than $500 and the life insurance of $200. Maggie Bell, who is a well-known borough character with a record in the police court, is asserting her avoirdupois in an effort to establish her relationship with Waller, and has not yet given up hopes of having the funeral from the Race street home, where she has been living with Waller. Waller's mother, Mrs. Emily Waller, is her opponent in the relationship fight. The mother claims that Maggie has a husband in Rahway.

Death came to Waller suddenly. The man, who was perfectly well yesterday morning, was subject to fits, and had an epileptic attack at 2.30 yesterday afternoon while loading stone in his wagon at N. B. Smalley's quarry in the borough. He was found by Charles Ralph, a fellow workman, employed as stone carter by the street contractor. Dr. Justus H. Cooley and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan were summoned and the man was removed to his home on Race street. He never regained consciousness and death came at 6.30 o'clock in the evening. He was thirty-three years old.

Maggie Bell was at his bedside when the end came, and immediately had Undertaker Henry DeMott summoned. At about the same time, Mrs. Waller, the dead man's mother, called another undertaker. DeMott was first at the house and went ahead with arrangements for the funeral.

Then the trouble began. Maggie stoutly defended her right to superintend the funeral arrangements and showed insurance papers in her favor as his wife. The mother could not be persuaded that the marriage had ever taken place and eventually Chief Marshal George Weiss and Marshal Lemuel Pope were eventually called in. The question of relationship was threshed over by the principals and all borough "Darktown" this morning, but the mother's stand was eventually proved, and the body given over to her care.

Mrs. Waller claims that ten years ago Maggie Bell was married to Troy Gibson, who left her six months after the ceremony and is now employed in a club in Rahway. During his residence in this city, he was employed as stone carter at Smalley's quarry.

FIGHT PATENT MEDICINES

Union County Medical Society Favor Scheme Urged by the Druggists.

HEAR PURE FOOD TALK

Dr. T. H. Tomlinson Tells of Adulteration of Food—Pharmacists Attend the Meeting.

The Union County Medical Society at its meeting in the Y. M. C. A. building, yesterday, adopted a report of a special committee which recommended the use of medicines compounded after formulae in the United States Pharmacopaea, and the discontinue as far as practical the use of patent medicines, in place of prescriptions.

This is the first time in the history of the society that a committee from the Union County Druggists' Association has been invited to meet with the physicians and the action taken is a most important one. The committee from the druggists' association comprised T. S. Armstrong, of this city; Dr. Charles S. Schlichter, Dr. Stephen Quinn and William Richard, of Elizabeth, and Dr. Silvers, of Rahway.

The two associations practically decided to begin a crusade against proprietary medicines and the indiscriminate use of them. It was pointed out that under the new law the manufacturers of proprietary medicines are now compelled to print the formula on each and every article put on the market by them. Under these provisions it is possible for the druggist to compound the same identical article much cheaper, thereby giving the purchaser the benefit of the difference in the cost.

The action taken is one that has been desired by the druggists for a long time, and the physicians have also been anxious to take such steps as would result in hearty co-operation between themselves and the druggists. In adopting the report of the committee the desired end seems to have been attained.

The other feature of the meeting was the presentation of a paper by Dr. T. H. Tomlinson on "The Adulteration of Foods." This showd that there is hardly an article of diet which is not adulterated with something, and that some have no relation at all to the article represented, being made of a foreign substance.

PLAINFIELD MAN WEDS AT HARLINGEN.

Miss Anna Frances Durling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garret Durling, of Harlingen, and Arthur Garret Beekman, of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Waldron, of Harlingen, and was witnessed by 100 guests from Plainfield, Somerville, Trenton, Princeton, Belle Meade and Bethlehem, Pa.

The bride was gowned in white silk, hand embroidered, trimmed with satin and lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid-of-honor was Miss Minnie Brokaw, niece of the bride, who wore green silk, trimmed with lace and carried pink roses. Edwin H. Beekman, brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Raymond McVoy, of Plainfield, and Samuel Abrams, of Harlingen. Miss Cora Baldin, a cousin of the bride, played the wedding march. The ceremony was followed by a reception.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Beekman will make their home in this city, the groom being employed in a local machine shop. They received many handsome gifts.

MISS BOONE APPOINTED AS INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM.

Miss Caroline E. Boone, of West Seventh street, having successfully passed the civil service examination, she has received a government appointment to investigate child labor and women's industrial situation in the United States. The appointment was made by Secretary of Labor Oscar Strauss. Miss Boone left yesterday for Washington where she will at once begin her luties.

Miss Boone has been making a study of the subject she is to investigate for the Labor Department. Before her departure for Washington she was unable to tell of her plans, for she will be subject to the direction of Secretary Strauss and her duties will probably take her to all parts of the country, investigating conditions as they exist in manufacturing plants of all kinds.

GRIGGS TO SPEAK HERE

Former Governor, Senator Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman Barber to Talk.

ON WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30

Senator Reed to Preside—Band of Music Engaged For the Mass Meeting.

North Plainfield's Republicans have planned for a big mass meeting to be held at Saengerbund Hall for Wednesday night, Oct. 30. Former State Senator Charles A. Reed is chairman of the committee having charge of the arrangements. A band will furnish the music although three good spellbinders are promised to enliven the meeting.

Former Governor John W. Griggs, of Passaic county, has been booked to play the role of principal speaker. He is a persuasive talker and generally hands out a lot of stories, not culled from Joe Miller's joke book, that keep his audience in good humor. Then there will be Assemblyman Alfred Barber, of Mercer county. Mr. Barber was the minority leader of the House during the recent session of the legislature and is rated as an ideal campaigner. Another satellite will be State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of Somerset, who holds the office of county chairman. Mr. Frelinghuysen is a "straight-from-the-shoulder" talker and has a way of speaking to the point.

It is expected that Former State Senator Charles A. Reed will preside. The list of vice presidents will include many prominent boroughites.

CALIFORNIAN WEDS MISS LOUISE W. BRAKELEY

CEREMONY PERFORMED AT BRIDE'S HOME AT DUNELLEN.

In the presence of a large gathering of guests, Miss Louise Winter Brakeley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peter W. Brakeley, of Front street, Dunellen, was married last night to Thomas Talbot McGuire, of Petaluma, Cal. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, of which the bride is a member, was the officiating clergyman, performing the ceremony at the parents' home. Decorations of palms and plants were in the parlor, dining room and hall.

Miss Brakeley was attended by Miss Kate A. Hoff, of Elmhurst, L. I., as maid of honor, and George Archibald Brakeley, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Henry Munn Slauson and Walter Simpson Craig, of Plainfield; and Paul Winter Brakeley and Hugh Maxwell Brakeley, of Dunellen. Two nieces of the bride, Katherine Alida Stevens, of Plainfield, and Margaret Brakeley Correl, of Easton, Pa., were flower girls.

Miss Brakeley's gown was a Liere lace robe with insets of baby Irish lace. She carried bride roses and was given away by her father. The maid of honor's gown was of green silk chiffonette over green taffeta and trimmings of rose point mechlin lace. Her bouquet was of carnations. The flower girls were dressed in French organdie and trimmed French voile over pink silk.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl lavillier which she wore during the ceremony, while the best man and ushers received stickpins. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a pearl brooch and to the flower girls gold clasp pins.

Following the customary reception, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire left for a two weeks wedding trip. On returning they will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Brakeley for the winter. The groom is in the drug business in Petaluma and will return there in the spring. The gathering at the ceremony included guests from New York, Brooklyn, Boston and Plainfield.

Trinity Elects Officers.

The annual congregational meeting for the election of elders and deacons was held at Trinity Reformed Church, last night. The retiring elders, F. E. Smith, Horace J. Martin and A. L. Force, were re-elected without opposition, as were Deacons Edgar F. Sheppard, M. F. Gano and Charles M. Dolliver. William F. Oliver was made chairman of the meeting and William R. Kriney was the secretary.

Jury Still Out.

DEMOCRATS NAME TICKET

W. L. Hetfield Sr. for City Judge, McNulty, Homan and Schlief for Council.

ENDORSE W. F. ARNOLD

Lively Scrap Between City Chairman and J. V. F. Dilts Furnishes Some Excitement at Convention.

A complete ticket was placed in nomination at the Democratic City convention held in the parlors of the Hotel Kensington, last night. For councilmen-at-large Edward J. McNulty, James P. Homan and Stephen H. Schleif were chosen. Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., was nominated for city judge to oppose William N Runyon, whom the Republicans renominated. The convention endorsed the nomination of William F. Arnold for city treasurer. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman was nominated for member of the Board of Education.

James P. Owens acted as chairman of the convention and William Harding was the secretary. Edward J. McNulty is a new man in the local political arena, Mr. Homan and Mr. Schleif both having been candidates before on the Democratic ticket.

It was the sense of the convention that it should endorse the Republican nomination for city treasurer and this was done after a speech by Joseph Harrigan, who spoke of the efficiency of the present incumbent.

Only fifteen delegates attended the convention which convened after a lively set-to between City Chairman Walter L. Hetfield and former City Chairman Jeremiah V. F. Dilts. The two met in the lobby of the hotel and the warm discussion followed Hetfield's invitation to Dilts to attend the meeting.

"That's only a star chamber proceeding and I will have none of it," Dilts is alleged to have declared.

When asked by the city chairman what he meant, Dilts alleged that no call had been issued for the convention and that it was a secret session. Dilts, who was not a delegate, withdrew and he and two delegates spent the evening listening to State Senator Everett Colby and Gubernatorial Candidate J. Franklin Fort preach Republican gospel at the New Plainfield theatre. After the theatre meeting Dilts said "That man Fort will never be elected; he's too honest."

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn Seek to Recover For Injuries.

The heirs of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dunn, who were killed at the Pennsylavnia Railroad crossing at Stelton, several months ago, have retained G. W. V. Moy, of this city, in an action for $20,000 against the railroad company. The suits have been transferred from the Supreme Court to the United States Circuit Court, on application of the company. The case will be tried at the next session of the court in March, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were killed while driving home from a prayer meeting at the Stelton Baptist church, where they were both prominent in all departments of work. Mrs. Dunn was the sister of Mrs. Ada Cumings, of Fairview avenue, the borough.

P. S. C. Began Work Today.

The Public Service Corporation this morning began the work of rearranging its tracks on Watchung avenue, with a view to double tracking the line between Watchung avenue and Fourth street and West Front and Somerset streets. Longer and heavier rails of the grooved pattern will replace the old rails now in use. The company expects to put a large gang of men on the work and rush it through with all possible speed.

Guests of Mayor Fisk.

Previous to the political meeting at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, the speakers and several friends were entertained at dinner by Mayor Charles J. Fisk. The gathering was held at his home on West Seventh street and was attended by Justice J. Franklin Fort, Senator Colby, former Senator Charles A. Reed, Winfield S. Angleman, Lewis E. Waring, George A. Beaton, Charles J. Fisk, Jr., and Harvey Fisk.

Fined For Fighting.

John Fleet and Julia Saueracher, whom the police interrupted in a hand to hand personal combat at Fleet's house on Chatham street, Tuesday night, were each fined $5 for disturbing the peace by Recorder Dolliver at the session of the borough court last night. Their anger had cooled by the time they had paid their fines and they departed on the best of terms.

BOTH FORT AND COLBY—UNION AND SOMERSET ENTHUSE BIG CROWDS; CANDIDATES ALSO SPEAK

Theatre Filled for Great Mass Meeting of Republicans, Former Senator C. A. Reed Presiding.

DISCUSS THE ISSUES

Gubernatorial Nominee's Frank Utterances Please Audience—W. W. Smalley Makes a Decided Hit.

Again announcing that if he should be elected he would support and enforce the Bishops' bill in its entirety and that he would also do his utmost to put an end to official scandals by consolidating commissions and fixing responsibility for official acts, Judge J. Franklin Fort, Republican candidate for governor, addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting at the New Plainfield theatre last night. The nominee was accorded a vociferous welcome when he made his appearance on the stage and his plain statements relative to his position in campaign issues made a favorable impression on his hearers.

A no less hearty greeting was received by Senator Everett Colby, who preceded Judge Fort in speaking. He is no stranger in Plainfield and as he remarked at the beginning of his talk, he could get an audience of relatives if nothing else when he makes an address in this city. His talk dealt with the lack of confidence the ordinary voter has for both politicians and corporations because of the dealings that have passed between them in past years. Other speakers in the early part of the meeting were Surrogate George T. Parrot, of Elizabeth, again a candidate for the place; Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, candidate for assembly and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, again on the Somerset county ticket. Beside these there were on the stage, John R. Moxon and A. F. Kerstein, of Rahway, assembly candidates; Charles Kay and Joseph A. Mets, of Somerville, candidates for sheriff and surrogate in Somerset.

The meeting was called to order by W. S. Van Angleman, chairman of the Republican City Executive committee, who introduced former Senator Charles A. Reed as chairman of the evening. The North Plainfield man was in an unusually jocose frame of mind and kept the audience laughing with his witticisms and appropriate stories in introducing the speakers. He first presented Surrogate Parrot who devoted a few minutes to impressing upon the male portion of the audience the importance of getting out the full vote on election day. It is the "stay-at-homes," he said, who frequently cause an election to be lost as the more voters there are the harder it is for the "bosses" to secure control.

Mr. Parrot was followed by Carlton B. Pierce, a stranger to Plainfielders from a political point of view but who soon gained the confidence of the people he was addressing. Without spending time on preliminaries or flowery language, he plunged into a review of the Bishops' bill and declared with emphasis that he stood for every part of it as it was on the statutes today. This particular bill, that is, whether or not it is to remain in force, and local option, he asserted is to be the paramount issues of the campaign. The Bishops' bill question is a question of Sunday selling and he said he had no hesitancy in predicting that the people will not stand for any change in its provisions. Mr. Pierce also said he stands for a Public Utilities bill and Civil Service bill.

Assemblyman Smalley came next and gave a rapid-fire talk of good-natured chaff at some of the politicians present and related some of his personal beliefs relative to Legislative matters. He made a splendid impression. He was followed by Senator Colby and the applause made as soon as his name was announced rang through the theatre for fully a minute. At the beginning of his talg, he declared he wanted to pay homage to Plainfield's mayor.

"He has good ideas of his own," said the Senator, "and he knows one when he meets it on the street. I also want to pay homage to your fellow-townsman, Senator Ackerman. It seems to me that the more he learns about politics, the more independent he becomes."

DUNHAM ASKS $10,000 FROM PUBLIC SERVICE

Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, through his counsel, G. W. V. Moy, has brought suit against the Public Service Corporation for $10,000 for injuries received two years ago when he fell from a main line trolley car on West Front street near Clinton avenue. It is expected that the case will be tried at the present term of court.

The accident occurred on a Sunday evening, when Mr. Dunham and a party of friends was returning from a fishing trip. The trolley car was crowded with Sunday pleasure seekers and it is alleged that Mr. Dunham was thrown from the trolley. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to Elmer Mills' restaurant nearby. A little later he was removed to his home on West Front street. He remained unconscious for a week, it is said, and it was two weeks before he recognized a member of his family.

It was said that for months afterward he could remember nothing and he talked only monosyllables. In the opinion of Dr. D. C. Adams, the attending physician, Mr. Dunham was suffering from paralysis of the naming centre. Objects were familiar to him but he was unable to call them by name. Mr. Dunham has since taken a clerical position with the Rushmore Dynamo Company, but it is claimed that he has not fully recovered from his injuries. It is understood that there will be an unusually large number of witnesses called at the trial.

BERGEN SWORN IN AS SUPREME COURT JUDGE

James J. Bergen, of Somerville, yesterday resigned as vice chancellor of the Court of Chancery in order to accept a justiceship of the Supreme Court, for which he was confirmed by the Senate last week. The resignation was immediately accepted by Chancellor Magie, and Mr. Bergen was sworn in as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and as a member of the Court of Errors and Appeals by Chief Justice Gummere. Mr. Bergen was appointed by Governor Stokes to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Abram Q. Garretson.

Justice Bergen was assigned to the ninth judicial district, comprising Passaic and Sussex counties, but, owing to the illness of Justice Parker, he will also preside in the sixth district, comprising Bergen, Morris and Somerset counties.

It is expected that his first Supreme Court work will be to consider a Somerset County murder case.

Plans for Brick Paving Work.

In arranging for the laying of the brick pavement on West Front street and Somerset streets, City Engineer Gavett is planning to inconvenience the merchants as little as possible. Those who operate delivery wagons will be allowed to use West Front street driving through the alley adjoining Warnock's bakery, while Somerset street, is being paved. That being completed traffic will be transferred to the alley back of Chris. Gloekler's place of business on Somerset street, while Front street is being paved. One side of Front street will be laid at a time, leaving the other half open for taffic.

Torn Up Once in Four Years.

Critics who have been watching the brick pavement work now in progress and who declare that it will be only a few weeks before it will be necessary to tear it up to make repairs to underground work, will be interested to learn that in the four years that the brick paveemnt has been laid on Watchung avenue, only one opening has been made, and City Engineer Gavett says that it would take an expert to discover just where the pavement was opened.

Southside Sewer Progressing.

Good progress is now being made on the southside sanitary sewer under the direction of City Engineer Gavett. He has placed Contractor John Sutcliff, of Poughkeepsie, in charge, and no further trouble is anticipated. It is not expected that the bill for labor employed by the original contractor will be paid until after the job is completed and it is ascertained how much money is left.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Walls of Jericho" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre tonight.

The appearance at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night of Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon must awaken pleasant memories among those who can recall the artistic efforts of these co-stars, while they were members of the old Lyceum Stock Company, under the direction of Daniel Frohman.

For nine years Mr. Kelcey served as leading man of that splendid organization and for half the period Miss Shannon won golden laurels as ingenue in all of the great Lyceum successes.

It has been quite a long spell since these artists entered with a business arrangement whereby both should tour the country, and be jointly featured, and in all that time the public warmly evinced a satisfaction, which comes from real dramatic enjoyment.

Mr. Kelcey and Miss Shannon will appear this time in a new play entitled "Bridge," by Alicia Ramsey, which it is reported give both of these stars such opportunities as are seldom allotted.

"Bridge" will be offered in dress of great elaboration and its interpretation done by a thoroughly good supporting company.

"The Lady from Lane's," a comedy in three acts with book and lyrics by George Broadhurst and music by Gustave Kerker will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre Saturday night. There is a well developed story and a wealth of funny lines and situations. The cast of Broadway favorites includes Thomas Wise, Truly Shattuck, Adele Rafter, Ida Hawley, Walter Percival, Georgie Lawrence, Percy Bronson, Mrs. E. A. Eberle, Lionel Walsh and William Barrows. Among the principal musical numbers are: "You Just You," "I Met My Love in a Restaurant," "Story Book Days," "I Never Do It Now," "That Really Was a Lovely Place for Me" and "The Sweetest Words."

An engagement of more than ordinary interest is underlined for appearance at the New Plainfield Theatre Monday night, the Shubert's big English musical offering, "The Earl and the Girl," with Alexander Clark and a great cast of singers, dancers and comedians. A very pretty and handsomely gowned chorus is one of the pleasing features.

It will be quite appropos for all owners of motor cars to drive in them to the New Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday night, when Oscar Figman will appear in "The Lightning Conductor" and adaptation by Harry B. Smith from the novel of the same name by C. N. & A. M. Williamson. The play deals directly with the strange adventures of a motor car, and the first act will show a monster car being driven at the rate of sixty miles an hour, with a panorama of flying scenery, dust flying and wind blowing. It certainly will prove a thriller for all devotees of the "gasoline bubble." The cast includes such well known artists as Justine Wayne, Edith Berwyn, E. Fernandez, Dudley Clinton, Amy Willard, Madeline Lack, Morgia Lytton, Evelyn Watson, J. E. Toole, Frank Lyman and J. A. Curtis.

The Kirke La Shelle production of "The Virginian" comes to the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday night. It has been one of the most talked-of and most generously praised plays of recent production, and one of the most deserving. The same account lay especial stress upon the wholesomeness of the play, its candor, its open-air charm and, above all, to the individuality which an exceptionally good acting company have given to the characters. The part of the Virginian will be played by W. S. Hart, who is an ideal cowboy, both in appearance and action. "The Virginian" is a dramatization of Owen Wister's famous novel of the same name, by Mr. Wister and the late Kirke La Shelle, and is a truthful picture of life as it existed in the Wyoming cattle country in the early 80's.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The annual convention of the New Jersey State Sunday-school Association will be held at Freehold, November 19-21. It is expected that a large delegation will attend from this city.

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association is being held today in the Presbyterian church, Roselle, and all of the local Sunday-schools are preesnted. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will be held.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist Church will meet with the Epworth League of the First M. E. Church, tomorrow night, the service to be in connection with the seventy-fifth anniversary of the church. Dr. George E. Reed, president of Dickinson College, will make the address. All of the young people's societies of the city and borough have been invited.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

According to Borough Engineer F. A. Dunham the work of grading Washington avenue, south of the railroad, will be entirely completed within a week. An extension of time has been granted to Contractor George Huff and he has been given until next Monday to finish the contract. There will be a special meeting of the Council that night to inspect the contractor's work before it is accepted for the borough.

A musical and literary program is being arranged for the entertainment to be given by the Cheerful Workers, the Junior branch of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church, Tuesday evening, October 29. The entertainment will be given in Friendship Hall, New Market, and the proceeds devoted to church work.

Accompanied by a delegation of local church people, the delegates from the Epworth League of the local Methodist church went to Westfield today to attend the annual district convention of the Elizabeth District Epworth League to be held at the Methodist church. There will be sessions afternoon and evening.

A telephone line between the two local school buildings is planned and the work of construction will shortly be commenced.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Curtis, of New Market, have adopted a four year old girl from the Trenton Orphans' Home.

Friendship Circle met at the home of Mrs. Ogden Meeker, of New Market, yesterday afternoon.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The funeral of the late Charles N. Flanders was held from the house yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The service although private was attended by many of his old friends and neighbors. Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Baptist Church was in charge being assisted by Rev. William Mulford, rector of All Saints Episcopal Church. Interment was made today in the family plot in the Baptist Cemetery.

Miss Sadie Lee, of Front street, was tendered a surprise party last night, the pleasant affair being arranged by a number of her friends from here and Plainfield. Games and music was the feature of the evening's enthusiasm, during a short intermission refreshments were served.

The Mono Field Club of Plainfield will be the opponents of the local ball team Saturday afternoon. This will positively be the last game of the season.

A good sized delegation of local Republicans attended the Republican rally meeting held at the New Plainfield Theatre last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

An apron and necktie party given by the Young People's Social Club was held last evening in Washington Hall. The young women made an apron and necktie to match, wearing the apron putting the necktie in a basket from which the young men blindfolded took one out. It was then his pleasure to find the young lady who had the apron that matched his tie, and she was his partner for the evening.

The regular meeting of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company will be held Friday evening, October 18, at 8 o'clock. Members are earnestly requested to be present, as matters of importance will be transacted.

Mr. Hannon will shortly move into the house vacated by Mrs. Van Ness, who will in the future reside with her brother at Tottenville, Staten Island.

Mrs. William C. Dunham spent yesterday with her mother Mrs. W. E. Smith.

PERSONAL.

G. H. Robins, of Norwood avenue, who has been detained at his home by illness, is improving slowly.

Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and son, Gifford Cooley, of the borough, are touring abroad for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward White will leave November 1 for Daytona, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Harry Hartpense, formerly of this city, but now a resident of Newark, has been visiting relatives and friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Gesswein and daughters, of West Front street, have returned from a pleasure trip to Hamilton, Ohio, their former home.

Mrs. H. C. Smith, of Prospect avenue, has returned from a visit with her son at Youngstown, Ohio, who holds a position at the new steel plant in that city.

Dr. C. B. Matthewson and niece, Miss Elizabeth Matthewson, formerly of Plainfield, but recently of New York, have returned here and are now residing at 62 Sandford avenue.

Arthur Force, son of A. E. Force, of West Front street, who was injured in a trolley collision recently, has about recovered and the physician hopes soon to remove the splints from the shoulder, where the collarbone was fractured.

Reliable Money Lenders

Forget Your Money Troubles—We Can Show You How

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

GREAT CLOTHING SALE

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

--STRIKE WHILE THE IRON'S HOT--

This is an Old Story that is Good Today—Successful and Well-to-do People Follow it in Their Every-day Life

The Best Stock of Men's Fall Clothing in Newark

BEST is a Word of Broad Meaning and We Use it Only After Carefully Weighing the Facts.

Four Wholesale Clothier's Entire Stocks to be Sold by us at About ½ Manufacturers' Cost.

THEY HAD TO RAISE CASH AND CAME TO US.

This Event is an Unprecedented Opportunity for You and a Magnificent Advertisement for Us.

This store was thronged with appreciative clothing buyers last Saturday and has been the busiest clothing store in Newark every day this week. It is plain that you realize the importance of an occasion like this at KING'S. These four manufacturers have been compelled to take heavy losses because they have received very scant remittances up to now, besides they couldn't raise money on account of the tight money market. Their wealth is on their books—ready cash is what they require. In their trouble they came to us, knowing our capacity to handle large stocks for spot cash if the merchandise was attractive in price.

Unprecedented Stocks of Fashionable Fall and Winter Clothing Which We Shall Sell

AT HALF PRICE.

As large as our store is, it will not hold ONE-TENTH of these stocks. Yet this store will be the outlet through which the stocks will pass from DAY TO DAY to the consumers. It will be a sort of clearing house, which will enable the buyers to save

FIFTY CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

"Woodland" a Unique Production.

Manager Henry W. Savage's production of "Woodland," presented at the New Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday night, proved to be one of the quaintest and most distinctly novel stage offerings of the past or present seasons. It differed in many respects from the current compositions of music and comedy and was interpreted by a splendid company of comedians and dancers. The performance was enjoyed by a large audience that was generous with its applause.

FORT AND COLBY ENTHUSE

Senator Ackerman was in the audience and vigorous handclapping indicated that the people knew it and wanted him to know that the speaker had voiced their sentiments.

Continuing his address Senator Colby said:

"I want to speak to the men in this audience who have not decided which way to vote. There are lots of them and it is an important issue from the fact that so many intelligent citizens have lost confidence in politicians and corporations because of dealings of a shady character that have taken place at various times. Recently they have been making a football of each other and the only way to stop it is to send men to the Legislature who will deal fairly with the corporations and then make them live up to the laws.

He then explained how Legislators preyed upon the corporations by introducing "strike" bills in order to get money to withdraw them and then how the charges and counter-charges were made that startled the public and disgusted the voter. In closing he explained in detail the meaning of the existing utilities bill and his proposition to fix the rates for the commodities coming under its head, and also spoke a few commendatory words for Judge Fort.

The gubernatorial candidate arrived by auto from Westfield just previous to the closing of Senator Colby's address and he was introduced as soon as the Essex man concluded. The judge stated at the outset that the Republican party had placed its standard in his hands and with the help of the voters he would carry it to victory. If he is to secure their help, he said, they should know how he stood on the various issues and he immediately began to give his views.

He declared himself in favor of the direct primary bill, now in the hands of the Governor; the Civil Service bill and the Public Utilities bill. Referring to the Public Utilities he said:

"I am opposed to rate-making powers in any body without the review of the courts and I believe that corporations should have the right to appeal to the courts to fix their rates in order that they might know what their incomes would be.

"There have been suggestions of the consolidation of commissions. That's right. There are too many commissions and too many members of commissions. I believe in placing responsibility with individuals, that is, holding some one man when anything goes wrong. Then you can go right at him. We ought to have heads of departments instead of allied commissions and if I am elected I will make recommendations to that effect. As a rule, commissions in state departments at the present time consist of two Republicans and two Democrats and when things are not conducted properly nobody is to blame. The officeholder is the servant of the people and what we want is concentration of responsibility in every form of government."

The excise and granting of power to the governor to investigate State institutions were all touched upon in the same vigorous manner. His stand on the excise, if the applause could be taken to mean anything, met with more than approval. He quoted the excise plank in the Republican platform, then went on to say that it could refer to nothing but the Bishops' bill. He would support that bill, he said, if elected, and would veto any bill introduced to repeal it.

Next to the excise talk the statement of what might be expected from state aid for public schools aroused the most enthusiasm. Mr. Fort explained how, when the dispute over the Perkins' tax act, which is being fought in the courts on the ground of unconstitutionality, is settled, school taxes would be lowered nearly 50 per cent. He said:

"Seven million dollars is a great deal for a State of the size of New Jersey to spend in a year on schools, but if I am elected governor I will endeavor to have every unschooled child in the state accommodated if it takes $10,000,000 to do it."

Switching off to recent legislative matters the judge declared that if there is a curse to any legislature its a corrupt lobby. The legislature is often blamed for things that are not their fault but are brought about by these lobbyists.

"They should have no place around them or any other law-making body. The place for these lobbyists is the penitentiary and should I be made governor I'll help to put them there.

"Good government is, after all, what we want, and independence in citizenship. I want to be elected by the votes of the men who cast their ballot for me because they think I am better than anyone else for the place. If I should be so honored, I will exercise the laws to the best of my ability."

Judge Fort was the last speaker and when he concluded many of the men in the audience ascended the stage and were introduced to him. With the hand-shaking over he left by automobile for Orange, accompanied by Senator Colby, where both spoke at a banquet.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Fort went to his home in East Orange to prepare speeches he delivered last night in Newark, Westfield and Plainfield, and to arrange for his South Jersey tour, which began in Camden this morning.

Before speaking in Newark last night, at the Indian league reception and at the Arlington Club banquet, he came to Plainfield with Senator Colby.

Later Judge Fort left for Westfield, where he addressed a large massmeeting at 8 o'clock. While the candidate was talking in Westfield Senator Colby was addressing the meeting here. From Westfield Judge Fort made a hasty auto trip back to this city and spoke after Senator Colby had finished.

In Westfield Assemblyman Barber, of Mercer county, held the audience an hour after the candidate had departed.

From thits city Judge Fort continued his auto trip to Newark, where his two speeches were listened to with great enthusiasm.

WHAT HILLERY BILL MEANS TO THE MILITIA

There has been considerable discussion in Plainfield among officers as well as enlisted men of the national guard as to the significance of Senate bill No. 374, introduced by Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris County, and passed by both the assembly and senate, and which is now in the hands of the governor for his signature.

The Hillery bill, which it is expected will be approved by the governor, places the militia of the State of New Jersey in the same class with other states which have complied with the terms of the Dick law passed by congress, and New Jersey will be eligible to share in the federal appropriation for the maintenance of the militia of the several states and parcel of the regular army of the United States in case of a national call to arms.

In order to comply with the terms of the Dick law the staff of the governor had to be reorganized, and the Hillery bill provides that the staff shall consist of an adjutant-general, quarter-master-general, surgeon-general, inspector-general, chief of ordnance, judge advocate-general, chief of engineers and chief signal officer, all to have the rank of aides-de-camp, who shall have the rank of colonel, one of whom is to be the governor's personal aide; five aides-de-camp from the commissioned officers of the national guard below the rank of colonel, one of whom is to be the governor's personal aide; five aides-de-camp from the commissioned officers of the national guard below the rank of colonel, and one standard bearer, bugler and orderly, with the rank of sergeant.

The second provision in the Hillery bill is that the National Guard of the State of New Jersey shall consist of a major-general, two brigadier-generals, adjutant-general, quartermaster-general, ordnance and subsistence departments, corps of engineers, pay and medical department, naval reserve, signal and hospital corps and the existing military organizations and such others as may be hereafter organized, the several organizations to constitute a division.

The governor is further given power at any time to alter, divide, annex, consolidate, disband or reorganize the same and create new organizations whenever in his judgment the efficiency of the national guard will be increased.

An Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walls, of Essex street, have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Bessie Walls, to Charles Vardon, of Plainfield avenue. The ceremony will be performed at the bride's home Saturday, October 19, in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends from this city, Newark and other places.

—James Manning has sold his house on Evergreen avenue, and is now planning to build a new house on Dunellen avenue for his occupancy.

CLASSIS ENDORSES THE BISHOPS BILL

The semi-annual session of the Newark Classis of the Reformed Church opened yesterday at Bellville, with thirty ministers present. The organization represents 17 churches with 23 ministers. The Rev. Stuart Nye Hutchinson, pastor of the First Reformed church, Newark, was elected president, to succeed the Rev. C. Hall Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, of Plainfield, whose term expired with the opening of the session.

The Rev. Charles B. Condit, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, Newark, was appointed clerk pro tem.

The retiring president read his annual report to the members, who declared themselves pleased with the flourishing condition of the classis. The treasurer's report, showing a balance of $301.57 in the treasury, was also read.

Addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. W. Clark, field secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions, and the Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the North Reformed church, of Newark.

The Bishops bill was indorsed at the afternoon session. The Rev. William Stuart, of Nutley, was discussing Sabbath observance when the Rev. Henry Merle Mellen, pastor of Christ Reformed church, Newark, interrupted to offer a motion indorsing the candidacy of J. Franklin Fort for Governor. The Rev. A. Peter Tulp, pastor of the New York Avenue Reformed church, said it was not right to refer to any one man or party.

The Rev. W. E. Davis, of Hyde Park church, East Orange, was most earnest in declaring the motion out of order. In the meantime the introducer was smiling at his desk, and when Mr. Davis had finished withdrew the motion, adding that, of course, it was unconstitutional.

It was then that Mr. Davis offered his motion indorsing the Bishops bill, but at the suggestion of the Rev. D. E. Bogarden a committee of three was appointed to draft a resolution in the matter. The Rev. Mr. Davis, the Rev. A. P. Tulp and Elder J. S. Polhemus, of the First Reformed church, Newark, was appointed.

The resolution was as follows:

"We, the Classis of Newark, do hereby resolve that the Classis of Newark stands by the American Sabbath as one of our most valuable and cherished institutions, and that we are mutually opposed to any new method or measure which may tend to introduce the continental Sabbath; that we are especially opposed to the open saloon and sympathy to men and measures that will maintain respect and reverence for God's holy day.

The classis went on record as being opposed to the amendment to the constitution of the church as proposed by the general synod as regards the appointment of theological professors. The amendment proposes to have the board of superintendents select the professors, instead of by vote of classis.

For the second time the classis rejected an assessment levied by the general synod for improvements on the grounds of Hope College. The assessment amounted to $161. The classis took the ground that such an assessment is improper.

The Rev. John G. Gebhardt, secretary of Board of Education of the Reformed Church, in an address pointed out that the East is falling behind in furnishing students for the ministry. He thought it was due to the fact that in the West chapel attendance is compulsory at some colleges.

Secured An Attachment.

Through his attorney, Robert M. Crane, H. Clifford Smith, of Scotch Plains, yesterday secured an attachment on the goods of Thomas Cenrello and Angelin Cannazarro as absconding debtors. The amount invalvel is $100 and the matter will be argued before Justice Clark next week.

CLANS GATHERING AT CASINO TODAY

"The Gathering of the Clans," for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, was opened at the Casino this afternoon. It will continue tomorrow and Saturday, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The women, under the direction of Mrs. John Edgar Corlies, assisted by Mrs. Charles A. Reed have transformed the popular society playhouse into fairyland and the thousands of patrons who are expected to lend success to the affair will be delighted with the attractions.

"The Cycle of Fun," in charge of the committee of which Mrs. Frederick W. Butler is the chairman, will hold the attention of every visitor to the affair. In the cycle will be fortune telling by the vibration method; Ducrot, the wonderful wizard; Speedon, the clever cartoonist; Al. Baker, the magician and Mme. Sticku, the palmist, will be present every afternoon and evening to delight both old and young. Three performances will be given in the afternoon and the same number in the evening.

One of the strongest attractions every night will be the minstrel performance to be given under the direction of William N. Runyon, whose talent in this direction assures a performance well worth seeing. The company will give two performances every night. Judge Runyon today announced the members of his company. Joseph Martin will be interlocutor and the end men will be Thomas M. Muir, Harry Roberts, Harry Blimm and Fred Miller. The other members will be Horace J. Martin, jr., John Hall, Archie Davie, William Doud, Elmer D. Cutting and John Todd.

In addition to the "Cycle of Fun," a society vaudeville will be given every night by well-known society people, interspersing the minstrel show. Miss Florence Stuart is in charge of the society vaudeville and those who will assist are Miss Louise Saunders, Miss Helen Stevens, Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Lucy Budlong, Miss Ray Hooley, Miss Mabel Hooley, Miss Anna May Campbell. Mrs. Lemuel William Serrell is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Visitors to the "Clan" should look for the hot-dog man, Harry L. Hall, and the pan-cake man, Lewis G. Timpson, and the numerous other attractions on the grounds, not forgetting to visit the Casino and patronize the various booths. Don't forget to see the "Wondergraph," something that will delight both old and young. There will be something doing all the time and there will not be a dull moment during the entire week.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY IS WITHOUT A HEAD

The State of New Jersey has been left temporarily without an executive head. According to the state constitution, during the absence from the state of the governor, the president of the senate shall assume the office, and in the event of the latter's removal the speaker of the house shall take the governor's place. As Governor Stokes, Bloomfield H. Minch, president of the senate, and Edgar E. Lethbridge, speaker of the house, have all gone to Jamestown to take part in the celebration of Jersey Day at the exposition today, the state is at present without an official head, as the constitution makes no provision for such a contingency. They will return, however, Saturday morning.

Among the prominent men attending the celebration of the state day at the exposition, besides the governor, president of the senate and speaker of the house, are United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs, State Senators Frelinghuysen, Robbins, Gebhardt, Plummer, Price and Wakelee, General John D. McGill, General Joseph W. Congdon, General Quincy O'M. Gilmore, former Governor George T. Werts, Representatives Gardner, Wood, R. Wayne Parker and Hammil, Attorney General Robert H. McCarter, Adjutant General R. Heber Brientnall, Alfred N. Dalrymple and General Edward A. Campbell.

EXEMPTS AND REGULAR FIREMEN PARADING TODAY.

Firemen Patrick McDonough, Jack Mowry, Jens Clawson and Frank Ingraham, of the borough fire department, are at Perth Amboy today, taking part in the firemen's parade there. The combination truck, in charge of Lieutenant Elden Smalley and William Gaub, drove to Perth Amboy, yesterday afternoon, and were entertained by Protection Hook and Ladder Company last night. Borough headquarters today is in charge of Callman J. H. McCullough, and the old No. 1 wagon, with a pair of hired horses, is ready to respond to alarms.

Accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, thirty-two members of the Warren Engine Company, with a delegation of friends, left for Perth Amboy on special trolleys at 7:15 today. The paraders will be commanded by L. B. Bodine, formerly foreman of the company.

Mrs. Jane Horne.

Mrs. Jane Horne, aged eighty-one years, died last night at the home of her nephew, Charles E. Horne, of Willow avenue.

Will Lecture At High School.

A lecture on "Contrast in Music," illustrated at the piano, will be given before the students of the High School on Friday morning by J. Granville-Smith, of New York city. The lecturer is a graduate of Oxford University and is an associate of the Royal College of Organists, London, England. He is well known in England as a composer of several successful operas and as a leader of large orchestral and choral societies. He is a musical contributor to the Presbyterian Hymnal and other standard hymn books. His gift of extemporization at the piano is remarkable, and has been favorably commented upon by the leading musical critics of England and the continent.

Will Open Park Avenue Today.

Park avenue, between Front street and a point opposite The Plainfield Trust Company building, will be thrown open this afternoon for general traffic. It is the intention of Contractor Meeker to open the rest of the thoroughfare to North avenue tomorrow, thus relieving the heavy traffic on Front street.

Vaudeville at Reform Hall.

William B. Pryall, a New York amusement man, has secured a lease of Reform Hall and will open it about November 1 as a vaudeville and moving picture theatre. He will make a number of alterations, one of which will be the enlarging of the stage, and will give two performances a day.

Charles Polkinghorne.

Charles Polkinghorne, brother of Mrs. Paul Symons, of East Third street, died last week at his home in Golconda, Nev. He was well known in this city, having spent all of last fall at Mrs. Symons' home.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 20: "Hearing and doing." "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only."—Jas. i, 19-25.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Ezek. xxxiii, 30-32; Matt. xiii, 14, 15; Rom. ii, 13; II Cor. iv, 3, 4.

It is a good classification which recognizes the powers of the mind or soul as divided into intellect, sensibility and will. Every one who does any clear thinking realizes at once the difference between an idea, a feeling and an act of determination and also soon comes to know that these are very closely connected, so that when one arises in the mind the others are likely to follow.

All this has a bearing on human conduct, character and destiny. By the intellect come ideas of what is true for belief and right for conduct. Then should follow the feeling of duty or obligation to do the right, the impulse of oughtness. Then should follow the action of the will, freely making the resolve to do the right and good.

This seems so reasonable that it is hard to see how there can be any failure. Yet, in fact, the failure is all too common. Impulses never rise singly. Ideas crowd upon one another. Desires conflict. We would like to do many different ways. We do not always choose what is the best, the wisest or the highest.

More singular than even this is the fact that we may take great pleasure in learning about matters which ought to move our feelings intensely and result in decisive action, and yet become so absorbed in the merely intellectual phase of affairs that we actually feel no emotion of pity, sorrow, gladness, approval, disgust or anger, and so are not impelled to any action in the case. It does not appeal to us. We know of it, but we do not care. It is none of our concern.

We are particularly liable to this in religious affairs. Many people are interested, and deeply so, in the discussion of questions of theology. They delight in investigation of doctrines. The historic progress of the church, the condition of the masses of men, religious statistics, all are thoroughly interesting to them, but never reach deeper than the intellect with them.

Others delight to listen to eloquent sermons. They enjoy having their emotions stirred. Pathetic stories and rousing appeals are specially agreeable. They are on the front seats whenever a noted evangelist appears. They are excellent listeners. They help make up a congregation.

Neither class amounts to much in the real religious advancement of the world. Fortunately very few people are entirely like either of these types, but unfortunately all of us have streaks of both qualities in our composition.

Most of us have a great deal more knowledge of right and duty than we put to active exercise. All of us allow a vast deal of emotion to be expended on imaginary cases and allow many cases of real need directly before our faces to pass unheeded. We hear a great deal of God's will which we never apply to ourselves. We spend days in bewailing evils which we might with resolute action correct in a few hours.

The root of this fault is a lack of downright honesty of purpose and earnestness. We care more for our pleasure intellectually and emotionally than we do for God's truth and righteousness.

The remedy is to get so close to God that we think and feel as He does. Then we shall act as we ought to and as He desires.

Sorrow's Plowshare.

Back and forth the plow was driven. The field was covered with grasses and lovely flowers, but remorselessly through them all the share tore its way, cutting furrow after furrow. It seemed that all the beauty was being hopelessly destroyed. But by and by harvest time came, and the field waved with golden wheat. That was what the plowman's faith saw from the beginning. Sorrow seems to destroy the life of a child of God. Its rude share plows again and again through it, making many a deep furrow, gashing its beauty. But afterward a harvest of blessing and good grows up out of the crushed and broken life. That is what God intends always in trial and sorrow. Let us have the plowman's faith, and we shall not faint when the share is driven through our heart. Then by faith we shall see beyond the pain and trial the blessing of richer life, of whiter holiness, of larger fruitfulness. And to win that blessing will be worth all the pain and trial.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Human Life.

It is the salvation of a noble nature to have some task of self denial, some motive for self sacrifice left, when all that made the daily burden of life endurable has passed away. Happy he who has habituated himself to look upon his whole earthly career but as a task of which the reward, though not given here, is as priceless as it is certain. I have remarked that a true delineation of the smallest man and his sense of pilgrimage through life is capable of interesting the greatest man; that all men are to an unspeakable degree brothers, each man's life a strange emblem of every man's, and that human portraits faithfully drawn are of all pictures the welcomest on human walls.—Thomas Carlyle.

Noble Ideal.

Just to make life constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger—that is an ideal as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

We'll Start You "Housekeeping"

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.
2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!
3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.
4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.
5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 20.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The duties of the day.—Prov. xxiv, 30-34; Rom. xii, 11.

Life is not made of years, but of the smallest particles of time. Therefore, if we can perform faithfully and regularly the duties of the hour or of the day, life itself will be successful. Daily performance of duties is emphasized in the Scriptures. Daily prayer and communion with God are clearly taught in the Old Testament, and Christ taught us to pray day by day "for our daily bread," and we may well make the words of the poet our prayer:

Lord, for tomorrow and its needs
I do not pray.
Keep me, my God, from stain of sin,
Just for today!
Let me be kind in word and deed
Just for today.
Let me be slow to do my will,
Prompt to obey.
Help me to sacrifice myself
Just for today.

No better words could be chosen as the motto of our lives. The future may be left to itself if we may have the watchful care of God and be kept free from temptations and sin "just for today." Our great need of God is the present need, the present hour, the present day.

I need thee every hour,
Most gracious Lord.
No tender voice like thine
Can peace afford.

The duties of the day may often seem irksome to us, and yet they should be just as willingly performed. Every gift and every power we possess comes from the Holy Ghost, and no gift of His should be lightly esteemed or treated. Nor should we be worried because others possess gifts which seem preferable to those bestowed upon us. If we could exchange places with others, the probability is that we would wish to re-exchange. God has made us what we ought to be, and we would be no more at ease with the gifts of others than if we were to attempt to imitate them or wear their clothes or perform their duties. Be all that God made you to be and you will satisfy Him and fulfill the purpose of your life. No man can do more, and no man should do less.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xii, 9; Ps. v, 1-3; xcii, 1, 2; cxvi, 12-19; cxxi, 1-8; cxlv, 1-5; Matt. vi, 11; John ix, 4; Acts vii, 11.

Some Shaw Sense.

Take your boy to church and prayer meeting, even if he cannot understand all that is said and goes to sleep. It is a good deal better for a boy to go to sleep in the church prayer meeting than for him to be awake on the street corner learning to swear and to smoke cigarettes.

Make your lookout committee a get out committee if they do not do their work.

If Sunday is always the coldest day in the week in your community, so cold that you have to suspend the Junior meeting during the winter, then have the Junior meeting on a warmer day of the week.

If there are no young Christians in your little village, let a few of the older Christians form a Christian Endeavor society and soon as possible get some of the younger people into it; then let the older ones retire.

Your society should not be a limited Pullman running express and making no stops for new passengers.

Your social nature is as much a gift of God as your spiritual nature. A face as long and blank and cold as a tombstone is not religion.

God can use the smallest thing to do His will, but He is never satisfied with less than the best.

Success is not a cheap commodity. It cannot be bought at the five and ten cent counter.—General Secretary William Shaw.

Pastors' Testimonies.

The Christian Endeavor society is the sail of a small church and the rudder of a large one.—Russell H. Conwell, Baptist.

There is no such aid to the pastor in his arduous and multiform work, especially in large cities, as a well organized society of Christian Endeavor.—B. B. Tyler, Church of Christ.

Personally no one Christian institution or organization has been such a godsend to me as the Y. P. S. C. E. It has torn up the rails of my narrow gauge Christianity and spiked down a wider and heavier track.—J. F. Cowan, Methodist.

There has been nothing like it since the establishment of the Christian church. I rejoice to know that the church of which I am a clergyman is gradually coming to adopt Christian Endeavor, and in every instance it is cordially approved and heartily indorsed as a great God inspired movement.—Canon J. B. Richardson, Church of England.

"The Wizard of Christian Endeavor."

That most brilliant of all Endeavor journalists, Amos R. Wells, writes of himself in the following strain: "The new editorial secretary is long and lank. He has on his face a little red mustache and in his hand a big black pen. He has written forty-two books in the last fourteen years, which is forty too many. But you can't stop him. He'd rather write about Christian Endeavor than eat his dinner."—Australian Christian Endeavor Link.

Picturesque Meetings.

Miss Jolliffe of Samoa says that the Christian Endeavor meetings in the islands are "most picturesque, for they are held in the cool nights, and as the churches have no lights the members all come with lanterns and torches. They then sit on the floor and answer roll call."

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

Before we could stop him he sprang out of his cot and began putting on his clothes. When the nurses tried to hold him down, he fought with them.

"'Do you think you can keep me here,' he shouted, 'when they are plotting to hang me? I am going with you to that house!' he cried at Lyle. 'When you find those bodies I shall be beside you. It is my right. He is my brother. He has been murdered, and I can tell you who murdered him. That woman murdered him. She first ruined his life, and now she has killed him. For the last five years she has been plotting to make herself his wife, and last night, when he told her he had discovered the truth about the Russian, and that she would never see him again, she flew into a passion and stabbed him, and then, in terror of the gallows, killed herself. She murdered him, I tell you, and I promise you that we will find the knife she used near her—perhaps still in her hand. What will you say to that?'

"Lyle turned his head away and stared down at the floor. 'I might say,' he answered, 'that you placed it there.'

"Arthur gave a cry of anger and sprang at him, and then pitched forward into his arms. The blood was running from the cut under the bandage, and he had fainted. Lyle carried him back to the bed again, and we left him with the police and the doctors, and drove at once to the address he had given us. We found the house not three minutes' walk from St. George's Hospital. It stands in Trevor Terrace, that little row of houses set back from Knightsbridge, with one end in Hill Street.

"As we left the hospital Lyle had said to me, 'You must not blame me for treating him as I did. All is fair in this work, and if by angering that boy I could have made him commit himself I was right in trying to do so; though, I assure you, no one would be better pleased than myself if I could prove his theory to be correct. But we cannot tell. Everything depends upon what we see for ourselves within the next few minutes.'

"When we reached the house, Lyle broke open the fastenings of one of the windows on the ground floor, and, hidden by the trees in the garden, we scrambled in. We found ourselves in the reception-room, which was the first room on the right of the hall. The gas was still burning behind the colored glass and red silk shades, and when the daylight streamed in after us it gave the hall a hideously dissipated look, like the foyer of a theater at a matinee, or the entrance to an all-day gambling hell. The house was oppressively silent, and because we knew why it was so silent we spoke in whispers. When Lyle turned the handle of the drawing-room door, I felt as though some one had put his hand upon my throat. But I followed close at his shoulder, and saw, in the subdued light of many-tinted lamps, the body of Chetney at the foot of the divan, just as Lieutenant Sears had described it. In the drawing-room we found the body of the Princess Zichy, her arms thrown out, and the blood from her heart frozen in a tiny line across her bare shoulder. But neither of us, although we searched the floor on our hands and knees, could find the weapon which had killed her.

"'For Arthur's sake,' I said, 'I would have given a thousand pounds if we had found the knife in her hand, as he said we would.'

"'That we have not found it here,' Lyle answered, 'is to my mind the strongest proof that he is telling the truth, that he left the house before the murder took place. He is not a fool, and had he stabbed his brother and this woman, he would have seen that by placing the knife near her he could help to make it appear as if she had killed Chetney and then committed suicide. Besides, Lord Arthur insisted that the evidence in his behalf would be our finding the knife here. He would not have urged that if he knew we would not find it, if he knew he himself had carried it away. This is no suicide. A suicide does not rise and hide the weapon with which he kills himself, and then lie down again. No, this has been a double murder, and we must look outside of the house for the murderer.'

"While he was speaking Lyle and I had been searching every corner, studying the details of each room. I was so afraid that, without telling me, he would make some deductions prejudicial to Arthur, that I never left his side. I was determined to see everything that he saw, and, if possible, to prevent his interpreting it in the wrong way. He finally finished his examination, and we sat down together in the drawing-room, and he took out his notebook and read aloud all that Mr. Sears had told him of the murder and what we had just learned from Arthur. We compared the two accounts word for word, and weighed statement with statement, but I could not determine from anything Lyle said which of the two versions he had decided to believe.

"'We are trying to build a house of blocks,' he exclaimed, 'with half of the blocks missing. We have been considering two theories,' he went on; 'one that Lord Arthur is responsible for both murders, and the other that the dead woman in there is responsible for one of them, and has committed suicide; but, until the Russian servant is ready to talk, I shall refuse to believe in the guilt of either.'

"'What can you prove by him?' I asked. 'He was drunk and asleep. He saw nothing.'

"Lyle hesitated, and then, as though he had made up his mind to be quite frank with me, spoke freely.

"'I do not know that he was either drunk or asleep,' he answered. 'Lieutenant Sears describes him as a stupid boor. I am not satisfied that he is not a clever actor. What was his position in this house? What was his real duty here? Suppose it was not to guard this woman, but to watch her. Let us imagine that it was not the woman he served, but a master, and see where that leads us. For this house has a master, a mysterious, absentee landlord, who lives in St. Petersburg, the unknown Russian who came between Chetney and Zichy, and because of whom Chetney left her. He is the man who bought this house for Madame Zichy, who sent these rugs and curtains from St. Petersburg to furnish it for her after his own tastes, and, I believe, it was he also who placed the Russian servant here, ostensibly to serve the Princess, but in reality to spy upon her. At Scotland Yard we do not know who this gentleman is; the Russian police confess to equal ignorance concerning him. When Lord Chetney went to Africa, Madame Zichy lived in St. Petersburg; but there her receptions and dinners were so crowded with members of the nobility and of the army and diplomats, that among so many visitors the police could not learn which was the one for whom she most greatly cared.'

"Lyle pointed at the modern French paintings and the heavy silk rugs which hung upon the walls.

"'The unknown is a man of taste and of some fortune,' he said, 'not the sort of man to send a stupid peasant to guard the woman he loves. So I am not content to believe, with Mr. Sears, that the servant is a boor. I believe him instead to be a very clever ruffian. I believe him to be the protector of his master's honor, or, let us say, of his master's property, whether that property be silver plate or the woman his master loves. Last night, after Lord Arthur had gone away, the servant was left alone in this house with Lord Chetney and Madame Zichy. From where he sat in the hall he could hear Lord Chetney bidding her farewell; for, if my idea of him is correct, he understands English quite as well as you or I. Let us imagine that he heard her entreating Chetney not to leave her, reminding him of his former wish to marry her, and let us suppose that he heard Chetney denounce her, and tell her that at Cairo he has learned of this Russian admirer—the servant's master. He hears the woman declare that she has had no admirer but himself, that this unknown Russian was, and is, nothing to her, that there is no man she loves but him, and that she cannot live, knowing that he is alive, without his love. Suppose Chetney believed her, suppose his former infatuation for her returned, and that in a moment of weakness he forgave her and took her in his arms. That is the moment the Russian master has feared. It is to guard against it that he has placed his watchdog over the Princess, and how do we know but that, when the moment came, the watchdog served his master, as he saw his duty, and killed them both? What do you think?' Lyle demanded. 'Would not that explain both murders?'

"WHY IN THE NAME OF COMMON SENSE," HE CRIED, "SHOULD I HAVE CHOSEN THAT MOMENT?"

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

Walsh's CANDY.
Hallowe'en
Though Hallowe'en has been celebrated by some Peoples for centuries, until recently the only aid to its fun were the Pumpkin Lantern, the apple, the cabbage stock, the smoky candle, and such other homely things, a belief in ghosts and a strong imagination. Then it was celebrated only in the country.
Nowadays it is the occasion for many novel entertainments in the home of all classes—and the earth is drawn on to supply new designs on the old ideas. We have them Domestic, German and Japs. Jack o' Lanterns and Pumpkin boxes from 5c to $5 each.

WESTFIELD HIGH TIES SCORE AS GAME ENDS

Weakened by the injury to Charles Loizeaux in the second half of yesterday's game with the Westfield High School, the city High School team was scored on in the last two minutes of play and Smith, captain of the Westfielders, kicked the goal. The local school boys had put the ball across their opponents' goal line in the first half, and with the game well in hand, had their victory changed to a tie, 6-6, when Captain Smith ran sixty yards with a caught punt for the touchdown.

It was in the last few minutes of play and Westfield had been forced to punt. Smith broke through at the left end of the line and running directly behind Jack Riffert, who misjudged the punt, caught the ball and was off for his sixty yard run for the touchdown. He afterwards kicked the goal, tying the score, 6-6. Riffert was put in the game in place of Charles Loizeaux, who had showed special ability at quarterback in running off the plays. Loizeaux was taken out of the game because of a kick in the head which temporarily disabled him in the last five minutes of play.

The city high school boys played fast football, with Loizeaux and Phillips as the stars. The forward pass worked well and the back field got started fast. Caldwell was sent over the line for the touchdown after ten minutes of play in the first half. Murphy kicked the goal. The line-up follows:

P. H. S.—Doane, le; Fountain, lt; Morris, lg; Burch, c; Sewell, rg; Hammond, rt; Phillips, re; Caldwell, rhb; Murphy (captain), lhb; Bingamin, fb; Loizeaux, Riffert, qb.

W. H. S.—Smith (captain), le; Johnson, lt; Bull, lg; Brown, c; H. Otto, rg; Sisserson, rt; Buckley, re; Carlson, rhb; M. Marsh, lhb; Embleston, fb; Marsh, qb.

Referee—Moffett, of Westfield. Umpire—Roy Phillips. Fifteen and 20 minute halves.

Defeated in Final Round.

Miss Edna Wildey, of the Plainfield Country Club, paired with E. H. S. Pendergast, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, met defeat in the finals of the Essex County Country Club at Orange yesterday afternoon. Matched against Miss Eleanor Southerland and George H. Miles, they were defeated in a three-set match, 6-3, 6-8, 6-1.

J. T. LANGAN'S "PRINCE" TO PACE AGAINST TIME

As a special attraction in connection with the matinee races to be held at the Driving Park under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club Saturday, J. T. Langan, a Trenton member of the club, will start his pacer "Prince" against the track record of 2.17. If he is successful in breaking the record, he will be presented with a silver loving cup. Three trotting events, with an unusually strong list of entries, will be held, and ribbons will be awarded. The entries are as follows:

Class A—"Roan View," George Conover; "Bay Prince," J. P. Buckalew; "Lady Trivel," J. H. Greene, jr.; "Flora Downey," J. S. Irving; and "Ben Butler," Thomas Brantingham.

Class B—"Hartwood Bell," J. S. Osborn; "Maude C." R. L. Edwards; "Bobs," J. S. Irving and "Billy Wonder," C. M. Wooley.

Class C—"Aloysia," N. B. Smalley; "Ben Butler," H. Uhrhalm; "Daisy," Knoll Crest Farms entry; "Annie Ashley," C. M. Wooley; "Alcyette," M. M. Hodge; "Harmonia," C. C. Brower.

Matinee races in connection with the Watchung Hunt Club will be the attraction at the Driving Park Election Day. The card includes, besides class trots, a flat race and a steeple chase.

GOLF.

The friends of Robert Abbott were not a little surprised at his defeat on Tuesday by Wilder, of Harvard. The Plainfield golfer, in the absence of W. E. Clow, jr., the title holder in Intercollegiate golf, was clearly the legitimate star of the gathering. It was Abbott's wildness that cost him the match, something that he is not very often guilty of and it was a surprise to his admirers.

The third and deciding match between the Park Golf Club and the Middlebrook Country Club will be the attraction of interest at the Park course aSturday afternoon. The Parks will entertain the visitors after the match.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers has returned to the game after an absence of some time. Her playing on Tuesday in the women's tournament of the Essex County Club tournament showed that she can put up a fast game. She finished with a net score of 96 in the first eight.

The weekly competition for the Autumn cups, Classes A and B, at the Plainfield Country Club, is exciting considerable interest. On Saturday the play will narrow down to the semi-finals and on the following Saturday the finals.

FOOTBALL.

Harvard is still having trouble with the ends. Kennard started out in promising fashion only to fall by the wayside. Bird and Foster look rather promising at present. Like Pennsylvania, Harvard is running line men with the ball already. The tackle is dropped back and used in the old straight or diagonal tandem.

Harvard's hospital list is causing the coaches considerable worry. Eight men are under the doctor's care. Fortunately for the Crimson team, none of the players are seriously injured.

The appearance of Manager Dutchee of the Harvard football team on Franklin Field last Thursday caused a wave of excitement. It is thought that the outcome of his errand may be the cause of resuming athletic relations between the two colleges.

Walter McCornack, the former Northwestern football coach, and Ralph Hoagland of Princeton will referee the majority of the big games in the west this year. Evarts Wrenn of Harvard will do the principal part of umpiring. Announcement of the officials for the big games was made last week by the Conference Committee on officials.

Fred Murphy says he will have the strongest team in Brown's history this year. The test will come when the Providence team lines up against Pennsylvania.

William J. Clothier, the former National lawn tennis champion, who played end for Swathmore and Harvard, is assisting George H. Brooke at Swarthmore in developing the football team.

Word was received at Yale yesterday from West Point that the arrangements for seating the crowd at the game there on Saturday will be the same as they were last year. At that time twice as many people, both graduates and undergraduates, applied for tickets as could be accommodated, and the same condition prevails this year. The total number of seats which West Point will send has already been more than overdrawn. Nearly eight hundred applications have been received from undergraduates and fully five hundred more from graduates, while less than a thousand seats are available. While it may not be possible for all who intend to seet the game to have seats in the grand stand, some arrangement will be made for those who do not wish to miss the game to be admitted to the space within the ropes which surround the field.

Conklin, the crack Brown centre, has reported for the first time this season. He is bigger than last year, and as he keeps in condition it is probable that he will play against Pennsylvania next Saturday.

Secret practice at any time is a custom that could well be dispensed with, but it is to laugh when it comes as early as this. By and by the gridiron warriors will be going to and from the field wearing felt slippers, with fingers to lips and glancing furtively to the right and left for spies. Practice will be held after midnight with lookouts outside the gates and with the dark lantern as necessary an accesory of the game as the pigskin.

PHYSICIAN ACCUSES ITALIAN.

Doctor Refused to Refund Insurance Deposit and Says Assault Followed.

Antonio Cozza, of No. 68 Tompkins street, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Roundsman Ryan and Policeman Brynes at Orange on a charge of assault and battery made by Dr. W. F. Serles, who said he lived at No. 36 Fulton street, Newark.

Dr. Serles says he represents the "People's Mutual Life Insurance Association and League," of Syracuse. Cozzi subscribed to a policy for his father-in-law Tuesday and gave Dr. Serles $5. Tuesday night Cozzi changed his mind and told Dr. Serles he would get him another client if he would go to his house. Dr. Serles says that as soon as he stepped inside Cozzi locked the door, and, calling in a number of women, asked Dr. Serles to return the $5. The physician says he refused to do so and that the women then attacked him. Dr. Serles jumped out of an open window to the ground and was pursued. At Freeman and Tompkins streets a general fight took place. Cozzi was arrested. A hearing has been set for tomorrow morning.

—Ernest Dorflinger has about completed his new house at West Fourth street and Clinton avenue, and expects to take possession this week.

RAHWAY IN HUBBUB.

Home Robbed and Dancers at Negro Ball Searched.

The burglary Tuesday night at the home of George T. Moore, 91 Cherry street, Rahway, in which the thieves secured about $100 worth of plunder, created a hubbub in Rahway, when Mr. and Mrs. Moore returned from a drive shortly after 10 o'clock and found the house in wild disorder. Mr. Moore telephoned to the Mayor, who at once got busy, calling back Police Chief Wright, who had gone home for the night.

Fifty specials were pressed into service and all sections of the city covered. A negro ball was in progress in Washington Hall, at which large delegations from Plainfield and Elizabeth were present. Specials searched all those who undertook to leave the building, but, in spite of all the hubbub, the thieves got away. They were driven from a house on Hamilton street, which they undertook to enter, by the inmates, who were awakened by the barking of a dog.

JERSEY DAY AT BIG FAIR

Four Governors Attend the State's Celebration at the Jamestown Exposition.

A MILITARY PAGEANT

Rev. Dr. Demarest Delivers the Oration—Governor Stokes Makes an Address.

Marked by the preesnce of the governors of four states and with ideal weather, New Jersey Day was fittingly observed yesterday at the Jamestown exposition. Governor Stokes, accompanied by the new Jersey Senators, Representatives in Congress and prominent state officials, participated.

The day's exercises were held at the Lee Parade reviewing stand, from which Governor Stokes and his party witnessed a military parade. Upon the reviewing stand with Governor Stokes were President Tucker of the exposition company and Governor Swanson, of Virginia, the former of whom delivered an address of welcome; Governor Woodruff, of Connecticut, Governor Cutler of Utah and the New Jersey party. President Breckinridge of the New Jersey Commission presided, and the response to the address of welcome was by Governor Stokes. The oration of the day was by Dr. Demarest, president Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.

An official luncheon to the distinguished guests followed the exercises. The official reception by the New Jersey Jamestown Commission to Governor Stokes took place in the afternoon at the New Jersey Building, with the several state governors attending.

LAWYERS SECURED IN RELATIONSHIP FIGHT

Fighting to maintain her right to William Waller's bank account and insurance by proving herself his wife, Maggie Bell, whose efforts to secure possession of the dead man's body and complete her own arrangements for the funeral were combated by Mrs. Emily Warren, the man's mother, yesterday, has retained W. A. Coddington as her counsel in the fight which she started yesterday. Mrs. Waller, confident that no marriage ceremony was ever performed, has secured William G. DeMeza to look after her end of the case.

The rivalry of Maggie Bell and Mrs. Waller for the possession of the body finally resulted in Mrs. Waller's victory. She gave the job to Undertaker T. A. Moore, who immediately took charge of the funeral arrangements. His rivalry with Henry DeMott in getting the job was the talk of the colored folk yesterday. The interment will be at Waller's old home in Vinginia, and was sent south this afternoon.

Maggie Bell's claim to relationship rests entirely on the wording of a couple of insurance policies in the Metropolitan and Washington insurance companies. In the transfer of these policies to her name some time ago, Waller had her name inserted on the policies as Maggie Waller, wife of the man insured. This claim is her best reason for desiring to control the funeral of Waller. DeMeza has made an investigation of the matter and is unable to find the proof of the wedding. Nothing has been heard from Troy Gibson, who is the husband of Maggie, living in Rahway. "Darktown," in the neighborhood of Waller's Race street home, is still discussing and debating the question of relationship, and careful watch is being kept for any developments in the contest between mother and alleged daughter-in-law.

Lecture on Piano Extemporizing.

J. Granville-Smith, of New York City, lectured at the city high school this morning on the subject "Extemporizing in Music." The lecturer is a graduate of Oxford University and an associate of the Royal College of Organists, London, England. He is a man of remarkable skill and facility in extemporizing and illustrated on the piano the principles of which he spoke.

Mrs. Horne's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane M. Horne, which occurred Wednesday night, will be held at the home of her nephew, Charles E. Horne, of Willow avenue, tomorrow morning at 10.30. Mrs. Horne was in her eighty-second year.

Rev. John Waugh, of Brooklyn, will conduct an evangelistic meeting at the Christian church on Sunday night, October 27. His talk will be illustrated with 300 dissolving views.

CLANS HAVE GATHERED

Mrs. Corlies' Workers Gather in the Coin at the Casino for "Sweet Charity".

THRONG THE BOOTHS

Bill Runyon's Minstrels Make Big Hit—Living Pictures Are Good—Some of the Good Things.

In "The Gathering of the Clans," which has opened at the Casino yesterday afternoon, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, the women of Plainfield and North Plainfield, who have undertaken this somewhat novel method of raising funds, have set a pace which it will be difficult to eclipse in the future. All the ingenuity of which ambitious woman is capable has been brought into use in such a way that nothing but success can crown the earnest efforts of those who are working and planning so hard for the maintenance of the hospital.

The popular play house has been transformed into a place of beauty for a week at least, and nothing has been left undone to attract the people of Plainfield and vicinity. Mrs. John Edgar Corlies and Mrs. Charles A. Reed upon whom great responsibility has been placed in bringing the "Clans" together, are being ably assisted by hundreds of women from the city and borough.

The opening day and night witnessed the gathering of a large number of people, and everyone of the numerous booths and outdoor attractions were liberally patronized, so much so that those in charge are greatly encouraged. There are many novel features and a patron of the affair need not feel lonesome for one minute. There is something to interest one continually from the time they enter the grounds.

The whole Casino is given up to an unusually attractive lot of booths. In the main hall there are to be found fancy articles, books, stationery, boots and shoes, confectinery, potted plants and flowers, dolls, etc., all arranged in a way that is pleasing to the fancy. The rooms in the other part of the building are devoted to the sale of the more common articles used in every household, preserves, jellies, cigars, cigarettes, tobaccos, while in the basement an attractive supper room has been arranged where for a nominal sume one can get a fine supper.

In another part of the building, where there was a rushing business last night, welsh rarebit is served in a most appetizing way.

So much for the attractions indoors. But the Casino grounds remind one of the famous "Midway" at one of the world's fairs. All sorts of entertainment is offered from the throwing the rings on the canes, to the fine minstrel show presented by Judge William N. Runyon and his incomparable company of artists, as well as the fortune telling by Mme. Sticku and the delicious pancakes served by Joseph M. Shellabarger and his assistants to say nothing of the hot dog men, in the persons of Harry L. Hall and Lewis G. Timpson, whose persuasive manners cannot be resisted. They are ably assisted by B. Collins Firstbrook, who is an adept at "barking."

One of the most noteworthy attractions last night was the entertainment given in the large hall under the direction of Mrs. Frederick H. Andrews. This comprised living pictures and they were enthusiastically received by the crowd. The representations were so true that it would have puzzled an expert to detect the difference. The objects and those who represented them follow: "Lady with the Muff," Le Brun, Miss Mattie Hyde;; "The Chrystal," Henner, Miss Bakewell; "Beatrice D'Este," DaVicin, Miss Margaret Mead; "Pocohontas," Miss Marguerite Van Deventer; "The Broken Pitcher," Greuze, Miss Dorothy Fisk; "The Bowl of Oranges." George Wharton Edwards, Miss Helen Timpson; "Ruth," Miss Eva Browne; "The Maid of the Manor," Volk, Mrs. William De Lancy; "Lady Hamilton," Miss Anna G. Fisk. These same pictures will be given tomorrow night at 10 o'clock, while tonight there will be a change of program under the direction of Mrs. L. W. Serrell, called "A Comedy in Ations."

Considerable interest is shown in the handsome $300 oil painting by George Wharton Edwards, the artist, entitled "Sunny Hour. It was greatly admired last night by the throng.

The biggest attraction on the grounds and one that made a decided hit last night, was Judge William N. Runyon's "Senegambian Songsters and Ethiopian Exponents, or in other words, full-fledged minstrel show. Judge Runyon is "orchestra" leader and the members

1ST METHODISTS BANQUET

Ministers and Laymen Guests of Men's Club of the Celebrating Congregation.

SOME FINE SPEECHES

Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, S. S. Swackhamer, Dr. J. R. Joy and Others Give Brief Talks.

Gathered around a banquet table in Vincent Chapel last night, a big company of First M. E. Church members listened to informal speeches on church life and the growth of the church, given by clergy and laymen prominent in local Methodism. The occasion was the anniversary banquet of the church, forming a feature of the Methodists' diamond jubilee long to be remembered; the brotherhood of the church was in charge of the affair and the room was decorated with autumn leaves, a large American flag forming the back ground to the speakers' table. Covers were laid for seventy-five.

The table was in the shape of a mammoth horse shoe, the speakers occupying seats at the "toe," where was the genial toastmaster, Samuel Bingaman, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair. Sprays of flaming oak leaves, strewn down the centre of the long table formed effective decoration and the place cards were papier-mache autumn leaves.

The evening's speeches were in general in the topic, "The Church," and its various parts were dealt with by the eight speakers of the evening. After the coffee and cheese, Toastmaster Bingaman rose and spoke with regret of the absence of Nelson A. Miller, president of the brotherhood, whom business kept from attending, and Rev. George H. Whitney, who was not well enough to be present. Dr. Whitney was to have replied to the toast: "The Church, Its Foundation and Founders," but in his absence, the next toast, "The Church, Its Chapel," was called, and Superintendent James R. Joy of the Sunday-school, responded. Mr. Joy's speech was based on the etymology of the word "chapel"; his "firstly" was "chap," defined and first used in application to a follower of John Wesley, in 1750. The "secondly" of his speech-sermon, the "el" was the ell of an old New England farmhouse, the centre of interest for the young people, according to incidents of his boyhodd. Summarily he said that the chapel was the organization behind the church where young men, or "caps," first entered upon the activities of church work.

A strong speech was Rev. E. E. Roberson's response to the next toast, "Its Pulpit." The Monroe avenue pastor referred to the pulpit as the centre of the church power and discussed its place in the present age. He spoke of present day pulpit fanaticism, and said that the pulpit should be the place where courageous, broad-minded men of backbone make a business of attacking sin. He spoke also of the power of the laity in helping the preacher by sympathy with his cause and cooperation in sustaining his efforts. Henry A. McGee was the next speaker. He spoke of the church pew, saying that the pew should work with the pulpit and act as a support to it. The spirituality of the church should be mental, not the "Hallelujah" demonstrativeness. At the conclusion of this speech, a quartet, composed of Louis Olsen Barton, Carl Gallup, Vincent B. Miner and Choirmaster J. Edmund Skiff sang two selections.

Greeted with applause as he rose in his chair, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, whom Dr. McCrea succeeded in the parish, spoke on the pillars of the Church. This is his only share in the celebration, for parish work in his Perth Amboy Church has kept him from the anniversary exercises. He said that the real element of strength in church work as in church architecture lie in the pillars of the church—"men and women who walk on the earth, but whose spirits touch the skies." He attributed the success of the church since its foundation to the efforts of such curch pillars and concluded with heartiest best wishes for the success of the parish.

An element of humor enlivened the next speech, by Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer. His toast was "The Tower Clock," but from force of habit he started off with "Fellow citizens" and had begun to summarize the "issues of the present campaign" when he remembered himself. His speech was a delicious mental vacation." "wild word-painting in a blood-shot tone of voice," but in his effort to "come in on the home stretch" he left some good thoughts, comparing the human life to a clock and concluding with an appeal to all to "work under

ANOTHER SUB-CONTRACTOR CAUSES TROUBLE FOR CITY

Determined that the permanent pavement work shall not be delayed beyond a reasonable length of time, City Engineer Gavett started the work of laying brick on Park avenue, between the railroad and Fourth street, this morning. David Bowden, who is connected with the street department is temporarily in charge of the work and Contractor Meeker's men are laying brick.

This action was taken because of the failure of Sub-Contractor Foley, to whom the contract of laying the brick, has not returned to Plainfield since he left here last Saturday. Mr. Meeker has been endeavoring to get in communication with Mr. Foley, but up to today had failed. He expected that he would be back here early this week to continue his work. Park avenue being a busy thoroughfare Mr. Gavett is especially anxious that the work be finished at the earliest possible date, as is also Mr. Meeker.

In speaking of the matter this morning, Mr. Gavett said that he believed Contractor Foley and his men were busy elsewhere and were unable to return here as promptly as desired. The patent mixer in use on Somerset street broke down again yesterday and was still out of commission today. The concrete for the foundation is now mixed by the hand process and good progress is being made. By tomorrow that thoroughfare should be ready for the laying of brick.

BOROUGH FIREMEN MAKE GOOD SHOWING IN LINE

Cheered by more than 30,000 persons who took part in the mammoth firemen's carnival at Perth Amboy last night, the Warren Engine Company, thirty-two men strong, commanded by L. B. Bodine and preceded by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, made an excellent appearance in line yesterday. They did not land the prize, however, for other companies in line had newer, slicker looking uniforms. In the drilling, however, the local company were the top notchers. The combination wagon from the borough headquarters, drawn by "Nip" and "Tuck," was driven by Lieutenant Elden Smalley and William Gaub was with the apparatus. The other members of the local department marched in line with the Washington Hose Company, which had a big turnout.

The parade was a long one and the firemen marched from 11 o'clock until 4, when the contests took place. The local apparatus did not get back to headquarters till nearly midnight.

In the parade volunteer firemen from all towns and villages in this section of the country and from elsewhere took part. In the line of march were about 3,000 men, representing companies from South Amboy, Woodbridge, Port Reading, Roosevelt, New Brunswick, North Plainfield, Summit, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Burlington, Bordentown, Freehold, Englishtown, Metuchen, Rahway and Middletown and Peekskill in New York state.

CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT WAS WELL RECEIVED.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church, an excellent entertainment was given last night, consisting of reading, recitations, vocal and instrumental music. The program included an instrumental selection by Miss Edith Myers; readings by Miss Helen Woolley, Mrs. Harriet Gibbons and Mrs. William Grannett; vocal selections by Miss Emma Moffett, Rev. Phil. A. Parsons, Miss Anna Bass, Miss Hilda Bennett; recitations by Miss Elsey Townley, Miss Helen Thomson.

Prof. Movem's automatic figures gave orchestra selections and the story of Arnold Winklereid and William Tell. After the entertainment, coffee and cake were served by Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Edell, Mrs. Townley, Mrs. J. R. Naylor, Mrs. Kitchell, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Edmonds, Mrs. Willett, Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. Vannaman and Mrs. Manchester, assisted by the Misses Bittle and Donovan. John R. Naylor was master of ceremonies.

Arthur A. Snyder a Benedict.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Louise Kramer, of Fanwood, and Arthur A. Snyder, of West Front street. The ceremony was performed at 72 South street, Newark, Saturday night at 7 o'clock, by the Rev. Henry Rose, a pastor of that city. The only attendant was Robert Parsons, of West Front street, an intimate friend of the groom, who was best man. The couple have returned to this city. Mr. Snyder is a machinist.

"LOOKOUT" FELL ASLEEP

Cops Got By Him and Bagged Ten Colored Men in a Crap Game.

AN ONLOOKER "SQUEALS"

Testimony of Hazle Cuff Helps to Convict Samuel Thornton, Proprietor of the Place—Fined $50.

Becoming convinced that something in the gambling line was going on at the pool room of Samuel Thornton, located on South Second street just above Plainfield avenue, Acting Roundsman McCarthy and Patrolman Saunders made a raid on the place at 1 o'clock this morning. They interrupted a crap game that had been in progress for several hours and beside the proprietor arrested Hessie Walker, William Cheshire, James Scott, Harold Hall, William Marsh, Samuel Jones, Hazle Cuff, Joseph Pritchard and Tom Williams. All were arraigned in the city court but were let go with the exception of Thornton who was fined $50.

Officer McCarthy first realized that something was "doing" in the back parlor of the pool room and by listening around plainly heard the jingle of money and exclamations that accompany crap shooting. He secured Patrolman Saunders and the two manoeuvred about until a favorable opportunity offered to get in. Ordinarily this would have been a hard matter, but Hessie Walker, who the police declare was the "lookout," had succumbed to the gentle wooing of Morpheus and was fast asleep at his post. The whole delegation was gathered about a pool table but before the officers could get into the group the dice and money had been whisked away. Only a pack of cards and nine of the men remained, Sam Jones remembering suddenly that he had an engagement with a friend and took his departure through a window to keep it. He was rounded up later.

When the ten faced Judge Runyon this morning nine of them stoutly declared they had only been indulging in an innocent game of pinochle and that no money was involved. They all told the same story and might have bluffed it out but for the fact that Hazle Cuff became weak in the knees and corroborated everything the cops said, besides giving some more facts. He asserted that crap and poker had been going on all evening and that the bones were being flipped across the table when the officers came in. He hadn't participated in the game himself, he said, but he had a front seat and knew what he was talking about.

Walter L. Hetfield, jr., who had been engaged as counsel by Thornton and some of the other defendants, tried to show that "Cuffie" had been asleep and that most of his testimony came from a dream. Cheshire, Marsh and Scott were all positive that he had been slumbering and some even went as far as to say he was "full of dope" and had a habit of "seing things." The allegahabit of "seeing things." The allegaany of his testimony and it stood good with the court.

William Cheshire was awfully anxious to give full details of the evening's proceedings when he was called to the stand and in his eagerness made a bad break. He started to tell what the men had done at a certain period of the evening and exclaimed:

"Well, after the poker game—hold on, I mean after the pool game was over"—

That was as far as he got as the burst of laughter that went around the court room drowned him out and counsel gave him a hurried signal to take a back seat.

LOCAL DELEGATES FOR BOYS' Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE.

Officers in the boys' department of the local Y. M. C. A. have been appointed delegates to attend the State conference of boys' work in the organizations of New Jersey to be held at Ridgewood next week for three days, October 25, 26 and 27. There will be sessions each of the three days and special services, conducted and addressed by men prominent in Y. M. C. A. work in the State.

The local delegation will leave a week from today with L. A. Soule, the boys' secretary; those to make the trip are J. Stanley Robins, president of the boys' department here; Stanley Carner, vice president, Alfred Manley, secretary; Wilbur Dunning, chairman of the religious work committee among the boys, and Russell Morris, chairman of the social work committee of the department.

Mrs. Hiram Humes and children, of White Plains, N. Y., have returned home after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rogers, of West Fifth street.

The celebration service tonight at the First M. E. church will be of the nature of an educational meeting at 8 o'clock in the church. Superintendent James R. Joy, of the Sunday-school, will preside and the speaker will be Rev. George Edward Reed, D. D., LL. D. He will lecture on the topic, "Qualities That Win." Dr. Reed is president of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., one of the oldest colleges in America. He is also president of the Reed School of Law, an institution at Carlisle founded over a hundred years ago. Dr. Reed is prominent in Pennsylvania, being a strong supporter of the Republican party. He was formerly State librarian of Pennsylvania. At the service tonight will be Rev. W. W. Youngson, D. D., pastor of St. James' church, Elizabeth, and Rev. W. F. Anderson, the speaker at Sunday evening's service. Dr. Anderson is corresponding secretary of the board of education of the Freedman's Aid and Sunday-schools. Members from the Epworth Leagues of all churches of the city and borough will be present at the service tonight.

The Rev. Bishop John Heyl Vincent, D. D., LL. D., after whom Vincent chapel was named, will be the speaker at the morning service Sunday. Rev. George H. Whitney will also take part in the service, and the offering will be to defray the expenses of the convention. Bishop Vincent will come to this city tomorrow from Indianapolis and during his stay here will be the guest of his brother, Charles Vincent, of Fanwood. Aside from his address in the morning, Bishop Vincent will speak to the children of the Sunday-school at 3:15 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. Reed, Dr. Youngson and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea at dinner tonight. During their stay in this city, Dr. Reed and Dr. Youngson will stay at the home of Dr. McCrea.

LUNCHEON FOR BRIDE.

Mrs. George Wharton Edwards Hostess.

Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, gave a luncheon yesterday for Miss Helen Sprague Martin, whose marriage to Henry Davis Bushnell, will take place tomorrow afternoon at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church. The guests, besides Miss Martin, were those who will be members of the bridal party. The favors were miniature reproductions of "Sunny Hour," by George Wharton Edwards.

Last night Mr. Bushnell gave a bachelor dinner at the Harvard Club, New York, for his best man and ushers. Those present were Charles Case, who will be best man; and Albert Boyden and Frederick Case, of New York; David Mitchell, of Pittsburg; William Donaldson, of St. Louis, and Francis Augustus Martin, a brother of the bride, who will be ushers.

Miss Lettie Powelson, of Pluckemin, is spending some time with Mrs. James Brown in Somerville.

Daniel H. Beekman, of North Branch, was a guest yesterday of friends in New York.

RARITAN.

Mrs. Margaret Cahill has returned to her home after spending the summer with her daughter in Bayonne.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Grove have returned to Raritan after spending two weeks at Bethlehem, Pa.

Mrs. George Wetherill is a guest of her sister, Miss Pearl Owen, at Scranton, Pa.

The library of the Reformed church has received fifty new books.

J. J. Bourke has returned from a week's trip to Altoona, Pa.

Miss Anna Fitzgerald has been visiting in Brooklyn.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The local football eleven will play their first regular game of the season tomorrow afternoon, when they are to meet the heavy team from Elizabeth in a game on the ball field. The season was to have opened a week ago with a game with Metuchen, but the Metuchen players did not turn out in force. The local boys have been holding regular practises and the team is in good shape for tomorrow's game. The bunch from Elizabeth have lots of weight and play well together, but Captain Lake has some new plays which can be depended upon for big gains.

Miss Jane Townsend, of Elizabeth, will speak at a neighborhood meeting to be given at the home of Mrs. C. E. Kelly, of Prospect avenue, New Market, Saturday afternoon. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Junior Auxilliary of Holy Innocents church.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley is planning a southern trip for next month sometime. Thomas T. McGuire, his son-in-law will be in charge of his drug business during his absence. The postmaster will probably go to Southern Pines, N. C.

Several from here attended the mass meeting at the New Plainfield Theatre Wednesday night, hearing Judge J. Franklin Fort and Everett Colby speak. This town is all for Fort in the gubernatorial fight.

Clark T. Rogers has taken his boats out of water at New Market pond and got them out of commission for the winter.

Members of the Sunshine Guild of Holy Innocents Church are planning an entertainment to be held early in December.

A business meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held last night in the association's rooms.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Weather permitting, the ball team will play the Mono Field Club team, on the local diamond tomorrow afternoon. This will be the last game of the season. Manager Frentz will present the regular line-up and a good game is assured.

Peter Ritter has taken possession of his new livery stable on South avenue. The old club house has been completely remodelled and the stables are modern and up to date in every way.

H. C. Smith has secured a writ of attachment against the goods and chattels of Thomas Curierelle, who recently purchased the barber business of him.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith will have charge of the weekly prayer meeting tonight at the Baptist church.

Some of the local firemen attended the Fireman's Parade held at Perth Amboy yesterday.

The members of Excelsior H. & L. Co. held a fire drill last night at headquarters.

A meeting of the township committee will be held tonight in the town rooms.

Mrs. John Miller, of Park avenue, was the guest yesterday of relatives at Raritan.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Martin have purchased a house at Netherwood avenue and East Second street, and have taken possession.

—The Watchung Hunt Club will hold its weekly chase tomorrow afternoon, meeting at the Mt. Pleasant schoolhouse at 2:45 o'clock.

—The Public Service Corporation is extending its underground conduits on West Front street in the vicinity of Grove street and Central avenue.

—City Engineer Gavett has decided that in future brick pavement work no sand will be used to cover the pavement after the cement is used. It has been found unnecessary and only a matter of extra work.

—James Burns, who has been employed by William Randolph, the Watchung avenue barber for sometime, will soon open a shop of his own in the store adjoining that of "Tony" Garthwaite on Watchung avenue.

Dr. Herbert Bright, for seven years a practicing physician at the Clifton Springs Sanitarium, and who is a member of the Vanderbilt Clinic at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, has moved to No. 44 Grove street, the borough, where he will continue the practice of medicine.

—Wherever City Engineer Gavett finds a poor water service pipe in the business section of the city, the owner is given directions to have a new pipe put in before the brick pavement is laid. He wants to lessen the possibility of digging up the street from breaks in the underground pipes.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Hugh Pierce, of the borough, has been entertaining her mother from Westfield.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, has returned from a business trip to Pittsburg.

Mrs. William Springer, of Newark, has been spending a few days with relatives in this city.

Miss Gladys Burt, of Boston, Mass., has been visiting Miss Marguerite Serrell, of Myrtle avenue.

Harry Hartpense, of Newark, who has been visiting friends in town for a few days, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram VanCleef have returned from their honeymoon, and are residing on Elm place.

Mrs. James Everett Kimball, of West Seventh street, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. B. Parsons, of Chicago.

Miss Bertha Thorn, of Craig place, who has been detained at home for a number of weeks by illness, is slightly improved.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, formerly of the First M. E. church, but now of Perth Amboy, spent yesterday and today in town with friends.

Chief T. O. Doane has returned from Washington, D. C., where he attended the convention of fire chiefs of the United States and Canada.

YALE GOLFERS STRONG.

Six of Eight Survivors at Match Play from New Haven.

Ellis Knowles, of Yale, led the field in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the Intercollegiate Association championship tournament at the Nassau Country Club yesterday with a score of 77. Of the sixteen to qualify seven were from Yale, four each from Harvard and Princeton and one from the University of Pennsylvania. Although the conditions were ideal the collegians failed to score as well as in their matches on the preceding days. Closely following Knowles, who has been a runner-up in one intercollegiate championship and a semi-finalist in a national tournament, were Ralph Peters, jr., the Princeton captain; Robert Abbott, the Yale captain, and B. P. Merriman, also of Yale, all with 78. It required scores of 85 or better to qualify.

Other favorites to win were Abbott, Knowles and Dwight artridge and as the tournament now stands six of the eight survivors are Yale men. Princeton has one representative in ePters, while Morgan is Harvard's remaining hope.

In the semi-final round of the women's open golf tournament at the Essex County Country Club, yesterday, Mrs. S. F. Lefferts defeated Mrs. N. endlePton Rogers, by 3 up and 1 to play, thereby putting her out of the tournament.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Robert Abbott returned to his old-time form on Wednesday in his match with West, of Princeton, for the intercollegiate championship, and won out with a low score. This match was considered the best of the day and furnished plenty of excitement for the big gallery which followed the contestants. In the morning Abbott made a 76 and in the afternoon a 75.

Dudley H. Barrows was missed as a member of the Princeton team in the intercollegiate golf tournament. However, judging by the kind of a game put up by Yale, it is doubtful whether his presence would have had any bearing on the result.

All professionals are invited to a tournament at Providence on Friday and Saturday of next week. The first day's play will be a thirty-six hole score competition at the Agawam Hunt, with four-ball matches the next day on the Wannamoisett links. There will be $300 in prizes.

The events at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow will be the weekly competition for the Golf Committee, Green Committee cups and continuation of play for the Autumn cups, Classes A and B.

FOOTBALL.

The Commercial High School, of New York, will be the opponents of the P. H. S. on Hope Common tomorrow, and it will be the first severe test for the local school boys this season.

The Michigan faculty has placed a ban on the training table and quarters. This action was taken following the stand made by the fraternities of the university who pledged themselves to aid the maintenance of a training table for the football candidate, which is contrary to the provisions of the western conference.

Princeton will send a heavier team against Yale on November 16 than she has for several years, and the Tiger coaches expect to carry off the honors. The Tiger line is very aggressive on offensive, but much slower in defensive play.

More attention will be pai dto the forward pass at Cambridge. The ends are slow in getting down the field under points. The Crimson players showed considerable weakness in the contest with Williams on Saturday.

Among the promising new men upon whom the Princeton coaches are working are Buckingham, left tackle; MacFayden, right guard; Waller, right guard; Siegling, right tackle, and Brown, right end.

Secret practice is now the order at Princeton and New Haven. How long the secret sessions will continue is not definitely known, but it is thought that the gates will be thrown open again after Saturday's contests.

Two hundred members of the Princeton Club will attend the Yale-West Point game at West Point tomorrow to get a line on Yale in anticipation of the game between the Tigers and Old Eli on November 16

Cornell coaches gave Shean a trial at fullback this week. The scrub star worked well and will receive further consideration from the coaches.

Although football is barred at Columbia the interest in the sport shows no signs of dying out among the students. A special train has been chartered to take 500 White and Blue enthusiasts to West Point tomorrow.

Bob McCallie yesterday was declared eligible to play on the Cornell eleven, and will probably be first choice for right halfback on the Red team. He is quick at picking out an opening and hits the line low and hard

Teddy Roosevelt, jr.'s injury is not as severe as at first thought, and it is expected that he will be out with the Harvard players in practice in less than a week.

CLOSED PORTALS.

The Loyal Temperance Legion at its meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms Wednesday afternoon discussed plans for an entertainment to be given in the near future.

Two candidates will be initiated by Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., Monday night and a report will be received from the entertainment committee.

Owing to a lack of a quorum the past councilors of the local Jr. O. U. A. M. could not hold a meeting Wednesday night. Another date will be set for organization.

Will Hold Old-Time Revival.

Commencing tomorrow there will be two weeks' old-time revival services at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. The subjects for Sunday will be "A Modern John the Baptist," and "Man's Natural Greatness." The subjects for the other services will be as follows: October 21, "A Name to be Proudly Worn;" 22, "Get Off the Fence;" 23, "Are 'Conscience and Doing Right' Safe Guides?" 24, "A New Route to Heaven;" 25, "Sick Folks Cured;" 27, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" and "A Strong But Crippled Man;" 28, "Ideal Socialism Desirable;" 29, "A Great Mine Discovered;" 30, "A Fast Young Man;" 31, "What Sin Can Not Be Forgiven;" November 1, "Is There a Hell?" "A Bankrupting Transaction," and "How Can I Have Faith?"

Resolutions were adopted disap- proving of any effort to repeal the Bishops' bill, and several officers urg- ed that the association do all in its power to retain the bill on the stat- ute books.

Yesterday's session was largely taken up with the presentation of re- ports from the various departments of work. Mrs. Edith Cairns-Wight- man, of this city, presented the ele- mentary report, and she assisted at the conference held to discuss this phase of Sunday-school work. Last night the address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, of the Centenary M. E. church, Newark.

PUSHED THE BEAR ASIDE.

Surveyor Tells of Experience He Does Not Care to Repeat.

To walk right up to a monster bear and try to shove it out of the way and then escape without so much as a scratch is an experience of a lifetime. Harry I Engelbright found it so a few days ago in Diamond canyon, above Washington, says a Nevada City correspondent of the Sacramento Bee. The young man, son of Congressman Engelbright, has just returned from the upper country, where he has been doing some surveying, and relates his thrilling experience. It was coming on dusk, at the close of the day's work. In the brush-lined trail he saw protruding what he thought were the hind quarters of some stray bovine. He walked up and gave the brute a shove. It came to its haunches with a snort that made his hair rise and caused him to beat a hasty retreat. The big brute looked around and then shuffled off into the woods. It was either asleep or else so busy eating ants from an old log that it failed to hear the young surveyor, whose footsteps were deadened by the thick carpet of pine needles. Later it was learned that the same bear, a monster cinnamon, had killed a dog earlier in the day. The dog ventured too close and with one blow of its paw the big beast sent it hurtling yards away, dead as a doornail.

ALL RELIGIONS IN LONDON.

Faithist Community Latest Addition to Its Queer Sects.

The Faithist community which has established a modest footing in Balham, and whose comprehensive gospel ranges from the creation of man to the "glory and labors of the gods and goddesses of the Etherian heavens," is the latest addition to the long list of London's religious sects, which are now almost as many as the days of the year. In London the Chinaman burns his incense stick in more than one joss-house in the east end, the Mahometan has his mosque, the Malayan his temple, near St. George's street east; the Parsees worship the sun in Bloomsbury, the Mormons have a mission in Islington, and in many parts of the metropolis the Buddhists and Ancestor Worshipers perform their strange rites. Of Christian sects in London there are at least 300, including the Cokelers, the disciples of William Sirgood, the Walworth shoemaker; the Peculiar People, who prefer prayer to physicians; the Sandemanians, the followers of Joanna Southcott, the prophetic serving maid; the Shakers and the Seventh Day Baptists.

Ghost Plant of Oregon.

While picking berries at East Twentieth and Skidmore streets Sunday Miss Charlotte Lindsay came upon a ghost plant, says the Portland Oregonian. This plant is of rare occurrence in western Oregon, and this is the first time that it is known to have been found in or near Portland. The ghost plant was known and much praised by the Indians of Oregon in times past, and is sometimes known as the Indian pipe plant. It is said the Indians believed that it had great remedial qualities and made from it a lotion which they considered curative for the eye. It is a tall, waxlike plant about eight inches high and its bloom resembles a waxen cup.

Snap for Amateurs.

Amateur photographers who wish to turn their art to a commercial account by selling snapshots to their human victims have discovered a new field of endeavor. They haunt riding academies and the equestrian paths in the parks and photograph the riders. Men on horseback have a weakness for being photographed. Many a rider who could not be persuaded to pose for a photograph in conventional attitude or garb is quite willing to be taken astride a fine horse and any photographer who can snap him successfully is sure of a market for his pictures.

One Way Round It.

A minister says that one Saturday he was strolling along the shaded bank of a pretty stream when, unobserved, he approached a group of small boys, who were comfortably clad in jacket and trousers only. One freckled face little fellow stepped to the edge of the bank, turned his back to his companions and said: "Say, one of you fellers push me in, will yer?" "What for?" his chums demanded in chorus. "Aw, me mudder made me promise I wouldn't go in swimmin'; go on an' push!" the conscientious youth replied.

Diplomatic Salesman.

An elderly woman entered a shop and asked to be shown some tablecloths. The salesman brought a pile and showed them to her, but she said she had seen those elsewhere—nothing suited her. "Haven't you something new?" she asked. The man then brought another pile and showed them to her. "These are the newest patterns," he said. "You will notice the edge runs right round the border and the center is in the middle." "Dear me, yes. I will take half a dozen of them," said the woman.

"No Good on Earth."

Insurance Agent—Possibly, madam, you might like to insure your husband's life. Mrs. Grogan—Insure me husband's life, is it? Faith, a big fool I'd be to insure his life. He's no good on earth at all, at all! His life ain't worth a sixpence to me!—Illustrated Bits.

of the circle comprise the city's best known amateur black-faced artists. Joseph C. Martin is interlocutor; Harry Roberts, Harry Blimm, Tom Muir and Fred Miller, end men; Horace Martin, jr., Harry Messersmith, Jack Hall, Will Doud, Archie Davie, Jack Todd and Elmer D. Cutting, soloists. Every member of the troupe is in black face and costume and they give a performance lasting an hour. The show was greeted by big audiences last night and every number of the program was encored. The jokes include a large number of local "hits."

In the "Cycle of Fun," Speedon, the cartoonist; Ducrot, the wonderful wizard; Al. Baker, the magician are delighting both old and young with their clever performances.

The various committees in charge are as follows:

Fancy—Mrs. Henry Hall, chairman; Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Mrs. Charles B. Andrews, Mrs. C. W. Abbott, Mrs. George A. Industrial booth and ice cream parlors—Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney, Mrs. Arthur A. Cannon, Mrs. J. L. Sleyin, Mrs. A. J. Slevin, Mrs. James E. Bailey, Mrs. G. W. Neff, Mrs. W. E. Dunn, Mrs. Edward Feiring, Mrs. Hillaire Blatz, Mrs. James Harper, the Misses Anna Slevin, Jeanette Summers, Ella Renard, Sara Gilligan, Elsie Knowlton, Mary Smith, May Berkhan, Gertrude Berkhan, Margaret Kenney, Helen Rafferty, Maud Emmons, Myra Emmons, Anna Daley, Marie Carty, Hazel Walters, Mary Hines, Mamie Brady, Elizabeth Rafferty, Mary Daley, Ella Mullen, Margaret Rafferty.

Peanuts and popcorn are sold by Hartley Mellick and Harvey Fisk, and the shooting gallery is in charge of Howard Huntington and the members of the Log Cabin Gun Club. Frederick W. Butler and William Lockwood are looking after the cane and knife game, assisted by Henry Deknatel, Edward T. Van Buren, Harry Butler, Morris J. Dumont and Alfred Davies. Harry Butler also has charge of the baseball dodger. Joseph M. Shellabarger is chairman of the committee in charge of the pancake and coffee booth and his assistants are George Schoonmaker, James Dodd, Harry Lovell and George T. Van Boskerck. Mrs. Anna Most was the chairman in charge of the lemonade booth and she was assisted by several young women.

An encouraging feature of the affair was the booth in charge of William R. Townsend, secretary of the Muhlenberg Hospital League of Mercy. He was kept very busy receiving applications for membership, each one agreeing to contribute the amount set opposite their names annually to the hospital. Last night over $500 was subscribed.

Tomorrow afternoon and night the popular price of ten cents will be charged for admission, which will include the living picture entertainment and it is hoped that the patronage will be large.

In response to a request for free local service for the use of the committee, the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company volunteered to install enough equipment to care for the demands of the large audiences expected. The Casino is therefore wired for extension telephone service. There will be telephones in the office, the cloak room, the rathskeller, and in numerous booths throughout the building. Local service will be rendered free by courtesy of the company, and all charges for local calls will be for the benefit of the fair. Pages will be in attendance, in the well-known blue uniforms of the company. They will summon from the porches and tents persons who are wanted at the 'phone, and will act as messengers in various ways to make the telephone service adequate. The equipment used will be three direct trunks from the central office terminating in a switchboard, and extension stations throughout the building.

the eye of the clock in the work of the master." "The organ," said Rev. Dr. McCrea, the next speaker, in reference to his toast, "is an instrument, equipped with keys, pedals and stops. That word "stop" reminds me that there are other speakers. You've all had plenty of opportunity to hear me, I'll stop."

This was the concluding speech of the regular list of toasts, but the toastmaster called on George M. Rittenhouse, who spoke of the old relationships renewed by the anniversary celebration, alluding particularly to George Cornwall, who was called on for a few remarks. Mr. Cornwall spoke briefly; he welcomed his old friends and said that among the young men he recognized some of the members of the infant class in his day. After his speech, the banquet broke up, the diners singing "Auld Lang Syne" as the good-byes were said.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Samuel Bingaman, James R. Joy, Dr. Frank French, John Henry and Stephen H. Tugwell.

Surprised On Fifth Anniversary.

In honor of the eighth annixersary of his birthday, Kenneth Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bennett, of Watchung avenue, was given a surprise party yesterday afternoon. A dozen of his girl and boy friends visited him.

VIRTUES OF CEDAR CHESTS.

Only Immunity Against Moths Only for a Short Time.

"Old-time cedar chests are coming into favor again," says the manager of a department store. "They have never been entirely disused, and the call for them has not been for many years. Still, once in a while a customer would come in and use to be satisfied with anything but a cedar chest. The idea was that the resinous odor of the cedar would keep moths, and that clothing put in a cedar box was forever secure against any damage by destructive insects. The notion, however, is only in part. A new cedar chest will confer partial immunity for woolen goods; but in the course of a few years, the cedar loses its fragrance and is no more of a protection than a chest made of pine or any other wood. But the idea cannot be got out of the people's heads that the odor of cedar means death of moths, and as long as they believe it and also use plenty of camphor, as most of them do, the belief in the efficiency of the cedar does no possible harm."

TOO SURE OF HER CATCH.

Young Woman Just Missed Hooking Prize of the Season.

Peter Rothschild, the richest bachelor in England, had a close call with matrimony when he was a young man. His designing mamma had managed to get the heir to the Rothschild millions interested in her daughter, and the daughter did all she could to lead the interest up to the point of a marriage proposal. One night, at a watering place, after Rothschild had retired to his room, he heard voices under his window which he recognized as those of the young lady and her mamma. "Has he proposed yet?" asked the old lady. "Not yet," answered the daughter, "but I'll have him hooked before long, if only I can endure his conversation. Tonight he bored me almost to death talking about his kangaroos." "I am sorry," said Rothschild, putting his head out of the window, "to have bored you with tales of my animals. Forgive me, I shall never do so again." And he never did.

Did Duty Under Difficulties.

A gatekeeper in the employ of the Prussian railway company was recently the hero of an amusing incident. His wife being ill, he went himself to milk the goat, but the stubborn creature would not let him come near it, as it had always been accustomed to have this operation performed by its mistress. After many fruitless efforts, he at length decided to put on his wife's clothes. The experiment succeeded admirably, but the man had no time to doff his disguise before a train approached, and the gatekeeper ran to his accustomed post. His appearance produced quite a sensation upon the officials of the passing train. The case was reported and an inquiry instituted, which, however, resulted in his favor, as the railway authorities granted the gatekeeper a gratuity of 10 marks for his faithful discharge of his duties.

A Woman's Right.

Gives her the right to go through a man's pockets is guaranteed by a marital endowment of all his worldly goods, or whether it is a constitutional right in the pursuit of happiness, or whether it is just because she needs the money and will have it, right or no right, law or no law, this essentially feminine privilege has long been accepted as one of the necessary evils of married life, says a writer in the Baltimore American. Few men would take the matter into court even with a chance of success, because the market graft is much cheaper in the end than alimony, and few courts with proper regard for their own dignity would prohibit wives from going through their husbands' pockets, since there is no earthly way of preventing them.

Bucolic Style.

"The farmers made fortunes on wheat, didn't they?" "Yes, indeed," replied the railroad official, "and by a little strategy we are getting them to ride in our parlor cars. You know the farmers have always been prejudiced against parlor cars." "Why was that?" "Well, they said the cars didn't look anything like parlors at all. That set us to thinking, so we fitted up several special parlor cars with wax fruit, horse-hair furniture and old-fashioned photograph albums and now you couldn't pay the farmers to ride in any other car but the parlor."

Pennsylvania Highways.

The highways of Pennsylvania have a length of 99,777 miles, according to figures collected by the office of public roads. Nine miles have been surfaced with stone under the direction of the state highway department, [illegible] miles have been so surfaced by various counties and townships, and [illegible] miles have been more or less improved with stone or gravel by turnpike companies. There are 2.21 miles of road per square mile and one mile of road for every 63 inhabitants.

Romance of Modern Trade.

The fact that a man to-day can sit down in a restaurant overlooking the Seine embankment, or at a table under the trees at the edge of the Tuileries garden and dine on fresh salmon caught from the waters of California, Oregon and Alaska shows graphically the industrial efficiency has given romance to modern trade, remarks a London paper.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Who queered The Hague conference? That promises to be the paramount international question next. Boston Herald.

Mr. Choate thinks the peace congress "sowed some good seed." The difficulty is that it's a long time till harvest.—Washington Times.

Whatever else The Hague conference may have done, it will certainly not take a gun from the hands of a single soldier in the world. It will not dismantle a solitary warship. It will not close one arsenal or chill the forging of a cannon anywhere.—Philadelphia Press.

Earl Dunmore a Confederate Captain

It is not generally known that as Captain Charles Murray the deceased Earl Dunmore served with the Confederacy of America for three years, and in 1862 was a participant in the adventurous attempts at blockade running of that period. He commanded the steamer Nashville when it ran the federal blockade on April 24, 1862. Afterward he joined General Robert E. Lee and remained with him for several months.—London Telegraph.

French Decorations.

There are today at the Palais Bourbon half a dozen ushers who fear the "palmes academiques" on their black coats. We have also a guardian of the peace who is an officer of the academy, only this brave policeman modestly does not exhibit his ribbon. As for the holders of the palmes academiques who scarcely know how to read and write, they are legion.—Paris Intransigeant.

Similarity.

Stubb—Yes, the fancy gardener has named his special radish after his wife.

Stubb—Yes; he said they never agree with him.—Chicago News.

Heavy Bread.

JUST THE SAME AS CURRENCY.

Third Son Felt He Had Nothing to Reproach Himself with.

William Knoepfel, of St. Louis, has invented and hopes to patent a secret plowing method for the cure of baldness. "A genuine cure for baldness," said Mr. Knoepfel the other day, should make a man very rich. Why, men grow rich on fake cures. It is amazing, it really is, what fakes some of these cures are. Yet there's money in them." Mr. Knoepfel gave a loud, scornful laugh. "In their crookedness they remind me," he said, "of the third son of the old eccentric. Perhaps you have heard the story? Well, an old eccentric died and left his fortune equally to his three sons. But the will contained a strange proviso. Each heir was to place $100 in the coffin immediately before the interment. A few days after the interment the three young men met and discussed the queer proviso and its execution. 'Well,' said the oldest son, 'my conscience is clear. I put my hundred in the coffin in clean, new notes.' 'My conscience is clear, too,' said the second son. I put in my hundred in gold.' 'I, too, have nothing to reproach myself with,' said the third son. 'I had no cash at the time, though; so I wrote out a check for $300 in poor, dear father's name, placed it in the coffin and took in change the $200 in currency that I found there.'"

THE LOAD OF THE LAZY.

This Man Worked Hard in His Own Particular Way.

One of the neighborhood loafers sat comfortably smoking his foul pipe, according to his daily custom, in the prescription room of a drug store. He was soliloquizing aloud to the clerk. Here is a sample of his sound, contented philosophy: "I'll tell you what! A man is mighty miserable if he ain't got nothin' to do, when he ain't workin' at somethin'. I know it—I've tried both ways an' I find that there ain't nothin' that makes a man more miserable than doin' nothin'. But, you know, there's two kinds of work; one of them is where a feller goes to work at six in the mornin' an' works with his hands till six at night. The other is where a feller sits around an' thinks. I ain't never happy unless I'm workin', but I don't believe in that first kind of work. I believe in thinkin' all day long, an' that's harder than the other kind. I can tell you—you just try it if you don't believe me; a man is mighty miserable when he ain't workin'."

Old Shell Exploded.

A curious scene occurred on the premises of a Paris locksmith, recently. For the last 15 years a shell, which dated back to the siege of Paris in 1870 had been used by a rag and bone merchant as a sort of pestle. The merchant attached a handle to the shell. Some time ago the handle broke off, and the locksmith was asked to repair it. Having made a new handle red-hot, he drove it into the orifice of the shell. There was a tremendous explosion. The locksmith and his apprentice were blown several feet away, while pieces of the shell were driven clean through the woodwork and the window of the shop, and were found buried in the brick walls of the courtyard. Every window in the house was smashed, and large pieces of the shell were found buried in the ceiling, but by a miracle nobody was hurt.

Magnifying Choir Leader's Voice.

In the old village of Braybrook in Northamptonshire, England, is a monster trumpet, five six inches in length, and having a bell-shaped end two feet one inch in diameter. The trumpet is made up of ten rings, which in turn are made up of smaller parts. The use of this trumpet—only four of the kind are known to exist at the present day—was to magnify the voice of the leader in the choir and summon the people to the church service. At the present time neither the choir nor the service is in need of this extraordinary "musical instrument," but the vicar of the church takes care of the ancient relic and is fond of showing it to all visitors.

No Two Mouths Alike.

Dr. Paul Prager, an Austrian army surgeon, who has made a special study of methods of identification, recommends that prisoners should be identified by the shape of their palates. Dr. Prager declares that the method would be much more reliable than any at present used, for among the thousands of molds he has taken of the interior of the human mouth he has failed to find two which even slightly resembled each other. Although the teeth alter greatly with time, the markings of the palate remain unchanged throughout life.

Scriptures Reversed.

The hobo who had been sleeping under a tree on the roadside awoke and irritably began scratching himself. "The good book is full of truths," he said, "but things have changed slightly. Nowadays it is the ant that goes to the sluggard." After which it was a case of not yet a little slumber, not yet a little sleep.

Grown Timid.

"So you contend that watered stocks and mergers constitute a public benefit," said one commuter. "I don't exactly," answered the other. "But I don't think it's best to interfere with the great financiers, as the first thing some of them think of when they are annoyed is putting up the price to the consumer."

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Extremes of heat make more liars than profit and gain.

The average town is never as unsatisfactory as when providing entertainment for a loafer.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who could quote from the Bible better than his wife?

What has become of the old-fashioned person who called a wagon filled with household goods a "flittin'?"

Every young man in love with a pretty young girl underestimates the time it will take to learn how to cook.

Even the man who paid for the parlor furniture isn't to be trusted alone with it and a jack-knife, and nothing to do.

Don't slop over in giving compliments. A slop-over compliment is never taken seriously, and is liable to be offensive.

There isn't much in the world but work. Even people at summer resorts must do a lot of rustling around to have a good time.

About the time when a man reaches the age when he has time to read, his experiences have been so much more thrilling than those found in books that he can't find interest in them.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

When a man is glad to be bald-headed it was red.

One way to have a big family is to be able to support it.

A bank account is something you would have if you didn't need it.

A girl will swear it's a love letter even if it's a first-of-the-month bill.

A man can have all his other vices overlooked by going into politics.

No matter how many times a woman gets married she keeps on hoping for better luck.

One comfort about being in jail must be how nobody can make you go on family picnics.

Children have very sweet dispositions not to resent being told they look like their fathers.

If it weren't for the money to be saved a man could give up drinking and smoking without any trouble.

Open-work shirt waists would be something scandalous if they were worn to sleep in instead of in public.—N. Y. Press.

REFLECTIONS FOR EACH DAY.

Monday—Mountains of difficulty always appear steeper at a distance.

Tuesday—When a man builds castles in the air he leaves out the trouble.

Wednesday—Life without love is like flowers nurtured without sunshine.

Thursday—Success in war, like charity in religion, covers a multitude of sins.

Friday—Good fortune sometimes comes to us in a very shabby-looking carriage.

Saturday—Modesty seldom resides in a breast that is not enriched with nobled virtue.

Sunday—Not education, but character, is man's greatest need and man's greatest safeguard.—New York Evening Telegram.

FATIGUE.

It puts a chasm between seeing and acting.

Fatigue lowers all the faculties of the body.

Important questions must not be decided when one is fatigued.

It is a condition which in the nature of things we cannot avoid.

The only thing to do with fatigue is to get rid of it as soon as possible.

It destroys will power. Fatigue is a destructive agent like sickness and death.

But it is important to know how to deal with it if we wish to keep away from important blunders.

It makes a break, somehow, between the message that comes into the brain from the outside world and the messages that go out.

BY THE WAY.

The less a man has to do the more he is apt to be pressed for time.

If you have anything to say, go to bed and think before talking next day.

Success was never won by comparing your product with your neighbor's.

It is a very small position that does not give a man a chance to spread himself.—Uncle Dick, in Madison Journal.

Vented Back Coats.

AND OTHER STYLES FOR MEN.

Experience has taught us that small things ofttimes influence men in choice of their clothing.

Here, for instance, is the Vented Back Coat—not a new thing, but a feature continued from the Summer season by some designers because of its great popularity. Some designers passed it by; others continued it, so we are able to present both styles, and men can pick at their pleasure.

One of our most exclusive makers sends us a design with the middle vent—which strikes us as particularly clever, and this coat has a slightly shaped back and is cut with high lapels in front.

The suits are made of Scotch mixed effects in brownish hues, grays, etc., some of them with several color tones.

The tailoring is faultless, of course.

Prices 18.00 to 22.00.

Other Suits for men 7.00 to 25.00.
Youth's Suits 5.00 to 22.00.
Trousers 1.00 to 10.00.
Fall Top Coats and Raincoats 7.00 to 35.00.
Fancy Waistcoats 1.00 to 7.00.

'Our Own' Boys' $5 Suit

We are featuring these suits at $5 because of the popularity of the price—so many parents do not want to pay more, and here we are giving more for that price than any other store in town.

Let us prove it.

Come in and see the collection of suits we offer at $5.

Here are all of the latest color effects as well as the staple blue serge in fast color; cut in Yoke, Norfolk, Double-breasted, Single-Breasted, Double-breasted, Derby-Back and Plain Double-breasted Coat Styles and in Russian and Sailor Styles.

There is every style here that you will see elsewhere and many that no other store will show you.

A number of the suits include an extra pair of knickerbockers.

There are sizes for boys of 3 to 18 years, and you can pick any in the lot at $5.

This is the only house in Newark selling Boys' Yoke Norfolk Suits for $4, $5 and $6.

Suits with extra trousers for as little as $3.75.

Others at $4.50, $5, $6, $7.50 to $18.98.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The joint appearance of two such eminent and delightful exponents of dramatic art as Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon is always sure to arouse the keenest possible enthusiasm on the part of our playgoing people and it will therefore form an occasion of rare joy to welcome them at the New Plainfield Theatre tonight in a new play, one which is said to measure the talents of Mr. Kelcey and Miss Shannon to a nicety, and to introduce a supporting company of unusual excellence.

"Bridge" is the title of the play to be presented, and comes from the pen of Alicia Ramsey, who is a familiar person in the playwriting world.

Avoid paying doctors' bills, by going to see the great laughing success "The Lady from Lane's" which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night. When it is stated that the lyrics are by George Broadhurst and the music by Gustave Kerker it is unnecessary to say anything further in praise of this comedy with music. Broadhurst & Currie have engaged a great cast which is headed by Thomas Wise and Truly Shattuck. Ida Hawley, Adele Rafter and Walter Percival are other New York favorites in the company.

Direct from an unprecedented success in London and New York, the Shubert's big English musical comedy "The Earl and the Girl," will appear at the New Plainfield Theatre Monday night. "The Earl and the Girl" is one of the most successful musical offerings that has been produced in years, the music is delightful and it contains all the good parts of a clever musical comedy, and most important of all, it has the swing and dash and melodic charm which fascinates. La Shelle, will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday night. Most book plays are disappointments to those who go to the theatre expecting a realization of their ideals formed in the course of reading. But when the novelist and dramatist are one and the same person, then there is hope that thre stage will not destroy the impression made by the book. "The Virginian" dramatic and atmospheric, and deeply interesting play, and as a stage representation of frontier life, is an addition to American dramatic art.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE WILL BROOK NO DELAY

In the Somerset County Courts in Somerville yesterday, former Vice Chancellor James J. Bergen made his first appearance as a justice of the Supreme Court. Owing to the illness of Justice Barker, Justice Bergen has been assigned to the Somerset, Morris and Bergen circuit to look after some of the most important business, and will take up the two murder cases in Somerset.

Richard Stryker, who is charged with shooting and killing his father, John C. Stryker, near Readington, last August, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He has employed Clark & Case to defend him. His trial was fixed for Tuesday, Oct. 29.

Justice Bergen announced that there would be no delay in these cases; that he would begin the trials on the day set, and would open court at 9 a. m. every day and adjourn at 5 p. m. He said the work had got behind enough.

Favors Home Rule.

In the course of an address which he delivered at Atlantic City last night, Frank S. Katzenbach, the Democratic candidate for Governor, for the first time in the present campaign gave a suggestion of his attitude toward the question of "home rule" in regard to restraints on the sale of liquors. The hint was given in a few sentences of his speech, in which he said that each community has certain local problems which it should settle for itself without the interference of other bodies.

SPOILED COURSE OF LOVE.

Young Man Misunderstood Answer of His Charmer.

There was once a bashful young policeman, whom we will name George X., who was in love with a young lady, but was too backward to propose to her. One night, however, he plucked up courage and went to her house. After being seated with her on the sofa, he said, "Mary, I love you." The young lady, who was looking for this for some time, dropped her eyes and murmured, "Ditto, George." To her surprise and disappointment he changed the subject and finally went away. The next day he was talking to some brother policemen at the fence of a large field of cabbages. "Boys," said George, "what does ditto mean?" "Why," said one of them, pointing to a very large cabbage, "do you see that cabbage, George?" "Yes," said George. "And do you see that one next to it?" "I do," said George. "Well," said the other, "that second cabbage-head is ditto to the first one." "What!" roared George, "did that confounded girl call me a cabbage-head?" And he went his way and refused to be comforted.—Judge's Library.

A Little Touch of Nature.

A boy of 12, and a woman, aged three times 12, sat side by side in a Broadway car. They were strangers. The boy's little blue jacket was pulled out at the seams, the woman wore a last summer's hat. Both were very tired. They sat sideways and occasionally they nodded drowsily. Once during a spasmodic cranial movement, their faces almost touched. Then they braced back and looked at each other. The woman smiled. "Are you tired?" she asked. "Awful," said the boy. Then he smiled, too. "Are you?" he asked. "Awful," said the woman. Then they smiled some more, and somehow neither felt quite so tired after that.—New York Press.

Patrick's Will.

An elderly gentleman, who knew something of law, lived in an Irish village where no solicitor ever penetrated, and was in the habit of arranging the disputes of his neighbors and making their wills. At an early hour one morning he was aroused from his slumbers by a loud knocking at the gate, and putting his head out of the window, he asked who was there. "It's me, yer honor—Paddy Flaherty. I could not get a wink of sleep thinking of the will I have made." "What's the matter with the will?" asked the amateur lawyer. "Matter indeed," replied Pat, "sure I've not left myself a three-legged stool to sit down upon!"

What He Wanted to Know.

How early in life the value of "solid" gold and "sterling" silver is impressed on us is illustrated by an incident told with much enjoyment by a delegate from Mississippi who attended a recent convention. One of his neighbors calling to bid him godspeed brought his six-year-old son with him, and to amuse the youngster he was shown the aquarium where numerous gold fish glittered and glistened. After gazing at them in admiration for a few moments he was asked what he thought of them, and in reply said: "They're pretty, but are they solid?"

Look Forward with Hope.

Put all your past failures behind you, forget them, let the dead past bury its dead, don't cry over spilt milk, the water that is past never will turn the mill, yesterday's flowers never will bloom again, last year's apples are Dead sea fruit, the spoken word can't be recalled, and the hour glass of time when its sands are run never can be refilled. The past is behind, the future ahead. Forget the one, look with hope to the other.

Getting Even.

He—You go and kiss another woman and then go and say things about her you wouldn't have her hear for the world. She—And you go and kiss your wife and then go out and do things you wouldn't have her know for the world.

THE ONLY HOUSE THAT SELLS

"COTTON FOR COTTON" "WOOL FOR WOOL"

The BLUE FRONT OUTFITTING CO., 222 W. FRONT ST.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"I was only too willing to hear any theory which pointed to any one else as the criminal than Arthur, but Lyle's explanation was too utterly fantastic. I told him that he certainly showed imagination, but that he could not hang a man for what he imagined he had done.

"'No,' Lyle answered, 'but I can frighten him by telling him what I think he has done, and now when I again question the Russian servant I will make it quite clear to him that I believe he is the murderer. I think that will open his mouth. A man will at least talk to defend himself. Come,' he said, 'we must return at once to Scotland Yard and see him. There is nothing more to do here.'

"He arose, and I followed him into the hall, and in another minute we would have been on our way to Scotland Yard. But just as he opened the street door a postman halted at the gate of the garden, and began fumbling with the latch.

"Lyle stopped, with an exclamation of chagrin.

"'How stupid of me!' he exclaimed. He turned quickly and pointed to a narrow slit cut in the brass plate of the front door. 'The house has a private letter-box,' he said, 'and I had not thought to look in it! If we had gone out as we came in, by the window, I would never have seen it. The moment I entered the house I should have thought of securing the letters which came this morning. I have been grossly careless.' He stepped back into the hall and pulled at the lid of the letter-box, which hung on the inside of the door, but it was tightly locked. At the same moment the postman came up the steps holding a letter. Without a word Lyle took it from his hand and began to examine it. It was addressed to the Princess Zichy, and on the back of the envelope was the name of a West End dressmaker.

"'That is of no use to me,' Lyle said. He took out his card and showed it to the postman. 'I am Inspector Lyle from Scotland Yard,' he said. 'The people in this house are under arrest. Everything it contains is now in my keeping. Did you deliver any other letters here this morning?'

"The man looked frightened, but answered promptly that he was now upon his third round. He had made one postal delivery at seven that morning and another at eleven.

"'How many letters did you leave here?' Lyle asked.

"'About six altogether,' the man answered.

"'Did you put them though the door into the letter-box?'

"The postman said, 'Yes, I always slip them into the box, and ring and go away. The servants collect them from the inside.'

"'Have you noticed if any of the letters you leave here bear a Russian postage stamp?' Lyle asked.

"The man answered, 'Oh, yes, sir, a great many.'

"'From the same person, would you say?'

"'The writing seems to be the same,' the man answered. 'They come regularly about once a week—one of those I delivered this morning had a Russian postmark.'

"'That will do,' said Lyle eagerly. 'Thank you, thank you very much.'

"He ran back into the hall, and, pulling out his penknife, began to pick at the lock of the letter-box.

"'I have been supremely careless,' he said in great excitement. 'Twice before when people I wanted had flown from a house I have been able to follow them by putting a guard over their mail-box. These letters, which arrive regularly every week from Russia in the same handwriting, they can come from but one person. At least, we shall know the name of the master of this house. Undoubtedly it is one of his letters that the man placed here this morning. We may make a most important discovery.'

"As he was talking he was picking at the lock with his knife, but he was so impatient to reach the letters that he pressed too heavily on the blade and it broke in his hand. I took a step backward and drove my heel into the lock, and it burst open. The lid flew back, and we pressed forward, and each ran his hand down into the letter-box. For a moment we were both too startled to move. The box was empty.

"I do not know how long we stood staring stupidly at each other, but it was Lyle who was the first to recover. He seized me by the arm and pointed excitedly into the empty box.

"'Do you appreciate what that means?' he cried. 'It means that some one has been here ahead of us. Some one has entered this house not three hours before we came, since eleven o'clock this morning.'

"'It was the Russian servant!' I exclaimed.

"'The Russian servant has been under arrest at Scotland Yard,' Lyle cried. 'He could not have taken the letters. Lord Arthur has been in his cot at the hospital. That is his alibi. There is some one else, some one we do not suspect, and that some one is the murderer. He came back here either to obtain those letters because he knew they would convict him, or to remove something he had left here at the time of the murder, something incriminating,—the weapon, perhaps, or some personal article; a cigarette-case, a handkerchief with his name upon it, or a pair of gloves. Whatever it was it must have been damning evidence against him to have made him take so desperate a chance.'

"'How do we know,' I whispered, 'that he is not hidden here now?'

"'No, I'll swear he is not,' Lyle answered. 'I may have bungled in some things, but I have searched this house thoroughly. Nevertheless,' he added, 'we must go over it again, from the cellar to the roof. We have the real clew now, and we must forget the others and work only it.' As he spoke he began again to search the drawing-room, turning over even the books on the tables and the music on the piano.

"'Whoever the man is,' he said over his shoulder, 'we know that he has a key to the front door and a key to the letter-box. That shows us he is either an inmate of the house or that he comes here when he wishes. The Russian says that he was the only servant in the house. Certainly we have found no evidence to show that any other servant slept here. There could be but one other person who would possess a key to the house and the letter-box—and he lives in St. Petersburg. At the time of the murder he was two thousand miles away.' Lyle interrupted himself suddenly with a sharp cry and turned upon me with his eyes flashing. 'But was he?' he cried. 'Was he? How do we know that last night he was not in London, in this very house when Zichy and Chetney met?'

"He stood staring at me without seeing me, muttering, and arguing with himself.

"'Don't speak to me,' he cried, as I ventured to interrupt him. 'I can see it now. It is all plain. It was not the servant, but his master, the Russian himself, and it was he who came back for the letters! He came back for them because he knew they would convict him. We must find them. We must have those letters. If we find the one with the Russian postmark, we shall have found the murderer.' He spoke like a madman, and as he spoke he ran around the room with one hand held out in front of him as you have seen a mind-reader at a theatre seeking for something hidden in the stalls. He pulled out old letters from the writing-desk, and ran them over as swiftly as a gambler deals out cards; he dropped on his knees before the fireplace and dragged out the dead coals with his bare fingers, and then with a low, worried cry, like a hound on a scent, he ran back to the waste-paper basket and, lifting the papers from it, shook them out upon the floor. Instantly he gave a shout of triumph, and, separating a number of torn pieces from the others, held them up before me.

"'Look!' he cried. 'Do you see? Here are five letters, torn across in two places. The Russian did not stop to read them, for, as you see, he has left them still sealed. I have been wrong. He did not return for the letters. He could not have known their value. He must have returned for some other reason, and, as he was leaving, as the letter-box, and taking out the letters, held them together—so—and tore them twice across, and then, as the fire had gone out, tossed them into this basket. Look!' he cried, 'here in the upper corner of this piece is a Russian stamp. This is his own letter—unopened!'

"We examined the Russian stamp and found it had been cancelled it St. Petersburg four days ago. The back of the envelope bore the postmark of the branch station in upper Sloane Street, and was dated this morning. The envelope was of official blue paper and we had no difficulty in finding the two other parts of it. We drew the torn pieces of the letter from them and joined them together side by side. There were but two lines of writing, and this was the message: 'I leave Petersburg on the night train, and I shall see you at Trevor Terrace after dinner Tuesday evening.'

"'That was last night!' Lyle cried. 'He arrived twelve hours ahead of his letter—but it came in time—it came in time to hang him!'"

The Baronet struck the table with his hand.

"The name!" he demanded. "How was it signed? What was the man's name?"

The young Solicitor rose to his feet and, leaning forward, stretched out his arm. "There was no name," he cried. "The letter was signed with only two initials. But engraved at the top of the sheet was the man's address. That address was 'The American Embassy, St. Petersburg, Bureau of the Naval Attache,' and the initials," he shouted, his voice rising into an exultant and bitter cry, "were those of the gentleman who sits opposite who told us that he was the first to find the murdered bodies, the Naval Attache to Russia, Lieutenant Sears!"

A strained and awful hush followed the Solicitor's words, which seemed to vibrate like a twanging bowstring that had just hurled its bolt. Sir Andrew, pale and staring, drew away with an exclamation of repulsion. His eyes were fastened upon the Naval Attache with fascinated horror. But the American emitted a sigh of great content, and sank comfortably into the arms of his chair. He clapped his hands softly together.

"Capital!" he murmured. "I give you my word I never guessed what you were driving at. You fooled me, I'll be hanged if you didn't—you certainly fooled me."

The man with the pearl stud leaned forward with a nervous gesture. "Hush! be careful!" he whispered. But at that instant, for the third time, a servant, hastening through the room, handed him a piece of paper which he scanned eagerly. The message on the paper read, "The light over the Commons is out. The House has risen."

"Hurrah!" he cried. "The House is up! We've won!" He caught up his glass, and slapped the Naval Attache violently upon the shoulder. He nodded joyously at him, at the Solicitor, and at the Queen's Messenger. "Gentlemen, to you!" he cried; "my thanks and my congratulations!" He drank deep from his glass, and breathed forth a long sigh of satisfaction and relief.

"But I say," protested the Queen's Messenger, shaking his finger violently at the Solicitor, "that story won't do. You didn't play fair—and—and you talked so fast I couldn't make out what it was all about. I'll bet you that evidence wouldn't hold in a court of law—you couldn't hang a cat on such evidence. Your story is condemned tommy-rot. Now my story might have happened, my story bore the mark—"

In the joy of creation the story-tellers had forgotten their audience, until a sudden exclamation from Sir Andrew caused them to turn guiltily toward him. His face was knit with lines of anger, doubt, and amazement.

"What does this mean?" he cried. "Is this a jest, or are you mad? If you know this man is a murderer, why is he at large? Is this a game you have been playing? Explain yourselves at once. What does it mean?"

The American, with first a glance at the others, rose and bowed courteously.

Do You Realize

that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

Boynton Square Pot Furnaces

The latest and most important improvement in furnace construction is the patent Square Pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces and making them the most easily operated, the most economical, the most efficient heaters in the world.

The Square Pot, unlike the old-fashioned round pot, has a grate area equal to that of the ashes, cleaning as well at the sides as in the middle.

The walls are perpendicular, hence no clogging, resulting in quicker and more sensitive combustion, less waste of fuel, and a constantly active radiation.

Grate bars of equal length and motion; the ash pit is square and deep—everything is designed to reduce your work to a minimum.

Settle the heating question at once by letting your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith show what the square pot means to you. Found only in Boyntons.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.
2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!
3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.
4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.
5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

Fifty thousand dollars a year is spent on Regent's park, in London.

A syndicate has been formed for the purpose of making roads out of London for the use of motor cars.

King Edward rules over more Mohammedans than the sultan of Turkey, over more Hebrews than there are in Palestine and over more negroes than any sovereign of Africa.

When North Gosforth church, near Newcastle, England, which had never been consecrated, but in which services had been held regularly, was put up at auction not a bid was made for the property.

It is calculated that English now leave in millions for the continent every summer. Ten years hence, hence, says London Truth, it may be necessary to leave a caretaker in charge of England while the community is absent abroad.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Alla Nazimova has opened in "The Master Builder," by Ibsen.

Frank Gilmore has been engaged by the Shuberts as leading man to Mary Mannering to play Jerome Bonaparte in "Glorious Betsy," Mrs. Rida Johnson Young's play.

Miss Ida Fuller, who has been appearing in vaudeville in Europe for a number of years, recently made her appearance in the New York theatre in a new Parisian spectacle act entitled "La Sociere."

Dennis O'Sullivan is a new Irish star who is under contract to Joseph Brooks to star in "Peggy Machree," beginning about the first of the year. His success in London, Dublin, Belfast and other cities has been great.

PITH AND POINT.

Every man who borrows trouble pays usurious interest.

You were never fairly discussed behind your back in your life.

Most people will make any sacrifice to gratify their fool streak.

Mend your own faults, and the faults of others will not be so apparent.

How many opportunities there are to spend money! And how few opportunities to make it!

You hear people say sometimes they do not care much for compliments. Nothing in it. All of us love a compliment.—Atchison Globe.

Mistakes of Drug Clerks.

"There is one loss sustained by druggists that very few people know about," said the experienced clerk. "That is in the prescriptions that have to be made over, the same as clerks, stenographers, writers and artists, no matter how painstaking, frequently have to do their work over. The most careful drug clerk in existence is bound to make mistakes sometimes in measuring and mixing. He may pour in too much of some kind of liquid or sift in too much of a certain powder. In most cases the overdose would not really affect the value of the medicine, but the conscientious clerk isn't going to take any chances of murdering anybody, so he throws away the whole mixture and makes up another prescription."

"Try One of My Betels."

In Siam they don't offer you a cigar or a cigarette, but a betel nut. There every one carries a supply of them in a neat little ivory box, not unlike the snuffboxes of our ancestors. The betel nut is a narcotic, in its effects not unlike tobacco, but it is much more harmful. Those who chew it suffer from inflamed gums, and they generally lose their teeth. The betel is a species of climbing plant, with a leaf not unlike ivy. It yields a crop of nuts, which are ground to a powder. This is mixed with a similar powder derived from the areca nut and made into a paste, which is wrapped in pieces of betel leaf.

An Ambitious Prince.

When Prince Edward, son of the Prince of Wales and heir apparent to the British throne, was about nine years old he said to his nurse one night before going to sleep: "You know that some day I shall be king. Well, when I am I shall do three things. Irst, I shall make a law that no one is to cut off puppy's tails, for that is very cruel. Then I shall make a law that no one is to put bearing reins on horses, for that is another cruel thing. And I shall try to do away with all sin."

Collies as Scouts.

This year's army maneuvres in Italy are signalized by the introduction of the dog as an element in tactics. A small group of scouting and messenger dogs is attached by way of experiment to the First army corps and if the results are deemed sufficiently good dogs are likely to be largely used by the intelligence department. It is worth noting, too, that the dogs selected as pioneers in this work are Scotch collies.—London Globe.

The results of the long and thorough research into the nature of cancer conducted at the Pasteur Institute in Paris are nil, except as showing that the disease is neither contagious nor hereditary and that it can be combated only by a surgical operation. It seems obvious that nearly everything yet remains to be learned about cancer.—Boston Globe.

"Yaas," said Cholly, "I confess I prefer dear old Esgland to this country. I should like to be a subject of the king."

"Vain longing," retorted Miss Peppprey. "Of course you can never be anything but an obpect."—Philadelphia Press.

GREAT CLOTHING SALE

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

--STRIKE WHILE THE IRON'S HOT--

This is an Old Story that is Good Today—Successful and Well-to-do People Follow it in Their Every-day Life

The Best Stock of Men's Fall Clothing in Newark

BEST is a Word of Broad Meaning and We Use it Only After Carefully Weighing the Facts.

Four Wholesale Clothier's Entire Stocks to be Sold by us at About ½ Manufacturers' Cost.

THEY HAD TO RAISE CASH AND CAME TO US.

This Event is an Unprecedented Opportunity for You and a Magnificent Advertisement for Us.

This store was thronged with appreciative clothing buyers last Saturday and has been the busiest clothing store in Newark every day this week. It is plain that you realize the importance of an occasion like this at KING'S. These four manufacturers have been compelled to take heavy losses because they have received very scant remittances up to now, besides they couldn't raise money on account of the tight money market. Their wealth is on their books—ready cash is what they require. In their trouble they came to us, knowing our capacity to handle large stocks for spot cash if the merchandise was attractive in price.

Unprecedented Stocks of Fashionable Fall and Winter Clothing Which We Shall Sell AT HALF PRICE.

As large as our store is, it will not hold ONE-TENTH of these stocks. Yet this store will be the outlet through which the stocks will pass from DAY TO DAY to the consumers. It will be a sort of clearing house, which will enable the buyers to save

FIFTY CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

Notice of Election

City of Plainfield, N. J.

To the legal electors of the City of Plainfield:

Public notice is hereby given that, in accordance with the resolution presented to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, and adopted on the seventh day of October, 1907, and approved by the Mayor of said City on the seventh day of October, 1907, and of which the following is a true copy:

"RESOLUTION DIRECTING THE CITY CLERK TO GIVE PUBLIC NOTICE OF THE SUBMISSION TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD OF THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF THE PROVISIONS OF CHAPTER 223 OF THE LAWS OF NEW JERSEY FOR THE YEAR 1904.

"RESOLVED, That the question of the adoption of the provisions of the Act of the Legislature entitled 'An Act to enable cities which have no hospitals maintained by the City to enter into contracts for the purpose of supporting, maintaining and caring for indigent patients in any regularly incorporated hospital located in such City,' Approved March 30, 1904, be submitted to the electors of the City of Plainfield at the municipal election to be held in said city on the fifth day of November next, and, to that end, that the City Clerk of said City be and he hereby is directed to give public notice, in the manner required by the provisions of said Act, of the submission of such question to the electors of said City at said election."

An election will be held at the City of Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday, the fifth day of November, A. D., 1907, at the same time and places at which will be held the General Election required by law to be held on that day, being also an election for municipal officers, at which election there will be submitted to the legal electors of the City of Plainfield the question of the adoption of the provisions of the Act of the Legislature in said resolution specified, viz:

"An Act to enable cities which have no hospitals maintained by the city to enter into contracts for the purpose of supporting, maintaining and caring for indigent patients in any regularly incorporated hospital located in such city."

Approved March 30, 1904.

Polls will be held at the following places:

FIRST WARD.

First District—At No. 174 East Front Street.

Second District—At No. 545 East Third Street.

SECOND WARD.

First District—At No. 327 Watchung Avenue.

Second District—At No. 699 South Avenue.

THIRD WARD.

First District—At the Casino (West Seventh Street).

Second District—At Neumann's Barn (corner of Spooner Avenue and Essex Street.)

FOURTH WARD.

First District—At No. 204 West Second Street.

Second District—At No. 672 South Second Street.

Third District—At No. 821 West Third Street.

The Act of the Legislature above referred to provides among other things, as follows:

"That an elector desiring to vote against the adoption of such act shall express his intention by marking off or defacing the proposition to adopt the provisions of said act, and if such question or proposition be marked off or defaced upon a ballot, it shall be counted as a vote against the same; if it be not marked off or defaced it shall be counted as a vote in favor thereof."

The Board of Registry and Election will meet in their several districts at the places above named on Tuesday, the twenty-ninth day of October, 1907, from one o'clock in the afternoon to nine o'clock in the evening for the purpose of revising and correcting the original registers.

Polls open at six a. m. and close at seven p. m.

By order of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as folows:

Section 1. That the side lines on both sides of Madison Avenue from West Fourth Street to West Seventh Street shall be eighteen feet from the curb lines as now established, making the sidewalk ten feet wide, and leaving for areas and porches a width of eight feet, said side lines being distant thirty-three feet at right angles from the center line of said street and parallel therewith.

Sec. 2. That hereafter all coping, grating, flagging, concrete or other material for areas along said portion of said street shall be laid upon the established sidewalk grade.

Sec. 3. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances, so far as they conflict with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same are hereby repealed.

GUARDIAN'S SETTLEMENT. Notice is hereby given, that the account of the subscriber, guardian of John Marsh will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday, the Sixth day of November next.

Dated, October 3, 1907.

GOLF.

Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the national champion, said last night that he intended to play in the Baltusrol tournament on Friday and Saturday. As only golfers with a handicap rating of nine or less will be eligible, a high class field is assured. Conditions also call for an eighteen hole qualification test, contestants to classify in four eighths. The Baltusrol course is in good turf at present, the recent rains having proved beneficial rather than otherwise.

Doubts are being cast on the 381 yard drive Horne is alleged to have recently made at Beckingham, England, and an investigation of the facts will be made.

Play to qualify for the Haffen and minor cups will be in progress on the public course at Pelham Bay Park until today when the pairings for the first and second sixteens will be drawn. The first and second rounds will be on Saturday and Sunday.

The Montclair pair, Jerome D. Travers and Tom Anderson, although absolutely new to the course, won a well contested four ball match from Oswald Kirkby, the Englewood amateur, and Dave Honeyman, at the Ardsdale Golf Club on Sunday. Travers and Anderson won by 2 up and 1 to play. The best ball cards were: Travers and Anderson, 71, 71—142, and Kirkby and Hunter, 72, 71—143.

FOOTBALL.

Yale went through a stiff thirty-five minute scrimmage yesterday, the features of which was the use of a forward pass on every possible occasion and a successful trial of a kick from placement on the thirty yard line. This was attempted when the varsity had driven the scrubs down to the field, but were held for downs. The scrimmage line held finely while Cooney passed back to Dines, who lay prone and held for Bomar, who kicked a pretty goal. Stillman of Gordon-Brown's eleven was on the field this afternoon directing the work of the backs with Rodgers, captain in 1897, who will stay two weeks. Bob Olcott, centre on Gordon-Brown's elecen, is also here assisting Head Coach W. F. Knox. Bingham, substitute quarter, sustained a sprained ankle during the practice which will keep him out some days days at least. Bomar proved adept at receiving forward passes from Jones and several fine gains were made by this play. The varsity scored three times. The coaches tried Biddle at tackle for Biglow. He showed some improvement.

On the Yale scrub team are Hobbs, the former Dartmouth tackle; Warren, a guard from Pennsylvania State, and Andrus, the guard, who had to go back to the freshman class on account of scholarship standing. They are considered valuable timber for next year's varsity eleven.

An accident in a soccer game last Saturday resulted in a broken collarbone for one of the contestants. This may hold the anglomaniacs from gratuitous slaps at American sport for a day or two.

Walter Eckersall is not impressed with the forward pass Coach Yost is teaching to his Michigan pupils. Loell, of Michigan, made a long, high pass of about forty yards, and Eckersall said regarding it: "This is the only place in the country where the forward pass is being taught in that way. At other places where I have been the players are taught to get the ball away fast and shoot it on a line as they would in baseball. A fast, shifty bacfield is going to have too much time to get into the play under the Michigan system, and I think when Michigan goes against a strong team, such as Pennsylvania or Vanderbilt, the play will be solved easily and its use made impracticable."

Cut Him Off.

If there's anything Uncle Joe Cannon dislikes more than another it's the proverbial loquaciousness of the Washington barber.

"Shall I clip your hair a little at the ends, sir?" asked a colored "tonsorialist" of the statesman on one occasion.

"You'll have to," grunted Uncle Joe, "unless you've invented some method by which you can clip it out from the middle and save the ends, which are curly. I should prefer that to all things except of course to your utter silence."—Harper's Weekly.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made a futur credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $7 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

THE HALL OF FAME.

King Leopold of Belgium has bought the Chateau Lormoy, near Paris, and will furnish it luxuriously.

General Weyler has just finished writing his memoirs of the time when he was governor general of Cuba.

In the new stables of Banker Mortimer L. Schiff on Long Island his blue blooded cattle will have stalls done in white tile and will eat from white porcelain receptacles.

Lieutenant Colonel Lige Halford, at the age of sixty-four, is now retired. The place with which President Harrison rewarded him for faithful services has made him comfortable for life.

Dr. Thomas S. Heaton, of Boston, caught off the coast of Nova Scotia with a hook and line an albatross twenty-five inches high, thirty-six inches from beak to tail and seventy-five pounds in weight.

The queen of Roumania is actively pursuing her philanthropic idea, which first took practical shape last year, of collecting the blind of her country in one city, which her majesty has given the name of "Vatra Luminosa."

Augustus Wood of Lebanon, N. H., started in recently on his fifty-fifth consecutive year of service in one shop as a machinist. Mr. Wood claims the distinction of having worked the longest term of continuous service in the same shop of any person in New Hampshire.

Patrick Mahoney, of Brookfield, Mass., has filed a claim against the federal government for three days' pay due him since 1862. He says he was working in the armory at Springfield during the Civil war and had three days' wages coming to him when he learned he was about to be drafted into actual service.

Dr. Elwood Meade, formerly chief of the bureau of irrigation of the department of agriculture and now living in Laramie, Wyo., has accepted the office of chief of irrigation investigation for Australia, which was recently tendered him by the British government. The place, it is stated, carries with it an annual salary of $15,000.

Ex-Judge Charles Germman Burton, the new commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was born in Cleveland, O., and lives at present in Missouri. He served with distinction during the war, after which he began the study of law, which he has practiced ever since, and is at present collector of internal revenue at Kansas City.

GOWN GOSSIP.

Long skirts are well on the floor at front and sides and moderately trained.

Many of the new cloth and velvet skirts are graceful of line, but quite devoid of trimming.

The short sleeves has had its day, in so far as coats are concerned, and its throne is tottering even in the realm of bodices.

Princess skirts with some clever modification of the bretelle idea will appear, but must be very original and successful if they are not to look commonplace.

It is one of the fads of the moment to introduce a Japanese sleeve into a mannish coat and vice versa. Many of the most elaborately trimmed coats have severely plain coat sleeves.

There is no doubt that short sleeves will appear upon a fair percentage of the dressy winter bodices, but the revolution has begun, and the woman who would be chic will have at least one or two of her pretty house frocks and dinner gowns made with long, close fitting transparent sleeves.—New York Sun.

WE LACK ENTHUSIASM

So Says College President in Address at M. E. Church Diamond Jubilee.

NEED FOR MORE ZEAL

Enthusiast, a Person With Soul of Fire, Is Often Confounded With a Fanatic, Says Dr. Reed.

"The American people lack enthusiasm,—in religion, in politics, in education, in all phases of life, except perhaps the pursuit of riches. They are afraid to be enthusiastic, they fear the criticism of present day society, they fear to be called fanatics." This is the dictum of Rev. Dr. George Edward Reed, president of Dickinson College, who spoke on "Enthusism and Enthusiasts," at the educational meeting conducted at the First M. E. church, last night, in connection with the church's observance of its seventy-fifth anniversary. Speaking with great power of conviction and with excellent rhetorical effect, President Reed, who is one of the leading men in educational circles in this country today, discussed the value of enthusiasm and its power in the world, as exemplified by many instances cited from religious and political history of France, England and the United States. Prefacing his remarks with a word of appreciation at his opportunity to again visit Plainfield and be with Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea and his wife, who were both graduates of Dickinson College, Dr. Reed said:

"It seems super-arrogation to speak before an American audience on the subject of enthusiasm, but the reputation we have as a people for being enthusiasts, is not a well sustained one. Herbert Spencer says that we are really indifferent about things that fire the souls of foreigners; we are enthusiasts solely in business matters—not religion or political enthusiasts.

"In a government where the voice of every man as expressed in his ballot counts—and sometimes, indeed, counts several times,—enthusiasm is to be expected. As it is, the army of speakers sent out around election time, the brass bands and the gunpowder burned to get a man sufficiently interested to vote, costs a

HIS WIFE TAKES POISON WHEN HANAN LOSES JOB

Discouraged because her husband, a section foreman on the Jersey Central, had lost his job through his alleged irregular habits, Mrs. James Hanan, of 121 Cumberland street, Westfield, swallowed lead acetate last night in an attempt to commit suicide. There are six Hanan children and the family has a hard time providing, so when the husband was discharged yesterday, she felt discouraged for the future. She drank a small bottle of the poison and was found, lying on the floor in a comatose state by her oldest son, James.

The lad hastened to summon Dr. R. G. Savoy, who worked over the woman without results for three hours. Dr. W. R. Tubbs was summoned and the two doctors finally brought the woman back to consciousness. A stomach pump was used and the effect of the poison stopped. The conditions of the woman is much improved today, and she will recover.

Hanan has been in the employ of the railroad for many years and has recently promoted to section foreman. It is said he took to drinking heavily some time ago and was warned to quit the habit if he expected to hold down his job. Yesterday, it is alleged, the man was drunk again, and was discharged. Mrs. Hanan went to the authorities in the afternoon to try to persuade them that her husband be taken on again, but she was unsuccessful. Hanan was not at home when his wife took the poison.

—Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet Tuesday night when a special program will be presented, including several addresses by the veterans.

Prize Not Yet Awarded.

The prize for the best drilled company in line at the firemen's parade at Perth Amboy Thursday has not yet been awarded, and it is possible that the Warren boys may be the winners. They created a lot of favorable comment in the line Thursday and it was announced by the judges that the award was between the Middletown, N. Y., firemen and the borough exempts. The judges got together last night again to decide upon the award, but the local firemen have as yet heard nothing from them.

CROWDS ENJOYED "ATION"

Comedy Makes a Big Hit at the "Gathering of the Clans."

MINSTRELSY POPULAR

Adirondack Camp Fire a New Feature—Hot Dog Men Would Be Credit to Coney Island.

The "Clans" continued to gather at the Casino yesterday afternoon and evening and patronize the booths and various attractions in an effort to swell the proceeds for Muhlenberg Hospital. In the afternoon there was a large attendance of children, who were delighted with the work of "Speedon," the clever cartoonist. His pictures were very popular with both old and young. At the same time the different booths did a large business.

Last night the attendance was much larger than on the first night and the affair proved one of great enjoyment to all, especially the outside attractions. The minstrel show in the large tent was a stellar outdoor attraction, and Judge William N. Runyon's company gave a fine performance to a large crowd. The songs and jokes kept the audience in good humor throughout. Tonight two performances will be given.

The entertainment in the Casino Hall, given at 10 o'clock, was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel William Serrell, and was called "A Comedy of Ations," an original two act comedy in pantomime tableaux by Mrs. Serrell. The time was about 1840, and the series of tableaux depicted the meeting, love, courtship, troubles, reconciliation and marriage of a young couple. There were many amusing incidents including a quarrel over a millinery bill.

"A Comedy of Ations" was represented in flirtation, declaration, acceptation, indignation, consternation, separation, desperation and reconciliation, together with many other "ations," all of which furnished no end of fun for the audience. Willard Wadsworth took the part of the young lover, and Miss Garbriele McQuaid was his sweetheart. They were assisted by Roy Whitney. The parts were exceptionally well taken.

Harry L. Hall and Lewis G. Timpson, "Fido" and "Mut," the hot-dog men, were the most popular pair on the grounds last night. With the assistance of B. Collins Firstbrook, they did a big business in "hot-dogs." They were the warmest things outside of the big log fire which was kept burning throughout the evening. Another popular place was the pan-cake tent. Joseph M. Shellabarger and his assistants were kept busy serving flap-jacks with delicious maple syrup.

There will be a fine program this afternon for the children and tonight at 10 o'clock the living pictures will again be seen. These caused a sensation on the opening night, it being the opinion that they were the best thing of the kind yet seen at an affair of this kind. George Wharton Edwards, the artist, will assist in arranging the pictures.

The supper room is also doing a large business, many patrons arranging to get their suppers there instead of at home. All of the other attractions will be in full swing today and tonight, as well as on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and William C. Kinney, president of the Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital, were the two distinguished gate keepers, last night. The admission this afternoon and tonight will be ten cents for everybody and a large crowd is expected.

The Gathering of the Clans represents all the entire community; people of every degree joining hands to make it a success. The crowds at the fete last night showed that all the inhabitants are heartily interested in the enterprise, all wishing to sustain a worthy institution.

Council to Act on Appropriation.

The Common Council will hold the second aljourned meeting of the bonth on Monday night, October 28, when it is expected that some disposition will be made of the Board of School Estimate petition, which asked for an appropriation of $90,000 for the new primary school to be erected at Darrow avenue and Essex street. The plan is to ask the council to return that petition and then another one will be presentel asking for $100,000, which amount, it is claimed will be needed to erect the school. It is understool that the council is favorable to the disposition of the school board. Speedy action is desired on the part of the board that the work of construction may be started as soon as possible.

New Paved Blocks Opened.

Park avenue, between Second street and North avenue, was opened yesterday afternoon to general traffic, giving an unobstructed thoroughfare between Front street and North avenue.

LOCAL INCORPORATORS IN $500,000 CONCERN

Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk at Jersey City yesterday by A. Gross & Co., who are to engage in the melting and rendering of fat and tallow and to acquire and purchase the business of A. Gross & Co., formerly of Jersey City, but now of Newark. The capital is fixed at $500,000, but the company is to begin business on a paid in capital stock of $252,000.

The incorporators are Charles E. Gross, of New York; Fannis M. Gross, Emma Slavin and Elizabeth M. Conway, all of this city; Mary L. Crowther, of Philadelphia, and David and Helen Mahany, of New York.

NEW MARKET YOUTH STEALS LOCAL MAN'S RIG

Shortly after he had stolen a rig in this city, LeRoy Brown, of New Market, was caught at Lincoln last night as he was in the act of getting away with a runabout taken from Isaac Stout's barn. A nut was missing from the vehicle and a wheel dropped off just as a member of the family came up. Brown was caukht and taken to the New Brunswick jail.

The prisoner took the rig in this city from in front of the residence of George VanNest on Mariners place. It belongs to Adam Blair and had been hired from him by William Hedley, of Park avenue. Hedley came out of the house just in time to see the rig disappearing into Front street. He gave chase on a bicycle and catching up with the horse near Rock avenue attempted to stop it by catching hold of the bride. Brown gave the animal a cut with the whip and it threw Hedley from the wheel. He held to the bridle and was dragged twenty feet when he was thrown down.

Brown smashed a wheel of the Blair vehicle along the road and attempted to get the one at Stout's in place of it.

ABBOTT DEFEATED.

Plainfield Loses in Championship Golf.

Robert Abbott, of this city, was defeated in the semi-final round for the intercollegiate golf championship title in the thirty-six hole round at the Nassau Country Club, yesterday. Many looked for a close match between Abbott and Knowles. The former defeated Knowles in the final round of the intercollegiate tournament at Garden City in 1905, but the table were turned on this occasion. Abbott stood 1 up at the sixteenth green, but Knowles squared the match and finally won 1 up.

A Yale and Princeton golfer will fight it out in the final round today. As a result of yesterday's play Ellis Knowles, of Yale, and Ralph Peters, jr., the Princeton captain, remain as the only survivors.

William J. Doyle.

Following a long illness, William J. Doyle, a former employe of the New Jersey Central, died at his home on Woodland avenue, last night. He was thirty years old and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Doyle, of East Fifth street. He leaves a wife, who is the daughter of William L. Callahan, of Woodland avenue, and two children. He is also survived by a sister, Miss Anna Doyle, and three brothers, Thomas, David and John, all of East Fifth street. The funeral will be held at his late home, Monday morning, at 8.15 and from St. Mary's Church at 9.

Christian Endeavor Rally.

The local Christian Endeavor Union will hold a rally service Thursday night, November 7 at the Seventh-day Baptist Church. It will also be an echo meeting of the State Christian Endeavor convention. Charles F. Windham, Fred Lounsbury, jr., and Clarence B. LaRue, who attended the convention, will tell of the proceeds. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. Walter Greenway, of Jersey City. B. C. Martin will have charge of the musical program.

Wants $10,000 Damages.

The case of Miss Josephine Murphy against Miss Marguerite Boehm and her father, Ignatz Boehm, to recover $10,000 for injuries received two years ago when the plaintiff was in the employ of Mr. Boehm, was moved for trial before Judge Vail in the Supreme Court, Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon. William Newcorn represents the defendant and James A. Kiernan, of Elizabeth, is counsel for the plaintiff. The trial will be continued on Monday.

John Johnson.

John Johnson, son of Samuel and the late Mary Johnson, died yesterday at his father's home on Park avenue near the Driving park. He was nineteen years old. The funeral will be held at the house Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

TALK ABOUT DUMB LUCK

Painter Full of Booze Drops Twenty Feet But Only Gets a Cut on the Head.

STIRRED UP WEST END

Police Headquarters Informed He Had Been Killed and Patrol Wagon Went Out For the Corpse.

Chief Kiely was straightening up matters at Police Headquarters after court, this morning, when the telephone gave a vicious ring that betokened trouble of some sort. The receiver was at his ear in an instant and the drum was almost cracked by a voice that yelled over the wire:

"Say, send the patrol wagon down to Third street and Muhlenberg place; there's a man been killed by falling off a ladder."

In a couple of jiffies the police vehicle with Patrolman Charles Flynn aboard was speeding to the West End, the officer busying himself on the way down by getting the stretcher in shape for a corpse. Arriving at the street corner designated a crowd about a house indicated the destination and Flynn and Driver O'Gorman hastened to get out the body-carrying apparatus but they were stopped by a man running up to them.

"He ain't dead," was the salute, "he's around back and wants everybody to have a drink with him."

The cops hot-footed it to the rear of the house and discovered N. B. Snell, a painter who lives on Somerset street, entertaining a group of "rubbernecks" with accounts of his ability as a skilled mechanic and what he would do in the way of hospitality if all hands adjourned to a booze camp. Blood streaming down the back of his head showed that he had a fall and bystanders declared he had toppled from a ladder at least twenty feet from the ground. He was knocked unconscious and it was thought at first that he had been killed and the call was sent for the patrol wagon. With a drunken man's luck he recovered before the vehicle showed up, although a sober man would undoubtedly have been fatally hurt, and a cut on his head was all he had to show for the accident.

"You had better go back home," said Snell with an imperious wave of his hand when Flynn took hold of him, "I'm one of the best painters that ever held a brush and I think I'll stay and finish the job.

The cops placed him in the wagon, however, and started for town. Snell thought he was on the way to the hospital and objected to it with all his might. He even attempted to bribe the officers by offering to buy them a drink if they would stop off at a Third street saloon, but Flynn and O'Gorman refused to fall from grace.

When landed safely at Headquarters, Snell mistook Chief Kiely for Judge Runyon and argued like a spellbinder against the injustice of his arrest. He reeled off several yards of talk about his being a good fellow and that if he tumbled off a ladder it was nobody's business; that he could outpaint any painter who ever painted and that it it was all the same to everybody concerned he would go back to where he had been working.

They led him away to a cell and a physician was called in to make sure that he was not badly hurt. The doctor declared the cut was quite severe but barring it and the booze, he was right side up with care. He will be kept at headquarters until his brain gets clear.

Salvation Army Services.

Captain and L.J.Larkin and Captain George Gray, of New York, will conduct special services in the Salvation Army Hall, on East Second street, tonight and Sunday. This evening at 8 o'clock a free coffee and cake social with a musical program. Captain Gray will appear attired in rags will speak on the social work of the army in New York. The services on Sunday will be held at 11, 3.30 and 8 o'clock. Captain Larkin will speak Sunday afternoon on his work and experiences in the Tombs Prison, New York. Both officers are excellent singers and they will present a musical program.

Miss Cooley to Wed.

The marriage of Miss Edith Haviland Cooley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, this borough, and Robert Moore Steer, of Baltimore, Md., will take place at the Friends' Meeting House, Wednesday, October 30, at 2.30 o'clock.

At Electrical Convention.

William R. Causebrook, manager of the electric department of the P. S. C. office on East Front street, is in Washington attending a convention of an association of electrical and gas men. He will return home on Tuesday.

BRICK PAVE WORK IS MUCH DELAYED

Councilman Daniel F. Ginna, chairman of the street committee was astir this morning looking after the interests of the city in the brick paving contract. He says he is much displeased over the progress of the work so far as the laying of the brick is concerned and is using his best endeavors to hurry it along.

Contractor Meeker has failed to get in touch with the brick men to whom was sub-let the contract for laying brick. He says that he sent Contractor Foley several telegrams and cannot get an answer. He decided today that in case Foley fails to make some response before Monday he will engage other men to complete the job.

One explanation of the failure of Foley to return here is that he has a big contract elsewhere and wants to complete that before coming back to Plainfield. His men work very fast and it is his intention possibly to let Contractor Meeker get far enough ahead with the concrete work so that he will not be held up again. Mr. Meeker has a signed agreement with Mr. Foley, wherein the latter agrees to lay the brick for so much a square yard, and he does not believe that the latter would give up his contract without notifying him. Somerset street is read for the brick and on Monday the concrete work will be started on West Front street. In the mean time local men are laying brick on Park avenue under David Bowden's direction.

SENTENCE DAY IN MIDDLESEX.

Negro Assailants of Marks Get Twelve Years Each.

James Wells and William Nixon, negroes, who were convicted of assaulting Israel Marks, an aged clothing dealer, who discovered them robbing his store, were sentenced to twelve years in state prison yesterday by Judge Booraem, receiving the extreme penalty of the law. Judge Booraem declared that there was not a single mitigating circumstance.

William Raynor, of Perth Amboy, was sentenced to eighteen months in state prison for firing a revolver at pursuers. The court said that the prisoner had attempted to deceive him by stating that he had never been in prison before, whereas he had served two terms for similar offences.

August Flackhofsky was sentenced to the reformatory for stealing lead from a barge at Perth Amboy. Banslaw Krieger, of Perth Amboy, was sentenced to the reformatory for stealing $250 from a fellow countryman.

GOLF TOURNEY.

Fifty Starters in Baltusrol Contest Yesterday.

There were fifty odd starters in the open tournament which began at the Baltusrol Golf Club, yesterday. E. M. Wild, Cranford, and Charles W. O'Connor, of the Essex County Country Club, tied for the low score prize, with 83, and 96 proved to be the highest figure that qualified. Four men had that figure but there was place for only three. James A. Tyng, the Baltusrol veteran was successful, while J. Whitney Baker, C. E. Van Vleck and C. F. Watson, jr., were those who fell out.

The other Plainfielders in the tournament and their scores were: Dudley H. Barrows, 91; C. B. Morgan, 99; H. D. Hibbard, 105. In the second division, Dudley Barrows beat E. S. Armstrong, South Orange, 3 up and 2 to go. The paly will be continued today.

James B. Gallagher.

James B. Gallagher, well known in Newark as a newspaper writer, died at his home, Passaic Park, N. J., yesterday from a general physical breakdown. He was 39 years old. He leaves a son 8 years old. The funeral will be held tomorrow. Mr. Gallagher began newspaper work in Jersey City, and subsequently was a ship news reporter for two newspapers in New York City. He then went to Newark, where he was engaged in reportorial work up to the time of his illness that resulted in his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Force Surprised.

The relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Force tendered them a surprise party at their home, last night. The affair was a complete surprise, the couple not having the slightest intimation of the visit. The evening was spent playing progressive pinochle and in a social way, after which refreshments were served. There were guests present from Brooklyn, Somerville and this city.

The state officers will be present at the meeting of Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America," in G. A. R. hall, Monday night.

—It was inadvertedly stated last night in C. L. Applegate's advertisement that he offers potatoes at 85c. a basket. That amount will buy a whole bushel at his store.

MAN'S MEMORY A BLANK

Picked Up Near Mount Horeb Can't Give His Name or Place of Residence

IT'S A PUZZLING CASE

Return Ticket in Pocket Shows That He Came From New York to This City By Train.

Residents of the farming section back of Plainfield, leading from Mount Bethel to Mount Horeb, are seeking to unravel a mystery that has been thrust upon them through the discovery of a middle-aged man lying in the road near the Kipsey place, last Sunday. His face and head were badly cut and bruised, at first glance giving the appearance of having been caused by a club or some blunt instrument, and when eventually roused to consciousness it was only to reveal the fact that he had almost a total lapse of memory. Continued questioning has failed to derive any information from him and at the preesnt time he is at the home of Mrs. Barbara Pavillard, near Round Top schoolhouse, seeking vainly to recall his name and residence.

The stranger is a French-American and when found wore clothes of good material. Some women passing along the road saw him lying beneath a clump of bushes and they notified nearby farmers of the fact. He was picked up by William Jones, and several others, of Mount Bethel, who revived him and sought to learn what had happened him. The stranger shrugged his shoulders when questioned and smiled affably, despite the battered condition of his features, when asked his name. A search of his pockets revealed a business card of the Dreyfus restaurant, Beech street, Boston, and a return ticket on the New Jersey Central from Plainfield to New ork.

In response to a query as to whether he remembered being in Plainfield he said he thought he had but it was impossible for him to recall how he had gotten from the railroad station to the mountain road where he was picked up. He nods assent when asked if he came from Boston to visit friends, but dozens of attempts have failed to get the slightest hint as to the name of the people. He does recall the fact that he had a grip filled with various papers and bits of property and the road near where he was found has been searched thoroughly in the hope of finding it. So far it has not turned up.

From the words dropped now and then by the stranger, it is believed that his home is in Boston and the authorities have planned to search in that direction to establish his identity. He always brightens up when the Dreyfus restaurant is mentioned and it may be that he is known there. It is the general opinion that his memory underwent a lapse through a cerebral affection and that the wounds on his face and head were caused by falling in the road as he sought vaguely to get somewhere. It is also the impression that he may recover in a short time and he will be kept at the Pavillard home until his faculties return.

In appearance the man is forty years of age, of slender build and medium height, and has just the suspicion of a mustache.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS HAVE LECTURE COURSE.

Arrangements have been completed for a series of lectures to be given by Dr. Maximillian P. Groszman, principal of the Groszman school, before the teachers of the city and borough schools. There are to be six lectures in the course, which is to begin Tuesday, and the lectures will be given in the auditorium of the city high school at 3:30 in the afternoon.

The topics for the five lectures follow: Tuesday, October 22, "The Mathematical Evolution of a Child;" Wednesday, November 6, "Language Teaching;" Wednesday, November 20, "Reading and Literature;" Wednesday, December 4, "Oral and Written Composition;" Wednesday, January 15, "Problems of Discipline." There will probably be other lectures by other lecturers, which will be given during the winter months.

To Publish His Music.

Friends and pupils of the violinist, P. Ludwig Conde, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Denver, Col., will be pleased to learn that his "Mazurka de Concert," violin solo with piano accompaniment, which he composed while residing in Plainfield, and was played by him at his concerts at the Y. M. C. A. and on other occasions, with great success, is now in the hands of Carl Fischer, music publisher, 6-10 Fourth avenue, New York City, and will soon be published.

Forget Your Money Troubles—We Can Show You How

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Aside from the events on the course at the Park Golf Club, today, which includes a team match with the Middlebrook Country Club, an informal reception will be held.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the local "pro" has not been a prominent figure in any of the golf matches of late. However, he still keeps at the top of his game and occasionally plays a private match.

Semi-final play for the Autumn cups, Classes A and B at the Plainfield Country Club, today, will determine who shall contest in the finals next week.

Miss Hall won the eleventh round in the play for the cup presented by President Ranson H. Thomas at the Morris County Golf Club. She was 1 down to bogey and received 3 points toward the cup. Mrs. Vanderpool and Miss Little tied for second place, being 2 down each, and received 1 ½ points. Other players were Mrs. Olcott, 3 down; Mrs. KeHogg, 3 down, and Miss Marie Bryce, 6 down.

P. W. Whittmere smashed all competitive amateur records of the Country Club Course at Brookline yesterday morning when he made a score of 73 strokes in the qualifying round of the fall tournament. He held the previous record himself, a 76. Whittemere took the gross prize while T. W. Claflin of Weston and F. H. Crocker of Brae Burn were tied for the net prize at 74 each.

Nine players, representing Dartmouth and Williams, played in the qualifying round for the New England Intercollegiate Golf Association championship at Woodland Thursday afternoon. In the qualifying round H. W. Strucklin of Dartmouth had the lowest score, 79.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Broadhurst & Currie's production of "The Lady from Lane's" a comedy with music by George Broadhurst and Gustave Kerker will be the attraction at the New Plainfield tonight.

Of all the attractions that appear this season there is none awaited with as much pleasure as the coming of the merry English musical whirl, "The Earl and the Girl," which holds forth at the New Plainfield Theatre next Monday night. The production is up to the high class that is set for all of the Shubert attractions and will doubtless be witnessed by a large and fashionable audience. Alexander Clark, will play the leading role, ably assisted by Zelma Rawlston, Clara Inge, and 60 other well known Broadway favorite. "The Earl and the Girl," ran for more than two years in the Lyric Theatre, London, and only recently closed a remarkable run at the Casino Theatre in New York City.

Oscar Figman appearing as John Winston in "The Lightning Conductor" a play from the novel of the same name, is said to have a part in which there is a real wit in many of the speeches and some exceptionally good character drawing. Mr. Figman has a most congenial role which he plays capitally and it is much the best work he has done in several seasons. Mr. E. A. Weil, his manager, has surrounded him with a most excellent company and provided handsome stage settings. "The Lightning Conductor" will be at the New Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday night.

Next Wednesday night to the New Plainfield Theatre will come Owen Wister's character studies of the West—for "The Virginian" is really that. Mr. Wister, whose knowledge of the west is surpassed by that of no living writer, has, in his Virginian drawn a character at once bold and lovable, and the dramatic effort of binding the series of sketches of that character into a homogenous whole has been done so well that the play is one of the dramatic triumphs of the past two seasons. W. S. Hart will be seen in the title role. He is said to have been declared by the author his Virginian to the life. The company includes players of recognized and tried abilities, many of whom have been associated with the play from the first. Frank Campeau will continue in the role of Trampas.

Mildred and Rouclere and their superb company of twenty artists will present the glittering imaginative fantasy "The Flight of Princess Iris" at the New Plainfield Theatre, next Friday night. It is the one big novelty of the season and is presented with a competent caste of Metropolitan favorites and it is one of the few things of the season you cannot afford to miss.

There's not a dull moment in the brilliant performances. The curtain goes up promptly at 8 p. m. and until 11 it's one continuous, fast and furious rush of mystery and fantasy seasoned with delightful comedy. Every detail of scenic and stage investure, electrical and color effect, costuming, beauty and all the other little but important items that go to make up a perfect and exquisite entirety are in the hands of skilled, high-salaried artisans and attendants who are used to catering to the most exacting audiences in the world. Mildred and Rouclere's engagement here on Friday will be a social as well as an amusement event. Among the supporting company are Williams and Melburn, in the Minstrel and the Maid, Flatew and Dunn, the Fitzgibbon Family, Dick Leggett, Arthur Green, Herbert Williams, Robert Shelden, Mlle. Rene and the Geisha Girl Trio.

When my back hurt the worst cold sweat stood out on me, and if I caught cold it was always settled on my kidneys. I got so bad with these troubles that I had to quit work, but though I doctored faithfully, no medicine struck the right spot but though I doctored faithfully, no medicine struck the right spot until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Pharmacy I took in all three boxes and they stopped my many aches and pains and regulated the action of the kidneys. Since taking them I have worked steadily, without any ill effect on the action of the kidneys."

TO TEACH VOTERS USE OF MACHINES

Charles O. Fuller, who was the inspector under the voting machine commission, has been retained in the same capacity by Secretary of State Dickinson, who now has charge of the machines.

The secretary of state has written to the city clerks of the principal cities of the state, directing special attention to the provision in the general election law which requires the election of officers of the districts in which voting machines have been placed, to give "instructions as to the use of voting machines to all voters who shall apply for the same," on the last day of registration, which in cities having more than $30,000 inhabitants will be next Tuesday, and in all other municipalities the following Tuesday, October 29.

The letter also requests that special instruction be given "with reference to the inerrancy of the mechanism of the machine and its infallibility, if properly set, in recording the will of the voter; and the ease, convenience and secrecy offered for splitting tickets, especially regarding the manner in which the click of the levers may be avoided, and the fact that the levers may be avoided, and the fact that the levers may be changed at will without recording a vote before the curtain is removed."

It has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the secretary of state that the machines are infallible if properly set, and if the mechanism should get out of order further operation of the lever is impossible.

Inspector Fuller will be assisted by Edward Christopherson, of East Orange, and their work will be under the supervision of Assistant Secretary of State Smith. There are 361 machines in the state and about fifty of them have been transferred from one location to another. The inspectors will have their hands full in explaining their workings.

The balance of the appropriation transferred by the commission to the secretary of state is but $400 and the expenses of handling the machines will have to be paid, to a large extent, from the secretary's contingent fund.

W.C.T.U. FOR BISHOPS LAW

"As a Step Toward Ultimate Annihilation of Liquor Traffic" They Resolve.

REV. MR. ROEDER TALKS

President of State Civic Federation League Says He Claims Relationship With Carl Schurz.

At the closing session of the New Jersey Women's Christian Temperance Union in Lafayette M. E. Church, Jersey City, yesterday morning, the Rev. Adolph Roeder, of Orange, president of the State Civic Federation League, gave the address, speaking on "State Civic Federation," and touching on the political situation in New Jersey.

"The Bishops' law is the issue interesting both parties," he said. "And back of the Bishops' law there is a movement to establish that foreign Sunday in this country. I am a German by birth," he continued, "and claim relationship with Carl Schurz, but not with such men as Carl Lentz."

Mr. Roeder said that while he is a church worker he is not a political worker, but to know that the outcome of the preesnt campaign depends largely upon the women, not only the women of the W. C. T. U., but the entire body of women throughout the state. "Stand by your ideals," he said, "insist on the highest type of public school training and your ideal of womanhood. You do not want the French type of womanhood or the English type; you want the American type of womanhood."

In answer to a question Mr. Roeder explained the local option law in all ts phases. Concluding he said:

"The Bishops' law will be retained. No man in his proper sense whether his name begins with an F or a K will attempt to tamper with the Bishops' law."

Before closing the convention decided the place to hold the next convention in 1908. Mrs. Eleanor C. Maurer, county president of Atlantic county, extended an invitation to have the convention in Atlantic City, which was accepted.

The final service of the convention this morning was led by Mrs. Mary L. Woodruff, of Flemington, who gave a Bible reading for mothers and daughters, taking the life of Joshua for her parable. She urged the women to keep in touch with the Lord that they might reach out and avail themselves of the opportunity He puts in their way to do good.

Mrs. C. Lippincott, of Morristown, gave the report of the department of franchise. She said in part: "The women of New Jersey are coming to realize that the principles of equal suffrage for all citizens are just and right. An evidence of this was given at a recent county convention, when nearly every woman rose in response to the question whether they would like to exercise the privilege of the ballot."

Mrs. Lippincott said that the W. C. T. U. women were using every effort in the interest of franchise legislation and petition and that much has been accomplished.

The committee on resolutions offered a resolution commending the action of the fire department of Hackettstown and Somerville in excluding intoxicants from their recent parades, and advised similar action on the part of the fire companies in different localities, and that a copy of the resolution be sent to each fire department.

A resolution was also adopted to uphold the Bishops law in all its restrictive features "as a step toward the ultimate annihilation of the liquor traffic in New Jersey."

A further resolution was adopted to petition the President of the United States and the Secretary of War against the playing of Sunday baseball and other games at the army and navy posts.

Lase Game of the Season.

Probably the last local baseball game of the season will be played at Crescent Oval this afternoon between the local Y. M. C. A. and Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. teams. The Brooklyn aggregation is considered one of the strongest in the Metropolitan district.

party from four to ten millions of dollars every presidential election. And at that, only two-thirds of the people vote. I consider that the astonishing lack of enthusiasm in the discharge of political duty is a shameful thing in the political life of our people today.

"There is also a marked lack of enthusiasm in religion. There is nothing gratifying in the progress of the Christian church today, there is no appreciable religious growth. Methodists always claim to be enthusiasts, but it is becoming hard now to even make headway against the sweeping tide of worldiness, and the small attendances, listlessness, lethargy and want of energy and life is bringing severe comment on the church today.

"The average man is offended to be called an enthusiast, for the quality when applied means that the man has a marked lack of poise and is governed by his emotions. Enthusiasts are despised in a community. But there has never been a single great movement in the world's history which was not the result of enthusiasm. Leaders of religion and politics from the very beginning of history have all been red hot enthusiasts. Carlisle says that 'Enthusiasm is the fundamental qualification of all great souls,' and none of the really great men have anything to say against it. An enthusiast is a person with a soul on fire—a man able to kindle others by the fire burning in his own breast. Such men have lifted the great world and pushed it forward.

"People are afraid of being called enthusiasts, because enthusiasm is often confounded with fanaticism. I will tell you the difference: A fanatic is one who becomes stirred and excited over something of infinitesimal moment; an enthusiast is one whose feelings are aroused over something of tremendous moment to individual and society. Largeness of the idea differentiates the two. People are afraid to be called enthusiasts because of the present rank of culture. We are but half educated. There is a more general culture, more uniform education in Japan, though a young nation, than there is in America today. Culture makes a person critical, and thus brings a waning of enthusiasm. The fear of what Mrs. Grundy will say always keeps us on guard.

"This difference to proprieties has penetrated into religion. I like to see enthusiasm in the church,—in the pulpit and in the 'amen corner.' Every church today needs at least one good, red-hot Christian enthusiast. The trouble with our churches and sermons is that there is too much reason and too little religion of sensibility; too much intellect and too little heart.

"An enthusiast cannot be superficial in his thinking. Let every one of you think continually of his relationship to God and your careless lethargic Christianity will become flaming enthusiasm. Enthusiasm involves identification with a cause at a cost. The young men of today have no enthusiasm, for they are not with a cause. Let them become interested in politcs, religion, education or philanthropy and they will become enthusiasts. In conclusion let me say that I believe that the greatest power for kindling enthusiasm in man's soul is to have in him a sense of the presence of God, quickening him by the Divine presence within."

James R. Joy, superintendent of the Sunday school, presided at the meeting and prayer was offered by Rev. W. W. Youngson, D. D., pastor of St. James M. E. Church, Elizabeth. Rev. W. F. Anderson, who will preach tomorrow evening, gave the benediction. Music was a feature of the service and Miss Bertha Van N. Willis' solo was well received. Choirmaster J. Edmund Skiff was at the organ.

The week's services in celebration of the diamond jubilee will conclude to morrow. The Rev. Bishop John Heyl Vincent, D. D., L. L. D., will be the speaker at the church both morning and evening. Dr. Vincent, for whom Vincent Chapel was named, came on from Indianapolis today, and is staying at the home of his brother, Charles Vincent, at Fanwood. He will preach at the morning service at 10.30 and will address the Sunday-school in Vincent Chapel at 3.15.

In the evening, Bishop Vincent will speak at the final service of the big anniversary celebration. His topic will be "Two Great American Preachers." In the morning the collection will be to defray the expenses of the anniversary celebration. There will be special music at all of tomorrow's services.

Positions for Them.

Nine pupils of the Plainfield Business College obtained good positions in New York City, Plainfield, Bayonne and High Bridge, during the month of September. THE NEW YORK & NEW JERSEY TELEPHONE CO.

READ THIS!

From a Prominent New York Newspaper:

"In this hustling, bustling age of ours, where every second has a commercial value, the telephone plays a most important part. Without it the activities of the day would not be possible and business would proceed at the sober pace which characterized it some fifty years ago. And yet although most people will realize the truth of these assertions, few appreciate the enormous void which would be left were the telephone to be suddenly wiped out of existence."

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

If the automobile line wishes to prove a success it should keep to its schedule time. A party seeing the auto on its way to the Lehigh Valley depot waited one hour and a half for its return trip to Plainfield, but it did not show up, and it was supposed to have gone down Maple avenue, instead of Plainfield avenue as advertised, consequently it was too late to go to Plainfield when the auto made its appearance on the next trip.

A meeting was held of the Volunteer Fire Company in Temperance Hall last night and matters of importance were transacted. Two new members were elected, and a committee appointed to make all necessary arrangements for a ball to be given Election Eve, proceeds to be used as the fire department deem proper.

Services will be held as usual in the Baptist Church tomorrow. Subject for consideration in the morning will be "Report of Sunday-school Convention," and in the evning, "A most important matter." Christian Endeavor at 7.45 p. m. Topic, "The duties of the day," led by Miss Nevius.

Lester Harris and his son, Leon, who resided on a farm near here for many years, have opened an automobile garage in Newark. P. F. Gillette, of Plainfield, will be manager.

Duck shooting on the lake is the prevailing pastime at present and those who secure the game must be on the spot at early sunrise as this is their feeding time.

"Jenny" Ten Eyck, who has been laid up for six weks with a broken leg is recovering slowly. It will be a long time before he will be able to attend to business.

A number from here will attend the "Gathering of the Clans," as the Casino for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, this evening.

Miss Nellie Van Ness was married to Adamm Deiter by the Rev. A. C. T. Attlee at the parsonage. They will reside in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Springer have rented the house vacated by Mr. Hannon and will remove there soon.

Adolph Steengraafe, sr., has recovered from the lumbago and is able to be out again.

Robert Maruson is suffering from a severe cold.

The outlook for the apple crop indicates that cider vinegar will be more ambiguous than usual this year.—Cleveland Leader.

An Italian poet who won $10,000 in a lottery promises to quit writing verse. That's the best argument yet advanced in favor of lottery.—Omaha Bee.

The American people spend $60,000,000 annually for chewing gum. No wonder there is a wad stuck to the bottom of nearly every chair in the land—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Swedish blacksmith was found starving in New York, although he had $10.50 in his pocket. People who have paid for meals in New York will not be surprised at this.—Detroit Free Press.

Dr. Wiley says human life is longer now than formerly. This may be due to the fact that the cost of living is so high that most of us have to stay longer to get our money's worth.—Washington Post.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

In Germany, as everywhere else, the scarcity of female servants is greater than ever.

Berlin has a restaurant where a beefsteak prepared in the highest style of culinary art costs $4.50, and the waiter expects a tip of 50 cents.

There was last year only ninety department stores in Germany, where such stores have aroused a much more bitter animosity than in the United States.

Two years ago Dr. Preuss of the Berlin Ethnological museum was sent to Mexico to gather material relating to Indian tribes. A few weeks ago he returned to Berlin laden with treasures of all kinds.

PASSING OF THE ROUND-UP.

Railroads Reaching Into Cattle Country Will End Picturesqueness.

That most picturesque feature of cattle raising on the western plains, the great "round up," will soon be among the things of the past. The railroads are stretching their long lines through the very heart of the range country and in place of the terminal station at which thousands of cattle were gathered from the surrounding country to be shipped to eastern markets there will be many stations at convenient distances and within easy reach of the diminishing herds that still crop fatness from the buffalo grass. The range "round up" was always a thrilling sight. Cattle by tens of thousands were sought out from the hills and valleys by scores of range riders, those bearing brands to be cut out in herds by themselves. There were many days of hard work for the cowboys, followed by many other days and nights of drinking and carousing, which lasted until the last train started on its eastern way. The great range is rapidly passing and in its place is coming the fenced pasture of the small farm. This change is gradual, but rapid. Thousands of range cattle are now sent to the corn states every year to be fattened for market, but with the development and settlement of the great range country the grass-fed steer will soon be a curiosity in the large stock yards.

HE'LL STICK TO HIS PIPE.

One Man, at Least, Has the Courage of His Convictions.

One particular objection many of the men patrons have to the big palatial hotels in the cities is that they can't smoke their favorite pipes in the public halls without becoming the cynosure of all eyes. "The other evening," said a guest at the St. Regis, "I sat down in one of the comfortable armchairs in the hall to enjoy my old pipe that's been my constant friend for the last seven years. There were several people sitting near me most of whom were men, and one or two were smoking cigars or cigarets. I didn't see a pipe in sight anywhere, and that made me a little uncertain as to whether I should be violating an etiquettal rule of the house. I drew out my briar and, after I had got it going comfortably, I noticed that the guests near me began to melt away by ones and twos, until presently I was left with a good share of the hall to myself. Some of them did not leave the hall altogether, but moved to seats farthest from me. Of course, I knew what the cause was, but I didn't care. In my opinion, the man who smokes a pipe is a heap sight better than any dozen men who smoke cigars and cigarettes."

New Interest in Chemistry.

The establishment of pure food commissions has inspired many young men to take up the study of chemistry with a view to securing a position on one of those commissions. Scores of men, who already have qualified for the regular drug store trade are now devoting additional time to the study of extra courses in chemistry. All hope to gain a federal appointment as an expert on pure foods. Not more than one-third of the ambitious fellows now immured in experimental laboratories will get the position they are working for, but the public will profit indirectly by their present enthusiasm because every last one of them will become more competent druggists through their studies of the adulterations of foods.

Belling a Rat.

You have probably read or heard that the best way to rid a house of rats is to catch one and fasten a bell about its neck. A boy in Delaware tried the experiment two months ago. He was badly bitten in making the bell fast, but he turned the rat loose and expected the tinkling of that bell would have great results. It did have. In the first place, the rat who wore it was constantly on the move all night, and the tinkling bell kept the family awake, and in the next the sounds brought scores of new rats to the house. Instead of being afraid of the bell, they were charmed with the music. Had the boy tied a harmonica to another rat's tail, the rodents would have had a dance every night.

A Peripatetic Investment.

When the scallop is full grown it is able to swim with great rapidity by opening and closing the valves of its shell. This curious fact, says What to Eat, was unknown to an unfortunate Frenchman who undertook a few years ago to establish a scallop plantation on a quiet New England beach. He deposited several thousand scallops in shallow water, expecting them to breed, but when he looked for them the next day all of them had fled.

A Difference of Extremes.

Some one wrote in a paper that a cure for fatigue after a hard day was to hold the feet in mustard water for ten minutes, but, reading hastily, the lady read, "hold the face in mustard water for ten minutes." She tried it, but did not continue the cure for ten minutes by any means, and she did not go shopping for several days afterwards.

A Cynical Instructor.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is a great man?" "A great man, my son, is one who manages to gather about him a corps of assistants who will take the blame for his mistakes while he gets the credit for any good ideas."

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.
2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!
3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.
4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.
5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

DRIVER TELLS OF STRAIN.

Nervous Tension of Man at Wheel of Automobile.

The nervous tension under which the driver of an automobile racer labors has been graphically described by two Vanderbilt cup chauffeurs. Clement says: "When you first start, the ground seems to be rising up in front of you, as if to hit you in the face—that is, until you get your auto eyes adjusted. But even then there's always the thrill, and you haven't time for anything but the thrill and the watching of the long, narrow road in front. You haven't time to see what is on one side or the other. The people—that's about all we had on the sides in the Vanderbilt cup races—just seem to be a black-and-white border to the dark streak in front. Yes; you hear them shout, but by the time you realize it you are gone." And Wagner describes his sensations in Outing as follows: "Beginning the eighth lap nearly eight minutes in the lead, the mental and physical strain became acute. My brain was in a dizzy whirl, and my hunger amounted almost to famine. But the price of satisfying it was prohibitive when every minute counted. The constant crashing and lunging of the car, the vigilance required at the frequent turns, the haunting fear of fatalities, and the anxiety regarding tires and mechanism were so exhausting that we lost over two minutes on the eigth round. Hunger remorseless and fanged was gnawing, gnawing, gnawing with almost sinister persistency, as it seemed. So we began the ninth and final round."

WAS GIVEN WRONG STEER.

Cleveland Man the Victim of Mean Practical Joker.

A Cleveland (Ohio) man was coming down from Toledo the other day when he noticed a little crowd on a station platform and at once concluded it meant the departure of a bride and groom. The train only stopped for a minute or two but the Cleveland man had time to see a lot of handshaking, and then, as the train started, a young fellow on the platform thrust a card through the open window and said, "Say, old man, hand that to the couple who just got aboard, won't you?" The Cleveland man nodded and the train sped on. He looked at the card. It bore the word "Congratulations!" Then he went up the aisle to where the newcomers were seated and smilingly handed the card to the bridegroom. "What's this for?" growled the stranger. "Just married, aren't you?" the Cleveland man chuckled. "Just married!" roared the stranger. "Just married! Why, you miserable shrimp, me an' my wife here are havin' a spat at this very moment over what we are goin' to do with our 21-year-old son! Just married! You measly little—" But the Cleveland man had fled. And now he vows he'll never again be made a catspaw for another practical joker.

Two Historic Cabarets.

Two old Sevres cabarets, each with an interesting history of its own, will be included in the porcelain sale at Christie's, says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. The first, painted with festoons of flowers, was formerly the property of Marie Antoinette, and was given by Louise Lefevre, her valet de pied, to George Earl of Essex, and by him to Miss Fannie Kelly, the actress, in 1818, from whom it descended to the present owner, who is Miss Kelly's adopted daughter. The second, painted with musical and amatory trophies, was presented by George IV when Prince of Wales to Mrs. Robinson, the celebrated actress, and at the sale of her husband's effects was purchased by John Graham. In the same sale will be found a Chippendale mahogany bookcase, exquisitely carved, which was formerly at the Kensington palace, in the room in which George II. died.

Clinched.

The insurance agent had exhausted his arts. With tears welling from his eyes and in a voice quivering with emotion he had recitetd the harrowing tale of widow and orphans in dire distress through the untimely death of their thoughtless protector. But the farmer was unmoved. "Nope, I guess I'll not take any to-day," he said, and reached for his red bandanna. "But," said the wily agent, "with every policy goes an almanac, a plug of Greenville, a brass watch, an accordeon and a bottle of liver medicine, besides a brass band to head your funeral procession. "Gosh ding!" came the reply. "Give me one. Nobody can ever say Joshua Hay neglected the welfare of his loved ones."

The Kaiser and Mr. Carnegie.

During the first meeting of Emperor William and Andrew Carnegie on the deck of the Hohenzollern at Kiel, when there came a pause in the conversation, Mr. Carnegie, in a candid spirit of banter, said to the emperor: "You know, your majesty, that I never cared very much for kings." "But there was one king you cared a great deal for," said the emperor quickly. "And who was that?" demanded Mr. Carnegie. "Robert Bruce." "Your majesty is very right," laughed Mr. Carnegie. "Robert Bruce is buried in my town."

An Exhibition Stunt.

"Malipedes are the fourth and fifth pairs of head appendages of chilopods." "What's that to me?" "Nothing. I occasionally like to display a bit of knowledge that nobody else can possibly have."

STORIES OF THE SECRET SERVICE

BY CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL.

STORY No. 5

The Boscobel Koniackers

Being an Account of the Capture and Conviction of the Band of Counterfeiters Operating in Wisconsin in 1878.

By CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL

Aided by Miner, Ballard obtained valuable information from the engraving department of the government. In 1862 Ballard produced for Miner and Henry C. Cole a plate of the one dollar United States treasury. His next was a plate of the two-dollar bills of the National Shoe & Leather bank, of New York. From that he went to $10 counterfeits of three national banks of Poughkeepsie, the $20 bill of the Shoe & Leather bank, and then to the $100 and $500 "old issue" United States treasury notes.

Ballard had a comfortable residence at No. 225 West Fifty-third street, and here was supposed to be a painter. He left home every morning at seven o'clock to go to the carriage factory, in which he was interested, but instead of going there he went to No. 256 Rivington street, where his brother John lived, and where the counterfiting plant was located. The neighbors at No. 256 Rivington street believed Ballard to be a watchman in the custom house, and he left there regularly in the evening to go "to work," but in reality went home. He lived this dual life without detection for years.

The government at that time had a contract with the Glenn mills, at West Chester, Pa., for its entire output of the celebrated "fiber" paper, the mills being run under supervision of government officials to prevent the paper or the secret of its manufacture being stolen. Ballard, in addition to being a high-class engraver, was the only man in the world who could successfully make this paper outside of the Glenn mills. As an engraver, chemist, papermaker and ink manufacturer, Ballard was unexcelled. The treasury officials and money experts generally believed the "fiber" paper to be a complete guard against counterfeiting, and they were amazed at the product of Thomas Ballard long before such a man was known to the secret service. The presses of Hinman, Miner and Ballard turned out bogus money in such amounts that the lawful currency became disparaged, and the capture of the makers of the clever counterfeits became a matter of imperative importance. He was caught in 1871, broke jail soon afterward, and his subsequent history would fill a good-sized volume.

Arrested in Buffalo for engraving a plate of a $500 treasury note, which was pronounced superior to the genuine, Ballard was sent to Auburn penitentiary, from which institution he escaped. While in Buffalo he had also worked on a plate with which he said he was going "to bankrupt Canada," and from the perfection of the work he seemed in fair way to make good his intention.

In 1875 he was sentenced to serve 30 years in the penitentiary, after having been at large about three years with a standing reward of $5,000 for his capture. In 1878 he ripped open his own abdomen and severad an intestine in trying to take his life, but recovered. A year later he drew a sharp knife across his throat, severing the windpipe and muscles of the neck, and again recovered.

It was during the wanderings following Thomas Ballard's first arrest and while the reward of $5,000 was hanging over him, that he and his two brothers came west and took up their residence on a farm near Clear Lake, Ia. They assumed the family name of Watson, and, naturally, fell into association with the counterfeiters operating in the northwest. They became acquainted with the Boscobel and St. Paul gangs, and with Frank Conway, which fact accounts for the frequency with which I encountered the assumed family name of the Ballards while trying to identify the man who had been arrested in Vandalia. The St. Paul contingent of counterfeiters had in their possession, it was afterward found, the Poughkeepsie and Peakskill plates that had been made in the east by Ballard and had issued money from them.

There was no evidence that the Ballards accomplished much in the line of producing "coney" while in the west.

It is only fair that I here call attention to the fact that from this point any credit accruing to the secret service for the ultimate discovery of the engravers and producers of the $100 Wilkesbarre, Boston and New Bedford bills should be bestowed on A. L. Drummond and other operatives in the eastern division of the service. In the west we had first found the bills, determined beyond doubt their eastern origin, showed the connection between Conway and the Ballards and indicated that in Conway's associates while in the east the secret service would probably find the producers of the bills.

As I have pointed out, the Ballards had given Conway credentials when he started east which, with his arrest and conviction for horse stealing, was sufficient to satisfy the eastern contingent that he was a safe man with whom to "do business." I had carefully preserved Conway's testimony at his Springfield trial, in which he told of his places of residence and some of his movements in New York, and forwarded them to headquarters, although Conway probably had no idea that the information he gave at that time would be of any value to us. It proved, however, to be of much service to the eastern operatives in unearthing the crowd that issued the bills which Conway had "shoved" in the west.

There were in the United States in the year 1879 but four men capable of producing such high-class plates as those from which had been printed the $100 bills received in Chicago from several western points. These were Charles F. Ulrich, Benjamin Boyd, Thomas Ballard and Charles H. Smith. Each of these men possessed a distinctive style, which was familiar to the members of the secret service who had made these things the subject of long study. Ulrich's method was to lay before him a genuine bill of the issue he intended to counterfeit and laboriously and as faithfully as possible copy it on steel.

Boyd was the inventor and sole owner of a process whereby he transferred by the use of acids a reproduction of the genuine bill on to a steel plate, after cutting the plate by the lines transferred. Ballard used the copying process, but his work was much finer than Ulrich's, and had a distinct character under the microscope. Smith was at that time an engraver in the employ of the United States treasury department, and his work showed clearly the distinctive character of government engraving. Boyd was in prison, and the work on the bills was apparently not that of Ballard nor Ulrich.

For some time the secret service officers had had pretty accurate information of the operations of the band to which Smith belonged. W. E. Brockway was the leader of this crowd and enjoyed the distinction of being the first man who used the electrotpye process. He was also a fine chemist, but Smith did the engraving. For years Smith had been employed by the government in engraving plates for currency and bonds, and his character was supposed to be above reproach. I do not know how he became entangled with Brockway. The third principal member of this crowd was James B. Doyle, who owned a 600-acre farm near Bradford, Ill. Doyle had a brother-in-law named Thomas Shotwell, who was a counterfeiter.

Through Shotwell, presumably, Doyle had met Dr. Parker, Louis Sleight and other well-known western counterfeiters, and had made a trip to New York, where he had formed the business connection with Brockway and Smith. When he came west he brought with him some of the same bills we were trying to trace. Doyle's visit to New York had been reported to headquarters by the western division, and he was "piped" in that city by Operative Kennoch, at the order of Chief Operative Drummond.

When Doyle left the eastern metropolis for Chicago, Kennoch was on the same train, and Doyle was arrested as he stepped from the train in Chicago. He was tried and convicted. At the time of his arrest he had in his possession counterfeit United States bonds representing $204,000. These also were from plates made by Smith. They were absolutely perfect with the exception of a slight inaccuracy in the margin on one corner, and would have made the government a lot of trouble if they had not been confiscated.

Smith worked in the treasury department engraving room on genuine plates during the regular working hours, and on counterfeit plates during the time he was not working for the government. At the same time Doyle was arrested in Chicago, Brockway and Smith were arrested in the east. If my memory serves me right, Smith never turned informer, but Brockway, seeing that the eastern secret service officers had unearthed much accurate information concerning his operations, told the government where the $100 bill plates and the plates from which the bonds were printed could be found.

He claimed he had thrown the $1,000 plate which was much wanted, into East river some time before when he became convinced he was being crowded to the wall by the secret service. This seizure was most important, as it put a stop to the issue of currency and bonds which were so cleverly done that they would have proved a source of endless trouble. The sentences of Brockway and Smith were suspended in reward for their disclosure of the location of the plates, this being, I believe the first case under that administration in which such leniency was shown, but being justified by the great value of the plates to the government.

Before closing this narrative I wish to say that when the Ballards left Clear Lake, Ia., to return east they buried ten sets of plates near the farmhouse they had occupied. This burial was according to the ironclad rule of "good" counterfeiters never to carry such evidence with them. Other counterfeiters, however, knew where they were hid, and five sets found their way into the possession of George Woolsey and Samuel Pizer, of the particular "koniacking" outfit known as the St. Paul crowd, and in August, 1875, I had the satisfaction of arresting these shifty gentlemen and of confiscating these plates, $8,000 in representative currency and counterfeiting press, inks and paper. I do not know what became of the other five sets of plates after the Ballards buried them.

THE END.

AN ARMY EPISODE

By HAROLD OTIS.

[Original.]

MISS CORINNE STEPTOE was spending the social season with her aunt in the city. Miss Steptoe was the daughter of Colonel Steptoe of the United States army, commanding Fort Atkins, and while at home her social relations were limited to the officers on duty there and to the members of their families.

Though a true army girl, regarding the army her home, she was not averse to enjoying a round of balls and parties in the city, but the idea of marrying out of the circle in which she had been born never entered her head.

Civilians were well enough to dance with, but no man except a soldier need apply for her hand.

Among the youths with whom Miss Steptoe flirted mildly was one whose collar was higher and whose manners were more pronounced than any of the rest.

It was whispered among the ladies that he was the wildest young man in society.

This was certainly not indicated by his name, which was Pettypace. He was the son of a wealthy merchant who seemed to supply him with plenty of money to throw away.

Among those who presented themselves for what Miss Steptoe considered "a good time" none seemed to fill the conditions so well as Jack Pettypace, and just before the close of the season, when she was about to start for the fort, Mr. Pettypace completed what she considered "a good time" by proposing marriage.

"I am sorry you have so misunderstood me," she said in reply. "I am an army girl and do not expect to marry unless in the army."

"What! One of those slow going fellows made to toe the mark like schoolboys?"

"The army is the home of many brave and dashing men," was the bristling reply.

"I think I'll try it myself."

Miss Steptoe laughed.

"I'm going to enlist in the corps under your father's command."

"And have three years of drudgery. Talk about the officers being schoolboys! In the ranks you'll be a prisoner in comparison."

"If I don't like it, I'll leave."

Again Miss Steptoe gave vent to her silvery laugh.

"Oh, I don't care a rap for your army fellows. I'm going to enlist, and when I want to get out of their toils I'll have no difficulty in doing so."

Miss Steptoe laughingly told Mr. Pettypace that if he would enlist in the army and get out of it without deserting, buying his discharge or using political influence, she would accept him for a husband. She limited him to two weeks to accomplish the feat.

Miss Steptoe had scarcely reached her father's quarters when she heard the women gossiping about a recruit who had presented himself for enlistment dressed in the height of fashion and evidently a gentleman.

Many causes were suggested for his having entered the ranks, from a disappointment in love to cheating at cards.

The next morning she was startled at seeing Jack Pettypace walking post before her father's quarters. He did not recognize her, and she had agreed to keep his secret.

A few days later she heard it stated among the officers' wives that the gentlemanly private had gone insane and had been put in a straitjacket. This is a true version of how it happened:

One morning after a horseback ride one of the bachelor officers entered his quarters to find the sentinel who had been on guard before his door standing at the end of his suit of rooms pointing his gun directly at his superior's breast. The sentinel's eyes were wild, and he was muttering incoherently. As soon as his gaze struck the officer he ordered him to halt and stand at attention. The officer lost no time in obeying the order.

"Mutiny! Mutiny! Mutiny!" shrieked the private. "Do you come to your general's quarters to kill him? Turn out the guard! Death to traitors! Would you assassinate the czar?"

While firing these incoherent sentences the lunatic was cocking and uncocking his piece, pointing it at the officer's breast, laughing hysterically and muttering to himself.

"The mutineers are coming!" he howled. "They're going to murder their sovereign. I shall kill every mother's son of them, and then my title to the throne will be perfect."

"General—your majesty, I mean," said the officer, "shall I call a force to protect you?"

"Send the Swiss guard!"

In another minute the officer was at the telephone, calling to the sergeant of the guard to bring a dozen men with loaded guns to arrest an enlisted man who had gone insane and was howling in the officers' quarters.

Meanwhile the lunatic was taking a bracer from his superior's sideboard to keep him up to his work, and when the guard arrived he had purposely parted with his musket.

But he struggled and screamed as he was hurried off to the guardhouse and thence to a room in the hospital where he was confined by himself.

The insane man's father was communicated with, the soldier's discharge was made out, and he was sent under guard to a private sanitarium.

One morning Jack Pettypace, armed with his discharge papers, visited Fort Atkins and walked straight to the colonel's quarters. His arrival caused a sensation at the post among the officers, their families and the enlisted men.

It culminated when Mrs. Steptoe announced the engagement of her daughter with the "insane" private who, by outwitting the officers and the surgeons, had secured his discharge.

Football and General Sports

FOOTBALL.

The slump season is at hand, and reports have it that Pennsylvania and Harvard are showing symptoms of that malady. Yale and Princeton are not complaining, but the fumbling that has been cropping out at those two places recently indicates that the slump bulletins may be expected soon. Teams generally have a period of fumbling, and oftimes such fumbling is one of the outward signs of the periodical slump. There comes a time in all football campaigns, it seems, when players begin to get irritable under the hammering, a bit peevish and a trifle raw on the nerves. Then they pass into their second wind stage, steady down and proceed to develop real strength anl finish. This particular week is a bad time for Harvard or Yale or Pennsylvania to slump, for each has a hard game on for today, games which will call out the best there is in them, unless, perchance, it is opponents' slumping also.

A general in the air condition has existed this week. There have been injuries, testiness and unduly rough work, shifting of players and much scolding by coaches. In Philadelphia the air has been quite blue. Yet the material there is just as good as it was when the season began, and it was then the season began, and it was excellent when the season began. The Quakers perhaps have worse periods of depression than any other taem, but they seldom fail to rally splendidly from their megrims, and with the men they have they are not likely to be in the dumps permanently. Their schedule from now on is very trying and they will need the best recuperative powers to cope with it successfully. Brown, Carlisle, Lafayette, Michigan and Cornell come in the order named—a stiff dose, sure enough, but relieved b yten days to two weeks time between the last three games.

Coach Crane's notion of having the Harvard men get fun as well as work out of the season has not been entirely realized. Cutts of the Harvard coaching staff was sent back of the ropes and his team penalized last aSturday because he coached from the side lines. And on Wednesday last Pierce, the varsity guard, was fired for slugging a fresrman. Ethical sins at Harvard—can it be? Uncertain of handling of the ball and several men bunged up as a result of the hard driving in preparation for the West Point game are annoying conditions at Yale.

Princeton's game with Villa Nova was peculiar in a way. The scoring power in evidence ever since the scredule began was there as usual, but the manner of scoring was not entirely satisfactory. The play was spasmodic, and the points accrued from whirlwind attacks that came in gusts but not consistently maintained. What the coaches would have liked to see was the more durable, sustained strength, such as creates the most substantial strength, such as creates the most substantial basis of hope for a championship game. Still the old ferocity that scoring by the other side provokes was on hand. It was that that won the ornell game a year ago.

THIRTEEN YEARS A BISHOP.

Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul Celebrates the Event in Trenton.

The Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of his consecration as bishop of the Trenton diocese at Trenton, yesterday morning with pontifical high mass in St. Mary's Cathedral. Nearly all the priests connected with the local diocese were in attendance.

Bishop McFaul was the celebrant at the mass, with Monsignor John H. Fox as assistant. The deacons of honor were the Rev. Dr. Joseph Rathner, rector of St. Francis' Church, and the Rev. Henry Ward, rector of St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. John B. Conway was the deacon and the Rev. James J. Powers, of Hopewell, sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. Arthur Hassett and assistant the Rev. Thomas R. Pendergast.

Spider Causes Blood Poisoning.

Louis Bleumatti, a young man employed by John Morton, the ice man, is suffering from a sever attack of blood poisoning, which was brought on in a peculiar manner. After he had put his team of horses in the stable on West Front street, he laid down on the hay to take a nap. While asleep a spider crawled across his face and bit him on the cheek. The sting of the insect awakened him and he suffered intense pain. Although he sought the services of a physician at once it was not quick enough to prevent blood poisoning.

ROUSED AGAINST 'MILK TRUST.'

New Brunswickers Protest Against Raising of Price.

There is talk of an indignation meeting in New Brunswick to protest against the increase in the retail price of milk from eight to ten cents a quart. The producers have voted to increase the wholesale price from four to five cents a quart on November 1, and the retailers say that they will have to increase the retail price to ten cents.

Prosecutor Berdine promises to follow the example of Camden's prosecutor, if this is done, and makes a thorough investigation with the purpose of proceeding criminally against the "milk trust." It is thought that the public feeling against the raise is so intense that the producers will not dare raise the price.

He will henceforth be known under the name of Mussa Mohammed.

AROUND THE HOUSE.

Save your bits of old velveteen for polishing. When washed they will prove as useful as chamois.

Remnants of laundry soap can be boiled into a jelly or soft soap for dishwashing or shaved into the wash boiler on wash day.

It will be economy to finish your sheets with the same width hem at each end. By so doing they can be used either side up and gain much wear.

Use fine wire for hanging up such articles as rolling pins, chopping knives, potato mashers and pastry boards. The wire loop is perfectly clean.

Combs should not be washed with water. This is apt to split the teeth. A stiff nail brush is a good thing for cleaning them. After using the brush take a damp cloth and wipe between each tooth with this.

Jury Out All Nnight.

After deliberating from 12 o'clock yesterday until 12 o'clock today, the jury in the damage suit of Miss Carroll, of Elizabeth, against the Public Service Corporation, failed to agree and was dismissed by the court. This is the second case this week against the P. S. C. in which the jury could not agree, the first one being that of Newton W. Chambers, of this city.

Y. M. C. A. MEN TO TALK

Speakers Prominent in Association Work to Be Here Sunday Morning.

IN ALL LOCAL CHURCHES

Mass Meetings For Men and Women In the Afternoon to Be Features of Anniversary Celebration Next Week.

Pulpits of the leading local churches of the city will be occupied by Young Men's Christian Association speakers at the regular morning services tomorrow, and these services, at which men prominent in association work in this state and New York will speak of the work, will be a special feature of the big celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, which begins next Saturday. J. H. Manning, chairman of the committee in charge of the anniversary, today made public the list of speakers secured, as follows:

Crescent Avenue Church, J. S. Tichenor; First M. E. church, George A. Warburton; Seventh-day Baptist church, (address Saturday morning) L. E. Hawkins; Park Avenue Baptist Church, William A. Tisdale; Congregational Church, J. T. Sproull; Grace M. E. Church, C. W. Deitrich; First Presbyterian Church, (evening) C. W. Deitrich. The speaker for the First Baptist Church has not yet been secured, and will be announced later. The topic of service in each case will be some phase of the work of the association. Two mammoth mass meetings, one for men and the other for women, have been planned for Sunday afternoon. The regular 4 o'clock men's meeting will be held in the New Plainfield Theatre, and William Knowles Cooper, prominent in Association work at Springfield, Mass., will be the speaker. The Lotus Glee Club, which is to appear in the Y. M. C. A. Star course Thanksgiving Day, will render several selections. At the same time, a meeting for women will be conducted at Trinity Reformed church. Mrs. Henry M. Maxson will preside and the speaker will be F. B. Shipp, a member of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. There will be special music by the Lotus Glee Club. Much interest is being shown in both of these meetings.

The celebration, which is to last three days, will begin Saturday evening, when a big banquet is to be held in the auditorium. Alexander Gilbert, the first president of the Y. M. C. A., will be toast master, and the list of speakers includes William K. Cooper. Covers will be laid for 150.

MEDAL CONTEST UNDER AUSPICES OF LOCAL W. C. T. U.

Program to be in Charge of Rev. Dr. Herring, H. C. Krebs and Kenneth Robbie.

Under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union a silver medal oratorical contest will be held Thursday night in the First Presbyterian church. The judges for the affair will be Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, H. C. Krebs and Kenneth Robbie.

The following program will be presented:

Song, "America"; prayer, ev. C. E. Herring; piano solo, Miss Grace George; recitation, "Old Soapy," Miss Florence Fowler; vocal solo, "The Fairy's Lullaby," Mrs. Charles H. Clarke; recitation, "The Sober Hat," Miss Edna Doughty; piano solo, "Imps and Cpirits at Work," Miss Beatrice Miner; recitation, "The Result of Treating," Miss Ida Englehart; piano solo, "Pilgrim's Chorus from Tannhauser," Miss Ruth Wean; recitation, "The Christmas Story," Miss Mary T. Smith; vocal solo, "Gretna," Mrs. Charles H. Clarke; recitation, "A Daughter's Sacrifice," Miss Arline Brown.

After the entertainment the judges will render their decision and the silver medals will be presented by Mrs. T. C. Bodine.

Told of Trip to Palestine.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-day Baptist church held its first meeting of the season in the parlors of the church last night. After a short business meeting during which several members were elected, Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, gave a delightful illustrated lecture on "Palestine," describing his last trip to that country. The views were superb and Dr. Gardner's talk was greatly enjoyed. Afterward refreshments were served.

Want Bryan to Lecture for Charity.

The women of the Visiting Nurses' Association of New Brunswick, are making efforts to get William Jennings Bryan to deliver a lecture here for the benefit of the association. The object is to provide funds to furnish a trained nurse for people who are unable to pay for such service. No decided answer has been received from the "Peerless One."

BULLETS FLEW WHEN WEST END POLAKS FOUGHT

The local police received a hurry call Saturday afternoon for what was described as a "riot among a lot of Polaks in a house on West Front street near Rock avenue." Sergeant Overbaugh and Patrolmen Saunders and McCarthy were sent down in the patrol wagon and discovered the disturbance to be in one of the one-time "Eight Row" houses. It was a sure-enough riot all right as the cops found a crowd of men and women belaboring one another while an occasional pistol shot added to the racket.

The belligerents fled in all directions as soon as they noticed the bluecoats coming but four of them were caught. They gave their names as Stephen Eslinger, Andrew Fells, Louis Gal and Martin Butcher. The women, who were all related to the men, were not arrested.

None of the prisoners could speak English intelligibly and all the police could learn was that there had been a dispute over renting the house. One of the occupants wanted to bring in a friend but didn't want to pay any more than he had been. A fight started and in the melee a dozen pistol shots were exchanged but they were evidently fired for noise as no one was hit.

The case was called in the city court this morning but as it was impossible to understand the prisoners, the matter was put over until interpreters can be secured.

HUNT CLUB'S CHASE OVER DIFFICULT ROUTE

The Watchung Hunt Club held its weekly chase Saturday afternoon, starting from Dog Tavern, at 3:30 o'clock. The route included the outlying country about Westfield, through Westfield and ending on the Rahway road near Fanwood. Without doubt it was one of the best and most exciting rides of the season. The course selected was a difficult one and only the more experienced riders participated.

There was only one spill, and that did not amount to anything of consequence. Lewis E. Waring, master of the hounds, mounted on Grand Slam, was about to take a ditch before a three rail fence and in same way the big horse missed his footing. He went down so easy that his rider simply rolled off on the soft ground, causing no injury.

Next Saturday the club will meet at Mt. Pleasant Scholhouse at 2:45 o'clock and the course to be followed will be in a different direction.

Those who joined in the chase Saturday were Lewis E. Waring, master; Christopher Comins, whip; Charles Wildey, William Wildey, Richard Donnelly, Charles Schwarts, Harvey Fisk, Harry A. Bourne, Fred Alpers, C. E. S. Bellows and William Harrison, of Montclair.

HORSE THIEF IN JAIL ADMITS HIS GUILT

Le Roy Brown, the New Market young man who stole a rig belonging to Adam Blair and then a wagon from the barn of Isaac Stout at Lincoln, Friday night, is being held in jail at New Brunswick, on Stout's charge. Formal complaint against the prisoner was made by Blair before Judge Runyon today but it is probable the Plainfield authorities will have to wait until the Middlesex county officials finish with him.

Brown admitted taking Blair's rig from in front of the home of George Van Nest on Mariner's place and it was recovered after he was captured at Lincoln by Amos Stout. A wheel of the runabout had been broken and he left the vehicle by the road in order to get the one from Stout's. Brown was recently a conductor on the local trolley system and also worked at one time as waiter in a North avenue restaurant.

Murphy-Boehm Case Off for Present.

The damage suit of Miss oJsephine Murphy against Miss Marguerite Boehm and her father, Ignatz Boehm, which was to have been continued in the Union County Court, this morning, was called off at the opening of court today because of the illness of Juror Jacob Schultheis, of Elizabeth. The court announced that the case would be put at the bottom of the list and be tried later.

German Conversation Class.

The German class recently formed by teachers and pupils of the borough high school will hold its first meeting at the home of Miss Stahlberger on Central avenue Thursday evening.

Rasores Club to Meet.

The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning with Mrs. William S. Hubbell, at "Truell Hall."

BLUE MONDAY IN COURT

Bunch of Offenders Face Judge on "Cold, Gray Dawn of the Morning After."

MERCY SHOWN THEM

Odd Excuses Made By Some of Those Arraigned—Ballangarry Man, Gets Suspended Sentence.

Judge Runyon found a full docket awaiting him at this morning's session of court and the greatest array of nationalities represented in the cases that the pedigree pads have ever recorded.

In the first case called the complainant was a Chinaman, Sam Sing, a West Front street laundryman. He accused Spencer Scribner, twenty-seven years old, of skylarking in front of his place and smashing a plate-glass window. Scribner promised to pay for the window and sentence was suspended.

James Carter, colored, was in court to press a charge of atrocious assault against John Ford, also colored. The men were represented by counsel and a lot of time was devoted to threshthe matter out but in the end Judge Runyon dismissed the case. Mike Readington, who goes on periodical sprees, was fined $5 on his old charge of drunkenness and paid up. Two Polaks and two Hungarians, living on West Front street, were called up to answer charges of fighting and disorderly conduct preferred by the police but the case had to be adjourned until tomorrow in order to get interpreters.

Thomas Connaughton, who claimed to hail from "Ballangarry, sir" and sprang a rich brogue on the court to prove it, had sentence suspended on a drunk and disorderly charge. The same disposition was made of the case of Napoleon Bonaparte Snell, the painter who fell from a ladder while intoxicated Saturday, and who, it was thought at first, had been killed. The patrol wagon was sent for the corpse and when it arrived found Snell sitting up and asking everybody to have a drink.

Amos Stites, proprietor of a pool room on Somerset street, which he describes as "the greatest sporting house in New Jersey," was arraigned on a charge of distributing dodgers about the city streets. He explained to the court that he was handing them out to employes of the Scott factory as they were leaving the shop and he was unaware that he was violating he city ordinance. Sentence was suspended with a warning.

Daniel Driscoll, one of the proprietors of a Second street lunch wagon, was sent to jail for twenty days for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He has been "rummy" for several weeks and was arrested once before a short time ago. He went on a tear late Friday night and in the course of his wanderings entered the lunch wagon and shot a couple of holes through it to let his partner know he was around.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Home Ceremony United Miss Bessie Walls and Charles Vardon.

Miss Bessie Walls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walls, of Essex street, and Charles Vardon, of Plainfield avenue, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Saturday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and was witnessed only by relatives and a few close friends. The attendants were Miss Hattie Walls, sister of the bride, and Stanley Vardon, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Walls left for Philadelphia on a wedding trip. They will make their home on John street on returning, the groom being employed as machinist in a local shop.

PASTOR FOR 25 YEARS.

Event Celebrated by Union Service in Somerville Church.

A union service of the Protestant churches of Somerville, was held last night in the Second Reformed church in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Edward Griffen Read.

Congratulatory addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. William S. Cranmer, of the First Reformed Church; James L. Griggs, the Rev. Dr. J. Preston Searle, of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, and Sering P. Dunham, of Trenton. The Rev. Dr. Read responded. On Thursday evening a congregation sociable will be held in the chapel.

Squire Hand Tied the Knot.

Vincenzo Biango, of Westfield, and Ersilia Indaco, of this city, were married in the district court room, Saturday afternoon, by Justice H. K. Hand. A delegation of countrymen and countrywomen witnessed he ceremony and afterward a recepion was held at the groom's home on Cottage place.

SIGNOR CARUSO'S WIFE ASKS $20,000 DAMAGES

The case of Raffale Tizzo, administrator for the estate of Raffale Carusofi in behalf of his wife, against the New Jersey Central, is being tried in the Union County Court today. The suit is for $20,000 damages. Craig A. Marsh represents the plaintiff.

The action is the result of a fatal accident at the yards at the Pond Machine Tool Works on August 25, 1906. Caruso was culling iron from a large pile of refuse near the railroad tracks in the yards and was run over and killed by a train which was backing up on the tracks on the company's property. The contention was that Caruso was given no warning of the approaching train which might have prevented loss of life.

After the case was opened this morning several witnesses were called to prove that no warning was given Caruso while he was at work in the yards. The case will probably occupy the entire day.

BANKER-POET TELLS OF HIS ANCESTORS

Within a fortnight, former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph's latest work, "FitzRandolph Traditions—The Story of a Thousand Years," will be issued from the press of a New York house. The volume is issued under the auspices of the New Jersey Historical Society and those who have been fortunate enough to see the proof sheets say that it is one of the most exhaustive, entertaining and valuable additions to New Jersey's geneological collections.

Mr. Randolph, shortly after his retirement as president of the New York Consolidated Exchange, with his wife spent much time in England collecting material for the volume in which she is his collaborator. From the records in Somerset House and in the British Museum's wonderful library they collected a vast amount of data, which, supplemented with authoritative tales current in the English villages where the FitzRandolph ancestors are buried, form the basis of the story which is interestingly told.

The banker-poet and his youngest daughter, Miss Blossom, Randolph purpose to sail for Europe during the first week of November. Their time abroad will be spent principally in Spain, Rome and along the Riviera.

"PRINCE" BREAKS RECORD ON THE LOCAL TRACK

"Prince," the fleet-footed trotter owned by John Langdon, of Trenton, driven by Charles Brower, of this city, broke the track record at the Plainfield Driving Park, Saturday afternoon. The previous best record for the track was 2:17¼, by "Rattler," which was made eight years ago. "Price" covered the distance in 2:16¼. It was a beautiful exhibition, and was loudly applauded.

The track was not in good condition, the recent dry spell leaving it dusty and cuppy in spots. Mr. Brower handled "Prince" in fine style and it is the opinion that he could do even better time. An effort is being made to arrange a race between "Prince" and Adam C. Blair's "Harry Dawson." Mr. Blair is willing to match his horse against "Prince," best three out of five, but under no other conditions.

The card of regular events on Saturday was well contested. George Conover's "Roanview" won the Class A race in 2:24, and J. S. Irving's "Bobs" took the Class B race in 2:34. The Class C race was won by Thomas Brantingham's "Osceala," in 2:28.

WILLIAM DOYLE'S FUNERAL.

Solemn High Mass Conducted in St. Mary's Church.

The funeral of William J. Doyle was held in St. Mary's church this morning. A solemn high mass was conducted by Rev. Father Bogan, Father Delehanty and Father Schiola. The gathering of friends in attendance was very large and included many of the young man's fellow workmen in the Jersey City yards of the New Jersey Central, where he was employed. Both the yard men and office employes contributed handsome floral pieces.

Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being W. H. Barron, Thomas Moorehead, John Brick, A. S. Jeffery, Frank Mehan and James Bowlie, all employes in the Jersey City terminal yards.

MISS MARTIN'S WEDDING

Society Folk Witnesses Her Marriage to Henry David Bushnell.

A HARVARD MAN

Rev. Dr. Richards and Rev. Dr. Zelie Officiate at the Nuptial Ceremony.

Miss Helen Sprague Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, of Hillside avenue, and Henry David Bushnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bushnell, of Central avenue, were married Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. The edifice was thronged with society folk from New York, Brooklyn, Pittsburg and other distant points, as well as this city, over a thousand invitations having been issued to the wedding. Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, formerly pastor of the church, but now of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor. The Episcopal form of service was used.

The bride wore a costume of white satin, trimmed with lace and clustered orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elsie Cochran Martin, as maid of honor, whose gown was white satin chiffon. She wore a white Gainsborough hat and carried white carnations. The bridesmaids were the Misses Emily Pierrepont Gould, of New York; Helen Frances Buchnell, Ruth Morgan Tenney and Mary Tilney Wadsworth, of this city. Their gowns were white satin striped chiffon and they wore blue Gainsborough hats. They carried shower bouquets of white carnations.

Mr. Bushnell had for his best man Charles Case, of this city, and the ushers were Albert Boyden and Frederick Case, of New York; David Mitchell, of Pittsburg; William Donaldson, of St. Louis, and Francis Augustus Martin, a brother of the bride.

William E. MacClymont was at the organ and he gave a program of classical selections prior to the ceremony. The Lohengrin wedding march was played as the bridal party entered the church. The ushers led the way, followed by the maid of honor, the bridesmaids and the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her away in marriage. At the altar they were met by the groom and his best man. The assemblage of guests remained standing throughout the entire ceremony. Afterward the order was reversed as the party left the church, Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell leading, followed by the other members of the party.

The church was handsomely decorated for the wedding, there being an elaborate arrangement of palms, ferns and chrysanthemums banked about the pulpit platform and altar. The prevailing colors were green and white and it was very effective.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the handsome home of the bride's parents on Hillside avenue, where more than 250 guests assembled to offer their congratulations to the bride and groom. The home was decorated with American Beauty roses, palms, roses and chrysanthemums. During the reception hours supper was served. After congratulations the guests were afforded an opportunity to see the display of costly wedding gifts received by the bride. It comprised nearly everything that a heart could wish for and has seldom been equaled in value and variety in this city.

Enjoyment was added to the occasion by the rendition of a popular program of music by an orchestra, and later in the evening the young people had a dance.

The bride has been a leader among the younger set. The groom is also prominent in the social circles of Pittsburg and New Yor. He is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1898, and is a practicing lawyer in Pittsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell will spend their honeymoon in the Berkshire Hills, and will be at home at 1131 North St. Claire street, Pittsburg, after November 20.

Frelinghuysen in New Brunswick.

The Young Men's Republican Club of New Brunswick is arranging a big massmeeting for Friday night in Y. M. C. A. Hall. Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, will be the principal speaker. This is the club which launched for governor several months ago, before illness overtook the Senator and compelled him to give up the idea of becoming a candidate for the nomination.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Helen Boice, daughter of Mrs. Calvin Boice, of New Market, to George Morris, of this city, son of the late John Morris, of New Market. Mr. Morris is of the firm of Morris Bros., auto dealers.

FROSTY NIGHT AIR SWELLS CLANS ATTENDANCE INDOORS

That "rawther chilly" feeling of frosty sharpness in the air Saturday night kept most of the "clansmen" indoors at the "gathering," and the Casino was well filled with the fete's patrons during the entire evening. No winter's blizzard, however, could keep people away from the minstrel tent, however, and the black face troupe of "golden voiced singers" gave two performances in the evening with the S. R. O. sign prominently displayed. There were some new songs for the crowd, torn off with that delightful minstrelesque harmony which caused hand vibrations of genuine enthusiasm, and the joke mill worked with all the snappier wit in the frosty air.

Indoors the living pictures were the leading attraction. The second presentation of these are presentations was even better than that on the opening night. Miss Eva Browne, who posed as "Ruth" last week, was absent, but Miss Louise Saunders, as "Lady Butterfly" was a new "painting" which won applause. The other pictures were the same as were given on the opening night, and Saturday's exhibit will be repeated tonight. This feature of the "Gathering" was under the direction of Mrs. Frederick H. Andrews and George Wharton Edwards arranged the pictures. "Sunny Hour," Mr. Edwards' $300 painting, was again on exhibition and created much enthusiastic comment.

The Union band was at the grounds in the evening and there was a "grand street peerade" early in the evening. The entire tally-ho squad, in the automobile, took part, and Dog Catcher Jim Babbitt was at the head of the line. After several noisy circuitous circlings of the neighborhood to much muscular accompaniment of drums and the crescendo remarks of invitation by a squad of leather lunged, the band took a stand in the grounds and kept warm by exercise and "blowing themselves" till late in the evening.

Beginning with Saturday and continuing all the rest of the fete, the admission to the grounds will be free, afternoon and evening, and a fee of ten cents will be charged for admission to the Casino.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Woman Dies After Being Hit by Train.

Mrs. Mary Andrews, a Polish woman, who resided at 619 South Second street, died in Muhlenberg hospital Saturday morning, from injuries received on the New Jersey Central tracks near Plainfield avenue on Friday.

She was picking coal on the westbound passenger track and stepped over to the freight track directly in front of a train. She was struck by the engine and hurled down the embankment. She was removed to Muhlenberg hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the arm, several broken ribs and internal injuries. The physicians did what they could for her but there was practically no chance of her living from the time she was brought in.

Church Observes 45th Anniversary.

The congregation of the German Reformed church of New Brunswick, celebrated its forty-fifth anniversary yesterday with special services. The Rev. H. M. Qual the pastor, formerly of Newark, preached the anniversary sermon yesterday morning, and the Rev. Mr. Foster, of Philadelphia, preached last night. Tonight there will be a social, at which the Rev. Mr. Barney, of Milltown, will make the address in German and the Rev. Mr. Saure, of Linden, the address in English.

To Hold Mock Trial.

The debating society of the city high school is planning to hold a mock trial within a few weeks. A committee was appointed at a meeting of the society Thursday to arrange the details, but the date has not yet been set.

BISHOP VINCENT SPEAKS

Methodist Prelate Delivers Two Discourses at First M. E. Diamond Jubilee.

DR. SIMPSON TALKS

Closing Services of the Congregation's Seventy-fifth Anniversary Observance.

With large congregations in attendance at every service, the Diamond Jubilee of the First M. E. church was concluded last night. The programs both morning and evening were not of the elaborate sort but great interest was occasioned by the presence in the pulpit each time of the Rev. Bishop John H. Vincent, LL. D., former pastor of the church and now one of the leading prelates in the country. He gave two able discourses that were enjoyed by many people of other denominations as well as members of the local Methodist churches.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea was in charge of the morning service and conducted the opening ceremonies. Prayer was offered by Dr. G. H. Whitney, and the congregation joined in responsive readings.

Bishop Vincent was announced by Dr. McCrea and after a few introductory remarks of a personal nature, he began his sermon, his subject being "The Church As a University of Christ." His statements were plain facts interwoven with ecclesiastical theories and given in a clear and concise manner.

The church, Bishop Vincent said, should be looked upon as a school for eternity and should be a part of every home. It is not intended and should never be a place for people to gather and hear classical music or things apart from religious ethics. He urged that parents consider it a duty to see that their children are taught to go to church just the same as they are instructed that school is a necessity in order to make their way in the world; both being imperative to bring about development.

The bishop emphasized the fact that earnestness is absolutely necessary in religion; that where it is brought by fear of God its hollowness is a mocker. There is no sincerity in faith professed through the belief that it will pacify an angry God and the man who so evinces a religious enthusiasm fools only himself. In much the same way, the speaker continued, an all too-prevalent practice is the teaching of tear to children. He asserted that dread of approaching punishment in this world has frequently driven people to insane asylums and fear that holds impressionable minds within certain bounds is not conductive to good results. Love is the only bond that brings out all that is best in children as well as adults and with love paramount within them it is a certainty that their lives will be pledged to the Master's work.

Diverging his thoughts into other channels, Bishop Vincent said that worshippers attending church in the present day should have a deeper reverence for it. It is a fact and can be seen at almost every service, that members of a congregation will meet in pews and hold social conversation for several moments without any regard for the sanctity for the occasion or more than a passing thought of what their object was in coming. The church is God's house, he said, and when it is entered the time and thoughts should be given to Him. Worldly matters had better be left behind from the time the church is entered until it is left, or at least until the service is conducted. Then, he continued, social greetings or a few moments conversation would not interfere with God's spirit or holy prevalence.

In concluding, the bishop said that the same sentiment that actuates the building of a church should reflect

SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Job C. Kenyon, complainant, and Margaret J. Thomas et al., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above-stated writ of fieri facias to me directed I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Sheriff's office, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a point in the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road, distant thirty feet at right angles from the centre thereof, and in line of lands of the estate of Philip G. Voorhees, deceased; and running from thence with the line of that land, southerly six hundred and ninety-nine and twenty-six one-hundredths feet to a point in the northerly side line of Laramie road; thence with the northerly side line of Laramie road easterly two hundred feet to a point in the rear line of the Cameron avenue lots; thence to form a division line between the parties hereto northerly along the rear line of the Cameron avenue lots six hundred and seventy-eight and five one-hundredths feet to a point in the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road aforesaid thirty feet southerly from the centre thereof at right angles; thence with the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road westerly two hundred and one and twenty-six one-hundredths feet, more or less, to the point and place of beginning. Being lots numbered one hundred and thirty-two (132) to one hundred and thirty-eight (138), inclusive, and also lot number one hundred and seventy-three (173), on map entitled "Map of Laramie Park, situated in the city of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1905, F. J. Hubbard, civil engineer, Plainfield, N. J."

It is understood and agreed that no building shall be erected within forty (40) feet of the southerly side line of Randolph road, as above described, and that any building erected on any of the above-described property shall be erected for no other purpose than that of a private dwelling, and the cost thereof shall not be less than two thousand dollars.

Being the said premises conveyed to the said Ira L. La Rue by deed of Joshua D. Loizeaux, trustee, and wife, dated January 23, 1906, which deed is recorded in the Union County Clerk's office in book number 460 of deeds, pages 336, etc.

And the said party of the first part covenants and agrees for himself, his heirs and assigns, that he will lay out and open through the premises above described a street thirty feet from curb to curb, being an extension of Arlington avenue and running from the southerly side of Randolph road to the northerly side of a proposed street called Laramie road.

And it is agreed that neither the mortgagor nor the heirs or assigns of the mortgagors shall be entitled to any credit on the interest payable on this mortgage for the taxes which may be levied on the mortgaged premises or for any part of such taxes.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The Shuberts' big English musical comedy success, "The Earl and the Girl," with Alexander Clark and sixty other well-known singers, dancers and comedians, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield Theatre, tonight.

"The Lightning Conductor," in which Oscar Figman will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night is in three acts. In the first scene an automobile will be shown going at the rate of sixty miles an hour. The second scene shows the court yard of an inn in France. The third takes place in the tower of Tours, and the fourth scene is enacted in a hotel on the Riviera. The scenes are elaborate and are copied from photographs taken by Mr. Figman while abroad last summer.

The Kirke La Shelle production of "The Virginian," as dramatized from Owen Wister's fascinating story of the west, will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday night. "The Virginian" is a play of Western life, when men were men simply for the sake of being manly, and when life on the range meant a clear eye, a steady nerve and a conscience that was never bothered by the ethical niceties of civilization, but which always knew a duty and how to fulfill it. The hero of Owen Wister's novel has the essential qualities of a real man of the west, a cowpuncher as they were before the barbed wire fence came into use in the cattle country. "Nebrasky," "Honey" Wiggin, "Baldy," "Dollar Bill," Steve and Trampas are taken from life without idealization, and are transplanted from the book to the stage in a charming manner.

"The Flight of Princess Iris," What is it, is asked continuously by many persons in every city the company visits. It is not a melodrama but contains the sensationalism of one, and it is not a farce comedy but contains all the features and laughs. It is a spectacular fantastic comedy with more real laugh to the minute than any performance in America. It is presented with a high class company of competent artists and all special scenery and electrical effects. There is nothing just like it and it is bound to be the big hit of the season. The stars Mildred and Rouclere are the cleverest illusionary comedians on the stage and the entire performance is bright and breezy from start to finish. Fifteen specialty performers are carried. Their date here is for next Friday night at the New Plainfield Theatre.

A play thoroughly out of the ordinary, and yet constructed on interesting and plausible lines, will be seen for the first time at the New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday night, it is entitled "Lena Rivers," is in four acts and is dramatized by Beulah Poynter from Mary J. Holmes' famous novel. The play itself stirs a human chord in the breast of all, and as for tears, pathos and laughter it is fairly surfeited with it. Under the management of C. H. Packard, the production has been provided with a magnificent scenic outfit and the mechanical effects are very effective.

the beautiful spirit in the heart, for the one is essential to the other.

The complete program for the morning was as follows:

Organ prelude; processional: hymn 618, congregation standing; the Apostles' Creed, congregation standing; prayer (The Lord's Prayer chanted), Rev. George H. Whitney; anthem: "The Lord Is My Light," Parker; responsive reading: Psalm 42d Day, congregation standing; Gloria Patri; scripture lesson; offering; solo: "Me Was Despised," Handel; hymn 53, congregation standing, "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee;" sermon, the Rev. Bishop John H. Vincent, LL. D.; prayer; recessional: hymn 621, congregation standing, "Hark, Hark, My Soul!" benediction; organ postlude.

Bishop Vincent attended the session of the Sunday-school in Vincent chapel in the afternoon and addressed the pupils, as did Rev. Dr. Simpson, of Elizabeth. At the close of his remarks, Dr. Simpson presented the school with a picture, representing a scene in the Holy Land.

In the evening, the bishop again occupied the pulpit and spoke on the lives of Phillips Brooks and Dwight Moody in biographical form. He contrasted the birth of each; one with eight generations of ministers and college men before him, the other of humble parentage and unlettered antecedants, yet each possessed the wonderful magnetic power and keen insight to human nature that made them factors in the religious world and enrolled their names on immortality's pages. He recounted Brooks' great work and its effects on the world as a whole and lauded him as one who had applied all his talents to the uplifting of mankind.

Moody, the bishop said, was preeminent for his common sense and had be taken up a business career instead of using his power to bring men to God, he would have been a millionaire. Moody and Robert Ingersoll were born about the same time and both had the same mastery of men but after that the contrast ended; their powers were used for diverse purposes and different aims.

The lives of both Phillips and Moody, the speaker concluded, were the kind that inspire men to higher aims and the work they began and continued as long as they remained on earth is still going on and accomplishing what they planned.

This was the evening's program: Organ prelude; processional: hymn 612, "Jerusalem the Golden," congregation standing; prayer; the Lord's Prayer chanted; anthem, "O Zion, That Tellest Good Tidings," Buck; responsive reading: Psalm 42d day, p. m., congregation standing; Gloria Patri; scripture lesson; offering; solo: "O Divine Redeemer," Gounod, Miss Bertha VanN. Willis; violin obligato by Mrs. W. K. Swartz; hymn 525: "My Jesus As Thou Wilt," congregation standing; sermon, the Rev. Bishop Vincent, LL. D.; prayer; recessional: hymn 626, "I Saw the Holy City," congregation standing; benediction; organ postlude.

FACTS FROM FRANCE.

Nearly the entire freight traffic on the Rhone River, France, is controlled by one company.

Although both the Rhone and the Saone Rivers flow through the French City of Lyons, there are not over ten motor boats in use.

Estimates of the production of wine in France this year count on a vintage of $1,166,000,000 gallons. Fully 1,100,000,000 gallons will be consumed by the French at home.

The commutation by President Fallieres of the death sentence upon Soleiliant pronounced by the Seine assize court to penal servitude for life is regarded both by the legal profession and by the public as the final abolition in France of capital punishment.

THE FORUM.

Bill Board Nuisance.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The action of the Town Improvement Association with reference to the extent and unsightliness of the bill boards of our city deserves the co-operation of all right-minded Plainfielders. Any stranger, having heard of the beauty of this place, is sure to receive a mental shock if he descends to the street by the Watchung avenue stairways of the North Avenue station. He is there confronted by a double story structure twenty feet in height and one hundred in length, covered with gaudy pictures, more or less objectionable as to character, and stretching along at either side as he turns into Fourth street, are repetitions of the same sort of thing. Is it strange if this exhibition stamps his opinion of the taste (or lack of it) of our community?

Other cities are awakening to the necessity of restricting this nuisance. In Cincinnati, the Art Committee of the Business Men's Club has requested the users of certain boards, "in the name of civic beauty," to abandon that method of advertising, and already agreements have been made not to renew contracts affecting at least one hundred and fifty bill boards. In certain cities of Europe, the municipal government controls the size of each bill board, and limits the number of such in any given place. That our Common Council, now doing so much to improve and beautify our city, will include this matter in their discussions, is much to be desired.

AN OLD RESIDENT.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young People's Association of the First Baptist church is planning for an entertainment to be held soon.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church, will hold a meeting in Vincent chapel, Friday night, followed by a social.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will meet at the chapel tomorrow night. The Junior Endeavorers will meet in the afternoon.

The mission study classes, of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church have resumed their work for the winter.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. Rev. George B. Shaw will teach the lesson and Miss Nettie Beeching will speak on the topic, "Exercises of the Sunday-school."

"In Upper Egypt and Nubia," a superbly illustrated narrative of a trip to the land of the Pharaohs, will be given for the benefit of St. Peter's Lutheran church, on Grove street, Wednesday night. The lecture will be given at the church by Dr. C. E. Moldenke, who is an exceedingly interesting speaker.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church is planning to hold two dinners during the coming winter, the first to be held on Friday night, November 8, when Rev. Dr. Whittaker, of Elizabeth, will be the speaker. The other dinner will be held in February. Other entertainments will also be held frequently.

PRETTY SCHOOL TEACHER BECOMES CHORUS GIRL

Miss Marion Standish, a school teacher, has at last been able to gratify a life-long ambition to go on the stage. She and her sister have been engaged for the "Tom Jones" Company, and will make their first professional appearance in the chorus, when the show makes its first American appearance at the New Plainfield Theatre, on Thursday night, October 31.

The Standish sisters live in Stamford, Conn., where for the last two years Marion had been a teacher in the third grade at the Cove school. Her parents had her educated for a teacher in the hope that she might give up thoughts of the stage, which had early possessed her; but now they have concluded that she would never be satisfied until she had tried theatrical life. They attached one condition to her going on the stage—her sister must go with her.

Together the sisters set out to look for an engagement. They had much to recommend them; Marion had been a soloist in St. John's Roman Catholic Church at Stamford. Jessie had sung much in public and both girls had been prominent in amateur theatricals. The first manager they applied to was being impressed with their excellent voices, intelligence and dramatic ability.

Marion at once resigned her position as teacher. F. W. Nichols, principal of the school and eight other teachers, presented a handsome diamond pin as a parting gift to Miss Standish, and the Board of Education told her that if she found she did not care to stick to the stage, her position in school would be open for her at any time.

NEW YORK CITY.

In the men's clubs of New York city there is spent $100,000 a day.

If each New Yorker gets his proportion of the rides taken on the city's railways he has 334 rides a year.

DON'T MISS THEM!
Potatoes 85c bushel

delivered direct from car at freight yards. When I say bushel I mean the old-fashioned way of measuring in a standard half-bushel measure, not peach basket measure or sacks and barrels, where you get only two and three-quarter bushels for three.

Everyone knows that the potato crop is short this year and the price will advance considerable in a short time. You can't afford to miss this chance of getting smooth, good eating potatoes for winter use. Do not waste time in placing your order as these potatoes will not last long at the price I am quoting them and I positively cannot procure another car to sell at this price.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

"Scotland, as seen by a Scotchman" is to be the subject of an illustrated lecture by Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton, at Friendship Hall, New Market, tonight. The slides include about one hundred views of the Scotch country, showing the manners and customs of the people, and Mr. Dorward, himself a Scotchman, will tell about the people. The lecture is for the benefit of New Market Grange and there has been a big advance sale of tickets.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the Presbyterian church, preached the last of his series of sermons to young people at the evening service last night. His topic was "Young People in Religion." The sermon was to have been given a week ago, but on that occasion, Rev. George H. Trull, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Sunday-school, was the speaker, so the sermon was postponed.

Many of the Dunellen students who attend the Plainfield High School were present at the school reception to the Freshman class held Saturday night. The evening was passed in playing games and dancing.

Rev. George H. Gardner, the new pastor of the First Baptist church, preached for the first at the morning service yesterday. There was a large congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beck, of Elizabeth, are spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Beck's mother, Mrs. Emma Baldwin.

The Farther Lights Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held a regular meeting in the lecture room Saturday night.

Miss Josephine Dunbar has returned after spending a few days as the guest of her sister in New York City.

The G. E. Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Day, tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The case of Gailski against Anderson for abusive language and disorderly conduct which originated on Tuesday last at the auction sale on the Van Ness premises, was brought before Judge Smith on Saturday. The defendant acknowledged the mistake of his accusations against Mr. Gailski, and apologized to him for his behavior and which being satisfactory to the complainant, the charge was withdrawn, upon the payment of the costs by the defendant.

Peter Reilly is building an addition to his house for the purpose of opening a small notion store.

Mr. and Mrs. Laramo, of Western New York State, are visiting Mrs. William Manning.

A fish market will soon be opened in Patrick Kane's store, next door to his house.

Miss Emma Manning has returned from a visit to her sister at Asbury Park.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local baseball team ended its season Saturday afternoon, by defeating the Mono F. C., of Plainfield, by a score of 9 to 2. The visitors were padded for the occasion, having Craft of the High Bridge team in the box, the balance of the team being composed of Westfield, Plainfield and Dunellen players. Frentz was in good form, allowing the visitors but one hit and striking out seven men. Craft was touched for four hits and fanned six of the 'Plains' batters. The visitors only scoring was done in their half of the third inning. Frentz hit the first man up, walked the second, and a short fly to centre field which Frentz fumbled allowed two runs to score. Following is the line-up and score by innings:

The game Saturday although marking the closing game of the season was attended by one of the smallest crowds the local club has had only the regular cranks braved the chilly weather and were found on the rooting line.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class room of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alberts, of Westfield avenue, are the parents of a son, born Saturday afternoon.

The members of the B. Y. O. U. held their weekly meeting last night in the parlors of the church.

Mrs. George Harper and children have returned from a week's visit with relatives in Brooklyn.

Daniel T. Hendrickson spent the week-end with his family at Port Monmouth.

BASKING RIDGE.

Rev. John E. Hancock has been visiting for several days at New Germantown where he went to officiate at the funeral of Mrs. Emeline M. Melick, a great-granddaughter of the late Rev. Samuel Kennedy, who was one of the early pastors of the Presbyterion church in Basking Ridge.

Mrs. Joseph Cochran, who recently returned from the Presbyterian mission in Persia, spoke last evening in the Presbyterian church.

IN PRAISE OF THE BORE.

One Man Rises to Defend an Unpopular Character.

Stevenson has apologized for the idlers and the thieves and the cannibals, but even that most charitable of men had never a good word to say for the bore. Neither in life nor in literature have we ever found a man bold enough to speak well of him; the crook may be forgiven, but the bore never is. Poor devil! How all the world is against him! And yet this is scarcely just; for in his way he is an excellent thing; an honest creature. He is what he is. God made him a bore; he struggles not against his destiny, but a bore he remains; there is less of hypocrisy about him than about other men; he conceals nothing from his neighbor that interests himself; out of the kindness of his heart he passes on his own experience; he is generous of himself; he has a message, and if the hints of his hearers should cause him to abate one syllable of it he would feel that he had been false to his mission; the little insincerities with which more ignoble men jolly the hours along are beneath him. Look at his motives and you will see that he is unjustly used; we all of us know him, and we should treat him with more charity, for upon occasion we have all been he. —Don Marquis, in Uncle Remus's Magazine.

He Got the Job.

A traveler just returned from Japan tells the following story: A mercantile firm in Tokio, having extensive commercial relations with the United States, was desirous of engaging the services of a translator. Many applicants replied to the firm's advertisement, but one of the necessary qualifications was the ability to speak the English tongue in the vernacular, which qualification proved to be a stumbling block to most of the applicants for the position. Finally one appeared who had received his education in the United States, and on being asked if he was well versed in the vernacular, he replied, "Sure, Mike!" He secured the position.

To Keep Flowers Fresh.

"If you want to bring flowers in town from the country," said the girl who goes out occasionally, "don't bring them in your hand. If it takes you two hours to come in they will never revive, no matter how much water you put on them after you get here. Take a pasteboard shoe box, lay wet paper in it, put the flowers in, sprinkle them well, and put another layer of paper over them. Just bring them home with you and they'll keep fresh and sweet in your flat or studio for the longest kind of a time."

The Locksmith's Chance.

On the park bench sat two lovers. The passing locksmith dropped his kit and laughed long and uproariously. "Why do you laugh?" asked the park policeman. "Oh, just to get even," confided the locksmith. "You know love always laughs at locksmiths, so I thought it would be a good chance for the locksmith to laugh at love." And then the old man laughed himself out of sight.

Brilliant Display.

The Romeo of 1910 gently steered his air yacht to the vine-covered balcony. "Darling," he whispered, romantically, "I can see a dozen stars." "Do be careful, Romeo," cautioned the fair Juliet, as she picked a rose from her Marcel wave. "If pa comes out you will see a thousand stars." And even then the old gentleman could be heard hunting for his cane.

A Harsh Reminder.

"Of course," said the serene statesman, "I am the logical candidate." "Perhaps," answered Senator Sorghum. "But you want to remember that when it comes to tallying up votes, it's mathematics and not logic that counts."

SAVE THE BABY

from the croup, and relieve the spasms of whooping cough.

"Dr. Drake's German Cough and Croup Remedy"

is a guaranteed remedy for croup, whooping cough and colds. One dose will relieve the heavy labored breathing of croup; gives the child relief and sleep. Whooping cough is a stubborn and annoying disease but it yields quickly to Drake's German Syrup, given four times a day it lessens the frequency and violence of the coughing spells.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes

Collector's Office, City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said city, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any part or parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and six remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature of this State, entitled: "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following is a list of the several tracts and parcels of lands to be sold, which shows the names of the delinquents, the supposed owners thereof as the names of the delinquent owners appear on the books of the taxing district, together with a statement of the wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the street in which each lot is situated, the block and lot number of each lot as they appear on the Official Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, and the amount due from each of the said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the twentieth day of December, 1906, to the day of sale, and the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz.: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

Sale Number.	Supposed owner or person to whom assessed.	Ward.	Block No. City Assessment Maps.	Lot No. City Assessment Maps.	Street or Avenue.	Year.	Amount of Tax.	Date from which interest will be added at 10 per cent. per annum to date of sale.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"I am not a murderer, Sir Andrew, believe me," he said; "you need not be alarmed. As a matter of fact, at this moment I am much more afraid of you than you could possibly be of me. I beg you please to be indulgent. I assure you, we meant no disrespect. We have been matching stories, that is all, pretending that we are people we are not, endeavoring to entertain you with better detective tales than, for instance, the last one you read, 'The Great Rand Robbery.'"

The Baronet brushed his hand nervously across his forehead.

"Do you mean to tell me," he exclaimed, "that none of this has happened? That Lord Chetney is not dead, that his Solicitor did not find a letter of yours written from your post in Petersburg, and that just now, when he charged you with murder, he was in jest?"

"I am really very sorry," said the American, "but you see, sir, he could not have found a letter written by me in St. Petersburg because I have never been in Petersburg. Until this week, I have never been outside of my own country. I am not a naval officer. I am a writer of short stories. And to-night, when this gentleman told me that you were fond of detective stories, I thought it would be amusing to tell you one of my own—one I had just mapped out this afternoon."

"But Lord Chetney is a real person," interrupted the Baronet, "and he did go to Africa two years ago, and he was supposed to have died there, and his brother, Lord Arthur, has been the heir. And yesterday Chetney did return. I read it in the papers."

"So did I," assented the American soothingly; "and it struck me as being a very good plot for a story. I mean his unexpected return from the dead, and the probable disappointment of the younger brother. So I had decided that the younger brother had better murder the older one. The Princess Zichy I invented out of a clear sky. The fog I did not have to invent. Since last night I know all that there is to know about a London fog. I was lost in one for three hours."

The Baronet turned grimly upon the Queen's Messenger.

"But this gentleman," he protested, "he is not a writer of short stories; he is a member of the Foreign Office. I have often seen him in Whitehall, and, according to him, the Princess Zichy is not an invention. He says she is very well known, that she tried to rob him."

The servant of the Foreign Office looked unhappily at the Cabinet Minister, and puffed nervously on his cigar.

"It's true, Sir Andrew, that I am a Queen's Messenger," he said appealingly, "and a Russian woman once did try to rob a Queen's Messenger in a railway carriage—only it did not happen to me, but to a pal of mine. The only Russian princess I ever knew called herself Zabrisky. You may have seen her. She used to do a dive from the roof of the Aquarium."

Sir Andrew, with a snort of indignation, fronted the young Solicitor.

"And I suppose yours was a cock-and-bull story, too," he said. "Of course, it must have been, since Lord Chetney is not dead. But don't tell me," he protested, "that you are not Chudleigh's son either."

"I'm sorry," said the youngest member, smiling in some embarrassment, "but my name is not Chudleigh. I assure you, though, that I know the family very well, and that I am on very good terms with them."

"You should be!" exclaimed the Baronet; "and, judging from the liberties you take with the Chetneys, you had better be on very good terms with them, too."

The young man leaned back and glanced toward the servants at the far end of the room.

"It has been so long since I have been in the Club," he said, "that I doubt if even the waiters remember me. Perhaps Joseph may," he added. "Joseph!" he called, and at the word a servant stepped briskly forward.

The young man pointed to the stuffed head of a great lion which was suspended above the fireplace.

"Joseph," he said, "I want you to tell these gentlemen who shot that lion. Who presented it to the Grill?"

Joseph, unused to acting as master of ceremonies to members of the Club, shifted nervously from one foot to the other.

"Why, you—you did," he stammered.

"Of course I did!" exclaimed the young man. "I mean, what is the name of the man who shot it? Tell the gentlemen who I am. They wouldn't believe me."

"Who are you, my lord?" said Joseph. "You are Lord Edam's son, the Earl of Chetney."

"You must admit," said Lord Chetney, when the noise had died away, "that I couldn't remain dead while my little brother was accused of murder. I had to do something. Family pride demanded it. Now, Arthur, as the younger brother, can't afford to be squeamish, but personally I should hate to have a brother of mine hanged for murder."

"You certainly showed no scruples against hanging me," said the American, "but in the face of your evidence I admit my guilt, and I sentence myself to pay the full penalty of the law as we are made to pay it in my own country. The order of this court is," he announced, "that Joseph shall bring me a wine-card, and that I sign it for five bottles of the Club's best champagne."

"Oh, no!" protested the man with the pearl stud, "it is not for you to sign it. In my opinion it is Sir Andrew who should pay the costs. It is time you knew," he said, turning to that gentleman, "that unconsciously you have been the victim of what I may call a patriotic conspiracy. These stories have had a more serious purpose than merely to amuse. They have been told with the worthy object of detaining you from the House of Commons. I must explain to you, that all through this evening I have had a servant waiting in Trafalgar Square with instructions to bring me word as soon as the light over the House of Commons had ceased to burn. The light is now out, and the object for which we plotted is attained."

"HE DROPPED ON HIS KNEES BEFORE THE FIREPLACE."

The Baronet glanced keenly at the man with the black pearl, and then quickly at his watch. The smile disappeared from his lips, and his face was set in stern and forbidding lines.

"And may I know," he asked icily, "what was the object of your plot?"

"A most worthy one," the other retorted. "Our object was to keep you from advocating the expenditure of many millions of the people's money upon more battleships. In a word, we have been working together to prevent you from passing the Navy Increase Bill."

Sir Andrew's face bloomed with brilliant color. His body shook with supposed emotion.

"My dear sir!" he cried, "you should spend more time at the House and less at your Club. The Navy Bill was brought up on its third reading at eight o'clock this evening. I spoke for three hours in its favor. My only reason for wishing to return again to the House to-night was to sup on the terrace with my old friend, Admiral Simons; for my work at the House was completed five hours ago, when the Navy Increase Bill was passed by an overwhelming majority."

The Baronet rose and bowed. "I have to thank you, sir," he said, "for a most interesting evening."

The American shoved the wine-card which Joseph had given him toward the gentleman with the black pearl.

"You sign it," he said.

THE END.

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

The One and Only Square Pot

Patented
Makes
easily the most powerful heaters ever constructed.

Look at the fire pot of a furnace from a practical point of view. Figure out for yourself which is better, the old-fashioned round fire pot that balks and clogs, giving imperfect combustion and wasting fuel, or the patent Square Pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces.

With this construction there are no slanting sides to gather ashes, no possibility of clogging, no necessity of raking. The grate bars operate under the entire fire bed, insuring thorough cleaning and quick combustion.

Noticeably economical in fuel. Easiest to regulate and care for. The ash-pit is large and square—handy to clean and giving increased draught.

Remember these most important improvements are found only in Boynton Square Pot Furnaces. Have your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith tell you about them.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

REINHART CAPTURES CUP

Winner of Golf Committee Trophy at Plainfield Country Club.

A LARGE FIELD OUT

Park Club Team Defeats Middlebrook Country Club Members, Score Being 18 to 12.

Frank O. Reinhart is the winner of the Golf Committee Cup at the Plainfield Country Club for this season. He finished first on Saturday thereby adding three points to his standing and giving him the cup. The competition for this trophy will be concluded with next Saturday's play. There was a large field out Saturday, although many did not return scores. The leading scores returned for the Golf Committee cup and point winners follow:

Frank O. Reinhart, 84, 4—80; Frank Talmadge, 87, 6—81; Roger F. Murray, 92, 11—81.

These scores were posted for the Green Committee cup:

Hugh F. Fox, 99, 20—79; C. C. Burke, sr., 101, 14—87; George E. Catcart, 99, 10—89.

There was also the final play for the autumn cups, Classes A and B. In class A, E. T. Wilson, 13, beat Dudley H. Barrows, 4, 1 up, and in class B, Le Roy H. Gates, 27, beat A. G. Henderson, 19, 1 up in 21 holes.

The chief event at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was the team match between the Parks and the Middlebrook Country Club. The home members gave the visitors a severe drubbing, the score being 18 to 2. This was the third and deciding match, the Parks winning two. The visiting team was simply outclassed and had no show to win. The best match was that between Willets Gano and L. R. Thurlow, in which the former won by 2 up. The Plainfielder put up an exceedingly god game and almost won his match. The summary:

Parks—L. R. Thurlow, O. S. St. John McCutchen, 3; C. A. Reed, 3; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 3; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 3; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 0; Charles B. Morse, 1; W. V. Byard, 3; Reuben Knox, 2. Total, 18.

Middlebrook C. C.—Willets Gano, 2; Edward ePttit, 0; George Smalley, 0; C. Byer, jr., 0; W. J. Culp, 0; R. Suydam, 0; W. E. Sperling, jr., 0; H. L. Moore, 0; Ralph Whiting, 0. Total, 2.

These scores were returned for the President's, Golf Club and October cups:

S. St.John McCutchen, 96, 18—83; C. A. Reed, 97, 12—85; Rev. C. L. Godrich, 96, 11—85; W. V. Byard, 101, 9—92; L. R. Thurlow, 110, 14—96; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 107, 8—99; C. B. Morse, 110, 7—103.

COMMERCE ELEVEN WON IN LAST MINUTE OF PLAY

Scored against in the last minute of play through a blocked punt which gave their opponents the ball on their 25-yard line, the city High School eleven lost to the second team of the New York High School of Commerce on Hope Common Saturday. The score was 6-0.

Playing high-class football in the first half, the local eleven, though outweighed, kept their opponents from scoring and when time was called were on Commerce's 8-yard line. Lyness was High School's best ground gainer on plays through the left side of Commerce's line. The forward pass was used against and again, but with only medium success. Several times the local school boys made gains by use of the short punt. They held Commerce for downs on their 5-yard line early in the half, when the visitors had shoved the ball to within striking distance by line punching tactics.

In the second half the play was poorer and the local team showed less judgment in running off the plays. The poor policing of the field, which at times allowed the crowd to almost surround the players, was a handicap to both teams. With a minute to play High School lost the ball on a blocked punt on their 25-yard line. A forward pass put Commerce within striking distance, and Hambrock was sent through the High School line for the touchdown. Boyle kicked the goal.

Loizeaux, who was hurt in the Westfield game, was in the game at quarterback. His tackling was a feature, in two cases preventing touchdowns, and his punting was consistent. Lyness and Loizeaux proved the best grounds gainers. For Commerce, the punting of Boyle was a feature. Captain White ran the team well at quarter. It was the team's first game and they showed the effects of good coaching. The summary:

P. H. S.—Doane, le; Fountain, lt; Morris, lg; Burke, c; Sewell, rg; Hammond, rt; Phillips, re; Loizeaux, qb; Murphy (captain), lhb; Caldwell, rhb; Lyness, fb.

Commerce Second—Boyle, le; Ryan, lt; Mann, lf; Carroll, c; Rosenfeld, rg; Schanwanka, at; Keegan, re; White (captain), qb; Soss, lhb; W. Clarke, Meyer, rhb; Hambrock, fb. Referee—Lindsey Best, of P. H. S. Umpire—Arthur Hall, of Commerce, and George Bentley. Linesmen—Hall, of Commerce, and Davis, of P. H. S. Timer—Rockwell. Twenty and fifteen minute halves.

COUNTRY CLUB PLAYERS BEAT ELIZABETH AT TENNIS

Winning both matches in doubles and breaking even in the singles, the Plainfield Country Club tennis team beat the team from the Elizabeth Town and Country Club for matches to two on the local courts Saturday afternoon. The courts were in excellent condition and the play fast. The day's best match was between Harry Cochran and A. D. Beers, of the local team, and H. McK. Glazebrook and Dean Mathey, of Elizabeth. It was a three set match, the first two of which went to deuce. The Elizabeth pair took the first, 7-5, after hard playing, by superior work at the net. With the second set at deuce Cochran and Beers took two straight games and the set. In the last set of the match, the local pair won, 6-1, being fresher and faster than their opponents. The matches resulted as follows:

Singles—W. B. Cragin, Plainfield, beat Miles Charlock, Elizabeth, 6-4, 6-3; H. McK. Glazebrook, Elizabeth, beat Albert D. Beers, Plainfield, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1; Dean Mathey, Elizabeth, beat Harry J. Cochran, Plainfield, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2; Will Crespo, Plainfield, beat H. H. Foster, Elizabeth, 6-4, 4-6, 61.

Doubles—Harry J. Cochran and Albert D. Beers, Plainfield, beat H. McK. Glazebrook and Dean Mathey, Elizabeth, 57, 7-5, 6-1; William B. Cragin and W. P. Claypole, Plainfield, beat Miles Charlock and H. H. Foster, 6-2, 6-2.

D. H. Barrows Wins Second Cup.

Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the national champion, added another cup to his collection by defeating Max Behr, of Morris County, 3 up and 1 to play in the final round of the open tournament at the Baltusrol Golf Club, Saturday. Dudley H. Barrows defeated T.T. Reid, of Montclair, in the final match for the second cup, while in the third division J. O. Gordon, of South Orange, beat George Bowley, of Deal. C. B. Storrs won the fourth cup. In the handicap event, Dudley Barrows returned a score of 85, 5—80; C. B. Morgan, 93, 8—85 and L. D. Rossire, 103, 9—94.

Ellis Knowles Wins Championship.

Ellis Knowles, of ale, beat Ralph Peters, jr., of Princeton, by 2 up and 1 to play, in the thirty-six hole final round of the eleventh annual individual championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Golf Association on Saturday at Garden City. Experts pronounce the match the best ever played by collegians in this country. Knowles was 1 up in the morning, scoring 74 to Peters' 75, and both had 78 for the afternoon round.

Amrights Lose to Rahway.

The Amright Bowling team of this city, went to Rahway Friday night, and lost three games in a series of five with the Rahways on McCarthy's alleys. A return match will be played on Campbell's alleys, November 1.

Y.M.C.A. ENDS BASEBALL SEASON WITH VICTORY

It was a frosty air for baseball Saturday, but there was a snowstorm at Crescent Oval, and the nine from the Brooklyn Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A. was snowed under by the local association nine. The local team hit safely seven times, one a beautiful two sack welt by Martin, and the four errors by the visitors came at propitious times to swell the run total.

The local ball players only came to bat seven times and were shut out but two innings, when the visitors pulled off sensational double plays. Eight times did Brooklyn batsmen face Scott but with two exceptions, only three at a time. The Y. M. C. A. put lots of pepper in their playing and fans say they showed up to their best advantage in this, the wind-up game of the local season. Their errr column was unspotted. Six of the men who faced Scott were called out because they could not connect, and Weaver's slow ball fooled five of the local batsmen. The summary:

Plainfield Y. M. C. A.—Schoonmaker, ss; O'Loughlin, c; Craig, 1b; Martin, 3b; Banks, lf; Gilmore, 2b; Payne, cf; Hubbard, rf; Scott, p.

DRIVER HURT WHEN TROLLEY HITS WAGON

Car 1901 of the Public Service main line, going east on West Front street at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, struck a delivery wagon belonging to Elmer W. Mills, near Compton avenue. John Young, the driver, was pitched into the street and was cut about the head and face. The ambulance was called but he refused to go to the hospital when it arrived. The wagon was badly wrecked but the horse escaped injury.

Neils Nelson, of Dunellen, motorman of the car, declared in a statement to Chief Kiely, that Young had been driving toward him on the right side of the street but turned to go across the tracks when only ten feet away. He reversed the power and sought to avoid the collision but it was impossible. The front of the car was somewhat damaged.

FOLEY REAPPEARS.

Sub-Contractor On His Job In Plainfield Once Again.

William Foley, to whom was sublet the contract for laying the brick pavement here by Contractor C. M. Meeker, returned to Plainfield this morning and started work on Park avenue. It is more than likely that his men will have to relay brick placed in position by less experienced men.

Mr. Foley explained to Mr. Meeker that he was busy on another big contract and did not think it was necessary that he should hurry back to Plainfield. Mr. Foley said that it would not pay him to keep a gang of men here continually unless there was work for them to do.

State Synod Sessions.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, together with the lay delegates from both churches left this morning for Atlantic City to attend the 88th annual meeting of the Synod of New Jersey, which convenes in Olivet church, that city, tonight. The choice of the new moderator falls to the presbytery of Morris and Orange this year, and it is said that Rev. Dr. William Halloway, of Dover, will be named.

—The P. S. C. will not install new rails on West Front street as was first planned, the present ones being in good condition. New fish plates are being used prior to the laying of the brick pavement.

OBITUARY.

John E. Wilbee.

John E. Wilbee, the four months-old son of Frederick D. and the late Rosa Wilbee, died yesterday at the father's home on East Third street.

Mrs. Mary Stowers Lewis.

Mrs. Mary Stowers Lewis, widow of George C. Lewis, died this morning at the home of her son-in-law, Councilman D. F. Ginna, of Watchung avenue. Her home was formerly in Binghamton, N. Y., but she had lived with her daughter for many years.

Match Head Starts Fire.

A blaze in a bedroom in the home of Frank Whitten, at East Seventh street and Franklin place, Saturday afternoon, caused a loss of $300 on the house and $200 on contents, covered by insurance. The fire was caused by a boy in the family dropping a match head on the carpet as he was lighting the gas. In tossing things from the bedroom, the firemen threw out a bag of jewelry worth $300 that Mrs. Whitten had left beneath a pillow. Only part of the trinkets were found afterward.

Scott Employe Injured.

Alexander Miller, 35 years old, was injured in the Scott shop at 1.15 this afternoon by the falling of a portable crane. He was treated by Dr. Pittis and then removed by auto to his home on the Springfield road near Scotch Plains.

Rev. Mr. Craig will speak at the prayer meeting in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Wednesday night.

Communion services were held at Marconnier chapel yesterday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. J. T. Lansdale, being in charge, assisted by Elder G. Q. Dolliver and Deacons A. K. Willett, of Trinity Reformed Church.

SYNOD SESSIONS BEGIN

Eighty-fourth Meeting of New Jersey Presbyterians Today.

AT ATLANTIC CITY

Recommendations Are Made On Excise—Report On the Pension Plan.

The eighty-fourth annual session of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey convened last night in Olivet church, Atlantic City, last night. This is the fifth synod meeting at Atlantic City in the last twelve years, and it will be the second meeting in Olivet, the first in that particular edifice having occurred in 1901. The choice of the new moderator falls to the Presbytery of Morris and Orange this year, and it is said the Rev. Dr. William W. Halloway, of Dover, will be named. The last moderator elected from that presbytery was Dr. Albert Erdman, of Morristown, when the synod met in 1898 at Asbury Park.

Naturally much interest is felt in the forthcoming report of the committee on special legislation, of which the Rev. Joseph Howell ,of Beverly, is the head. This committee has been active in the current excise problem and the "bishops' bill" may received some attention. Coming on the eve of the election, unequivocal action on excise matters will develop added interest and discussion, particularly as both of the big party candidates are members of the Presbyterian denomination. Candidate Katzenbach is the superintendent of the Sunday school of the Fourth Presbyterian church, of Trenton, of which Rev. Dr. Hugh B. Macauley, formerly of Newark, is pastor, and Candidate Fort belongs to the Munn Avenue Church, East Orange.

There are at present in the synod two committees on temperance, the permanent committee, of which Dr. William V. Louderbough, of Salem, is chairman, and the special committee, of which Mr. Howell is chairman. There is some talk of laying the responsibility of the special work regarding legislation upon the permanent committee, of which Chairman Howell is also a member.

The synod for several years past has convened Monday evenings instead of Tuesday mornings, and his earlier assembling has permitted adjournment usually on the Wednesday afternoon following. This evening is the time for hearing the sermon of the retiring moderator, the observance of the communion service, the reading of the narrative or of the necrology, and the election of the moderator. Dr. I. Alstyne Blauvelt, of Roselle, is the retiring moderator to be heard this year.

This morning the reports of committees were given. A special committee on sustentation reported the chairman of which is Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, of Elizabeth. This committee presented something on the subject of the new sustentation, or pension plan, approved last spring by the general assembly. The plan provides an insurance for every minister who co-operates by paying yearly premiums. At the age of seventy, or upon being disabled for service, each participant will receive an amount not to exceed $500 yearly. Already more than 500 Presbyterian ministers throughout the country have qualified as participators in these benefits. Robert W. Peach, a member of Dr. Mott's committee, has, since his appointment, removed from the denomination and is now rector of Emanuel Reformed Episcopal Church of Newark.

The docket, as prepared by Dr. Walter A. Brooks, of Trenton, provides for a report on the Presbyterian Brotherhood by Dr. Robert S. Inglis, of Newark.

There is one less presbytery than last year in the synod. This is that of Havana, Cuba, which was taken out at the general assembly last May May at Columbus, O. There has been a new synod formed, known as the Synod of Florida, and Havana has been made a part of this. The presbyteries at present in the New Jersey Synod are Newark, Morris and Orange, Newton, New Brunswick, West Jersey, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Monmouth and Corsico, in West Africa. Corsico is missionary territory and is not represented, unless there is a missionary from that region home on furlough.

Spencer Had a Cold.

William Spencer, a West Ender, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a drunk charge. When asked for an explanation of his downfall he started out with: "Your Honor, Judge, I had a cold last night—" but a laugh from the bench caused him to stop. He was informed that the "two drinks for a cold" excuse was tabooed in the court and he could have his freedom without breaking the rules.

DESCRIBED CANAL CITY IN THE OLDEN DAYS

"The Story of Venice—The Middle Ages," was the subject of a highly interesting paper prepared and read by Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury before the Monday afternoon Club, yesterday. She treated the subject in an entertaining manner, touching the most important features. The meeting was held in the Congregational church, on account of the Casino being occupied with "The Gathering of the Clans." Following the paper by Mrs. Atterbury there was an informal discussion.

Current events proved an interesting and helpful feature and the rest of the afternoon was taken up by several members who related their summer experiences. The description of various trips to the mountains and seashore proved enjoyable and profitable. During a short business session Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, president; Mrs. Orton G. Dale and Miss Cahoone were appointed delegates to attend the annual conference of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Orange, October 25-26.

OFFICIALS TO ACCOMPANY FORT IN COUNTY'S TOUR

As told exclusively in The Daily Press, and denied by another paper, J. Franklin Fort, Republican nominee for governor, will make a whirlwind tour of Union county on Tuesday, October 29. The start will be made from Elizabeth at 9 o'clock in the morning and every cross roads will be invaded by the spellbinders, who will include beside the former Judge, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, County Chairman Frank H. Smith, Mayor C. J. Fisk, Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, Sheriff William Lawrence, Surrogate George Parrot, Assemblyman Peter Tillman, Mayor Furber, of Rahway, and many other county and municipal officials.

After leaving Elizabeth, the route will be through Lyons Farms, Union, Springfield, Mountainside, Summit, New Providence, Berkeley Heights, Scotch Plains, Plainfield, Westfield, Garwood, Cranford, Kenilworth and Roselle. At night speeches will be made at Rahway and Elizabeth. Luncheon will be served in Plainfield.

The campaigners will use ten automobiles and in the first will be a brass band, as told by The Daily Press exclusively.

"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

The Casino's Musical Comedy Success Pleases Local Audience.

"The Earl and the Girl," last year's Casion musical comedy success, was presented at the New Plainfield theatre to a large and appreciative audience last night. The company numbered seventy-five people and was headed by Alexander Clark, well remembered by Plainfielders for his clever work in "The Student King." The role of the bogus earl fits him splendidly and he made lots of fun out of the part.

Miss Clara Inge, as the "girl," was most delightful in the character and captivated the audience from her first appearance. She is a charming young miss and beside possessing a large share of good looks has natural talent and a pretty voice.

Had to Relay Brick Pavement.

The vitrified brick laid on Park avenue last Friday and aSturday by inexperienced men was taken up today and relaid by Contractor Foley. An investigation showed that the sand cushion was not evenly laid and this left many depressions in the brick. He decided last night that the brick must be relaid and arranged with Mr. Foley to do the work. The work of laying brick on Somerset street was started this morning. A portion of West Front street has been shut off to traffic while the concrete foundation is being laid.

Assaulted By Sam Hunt.

Andrew Rainey, colored, appeared before Judge Runyon in the city court today and preferred a charge of assault against Sam Hunt, also colored. The alleged offense followed an argument at Rainey's home on East Third street. Hunt is one of the men implicated in the borough police cutting affray three years ago and for which he received a six-months' sentence.

Entertained at Asbury Park.

IT WAS WARM INDOORS

But Minstrel Troupe Wore Overcoats for the Show Outside at the Fete.

"FOXY GRANDPA" FISK

Mayor Takes Part in Moving Pictures—More Dog For the Hot Dog Booth.

"Gol darn it, we are freezing,
We'll have a blizzard soon;
We're coughing and we're sneezing,
Out here beneath the moon.
If this keeps up much longer,
We'll none of use grow old;
That draught is growing stronger,
Gee whiz! ain't it cold!"

Such was the opening chorus the Gold Medal Minstrels sang in their tent on the Casino grounds, last night, where they have been giving shows in connection with "The Gathering of the Clans." They were among the few that ventured to combat frigid Nature and go on with their performances outside and their efforts were rewarded by another full house. Despite the chilling song at the opening, the audience took it all good-naturedly and they had to laugh for several minutes when the curtain arose.

The customary red and white uniforms of the Gold Medals were hidden behind fur capes, heavy ulsters or blankets and several of the artists had scarfs tied over their heads. The effect was ludicrous in the extreme and it was helped out by "gags" on the weather all through the show. One of the end men insisted on fanning himself, another expressed the wish that somebody would quarrel with him so that he could have a "heated" argument, and third substituted "In the Good Old Summertime" for his customary song. Withal the "kidding," the show went better than ever and the audience seemingly forgot it was cold. The tent will be heated by gas tonight and the troupe will be able to go back to its usual costuming.

The living pictures won the glad hand rattle again last night. There were some new subjects, among which was the presentation of George Wharton Edwards' latest whitewash brush masterpiece, "Foxy Grandpa." Mayor Fisk was in title role, elaborately made up and with "the smile that won't come off" taking the place of his cigar for the moment. Lew Timpson, with a pup, and Harry Hall, with a frankfurter on a fork, posed as "lucky dogs."

Right here it is perhaps well to give a word of warning. The hot dog men have taken into partnership Frank Stockton, because he has a daschund. The animal was on exhibition at the booth last night. It has that frankfurt-ive expression, and is said to be thorough-bread. It will supply rolls, on its back, for the business tonight. Lew calls it Lolita Weinerwurst, and it is considered mustard ettiquette to murmur this name before biting into a purchase at the booth if the dog is not in sight. An involuntary tremor from the depths of the roll should be at once reported, for the boys fear that the animal will get lost.

The chill, frosty air was too much for the pancake man, Joe Shellabarger, last night, so his booth was moved indoors. The measure was a good one, for the syrup got running so slow that much delay was caused by the booth. The other outdoor attractions will remain at their old stnds tonight and tomorrow, when the clans meet for the last time in the evening.

An attractinon to be overlooked is in charge of Edward Luzenberg. He is giving Ingersoll watches for ten cents and has been doing a land office business ever since the affair opened.

Chief Dougherty to Wed.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Agnes Kelly, of Clinton avenue, and William Dougherty, formerly of New Market, but now of Jersey City. Mr. Dougherty is chief of detectives of the New Jersey Central and is well-known in this city, where he has many warm friends. The ceremony will take place at St. Mary's church tomorrow afternoon. Father Bogan will officiate.

Report on Industrial Fair.

The committe which had charge of the recent fair held at Hope chapel met last night to settle accounts. Aside from the report from the entertainment committee, of which Judge Runyon was chairman, and which has not reported, it is believed that $800 will be realized as profit from the fair.

WATCHUNG MASS MEETING

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Somerset G. O. P. Candidates Address Voters.

FAVOR GOOD ROADS

Senator and Assemblyman Advocate Improved Highways—Mets and Kay Also Speak.

Coming to Watchung in Senator Frelinghuysen's automobile last night, the Somerset county candidates were present at an enthusiastic mass meeting held at Texier's Mills. Speeches were made by all the candidates and by the Senator himself, and the voters gave them all a cordial reception at the conclusion of the meeting.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of the county executive committee, presided at the meeting and first introduced Senator Frelinghuysen. The Senator spoke especially of his work at Trenton, dealing with the automobile bill and the good roads measures and the voting machines.

W. W. Smalley, candidate for assembly on the ticket this fall was next introduced. Smalley made a most favorable impression; he is strongly in favor of good roads through the county and spoke especially of the work to be done in the road appropriations. James Mets, the candidate for surrogate, also made a rattling good spech and was followed by Robert Kay, the candidate for sheriff. Both men were loudly applauded and party spirit was strong at the meeting.

The hall was decorated with American flags and there was a representative crowd. With the candidates were W. B. R. Mason and David Hastings, of Bound Brook. At the conclusion of the meeting, the candidates spent a social half hour at the hall, meeting the voters and informally talking over the issues of the campaign.

KNICKERBOCKER TRUST CLOSED ITS DOORS TODAY

In New York today The Knickerbocker Trust Company closed its doors and at the same time the officers posted a notice to the effect that the institution is perfectly solvent and that the closing is only temporary. Its deposits aggregate $60,000.

A run was started on the banking institution this morning and it is said that the officers realizing that they did not have a sufficient amount of ready cash to meet all demands, decided to close until matters could be adjusted.

The stock market today is wild and panicky. Union Pacific was quoted at 109¾, Southern Pacific at 67¼, Northern Pacific at 110½ and St. Paul at 103¾, representing a change from six to eight points in these stocks alone.

Caruso Case Still On.

The case of the estate of Raffale Caruso against the New Jersey Central, which wasbegun in the Union County court, yesterday, is still on today. It will probably not be finished before night. The suit is for $10,000 and is instituted by Raffale Tizzo, administrator for the estate.

Speaker Decided Upon.

T. B. Penfield, secretary of the Theological students' department of the Y. M. C. A. international committee, will be the speaker at the First Baptist church Sunday morning for the fortieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the association in this city.

Reception for Candidates.

County and borough Democratic candidates will meet the North Plainfield voters at Jeroloman's store, on Somerset street, tonight. This place has been secured as Democratic Headquarters by borough politicians.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold an informal social in Vincent chapel, tonight, the feature of which will be a marshmallow roast. All the members and friends of the league are invited.

BANQUET TO HORSE MEN

Mayor Smalley Toastmaster at Fair Acre Riding and Driving Club Feast.

AT HOTEL IROQUOIS

"Uncle Barney" Williams Tells of the Good Old Days On the Track—Good Fellowship in Bunches.

Good fellowship and a fine dinner combined to make the first annual banquet of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association, at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, a success. Covers were laid for forty-five and there were members of the association present from Cranford, Westfield, Somerville, Finderne, Bound Brook and this city. The success of the organization during the first year under the new regime was commented upon freely and the prospects for next year are particuarly bright. It has a membership of 101, and a substantial balance in the treasury.

The affair was an informal one and following the dinner, several speeches were made. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, was the toastmaster, and his witticism aroused much enthusiasm. Among the other speakers were President J. H. Senior, of Cranford; Vice President J. H. Greene, Jr., of Plainfield; Secretary R. L. Edwards, of Westfield; Treasurer Harry Evans, of Westfield; Adam C. Blair and "Uncle Barney" Williams.

As secretary of the old Union and Middlesex County Agriculture Association, under whose auspices fairs were held at the Plainfield Driving Park, Mr. Williams recalled many interesting incidents of the old days. He declared that the reason that the old track has always "made good" is that succeeding owners have paid the bills. In his opinion the great success attained this year by the association was entirely due to the earnest efforts of the members and their desire to conduct good clean sport.

Reference was made to the performance of "Prince" at the track on Saturday, when he broke the record with a 2:16¼. Mr. Williams then became reminiscent and recalled noteworthy performances of well-known thoroughbreds in past years, beginning with "Lady Suffolk's" 2:2½ in 1845; "Dexter's" 2:17¼; "Maud S.," who made 2:08¾, which was considered marvelous at the time.

In comparing horses of other days and those of today, Mr. Williams did not believe that there are very many who can now go ten miles or 100 miles in the time that was made by thoroughbreds of a few years ago. He urged that the association continue to conduct its races along the same lines as in the past, which means that the best horse will always win.

After a few remarks by some of the other members, declaring their allegiance to "Fair Acres," the banquet concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

The success of the banquet was largely due to the efforts of the committee of which David C. Smalley was chairman.

DUNELLEN PLACES ROBBED.

Sneak Thief Purloins $65 and a Gold Watch and Gets Away.

A sneak thief or thieves with cast iron nerve entered, two places in Dunellen yesterday afternoon and got $65 and a watch for the trouble.

The fellow first made his way into the home of Mrs. Lydia Vail, on the second floor of the Brakeley flats and ransacked a front room while Mrs. Vail was busy in the kitchen. He secured the watch and $40. Going downstairs he went next door and into the butcher shop of L. L. Block, which had been left in charge of a boy. The boy went to the back room for a nap and the thief took $15 from the till where he slumbered.

The fellow was seen to leave the Brakeley building and go into the shop but after that all trace of him was lost.

Robbers Invade Westfield.

Burglars entered the home of William C. Campbell, in Clark street, Westfield, early yesterday morning, and got away with $50 in money and silverware and a gold watch valued at $300. The robbery occurred about 3 o'clock.

Numerous burglaries occurred at Westfield last week, in which the burglars stole more than $1,000 in money and jewelry. The police think a lot of "second story" men came here at the end of the "Home Week" at Elizabeth, about two weeks ago.

Rasores Club Entertained.

Mrs. William C. Hubbell entertained the Rasores Club at Truell Hall this morning. After the meeting the members were invited to luncheon.

POLAK CASE HEARD THROUGH INTERPRETERS

With the aid of two interpreters and the stories of neighbors, Judge Runyon succeeded today in getting an explanation of the Polak wrangle on West Front street, Saturday, in which a dozen shots were exchanged between the participants.

The testimony narrowed down to the fact that Andrew Fello and his wife, who rent half the double house where the trouble occurred, were at the bottom of the affair. Landlord Amos Stites notified him that the rent would be increased after November 1 and he conceived the idea that the people in the other side of the house were responsible for the raise. He liquored up pretty well Saturday afternoon and then started in to make trouble. The mixup followed and the cops got Fello and four others.

When the case was called today all hands wanted to make complaint against somebody else but the court refused to take any. He ordered Fello to quit the house and go eyesewhere and he gave his promise that he would be out by 12 o'clock tonight. Landlord Stites testified that Fello was a troublesome tenant and that the others were well behaved.

LACK OF INTEREST FORT'S GREAT DANGER

Except in several of the northern counties, notably Essex and Hudson, the approaching election has excited very little interest. This is especially true in south Jersey, and this indifference on the part of the Republican voters is the greatest danger to the success of J. Franklin Fort.

Fort much depend largely upon the southern counties, all solid for him, but the voters, seeing everything safe in their own section, are liable to forget that in Essex and Hudson counties the saloon element is putting money and work in the campaign to elect Katzenbach. This vote for the Democratic candidate may elect him, unless the Republican vote in South Jersey is gotten out.

Another element of danger to Fort is the nomination of independent Republicans on Democratic tickets by the Democrats, who have no hopes of electing their men, but expect to use them in a trade for votes for Katzenbach.

The one great issue before the voters of the state is the excise question as found in the bishops' bill. Fort has declared himself unquestionably for this, while Katzenbach has refused to say where he stands, even when asked point blank in public meetings. In following this policy it is believed he has made a mistake.

At Republican headquarters yesterday figures were given out estimating Fort's plurality at 12,500. Essex county is claimed by 3,000.

Fort left Atlantic City last night and both candidates will devote their entire energies until the end of the campaign in the norther section of the state.

FOUR ARRESTS MADE AS COLORED TENANTS QUARREL.

Complaints from Jefferson avenue residents summoned Marshals Pope and Kiernan to the home of Walter Johnson again last night and the cops raided a quarrel in which half a dozen colored men and women were actively figuring when the officers arrived. The cops acted quickly and arrested three women and a man. The women gave their names as Mary and Emily Babbitt and Ella Cuff, and the man is Lewis Moon. The others escaped.

The house raided was the one where Johnson and Brown, who were in police toils last week, live, and the neighbors will complain of it as a disorderly house before Borough Recorder Dolliver tonight.

James Gethin Loses a Horse.

The loss of a valuable high-action chestnut hourse has been reported to the police by James Gethin, superintendent of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's show grounds. The animal broke out of his stall yesterday morning and got away before Mr. Gethin could get any trace of him. He thinks that possibly the horse has stopped at some farm in the country district and today he sent two men out to visit all the farms within a few miles of Plainfield. The animal is 15.2 hands and has only been in Mr. Gethin's charge a few days.

First Basketball Game.

The Y. M. C. A. team defeated the First Baptist five, who figured in the Sunday-school Athletic League last year, in the first basketball game of the season last night. The score was 46 to 13. The game was played at the Y. M. C. A. gym and the many association candidates present were given a tryout.

BROWN HAS BRAINSTORM

New Market Youth Who Stole Rigs Gives a "Fishy" Explanation.

FRIENDS INTERCEDING

Making Every Effort to Have the Charges Against Him Withdrawn—In Jail in New Brunswick.

Roy Brown, the New Market young man who stole a rig belonging to Adam Blair and later tried to get away with a runabout from the stable of Isaac Stout at Lincoln, getting caught in the act, gave a somewhat "fishy" explanation of his conduct when questioned at the New Brunswick jail yesterday. Though it inclines toward the "wierd" variety, Brown's friends assert that it is true and are making every effort to get him out of the scrape.

In his statement, Brown said he was on a "lark" Friday night, when the succession of events happened, and he borrowed a wheel from Harry Randolph, of this city, to go home. He was riding the machine along West Front street when he encountered Patrolman Dan McDonald and the officer thought he had stolen the mount. Brown conceived the idea that McDonald was going to arrest him because of his exuberant condition and took to Blair's rig as a means of escape, finding it tied to a post on Mariners place.

In an extremely hazy mood, Brown says, he continued on to Lincoln, where he discovered that a wheel of the wagon had been broken in the getaway. He stopped at Farmer Stout's place to get another one. He formerly worked for Stout, he says, and didn't think it necessary to ask for the wagon. He might have thought it necessary another time, but not Friday. Then he drove off and finally coursed off into Bound Brook fast asleep, with the horse looking out for itself.

A Bound Brook man, who knew him, got into the wagon and turned the horse back. Meanwhile Farmer Stout, not knowing who had taken his vehicle, had sworn out a warrant and when Brown and his Good Samaritan got back to Piscataway township, Brown was arrested and hustled to jail.

That's the story the prisoner tells but he is very much off the track. In the first place, Patrolman McDonald found him lying on the sidewalk near Captain Phillips' house on West Front street and when he roused him up was told by Brown that he lived across the street. The officer escorted him to the house indicated and assisted him up the porch, leaving him to open the door himself. The moment McDonald got back to the street, Brown darted around the side of the house and into Mariners place, where he appropriated Blair's rig.

William Hedley, who had hired the outfit, saw it disappearing into West Front street and set in pursuit on a bicycle. He caught up with the horse near Rock avenue and in his attempts to stop it was knocked down and quite badly hurt. Brown continued on to Lincoln, where he decided to get the Stout wagon because of a broken wheel on Blair's, and took it out of the stable. Like many other Piscataway farmers, Stout always removes a burr from one of the axles at night and the thief had barely gotten out of the yard when the wheel dropped off.

This accident was witnessed by Amos Stout, son of the owner, who had just left the house to go to his work at the Dewey Park car barns. He recognized the wagon and rushing out, hauled Brown from the wagon. He was brought back to the Stout kitchen and members of the family, with Constable Goble, of Lincoln, kept him prisoner there all night. In the morning he was taken before Justice LaRue at East Bound Brook and formally committed.

People who know Brown say that he is a well-behaved young man ordinarily and that his rig-stealing was brought about through intoxication. His particular friends have devoted the last two days to trying to get Blair and Stout to withdraw the complaints against him but the matter is now in the hands of the authorities.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1907.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 1.

BE IT RESOLVED (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Strike out the proviso in section three of article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, and at its first session after each United States decennial census thereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange the counties of this State into districts for the election therein of members of the General Assembly. Each assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory, in a compact form; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Errors and Appeals is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into assembly districts of the counties of this State, for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division or any part thereof is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void, the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

OFFICE OF THE STREET COMMISSIONER.

City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

To JOHN L. BREWSTER, or unknown owner of No. 700 to No. 706 East Seventh Street.

Pursuant to the requirements of Sections 3 and 6 of the ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance concerning the construction, mantenance and repair of sidewalks," approved April 10, 1899, amended by ordinances approved August 4, 1902, June 6, 1905, June 6, 1906.

You are hereby notified and required on or before December 1, 1907, to construct a sidewalk abutting on the premises owned by you, situate No. 700 to number 706 East Seventh Street, in the City of Plainfield, Union County, and State of New Jersey, which sidewalk shall be constructed of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner; the flags shall not be less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part.

In default of compliance herewith, the Common Council is authorized by law to order the required work to be done and paid for; to make the amount of the expense and cost a lien upon the said abutting lands in front of which said work is done, to be collected in the manner provided by law and to bear interest at the same rate as other assessments; or payment may be enforced by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided by the statute.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $8 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Oscar Figman will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight in "The Lightning Conductor," a play in which wit abounds and frolicsome fun runs riot. The story deals strongly with the strange adventures of a motor car, and from this fact alone many automobile clubs are attending the play in a body, and many a laugh they have as they watch the trials and tribulations of the chauffeur and his antiquated motor car.

"The Virginian," Owen Wister and the late Kirke La Shelle's dramatization of Mr. Wister's romance of Wyoming life, with a thoroughly competent company, assisted by a wealth of scenery, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. "The Virginian" is the best drama of Western life ever written. It holds the attention of the audience closely, its leading characters winning sympathy, laughter or hatred as the intent may be and all being up to the pretense. The cowboys and the women of the west are all as they are pictured in the book—live people, rough but sterling. The atmosphere is the rolling range, the cattle grazing and stampeding, the blue sky undimmed by a single chimney, the rocky pass, the camp fire, and the poker game on the grass-grown stump. Here is a relief from the restraint of crowded dwellings, from the stiff conventions of street and office, from the depression of club and drawing room. "The Virginian" leads us out of the prison life into the open country as God made it, and where man practises just enough deviltry to satisfy the rash instincts in us all.

Three hours of continuous laughter interrupted by gasps and surprises is a good definition of the effect of the entertainment given by Mildred and Rouclere in that glittering and bewildering fantasy, "The Flight of Princess Iris," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. You sit and look, and feel your hair rise in wonder and amazement at what they do and then you burst out into an uncomfortable ha-ha and before that ha-ha has fairly ceased they are again raising your hair and taking away your breath with some new wonder they are parading before your eyes and presto change, your sides are being tickled, once more the gladsome notes of a real laugh are issuing from your throat. They are wonderful and they are irresistable laugh-makers. They are artistically fantastic and fantastically artistic—and that is what has made them world famous. Specialties are introduced between the acts by Williams and Melburnin, the minstrel and the maid, Flatow and Dunn, the Fitzgibbon Family, Dick Leggett, Arthur Green, Mlle. Rene and The Geisha Girl Trio. All special scenery is carried for the production.

The dramatization of Mrs. Mary J. Holmes' "Lena Rivers," which has been finding so much favor, and which is to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and evening, is said to be cleverly arranged. Of course Lena is the central figure, and around her are grouped all of the characters of the book. There is dear old granny Nichols, pretty and jealous Caroline, the old maid, Nancy Scovendyke and Durward Belmont, the handsome young southerner. Then there are the two arch-plotters, Mrs. Graham, and Mrs. Livingstone; the witty old negro, Rastus, and his wife, Aunt Debbie, the unhappy yet withal, loving John Graham and Anna, the pretty sister of Caroline, Mrs. Graham moves through the piece, and so does the village bumpkin, Joel Slocum. These character sketches are all capitally drawn and equally well portrayed and the play promises to win even more success than did the book. It has much to commend it, inasmuch as it is clean and wholesome, tells a most interesting story, is replete with bright lines and quaint sayings, and has a delightful and refreshing atmosphere.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

When you want your house painted or papered give the contract to Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place. The work will be done right and you will not be overcharged.

Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers, are selling the best Jersey pork, as well as fresh meats, while their stock of hams is second to none in the market. Patronize this firm and save money.

These chilly days remind one of the necessity of securing an oil heater. The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company sells the best kind; also all kinds of hardware, housefurnishing goods, stoves and ranges, at reasonable prices.

The advent of colder weather makes one feel like getting warmer clothing. Weinberger, the West Front street clothier, has just what you want. His stock is large and complete, comprising the latest styles, best material, while the prices are reasonable.

—Edward S. Patterson's handsome new house now being erected on West Eighth street, will be inclosed this week, when the interior furnishings will be pushed rapidly.

—City Engineer Gavett is having all the water service pipes on Front street, in the business section, tested before the brick pavement goes down. In a majority of cases it has been necessary to install new pipes.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

John Hall, who is coaching the Yale ends, was on the Yale team of '97, which surprised Princeton by beating that aggregation of Tigers. While not as famous as some ends he was one of the best in the history of the game.

In the Amherst-Bowdoin contest one of the Bowdoin players was ruled out for slugging—the first instance of the kind reported this season.

Coach Roper, of Princeton, says Captain McCormick's plunging recalls Frank Butterworth, Yale's noted line breaker of the early '90s. It was said of Butterworth that he was the easiest man to get hold of and the hardest man to stop on the gridiron.

The Michigan Daily waxes sarcastic at the expense of Walter Eckersall and says: "And this same Eckersall is the one who attempted to tell Yost—who has forgotten infinitely more football than this young self-alleged critic ever dreamed of knowing—a few things about foot ball, one of which that Yost's idea of a forward pass is impracticable." Did he not admit that he was the greatest quarterback in the world? asks the Daily. If Eckersall admitted that he admitted the truth.

C. G. Osborn, the crack tackle of the Harvard varsity eleven last year, and now helping in developing this year's team, figured in an incident last year that showed that rarity in a hard game, a player with a sense of humor. In one scrimmage Osborn rammed through too soon and found himself offside. He ran smack into the umpire. "Pleased to meet you," he said to that official, and then he hurried back to his place in the line.

An explanation comes from Harvard regarding an incident of the Williams game, the same being the removal from the field of Coach Cutts for coaching from the sideline. "Cutts," says Head Coach Crane, "was following the game along the sidelines. He was watching the play keenly, and when Harvard made a mistake against which it had been cautioned he made a verbal expression of his disgust and emphasized his remark by raising his arms and then bringing them down suddenly with his fists together. Umpire Edwards saw this movement and thought Cutts was coaching Crane does not in any way criticise Edwards for inflicting the penalty, but he desires that Cutts be exonerated from censure he does not deserve."

GOLF.

Robert Abbott, of Yale, who made a fine finish in the intercollegiate golf tournament at the Nassau Country Club, last week, has been spending a few days at home.

Members of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association will have a chance to compete over the links of the Country Club of Brokline on October 29, 30 and 31. The second annual championship of the association will be held on the first day, and is to consist of thirty-six holes, medal play, for which the following eight money prizes have been announced: First, $100; second, $80; third, $70; fourth, $50; fifth, $30; sixth, $20; seventh, $10; eighth, $10.

Four-ball matches will be in order on the second day, the prizes to be $50, $30 and $20. The following day will also be devoted to four ball matches, but on this occasion professionals and amateurs will team up as partners. It is the wish of the Brookline officials, who are giving the prizes for extra competition, that the professionals so far as possible secure their partners before hand. Entries for the championship will close with David Hunter, the treasurer of the Essex County Country Club, Orange, N. J., not later than October 24.

The thirteenth semi-annual golf handicap, open to members of the University Club, will be held over the course of the St. Andrews Golf Club on Wednesday, October 30. As usual, the competition will consist of thirty-six holes, medal play. The handicap will be based so far as possible on the metropolitan ratings. Prizes will be given for the three best net scores. Entries should be made to Frank A. Moore, No. 571 Fifth avenue, New York City, before 3 p. m., Tuesday, October 29.

The annual women's championship of the Baltusrol Golf Club will be held on October 29, 30 and 31. The entrants will be paired to fight it out at match play, and some keen contests are expected. Mrs. S. F. Lefferts, of Englewood, who has joined the Baltusrol Club, will compete, and so will Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of Plainfield, who has won the title three times.

H. H. Barker, who came to this country a short time ago, has made a good impression at the Garden City Golf Club, where he has been engaged as professional. The first time he played over this difficult course Barker made a 75, and since then he has been round in 73. Until a few years ago Barker, who is a native of Yorkshire, was an amateur. He won the amateur title there several times, and in 1905 won the Irish open championship.

CAMPAIGN FICTION.

An extensively signed petition from North Plainfield was presented to Secretary of State Dickinson to remove the voting machines from that place. Mr. Dickinson said it would require the approval of Senator Frelinghuysen, of that county, but he refused, stating he understood many of the petitioners were Italians and Hungarians. The Record (a Republican paper) of that place publishes the long list showing that the names are nearly all Americans. The fact is, there are many voters there inclined to be independent, and the powers in the party want the machine hindrance continued. The paper referred to has always strongly condemned the machines.—Rahway Democrat.

As a prize winner for campaign fiction literature this composition is respectfully called to the attention of the Democratic State Committee's press bureau. This wondrous tale Walter Linbarger "fed" to a Somerset county weekly. Were it not a piece of rank injustice to a worthy representative of Somerset who honors the county as its Senator, the bit of fiction would be undeserving of notice.

After weeks of systematic effort, Mr. Linbarger succeeded in getting some 300 of the 1,500 odd voters in North Plainfield borough to sign a petition asking for the removal of the voting machines and replacing the old paper ballot, which afforded such an excellent opportunity for the ward heeler and political ringster in general to get in his work. There was no intention on the part of the 300 signers to restore such a crooked system of voting, but that would have been the effect of the change. As the Senator of Somerset, Mr. Frelinghuysen was empowered to make any recommendation on the petition that he might see fit when Mr. Linbarger consulted the Secretary of State. This is the recognized custom and no exception was to be made in this case. Mr. Frelinghuysen declares that he never referred to some of the signers as men of foreign birth and it rests with the people of the borough to decide the question of veracity.

As for the "machine hindrance," is it not true that a man who is not intelligent enough to operate this secret form of ballot device, is not able to vote intelligently?

What better testimony can there be to show that the Democratic party in New Jersey has become a retrogressive element than its plank favoring the abolition of the voting machine? At this rate, next year, they will probably ask for a prohibition on electricity.

By the way, Samuel Townsend is the luckiest candidate for office in New Jersey. As the lone nominee for mayor in North Plainfield he doesn't have to put up "the stuff" to get out the vote.

Had James E. Martine been nominated, the people of New Jersey would have known exactly where the Democratic party stands on the excise question. The farmer-orator is no dodger.

A New Brunswick newspaper declares that the delegates to a convention recently held there, were pleased with that city. Wonder where on earth they hailed from?

Yes, Constant Reader, the Republican party will be strongly intrenched in New Jersey for some time to come. It is planning to place at Fort in the State Capitol building.

The Republicans' claim that they will carry Warren county is not to be laughed at when one recalls the way Johnston Cornish "threw down" Martine not so long ago.

Mr. Katzenbach's silence on the Bishops' law is painful—to the Democratic leaders.

KATZENBACH IN HUDSON

Candidate Talks in Union Hill, West Hoboken and Jersey City.

NO SPEECH IN HOBOKEN

Democratic Candidate for Governor Confines Himself Chiefly to a Discussion of Utilities Commission.

Frank S. Katzenbach, jr., in meetings at Jersey City and West Hoboken last night, took up for the first time in his campaign a discussion of the plank in the Democratic platform referring to public utilities.

Mr. Katzenbach did not favor a two-cent rate bill because railroad rates in this state, he said, are largely made up on a lower rate than this for commuters into New York and Philadelphia. He declared that the public utilities commissioners should have power to enforce the rulings of the board by heavy fines and imprisonment. Mr. Katzenbach also referred to the "necessity of appointing an attorney general not a favorite of the trusts."

The gubernatorial candidate arrived at 7.30 last evening, after having spent two days in his home at the capital city recuperating. He caught cold at the open-air meetings held in Camden Saturday night, but his voice last night was better than was expected, and he will probably be able to continue the tour with further interruption.

Mr. Katzenbach was met last night at Jersey City by Chairman Hudspeth, of the state committee; John Dullard, James A. Hammill, James Hennessy and John Dennin.

On the subject of Utilities Commission Mr. Katzenbach said:

A Public Utilities Commission should be an administrative commission, with the members of the board elected by the people. If, however, the law should provide for appointment by the governor, the governor should be given the power of removal for cause. A Public Utilities commission must have certain powers to be effective, and should have power to enforce its orders, subject to review by the courts on the grounds of unconstitutionality.

The board should have power to punish by fine and imprisonment for failure to comply with said order; it should compel companies to give to their patrons adequate service; compel the use of safety devices and appliances and, in the case of railroads, authority should be given to abolish grade crossings where the public safety requires. The commission should pass upon bond and stock issues to prevent watering of stock; should require gas and electric light to be kept up to a given standard and regulate and fix rates so as to secure fairness and uniformity of charges. I do not favor a two-cent rate law in New Jersey for the reason that in both north and south Jersey many people are commuting to New York and Philadelphia and also to the seashore during the summer. It would not be advisable to disturb the railroad rates.

There was great applause when Mr. Katzenbach declared that New Jersey was in nee of an attorney general who would be the servant of the people and not of the trusts. This if most important, and if elected I pledge you would endeavor to secure an attorney-general who is on the side of the people and not of the monied interests."

KATZENBACH IN MIDDLESEX.

Will Travel Over the Same Route Taken by Fort.

The Democratic executive committee of Middlesex, yesterday announced the itinerary of Candidate Frank Katzenbach in Middlesex County next Saturday. The route selected is the same over which Candidate Fort traveled ten days ago, excepting that the start be made a little earlier.

The party will leave New Brunswick at 8.30 a. m., proceed to New Market, Dunellen, South Plainfield, Metuchen, Ford's Corner, Woodbridge, Port Reading, Chrode, Roosevelt, Maurer and Perth Amboy, in the order named, arriving at Perth Amboy at 12.10 o'clock. They will leave Perth Amboy at 1.10 p. m., go to South Amboy, Sayreville, South River, Old Bridge, Spotswood, Helmetta, Jamesburg, Prospect Plains, Cranbury, Dayton, Milltown and then to this city. At 8 p. m. Mr. Katzenbach will address a massmeeting in Columbia Hall, this city; will speak at Perth Amboy at 9 p. m. and South Amboy at 9.45 p. m.

ENGINEER ALMOST BEHEADED.

Struck by Door of Car on Next Track as He Leaned from Cab.

BURLINGTON, Oct. 22.—A peculiar accident in the train yards at East Burlington yesterday afternoon will probably cause the death of Mark Fenimore, a freight engineer.

As his train was entering the city, Fenimore leaned from the cab window to read a signal. Just at this moment the wind blew open a door in a refrigerator car on a siding, and the swinging section struck him a terrific blow in the face, nearly beheading him. His skull was fractured.

His fireman leaped across the cab, and seizing him, prevented him from falling from his seat.

Do You Realize

that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

EFFORT TO SAVE SCHUYLER.

Court of Pardons to Act Upon His Case on Friday.

Governor Stokes has called a meeting of the Court of Pardons at the State House on Friday of this week to consider the application of John Schuyler, of Hunterdon county, for a commutation of sentence. Schuyler was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Manning Riley, of Califon. Unless the court grants a commutation of sentence Schuyler will be hanged on November 1, the latter date being the expiration of the reprieve recently granted by the governor.

The fight for commutation of sentence is being made on the ground that a great many citizens of Hunterdon county believe Schuyler to be innocent. Because of this belief and on the strength of a letter written by Justice Alfred Reed, who sentenced Schuyler, that he believes that the jury should have brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree, the governor granted the reprieve. Schuyler's case has been twice before the Court of Pardons, and has been argued in the Supreme Court and Court of Errors, and in each instance the conviction was sustained.

WATERMELONS AS MISSILES.

Train Bombarded, Glass Broken, and Passengers Spattered.

BURLINGTON, Oct. 22.—Watermelons were the missiles used with telling effect to passengers in an attack on a Philadelphia express train just after noon yesterday by four youths near Stevens Station. Lined up on the top of an embankment, as the train shot through a cut, each youth hurled a big juicy melon, and the crash of broken glass, with the sight of over-ripe, blood-colored fruit pulp spattered over passengers for the entire length of the car, made the occupants momentarily think they had been the victims of a Black Hand plot.

When the passengers discovered the real cause of their panic, there were many appeals to take the train back to the scene of the melon throwing that they might get satisfaction out of their assailants.

Several of the passengers had narrow escapes from broken glass. Walter Jenkins of New York, was badly cut about the face.

WRECK BLOCKS TRAFFIC.

Extra Smashes Freight Standing at Water Tank.

A wreck on the Central near Whitehouse Station, Sunday night, blocked traffic for nearly three hours. An eastbound freight, No. 56, was at the water tanks near the depot, when extra No. 462 came down the grade at the foot of Pickell's Mountain and ran into the caboose of 56. The engine and caboose and two cars were badly damaged. The trainmen escaped injury by jumping after they found it was impossible to avert the wreck.

The engineer of the extra says he saw the train standing still ahead of him, that he clapped on the brakes, but could not hold his train on the down grade at the curve at that point. Two wrecking crews were soon on hand clearing up the debris. The Harrisburg flyer was sent over the Lehigh Valley road from Bound Brok to Easton.

MOVED HOUSE AND TENANT.

Now Parker is Seeking Damages From His Landlord.

Eugene S. Parker, of Perth Amboy, was plaintiff in a novel suit which came up before Judge Lloyd at New Brunswick, yesterday afternoon. He claims that he rented a house from D. Wolff & Co., and lived there, he says, men employed by Wolff & Co. came to his house, jacked it up and moved it to another plot of ground.

He feels that he was materially damaged by such liberties being taken with his home; that he was put in a neighborhood other than the one he wanted to live in and that he is entitled to damages. The deefndants claim that they gave Parker notice to move, and that if he was in the house when it was moved, it was his own fault. The suit was not concluded yesterday.

Duke's Chauffeur Fined.

Harry Dean, chauffeur for James B. Duke, the tobacco man, was fined $25 in the second criminal court, Newark, yesterday, on a charge of exceeding the speed limit with his employer's automobile. Dean was arrested last Saturday while he was driving the car containing Mrs. Duke and a woman friend through Newark on the way to Somerville.

Bids in Houses Claimed by State.

East Orange, Oct. 22.—Although the state of New Jersey contends that four large houses in East Orange which were owned by the John W. Russell have reverted to the state, George C. Wright, of Toronto, Canada, yesterday bid in the houses. The tax for 1906, amounting to $793.91, not having been paid, the city duly advertised the places for sale and Wright appeared and bid them in. He is a nephew of the late Mrs. C. H. Wright, who was a sister of Mr. Russell.

From a Prominent New York Newspaper:

"In this hustling, bustling age of ours, where every second has a commercial value, the telephone plays a most important part. Without it the activities of the day would not be possible and business would proceed at the sober pace which characterized it some fifty years ago. And yet although most people will realize the truth of these assertions, few appreciate the enormous void which would be left were the telephone to be suddenly wiped out of existence."

"BLEST BE THE TIE."

How the Familiar Old Hymn Came to Be Written.

Not one in a thousand of those who sing that good old hymn "Blest be the tie that binds" knows the history of its homely origin. According to the Church Eclectic, it was written by the Rev. John Fawcett, who in the latter part of the eighteenth century was the pastor of a poor little church in Lockshire, England. His family and responsibilities were large, his salary was less than four dollars a week. In 1772 he felt himself obliged to accept a call to a London church. His farewell sermon had been preached, six wagons loaded with furniture and books stood by the door. His congregation, men, women and children were in an agony of tears. Mr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on a packing case and cried with the others. Looking up, Mrs. Fawcett said: "Oh, John, John, I cannot bear this! I know not where to go!" "Nor I either," said he; "nor will we go. Unload the wagons and put everything back in its old place." His letter of acceptance to the London church was recalled and he wrote this hymn to commemorate the episode.

WENT HOME FOR WARRIOR.

Dog Evidently Had Reasoned Out the Situation.

C. B. Shockley, who lives across the river, was recently plowing in some new ground near the edge of the river hills, says an Oklahoma correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. He was accompanied by a half-grown shepherd dog. The dog in hunting went over a small hill and soon came kiting back with a coyote close to his heels. Seeing the man the coyote ran back and the dog plucked courage to follow. Out of sight of his master he weakened and came back over the hill with the coyote after him. This was repeated several times, to the amusement of Mr. Shockley, who offered neither counsel nor assistance, meaning to see how the dog would figure it out. He had not long to wait. The dog sat down and seemed to think over the situation, and then started for the house on a keen run. He was back in a very short time, accompanied by a big dog whose reputation as a coyote fighter was established. The young dog led the old one over the hill and soon the coyote had disappeared.

Tough Cat.

An instance of the remarkable vitality possessed by the cat has just been demonstrated at Herbling, Eng. A very fine cross-bred Persian mysteriously disappeared from its home, and 16 days later was found in an open field secured in a rabbit trap. Notwithstanding the animal's long and painful confinement and exposure to the heavy rains, it was still alive. It was, however, reduced to a mere skeleton and was unable to walk, but under proper treatment it is recovering. That the cat had been in the trap all the time is beyond question, as otherwise it would have returned home to a kitten which it was suckling at the date of its disappearance.

Wooden Flywheel.

After an accident to the flywheel in a large European electric station the superintendent designed and had constructed a flywheel of wood which has a diameter of 65 feet and a rim width of ten feet. The thickness of the rim is about 12 inches and it is made up of 44 thicknesses of beech planks with staggered joints. The boards were glued together and then bolted. The inside consists of a double wheel, the 24 spokes of which are fastened to two hubs. Spokes and hubs are operated at 76 revolutions a minute, which corresponds to a peripheral speed at the rim of 139 feet a second.

Child's Remarkable Suicide.

A remarkable case of suicide by the 14-year-old daughter of a farm laborer named Beecham was revealed at an inquest at Weston-super-Mare, England, recently. It was stated that the girl was of an obstinate and determined character and guilty of persistent falsehoods. She was entrusted with a dress to take to the village dressmaker for remaking for herself, but returned with the statement that it was too good to cut up. Unknown to her parents she sold the dress to a villager for four shillings, and on this being discovered she walked to a level crossing, put her head across the metals, and was decapitated by a passing train.

Quiet Speaking.

It is impossible to over-estimate the value of quiet speaking. Quiet, gentle dignity can accomplish a great deal, and when face to face with those who possess this calm, self-reliant manner of speaking we can not fail to realize its tremendous importance. It is a delight and a pleasure to hear a voice perfectly cultured and sympathetic—a voice that rings with kindness. It is an advantage, a valuable asset in both the social and business world.

Enterprise.

Dick Whittington, on the advice of the bells, had just turned again in the direction of the mayor's office. "Seems to act on rather slight impulses," said critical people. But Whittington's personal newspaper came out that evening in large headlines: "Whittington Turns Again—Eminent Authorities Advise Him to Continue Fight for Mayoralty—Consternation Felt in City Hall—Whittington States He Will Be at Mayor's Desk in Three Weeks."—Puck.

THE LATCH KEY GIRL.

The girl with a latch key is something more than a newspaper joke.—Mrs. Lorin F. Deland.

You bet she is!
That sort of joke's
Alive to-day.
To-morrow croaks.
But the latch key girl
Has come to stay
And she'll wear whiskers
And "pants" some day.
She'll smoke and drink
And bet and cuss
And be just like
The rest of us.
She isn't built Exactly for
The grave affairs
Of state and war.
But what of that?
Her genius shines
Clean down a lot
Of other lines.
Hail to the latch key lady!
The coming times reveal
The hand that spanks the baby
Running the automobile!
—New York Sun.

Stranger Than Fiction.

"Remarkable thing about that woman," said the hotel clerk, jerking a thumb in the direction of a stylishly dressed lady who was passing through the lobby.

"What was it?" asked the landlord.

"She didn't come down after being assigned to her room to ask whether we couldn't transfer her to some other floor."—Chicago Record-Herald.

NATURALLY.

"But aren't you frightened to drive your motor-car yourself?"

"Gracious, no! It's the people I meet who are frightened."

Always Has Them On.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that if I had as many idiosyncrasies as Mrs. Woppleson has, I'd try to conceal a few of them."

"Yes," replied her hostess as she lightly tapped upon her $12,000 vanity box, "but she seems to think she can't even go shopping without havin' all of them as well as every diamond and ruby on that she's got."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Leading a Double Life.

Rivers—You can't make me believe you ever caught a fish that had another fish holding on to its throat, and landed both of them. That's a little too tough a story to swallow.

Brooks—Then I'm both a nature faker and a member of the Ananias club, am I, you big stick-in-the-mud?—Chicago Tribune.

Even There.

"Your majesty," asked the new arrival, "is there such a thing as caste down here?"

"O, yes," answered Pluto, graciously. "We have our aristocrats, pretty much as they do where you come from. We call them the cream of Tartarus."—Chicago Tribune.

Not Always.

"It is always the unexpected that happens," she remarked, just because it was necessary to say something.

"Oh, no, not always," the cruel man replied. "I knew the moment I saw you that you would have me cornered somewhere inside of 15 minutes."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Two Styles.

Mrs. Spenders—I wonder what will be the popular styles in bonnets this summer?

Mr. Spenders—My dear, women's bonnets will be divided into two styles this summer, as usual: the style you don't like and the style I can't afford.

A Visible Sign.

"How do you know she is a great soprano?" asked the unmusical friend.

"By the condescending manner in which she sings 'Way Down Upon the Suwanee River' answered Mr. Cumrox.—Washington Star.

Not Committing Himself.

"Do you find my daughter's voice improving, Mr. Sculcher?" asked Mrs. Upmore.

"Improving," said the professor of vocal training. "Why, my dear madam, it's—er—not the same voice at all.—Chicago Tribune.

All Alike.

First Weary Tramp (as limited express glides by)—It's hard walkin' on a railroad, Bill. Don't yer wish ye was in one o' them sleepin'-cars, Bill?

Second Tramp (thoughtfully)—Yis, ef I c'u'd have a lower berth in the middle o' th' car.—N. Y. Weekly.

Out of the Ordinary.

Hyker—Young Westlake is certainly a financial genius.

Pyker—"He is,eh?"

Hyker—Yes. Why, he made his debut in Wall street six weeks ago with $1,000,000, and he still has half of it.—Chicago News.

ADVICE MUCH NEEDED.

He entered the meteorological service office and said, abruptly, "This 'ere's where you give out weather predictions, ain't it?"

The clerk nodded.

"Well," continued the old man, "I thought as how I could come up an' give you some tips.'

"Indeed!" said the clerk politely.

"Yes; I've figured on it a little, an' I find that ye ain't al'ays right.'

"No; we sometimes make mistakes."

"Course you do. We all do sometimes. Now, I was thinkin' as how a line that used to be on the auction handbills down in our county might do fust-rate on your weather predictions, an' save you a lot of explainin'."

"What was the line?"

"Vind and weather permittin'."

He went down without waiting to say good-bye.

Useless.

"I feel," she said, sitting a little closer to him, "that we must have kindred souls.

"Do you?"

"And I am almost sure that the fates must have planned that we should meet."

"Still," he replied, "if they did they might have fixed it up in some pleasanter way than by making me spoil a pair of $12 trousers trying to get your sparker to work."

"Oh, pshaw!" she said, giving him up in disgust, "if you can't do anything but dwell upon the base, material things of life what's the use of our sitting here running up the electric light bill?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Aids to Memory.

His Wife (at dinner)—John, I wish you would remind me that I am to make out a shopping list this evening.

Her Husband—I will, my dear, if you'll remind me of something.

His Wife—What am I to remind you of?

Her Husband—Of the necessity of my reminding you about the shopping list.—Chicago News.

An Advantage.

"Gee," said the small boy to the bald-headed man, "I wish I was you."

"Why?" asked the man.

"Because I could go swimming whenever I wanted to and ma couldn't get next by running her hands through my hair to see if it was wet."—Detroit Free Press.

What He Liked.

Our Mariar had been to her first public ball.

Sarah Jane—Well, tell me, Mariar, and 'ow did you henjoy the ball?

Mariar—On the whole I liked it very well. I didn't think much o' the dancin', but the 'uggin' was 'eavenly.

A BIG JOB.

Mrs. Heavyton—I can't climb over this fence, John. If you were half the man you ought to be, you'd lift me over.

Mr. Heavyton—H'm! If you were half the woman you are I might have a try.

Caste.

Big Calf (vainly)—Get out of my way or I'll step on you. You're nobody.

Barnyard Fowl (haughtily)—If you could hear folks grumble when they find veal in chicken salad you'd change your tune.—N. Y. Weekly.

An Old Bachelor's Opinion.

"It is said that the safety pin was invented by a man."

"And I'll wager he was some man whose wife was too busy assisting with the social uplift to keep his trousers properly equipped with buttons.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Russian Press.

First Russian (laying down a native newspaper)—This paper isn't quite so insufferably dull as usual.

Second Russian—No; it's almost interesting. If that editor isn't careful he'll get sent to Siberia.—N. Y. Weekly.

An Ounce of Prevention.

Mrs. Nubbins—Why do you employ that darky to whitewash the hen-coop? You know he's the most notorious chicken-thief in the neighborhood.

Mr. Nubbins (a practical man)—I want him to see how poor and lean my chickens are.—N. Y. Weekly.

What It Meant.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is meant by the term "open-handed?"

Pa—It is a term, my son, that applies to most men when there is something to be dropped into the hand aforesaid.—Chicago Daily News.

Bar Sickness From the Nursery
Keep the children well!
The best way to insure their health is to prevent the attacks of ills to which they are most subject.
You can guard them against attacks of sickness by fortifying them with the oldest and most reliable medicine and tonic known—
DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE
A Safe Worm Cure
A large percentage of children have worms. A very large proportion of children's ills are directly due to this cause, and to the weakening effect of worms on the child's frail system.
JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE has for over four generations successfully expelled worms and kept children strong and healthy. This long-tried worm-cure and child's tonic is the best medicine you can possibly give your children, and the best way you can insure their health. Per bottle, 35c. and 50c.
JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT has been a reliable cure for Croup, Whooping Cough, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and other lung troubles for 77 years.

MADE A TORCH OF PADDY.

Now the Chances Are He Will Carry His Matches Elsewhere.

Nine-year-old Paddy Monacco says that the next time he plays hat on the back with the gang he isn't going to have his rear pants pocket full of matches, says the New York Sun. They play the game strenuously in a lot on Twenty-seventh street, near Tenth avenue. The game had progressed to the grab the hat and slap stage yesterday, and Paddy stood doubled up with his head pointed eastward and the other end of him directed toward the setting sun. Tommy Glynn in leaping over Paddy gave him a vigorous wallop. In a twinkling the west end of Paddy spouted smoke and he let a howl out of him that could be heard for blocks. The other kids beat the flames out as best they could and saved at least the front part of Paddy's breeches. Tommy Glynn and Billy Rooney were more or less badly burned about the hands, and Paddy was more severely burned elsewhere. An ambulance was summoned from Roosevelt hospital and the surgeons fixed up the Glynn and Rooney boys and took Paddy to the hospital for more thorough treatment. Later Paddy was sent to his home at 545 West Twenty-seventh street and ate his supper off the mantlepiece.

TO THE SIXTH GENERATION.

People Who Have Lived to See Many of Their Descendants.

It is given to few men, as to M. T. Wullschleger of the canton of Vaud, to celebrate the birth of a great-great-granddaughter, but even more remarkable experiences than this are on record, according to the Westminster Gazette. Dr. Plot in his "Natural History of Staffordshire" quotes the case of old Mary Cooper of King's Bromley, who lived to see the sixth generation of her descendants, and was in the position to say, "Rise up, daughter, and go to thy daughter, for thy daughter's granddaughter hath a daughter;" while Horace Walpole lived to see seven descents in one family, the progeny of Mrs. Godfrey, mistress of James II. It is not long since the dowager duchess of Abercorn died leaving more than 200 direct descendants, at least four of whom were great-great-grandchildren. About the same time Mrs. Sarah Ann Woolf, of Utah, nursed her twenty-third great-great-grandchild, one of 303 living descendants; while it is said of a Spaniard who returned from America to his native land a few years ago that he was accompanied by 280 of his descendants, including three great-great-grandsons.

The Uses of Worry.

Worry of one sort and another is necessary to the complete health of the spirit; worry is as surely related to content on one side as it is to misery on the other. It is as wholesome an exercise for the spirit, and as refreshing, as the physical exercise which the man finds so necessary to his well-being. The spirit must have its peculiar gymnastics; the soul cannot afford to become stagnant; its waters, if one may say so, must be stirred occasionally if they would be kept fresh and sweet.—Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

A Paradox in Age.

At an entertainment provided by the Woman's philharmonic society the most widely advertised attraction was a dancer, who, so it was whispered, had become too old to teach in the public schools and had taken to dancing for a living." That remarkable announcement drew a crowd of curious persons who were anxious to see what a woman looked like who was too old to teach but young enough to practice the terpsichorean art in public. Also, everybody wanted to know what the topsyturvy age might be, but of course, no one found out.

Despondent Dog a Suicide.

A valuable bulldog belonging to John C. Reed, of Binghampton, N. Y., committed suicide by jumping up against a picket fence until he hooked his collar over one of the pickets. He then swung himself around until the weight of his body on the leather strap shut off his wind and he strangled. The dog had made a previous attempt to hang himself, but was found in time and taken from the fence, although he fought savagely while his owner unhooked his collar from the picket.

"Getting Even."

In savings banks it is customary to require a new depositor to sign an identification blank. In a certain savings bank recently a woman was somewhat unwilling to comply with this request. "What is your husband's name?" asked the clerk. "My husband's name is Peter Jones. What is your wife's name?" snapped the fair depositor.

A Job in Prospect.

New York was in sight. The ship was entering the harbor. "Ah, free America," exclaimed a foreigner on the deck. "Free America, ze land where eferybody has an equal chance!" "Going to locate there?" inquired a friendly American. "Ah, yes, I shall come over to engage in ze oil business."

Making Reparation.

In some unaccountable manner little Frank had spilled a bottle of ink on his grandmother's carpet. "I'm awful sorry," he apologized, "but"—thinking of his little savings bank—"I'll buy you another bottle, grandma."

"Policy Has No Equal in Insurance Market!"

DIAMOND DUST.

When it comes to "finishing strong," why couldn't the Y. M. C. A. nine play league baseball like they played in their final game Saturday? Eleven-zero against metropolitan champs is pretty near pennant speed.

The members of the New York High School of Commerce eleven, who won from the city high school team Saturday, attended the reception and dance held at the high school Saturday night.

The boys' tennis tournament at the city high school is nearing its final rounds. Ludlow Van Deventer, who has been sick, may have to forfeit unlress he can get out for a match soon. Bromfield is playing title tennis; but has harder matches coming.

The Holy Cross church choir boys' eleven had a game scheduled with the Somerville high school for Saturday morning, but their opponents didn't show up.

High school football eleevns of city and borough will meet for the first time this season on Hope Common tomorrow. With two men out of the game, the broughites will have to work hard to hold down the fast city schol team. The whistle blows at 3.30.

Efforts to start a tennis tournament among the city high school girls have so far been unsuccessful. Miss Barbara Fleming is in the school, and the other girls all want big handicaps if she is to compete.

FOOTBALL.

Jones, the most promising fullback candidate at Annapolis, weighs only 155 pounds.

"Annie Ashley" Won the Race.

It was John C. Dilt's "Annie Ashley," driven by Thomas Brantingham, that won the Class C race at the Plainfield Driving Park, Saturday afternoon, and not "Osceala." Dr. Dilts is a resident of Dunellen. His horse won the event in 2:28.

OBITUARY.

Wilbur Martin.

Wilbur Martin, the six-months-old son of Edward A. and Anna Martin, of East Third street, died yesterday at the parents' home. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial will be at Hillside.

Danish Lutheran service will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in W. C. T. U. Hall, preaching by Rev. Kiaer.

PERSONAL.

S. T. Dickerson, of East Second street, is visiting the Jamestown Exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, have returned from their summer and fall outing.

Mr. and Mrs. St. John McCutchen, who spent the summer and early fall at Belmar, have returned to their home in the borough.

Miss Dempsey, a trained nurse connected with Muhlenberg Hospital, who recently recovered from an operation for appendicitis, is visiting relatives in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Benson, of Passaic, are spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, of Mountain avenue. Mr. Benson was the guest of Mr. Hyde and a party of friends during the day at the Park Golf Club, where the game was enjoyed.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

"Erminie" is to have a revival in New York.

Charles Richman is to make his appearance in vaudeville.

Nance O'Neil is to appear in vaudeville with McKee Rankin in a condensed version of "Leah the Forsaken."

Despite her titled name, Olga von Hatzfeldt, who assumes the title role in "The Belle of Mayfair," is an American girl.

Besides its star cast of singing comedians and others, "The Follies of 1907" includes in its company 100 charming chorus girls.

Miss Roberta Keene (in private life Mrs. William K. Tubman) is making a success in vaudeville in an illustrated novel singing act.

The western "The Three of Us" company, which has been organized with a cast claimed to be as good as that of the original company, is now playing the cities of the Pacific coast and has been well received.

A New York morning paper says there is a report from Paris that Miss Flora Wilson, the daughter of the secretary of agriculture, has decided to go upon the operatic stage and is studying under Jean de Reszke for that purpose.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

The twenty-third annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association will be held in the Madison Square Garden, New York, Nov. 18-23.

Walter Christie, the famous auto racer, who was badly hurt in Pittsburg, recently, clipped a full second off Oldfield's mile record twice during the week before he was hurt.

Toronto won the Eastern league championship by a big margin, with Buffalo, last year's champions, second and the Providence Grays third. Newark is tied with Jersey City for the fourth position, with Baltimore, Rochester and Montreal bring up the rear in the order named.

Billy Warren, challenger of Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight, is one of the likeliest looking fighters that has come to America with foreign countries in many years. Warren hails from Australia, but he has fought in England, and in eight years that he has been in the ring he has defeated some of the best.

Auto Bus and Rig Collide.

The Reo-auto bus of the Lehigh Valley transfer and a milkwagon came together in the dusk at fourth street and aWtchung avenue last night at about 6 o'clock. One lamp of the auto was smashed and the radiator badly bent, and the horse with the milk wagon was cut about the fore legs. The wagon bore no name and the driver's name could not be learned. Walter Kettenring was driving the bus, which was not sufficiently damaged to put it out of commission.

TO FIND BEST ATHLETE

City High School Boys to Compete for Daily Press Gold Medal.

AN INTER-CLASS MEET

Many Entries In Annual Fall Track Meet to Be Held at Driving Park. Friday.

High school boys will compete for track honors at the Plainfield Driving Park, Friday afternoon, when the athletic championship of the school will receive a gold medal and the class winning the most points will receive a silver cup. Medals and ribbons will be offered to the place winners in each event.

This meet, which is an annual affair, has stirred a good deal of interest among the city high school boys, and there are many entries for each event. The main interest centers in the individual champion of the school, won last year by Chauncey Murphy. Several of the boys are entered in all the events, so that Murphy will have a hard rub to hold the title again this year. The winner of the most points in the meet will receive a gold medal as individual champion of the school. This medal offered by The Daily Press.

Next in interest to the winning of individual honors, class spirit has brought a bunch of entries from boys who want the silver cup, offered by another paper to the class getting the most points in the meet, to go to their class. First place in an event will count five points, second place three, and third place one point. The point winners are pretty evenly distributed among the four classes, though the seniors have a slight advantage. Class spirit will bring a big turnout of boys and girls to the field to cheer in each event and the title will be contested point for point.

As an interclass meet, this event has always been a success and in the competition this year, some high school records ought to be broken. The school has a bunch of men who will show up well in the sprints and an especially good showing will probably be made in the jumps, for there are a string of promising entries. An annual feature will be the tug of war for class championship, between eight men teams. The seniors will pull the juniors and the sophomores the freshmen; the winners of these two pulls will pull for the championship. Another special event is the 60-yard dash for boys of sixteen years or usder. There are several fast short-distance fellows among the school freshmen who ought to make this event a close one.

Aside from the individual championship medal and the cup for the class winning the most points, bronze medals have been offered to first place winners by various tradesmen of the city. Ribbons will be given to second and third place competitors. The bronze medals will be offered by the American Steam Laundry, M. C. Van Arsdale, J. W. Gavett and the People's Credit Clothing Company.

Presented Picture to Miss Sayer.

The feature of the social and marshmallow roast held in Vincent chapel last night under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, was the presentation of a handsomely framed picture entitled "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," to Miss Phebe E. Sayer, one of the prominent and active members, who leaves Plainfield tomorrow for her home in Illinois. The presentation was a surprise and Miss Sayer was unable to make any response for a few minutes. The rest of the evening was given up to an informal program of games, while the roasting of marshmallow furnished amusement for all. Miss Helen Whitney, as chairman of the social committee, was in charge of the affair, assisted by the other members of her committee.

Chief Doane Entertains.

Batallion Chief McDermott, accompanied by the superintendent of the fire alarm system and a private of the Newark Fire Department, were guests of Chief T. O. Doane, yesterday. They made a tour of inspection of the department houses and expressed great surprise over the up-to-date equipment here. They declared that in proportion to the size the department compared favorably with the one in Newark.

Firemen's Association to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association of New Jersey will be held in Paterson on Monday. There will be a meeting in the morning, a parade in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening. Captain William Townley, of the local fire department, and a member of the association, will be among the delegates from here.

PRAISE FOR BISHOPS' BILL

Presbyterian Synod Adopts Report Laudatory of the Excise Laws.

SCORE PHILIP DAAB

Disapprove of His Bill Legalizing Sunday Baseball—Resolutions Passed.

Praise for the Bishops' bill was given in formal manner by the New Jersey Synod of the Presbyterian Church in session at Atlantic City, yesterday, the report lauding that measure being followed by unequivocal resolutions. Plainfield pastors of the denomination as well as laymen from here are in attendance and the action on the excise situation is said to have met with their hearty favor.

The report, in part, was as follows:

"We have reached the time when it is no longer necessary to argue that it is right to 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' but while men and women have the liberty to do right they seek license to do wrong from a lax public opinion. Stiffen this public opinion and the same result will occur that we are noting in the many investigations into flagrant evils in public and corporation life.

"The enforcing of the 'bishops' bill" has accomplished much and wherever it has been enforced it has been highly effective in keeping the saloon closed on the Lord's Day. The keeping of this law has produced a strong sentiment for the keeping of other Sunday laws. Many places throughout our State have brought honor upon themselves by closing various business houses on the great day.

"We especially recognize the good result for a little while of the concerted effect here in Atlantic City. In the preparation of this report each presbyterial chairman was asked to assist by offering suggestions and by stating the condition in each presbytery. A single reply was received and that is gladly quoted. Speaking of the effect of a concerted effort by the pastors of a community he says: 'It is another case of United we stand, divided we fall." The public officials fear a united church sentiment, but have a contempt for the spasmodic utterances of an unorganized few.'

"Then this presbyterial chairman tells how the prosecutor stopped Sunday baseball in one of the towns, when appealed to by all the ministers, though he personally was in favor of the game on the Lord's Day.

"A very bold insult to the Christians of our State was offered at Trenton this year when Mr. Daab, of Hudson county, fathered a bill in the House which would permit Sunday baseball in cities of the first class. The bill was killed by the narrow margin of 28 to 27. This daring effort last March should make us alert to frustarte a possible repetition of the offense. Had this bill passed the House your committee on Sabbath observance would have been unusually busy at once."

The following resolutions were submitted among others:

"One—That the committee on Sabbath observance be directed to send a communication to each pastor in our synod about March 15 calling upon him, in the name of the synod, to preach a sermon on the subject of the strict observance of the Lord's Day, some time during the month of April, 1908.

"Two—That we most heartily commend and warmly indorse the work of the American Sabbath Union and the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance, national organizations, in their efforts to preserve in its purity the Christian Sabbath.

"Three—That, in harmony with the general assembly resolutions No. 10, we urge our churches to take an offering at the time of the Sabbath observance sermon next April for the work of the American Sabbath Union."

Moderator W. W. Hollaway, of Dover, named Leander N. Lovell as a member of the committee on minutes of the General Assembly.

Lecture on Mexico.

An illustrated lecture on "Mexico" will be given by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church, Thursday night, November 7, at 8 o'cock, under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band.

Medal Contest.

The silver medal oratorical contest under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night, in connection with an attractive program.

FOR COURT NOT FOR JURY

Court Decides Matter at Issue in Schorb Case is Question of Law.

IN EJECTMENT CASE

Tenant Holding from Year to Year Gets But a Day's Notice—Lawyers to Submit Briefs.

The ejectment suit of Mrs. Carry L. Schorb and Mrs. Josephine A. Mason against Henry Haurand, was called in the Circuit Court at Elizabeth, this morning. The court decided that the case is a question of law and after dismissing the jurors, instructed counsel for both the plaintiff and defendant to prepare briefs to be submitted within the next ten days, after which it will hand down a decision. Francis J. Blatz is counsel for Mr. Haurand, while Molesh & Morton, of Jersey City, represent the complainants.

The case is an old one, having been a matter of dispute for some time. The complainants together with Mrs. Minnie Schorb claim life interest in the property, which is now occupied by Mr. Haurand and that upon their death it is to go to their children. Mr. Haurand made a lease with Mrs. Elizabeth Schorb under date of 1897, which was for five years. Mrs. Schorb died in 1899 and the property went to her husband, John Schorb, Sr., for life. Mr. Haurand continued possession under the old lease. On December 31, 1906 Mr. Schorb died and under the terms of the will the property went to the two complainants and Mrs. Minnie Schorb. During January, February, March and April of this year Mr. Haurand continued as a tenant and paid his rent to the owners. He is still in possession of the property.

The question of law to be decided is whether or not a tenant, holding over from year to year and who is not served with a three months' notice, is entitled to possession under the terms of the original lease. In this case the tenant was given one day's notice. Another question to be decided is the rights of the executors in the matter. John Schorb and Mrs. Josephine A. Mason, his sister, are the executors. Under the terms of the will the property was to remain intact for a period of ten years. Although Mrs. Minnie Schorb, wife of William Schorb, has an interest in the property, she declined to become a party to the suit.

MORE FAILURES MAKE MONEY MARKET UNEASY

Panicky conditions in the money market, started by the run on the Knickerbocker Trust Company yesterday, continued today and the Westinghouse Manufacturing and Electric Company went into the hands of a receiver at shortly before noon. The stock broke 53 points, but the amount of the liabilities cannot be learned. A run was started on the Trust Company of America at 11 o'clock today and more than a thousand of the largest depositors were in line when the bank opened for business. The company has eleven millions in specie to meet the demands of the depositors and it is believed that the run can be checked.

All stock broke heavily at the opening of the market today. Consolidated Gas fell thirteen points and Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific and other railroad stocks broke from seven to ten points apiece in the first hours of trading on the floor. All stocks weakened, from two to fifty-three points.

Some men confided to their neighbors their opinions as to what institutions offered the securest depository for their funds. A prosperous looking depositor, who might have been a professional man, announced to the next in line that he came from a New Jersey town. "I know something about the banks in my town," he said. "'I know the officers and directors personally, and am going to take my money there." The man in question came from Plainfield.

Will Assume Charge of Gold Mine.

Thomas Hanna, of East Fifth street, who recently resigned his position with the banking house of Hervey Fisk & Sons, will sail for Venezuela where he will assume charge of a gold mine in which Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur and other Plainfielders are interested. He will be accompanied by eight men who are experienced in all forms of mining.

HIS FAMILY IN ITALY WILL RECEIVE $1,375

The widow and two little children of Raffaile Caruso were yesterday awarded a verdict for $1,375 against the Central Railroad Company for having caused his death at the Pond Tool Company's yard a year ago last summer. The strange part of the case was that the widow and children who will get this money have never left Italy. The railroad company would not admit the marriage until it was proved by an eye witness.

The company denied liability and insisted that the Pond Tool Company was responsible for the death of Caruso, and that the railroad company was not to blame in any way, and also that Caruso was himself negligent. The jury decided the other way. The amount of the verdict was calculated by ascertaining the actual loss in dollars and cents, the law not allowing any compensation for pain or sorrow or loss of association.

Craig A. Marsh was counsel for the widow and children, and Messrs. Faulks, of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, and W. A. Barkalew, counsel for the Central Railroad Company.

JERSEY'S JR. O. U. A. M. GAINS 4582 MEMBERS

At the annual convention of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of New Jersey, which is being held at Trenton today and tomorrow, the report of State Council Secretary Miers shows that there are 294 councils, the same as last year, one new one having been instituted and one old one suspended. During the year there were admitted by initiation 4,532 new members, 492 were reinstated, 159 were admitted by card and 36 were admitted by dismissal certificates. During the same time 153 members withdrew, 1796 were suspended, 307 died and nine were expelled. The total membership at the close of the fiscal year was 46,873.

During the fiscal year the receipts from weekly dues amounted to $422,276.55, and the total receipts from all sources were $628,474.91. The councils paid out for sick benefits $103,987.12; for funeral benefits $118,262.09; for funeral benefits on account of deaths of wives, 562. The total amount paid out for all purposes was $600,587.98, a gain for the year of $27,886.93.

The total worth of the subordinate councils is $832,805.36, a net increase of $82,639.25 for the year. The councils of this state during the year paid to the funeral benefit associations a total of $115,000.98 and received from these associations $100,727.30.

There is a gain in membership in every county in the state except Ocean, that county having lost thirty-six members. Atlantic county, with nine new members, made the smallest gain, asd Essex, with 829, made the largest gain. The 207 deaths were the largest number of any year in the history of the order.

Rubenstein Wins Semi-Finals.

In the semi-final round of the boys' championship tennis tournament of the city high school, Moses Rubenstein won from George Durar after thre sets on Briggs' court yesterday afternoon. Durar took the first set 6-4, the second went to deuce games. Rubenstein will meet Clarence Bromfield for the school title this afternoon. The winner will receive a silver cup, offered by the high school athletic association.

Work on New Building Resumed.

Work has been resumed on Manning and Coddingtos's new building os Watchung avenue, near the railroad. Operations were temporarily suspended until the question of the building line could be settled by the Common Council. That body established a new line between Fourth street and Crescent avenue, allowing the line upon which the building was started to remain as it is.

Daily Press Story Finds Horse.

The valuable chestnut horse lost on Monday by James Gethin, superintendent of the horse show grounds, was returned to Mr. Gethin yesterday by a farmer named Giles, who lives near Metuchen. The horse strayed on his farm and was kept there until yesterday, when Mr. Giles seeing the story in The Daily Press about the animal being lost, returned it to Mr. Gethin.

SITE FOR NEW CITY HALL

Friends Society Buy Property to Take the Place of One Municipalty May Get.

HAND HAS OPTION

Mayor Fisk Does Not Know of Intention On Part of City to Buy the Big Tract.

Papers were signed last night in an important property deal whereby the Friends' Religious Society becomes the owner of the residential properties on East Second street, occupied by John McKeon and the one adjoining on the east. The property was purchased with a view to having a place to move the Friends' Meeting-house, which now stands at Watchung avenue and East Third street, in case that property is sold to the city.

Charles H. Hand, the real estate broker, has had an option on the Watchung avenue property for the past three months, it being understood that the city might purchase it as a site for the proposed new city hall. Mayor Charles J. Fisk when questioned as to the probability of the city taking such action, declared today that as far as he knew the city has no intention of purchasing the land in question. It is known that plans have been under discussion for some time looking toward the purchase of a suitable piece of ground upon which a city hall could be built. Efforts have also been made to get a site for the proposed new police station. It is possible that the city hall and police station might be combined if the right kind of a property can be secured within a figure which the city is willing to pay.

Charles Peterson, the florist, who occupies ground on Watchung avenue, adjoining that of the Friends' Society, and which he leases from the society, has just signed another five year lease, and if the city has any idea of securing the property it would not be able to get possession of it within that period, as Mr. Peterson intends to remain there under the terms of his lease.

DR. GROSZMAN SPEAKS ON CHILD'S EVOLUTION

Before more than a hundred teachers from public and private schools of the city and borough, Dr. Maximillian Groszman gave the first of his course of lectures on children's mental development as related to their school studies at the city high school yesterday afternoon. Aside from local educators, there were teachers from Westfield, Dunellen and other near-by places. The subject of the lecture was "The Mathematical Evolution of the Child."

Treating his theme from a rather philosophical and suggestive standpoint, Dr. Groszman pointed out that the teaching of arithmetic today is not based at all on the scientific development of a child's mind. Arithmetic, as he asserted, is not a separate subjest, but rather represents the mathematical element in all subjects, in reference to accuracy and verifiable truths in all fields of education. The mind of a child occupies the same stage in its development as does the various epochs in the development of a race, and the speaker pointed out that this should be considered in mapping out elementary mathematical courses.

"I believe in the use of the elementary calculating machines, similar to those used by the ancients, to make the work as far as possible strictly objective," said Dr. Groszman. "They should be used in the primary grades and partly in the grammar grades, and the teacher should not expect the idea of rationalizing until they reach the high school age." Dr. Groszman emphasized two distinct sources of number conception, that of space, rather than magnitude, in a counting succession, and the ratio or comparison idea devoloped by measurement.

Arrested for Vagrancy.

John Kelly, of Newark, was arrested by Patrolmen Nolan and Payse for vagrancy last night. He pleaded hard to be allowed to go home when arraigned before Judge Rusyon this morning and the magistrate instructed the police to see him to the city line.

Connecting the Double Tracks.

The new double trolley tracks have been consected at Fourth street and Watchung avenues. Men are now busy running the secosd trolley wire beneath the railroad bridge and it is possible that that part of the new road will be put is service within a few days.

DEMOCRATS HOLD RALLY

Swackhamer and Somerset County Candidates Spellbind in Borough.

PLAN MASS MEETING

Senator Silzer and Others to Speak On State Issues On Tuesday Night In Saengerbund Hall.

North Plainfield Democrats gathered in force at the first party rally of the campaign held in the Democratic headquarters at 80 Somerset street, last night. The affair was of the nature of a voters' smoker, and the county and borough candidates were present with few exceptions. Walter L. Linbarger, the party leader, was chairman of the meeting, which was informal, and enthusiasm in the fall campaign was roused by informal speeches by the candidates and boroughites prominent in the interest of the party.

Charles Allen, the party candidate for Assembly, was unable to be present as expected, for he was called to Chicago. William J. De Mond, the party candidate for re-election for surrogate, and Frank Ross, candidate for sheriff, were present and both made speeches on the coming campaign which won them applause. De Mond said that the fight would be a hard one, but that united action by the voters at the polls could secure a party victory. Katzenbach's campaign posters adorned the walls and the candidate was discussed by the speakers in reference to his stand on the liquor question. Horace Coddington, of Somerville, secretary of the Somerset County Democratic Committee, was present, and in a speech which roused much enthusiasm, called for the support of the gubernatorial and county candidates at the polls.

The local speakers included former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer and William J. Conroy. They talked of organization among the borough Democrats for the support of the county as well as of the local candidates. The individual borough candidates on the ticket were discussed informally, and the consensus of the meeting seemed to be in their support. It is planned to have the headquarters open every night till Election Day, and a series of talks by men prominent in Democratic politics in the borough is being arranged. The meetings each evening are to be informal.

Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex county, will address a special mass meeting of borough Democrats to be held in Saengerbund Hall next Tuesday. Among the other speakers of the evening is former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer.

Gift Appreciated.

One of the pleasant features of the diamond jubilee of the First M. E. Church was the presentation to the Sunday school of the fine large painting from Rev. Henry M. Simpson, of Elizabeth. The picture was painted by Mr. Simpson especially for the occasion and is an accurate portrayal of the Holy Land as seen from the crossyards of a ship out in the Mediterranean sea. Geographically the picture is correct in every detail and is valued highly by every member of the church and school. The presentation came as a great surprise as Mr. Simpson had given no previous hint of his intentions.

No Compaint Was Made at Court.

Lewis Moon, Adeline and Lillie Cuff and Florence Babbitt, who were arrested by Marshals Pope and Kiernan of the borough force for fighting Monday night, were dismissed when they faced Recorder Dolliver at the session of court last night. Compaint was to have been made by William Mowry, a neighbor on Jefferson avenue, but he did not put in an appearance until nearly 8 o'clock. The prisoners were held in the courtroom until 7.30 and dismissed because no one appeared to press the complaint.

Panhandler Tackles Chief Kiely.

Thomas Colgate, whose appearance belied relationship to the soap-making family, was arraigned in the city court, this mornisg, on a charge of vagrascy. He was panhandling about the business streets yesterday and made the mistake of picking out Chief Kiely for a touch. He gave Phillipsburg as his place of residence asd Judge Runyon allowed him thirty minutes in which to be well os his way to that place.

Converted Jew to Speak.

Samuel A. Hurwitz, a converted Jew who has charge of the Christian Mission to the Jews in Newark, will speak at the Rescue Mission on Madison avenue, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. He will speak especially to the Jews and they will hear the address in Hebrew. To those who cannot understand Hebrew Mr. Hurwitz will speak in English.

ACKERMAN DEFENDS AMERICAN SABBATH

Arguing from a Humanitarian Standpoint Senator Tells of the Evils of the Late Continental Sunday.

EUROPE REFORMING

Great Charge Has Come About in Many Continental Countries Says World Traveler and Political Student.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who is said to be the closest student of current political subjects in the New Jersey Legislature, sounds an alarm against the tendency for the so-called Continental Sabbath. In an interview today, the Senator reviews the situation in Europe, showing the baneful influences of the old "liberal" Sunday observance—or its non-observance—and the effect of any modification of the Bishops' law permitting Sunday selling.

"The increasing demand by the thinking electorate for the observance of the American Sabbath," said Senator Ackerman today, "is not the result of the contraction of intellect of the narrowness of vision or of the blindness of bigotry.

"The tendency of the times hitherto has been to drive ahead without regard to the milestones of sentiment and wisdom which have been placed along the pathway of our progress for our safety and guidance.

"I have heard it reliably stated that more people are now working seven days each week than at any previous time in our history.

"The idea of forcing people to labor without a day of rest is not sound from either an economical or humanitarian point of view. Who can successfully challenge this statement? The thoughtless clamor for a so-called liberal Sunday, with open liquor saloons, simply adds to an already existing evil and in my opinion is largely the result of a selfish desire for profits regardless of its effect in reversing the time-honored policy of the good old State of New Jersey. There would be more logic for Sunday opening of grocery stores and meat markets than there would be for open liquor saloons.

"Does it not appear reasonable that successful agitation for open Sunday saloons will be followed in other lines of work and industry? The final result would bring all the miseries and privations of the late Continental Sabbath. The words 'late Continental' are used advisedly because the old regime is passing away and that very rapidly. From observations during repeated trips abroad I know this to be a fact. Why not profit by this experience? Recently the French Chamber of Deputies passed a law, with but one dissenting vote, to protect the workman and to give him a day of rest. Contrast this action with the days of the old Bourbon Monarchy of a hundred years ago which wanted to entirely abolish the Sabbath!

"The present European Sabbath cannot now be regarded as the same old wide-open noisy day that it used to be. In fact even the London Sunday does not appear to be regarded any longer as the only standard of law and order. It appears strange that travelling Englishmen loudly complain that Paris has undergone a great change and that for gayety on that day they must go elsewhere.

"Reforms regarding Sunday observance have progressed steadily throughout Europe and embrace France, Italy, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal—in the last the new laws went into effect July 1, 1907.

"Does it not appear odd that Europe, which has suffered from the evils of an open Sunday, should be held up as an object lesson of merit by those who wish to destroy the American Sabbath in the interest of personal profits and are not the profits simply for those who really own the liquor store? Is it not a fact that the reputed proprietor in many cases is merely an agent? Is it not a fact that he has been driven to the last ditch in many cases by the mortgagee who insists that he shall slave and labor seven days and nights each week? Who will deny these facts?

"Investigation will show that even the bartenders and in many cases the individual owners would vigor-

WESTFIELD.

The building ordinance was again laid over by Westfield Council at the meeting Monday night. Considerable opposition to the ordinance has developed owing to some of its rigorous provisions.

The annual dinner of the Men's Club of the Westfield Congregational Church was held last night at the church parlors. The pastors of the other churches made addresses.

The Enterprise Foundry at Garwood will be started again on Thursday. Repairs to the cupola will be completed by that time.

Walter M. Irving is representing the Westfield Presbyterian Church at the meeting of the synod at Atlantic City today.

Monday night was the coldest of the fall here. Ice formed on ponds and still water.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dalley and daughters, the Misses Bertha and Ethel Dalley and Russell Schomp, of Newark, were over Sunady guests at the home of Mrs. Dalley's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Kinsey Matthews, in Cedar street, South Bound Brook.

Lamar Foster, of Trenton, is spending several days at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Holt, in Elizabeth street.

—Somerville Gardens, which has been the scene of great activity for the past six weeks, laying out streets, and putting the property in shape for sale is to be placed on the market Sunday, October 27, and W. C. Reeves & Co., brokers for the owners, will run a free special train from Jersey City to Somerville, and as an inducement to the early buyer, they are going to let the first 175 of these lots go at $12 each, on easy payment plan. As this property is only two blocks from the trolley, and six minutes walk from Somerville station, and Somerville has a population of over 8,000, with abundance of stores, schools, churches and all city improvements. It looks as though lots for $12 each, in a city of this size, so close to the trolley and station, is a rare opportunity to secure a big bargain.

The Young People's Association of the First Baptist church will hold a Hallowe'en social and entertainment on Tuesday night, October 29. Miss Helen Armstrong is chairman of the committee in charge.

The Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Monday afternoon, when a prominent Sunday-school worker from Newark will be present and teach the lesson. A full attendance is desired.

The sewing school and the cooking class will resume their work for the winter at Warren chapel Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Miss Lovell will have charge of the sewing school and another teacher will be secured for the cooking class. All girls between the ages of seven and seventeen whether members of the chapel or not are invited.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

The Right Stuff

The shape of a suit depends on the stuff that is put into it. Without the necessary "backbone" of haircloth and high-grade canvass, a coat will soon wilt and become as shapeless as a boiled jelly-fish.

There are many cheap imitations of this "backbone" but nothing else will keep the front of the coat perfect in its shape, the lapels smooth, the collar close-fitting.

Every Watson suit is made right, regardless of expense. That doesn't mean high price, however, for we cut out the middleman's profit and sell DIRECT TO YOU.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The Kirke La Shelle Company's production of "The Virginian," as dramatized from Owen Wister's immensely popular novel of the same name, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, with W. S. Hart in the title role, assisted by a notable array of dramatic talent.

W. S. Hart as "The Virginian," at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

So much interest is being taken in the forthcoming presentation of "Lena Rivers" at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night that the assumption seems warranted that the sale of seats will be unusually heavy. The success of the play has been of unusual proportions. In fact, none of the book made plays of the last three seasons has had so great a measure of success and the work possesses many lasting qualities which guarantee it life for many years. Miss Blanch Crozier, who heads the cast, made a very close study of "Lena Rivers," and before the production of the play went to Frankfort, Kentucky, and Slocumville, Mass., and visited all the scenes mentioned in the book. Great care was taken in giving the play the necessary atmosphere, and the production is a complete one. The first act scene is an exterior and a very pretty one, laid in the hills of Massachusetts. The last three are taken to the South and in three scenes are pictured the manners and life of that section so dear to all our hearts. Miss Crozier is supported by a cast of twelve artists, including Julia Hurley, May Barton, Bernice Belknaps, Miss Beulow, Paul Case, Paul Frero, O. Howland and others.

Edward German, the celebrated English composer who wrote the music for the comic opera, "Tom Jones," Robert Courtneidge, one of the librettists, who produced the piece at the Apollo theatre in London, and A. M. Thompson, co-author, have come to this country to make the American production for Henry W. Savage. This is an unusual distinction and shows the great care Mr. Savage is bestowing on this piece. He has engaged an especially selected company, headed by Louise Gunning, VanRensselear Wheeler, William Norris and Gertrude Quinlan. Also several English singers and actors have been brought over for "Tom Jones." The chorus is conspicuously efficient, as the music of "Tom Jones" is of a quality that calls for brilliant vocalization. The comedy of the opera is quaint and effective. Among the prominent theatrical offerings of the season none exceed in interest the production of "Tom Jones." It will be at the New Plainfield theatre October 31.

Our Specialty Hats.

Two great features of our Millinery Shop are the hats we sell at $4.75 and $7.75—hats that in many stores would cost you as much again and which will pass even before critical eyes as worth much more than we ask you for them.

There is a reason why we can make such splendid hats so cheaply. Having an enormous demand for them, selling them by hundreds, we anticipate our needs by purchasing immense quantities of materials for trimming. Then we keep our workers busy from the beginning of the season to the end so that they learn to produce the hats with exceptional rapidity, bringing down the cost to us all around.

The window show we have been making at $4.75 has astonished a great many people, who marveled, not only at the beauty of the styles and colors, but the diversity of treatment. We bring out effects in these cheap hats that make them distinctive and pretty.

The trimmings, while not of the most expensive sort, are good and serviceable.

About 300 of these up-to-date, low cost hats are now in stock, so that all who come may choose a hat that looks for all the world like an $8 or $10 one for only $4.75

Just a grade better are the artistically trimmed hats which you would not need to be urged to pay $12 to $15 for . These we sell at $7.75

There is a wide variety of these as well as others at higher prices, running from $9.75 to $95.

Pianos for the Economical

You Can Buy One for $5 a Month.

It should not be imagined that because we represent such high-grade instruments as the Hardman, Kranich & Bach and Gabler that we do not sell the more moderately priced instruments. We have two particularly good low-cost makes which we believe are by odds the best instruments on the market selling at such low prices.

New Hahne & Co. Pianos, $250.
$10 First Payment and $6 a Month Thereafter.
Hensel Pianos, $250.
$10 First Payment and $6 a Month Thereafter.
Spencer Pianos, $185.
$10 First Payment and $5 a Month Thereafter.

There are those who do not wish to invest a great deal of money in a piano—some for pecuniary reasons alone; others because the introduction of a piano into the home is somewhat of an experiment. A good many people who have just begun giving children music lessons are not sure that the musical talent of the children is sufficient to justify a large expenditure for a musical instrument. They desire to first see if the child develops into a musician and whether the piano is sufficiently fascinating to it to make it worth while educating it and giving it a high-class instrument to perform upon.

To these the Hahne & Co., Hensel and Spencer Pianos will appeal strongly, for they are excellent, tuneful instruments in which the musical qualities are first-class and the durability remarkable; in general appearance and finish they cannot be equaled for the money.

Not only for those experimenting are these low-cost pianos useful, but they are especially good for use in public places, in dance halls, clubs and the like, where hard usage is often given.

We make it extremely easy for any one to buy either of these pianos.

The Hahne & Co. or Hensel will cost you $250 and you can secure it by paying only $10 down and $6 a month thereafter.

The Spencer will cost $185, which may be paid $10 down and only $5 a month thereafter—merely a fraction more than rental would cost.

Our beautiful Piano Book—it is free for the asking.

For months Plainfield readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. John Driscoll, of 217 Grant avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I made a statement for publication regarding the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills, and said statement still holds good in every particular. If I were to make a single change in it, it would only be to make it stronger, for during the past few years I have known many people to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and have yet to hear of a case in which the remedy failed to do the work it is claimed to do. My own case was a dull aching pain in the small of the back and sides. It clung to me incessantly and hard work seemed to increase it. I was subject also to hard backaches, and spells of dizziness when stooping. I was generally weak and depressed. I tried plasters and used many different remedies without finding relief, and was finally led to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy. I began using the remedy, finding, at length, the relief I have described in the testimonial given for publication in 1898."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Many of the leading amateur golfers of the East will be congregated this week for the tri-city matches at the Country Club of Brookline, near Boston. Teams of ten have been selected from the Philadelphia, Boston and metropolitan districts, and, according to the program, the first match will be played on Friday, between the Philadelphia and Boston forces. The winner will earn the right to play New York, the present holder of the Lesley trophy, on the following day.

W. Fellowes Morgan, president of the Metropolitan Golf Association; Robert Lesley, president of the Golf Association of Philadelphia, and G. Herbert Windeler, president of the Massachusetts Golf Association, are trustees for the Lesley Cup. W. P. Smith is captain of the Philadelphia team, Hugo R. Johnstone of the Boston team and Walter J. Travis of the Metropolitan aggregation.

Travis has announced his team as follows: Jerome D. Travers, Archie Graham, Findlay S. Douglas, Walter J. Travis, George T. Brokaw, Robert Abbott, Archie Reid, John M. Ward, Fred Herreshoff, A. M. Robbins and Marshall Whilatch.

Boston will have J. G. Anderson, A. G. Lockwood, W. C. Chick, P. W. Whittemore, H. H. Wilder, Richard Kimball, Hugo R. Johnstone, Templeton Briggs, G. H. Crocker, J. G. Thorp, T. G. Stevenson, C. T. Crocker, jr., Percival Gilbert, Malcolm Stanton and R. H. Daniels.

Philadelphia—W. P. Smith, Dr. Simon Carr, H. W. Perrin, H. B. McFarland, A. W. Tillinghast, J. W. Watson, E. A. Service, R. E. Griscom, F. O. Horstman, H. J. McCurdy, W. T. West and George Cooke.

New names on the New York team are Abbott, Robbins, Brokaw and Whitlatch. On the other hand, Howard J. Gee, Dwight Partridge, C. J. Sullivan, C. B. Macdonald and J. G. Batterson have been dropped. The absence of Partridge may surprise a good many, especially as the Yale player won his match a year ago defeating Gilbert. In the four-ball affair during the afternoon Partridge also figured on the winning side. The ignoring of Max Behr is also a matter of general comment.

While the team might be strengthened, it is undoubtedly a strong one and quite capable of putting up a great fight against the winner of the Boston-Philadelphia match. On paper Boston looks to have an unusually formidable team, and few will be surprised to see the Bay State combination defeat Philadelphia without much trouble.

FOOTBALL.

Princeton has run her total of points away beyond the 200 mark and is easily ahead of all the rest in scoring. Her nearest competitor is Pennsylvania, who is eleven points shy of 200, with the Indians having one less point than the Pennsylvanians. Yale stood still last week in the point of accumulation, as did West Point, but both of these teams have a clean slate of the other side of the scoring question. Yale, West Point, Amherst, Dartmouth, Exeter and Tufts in the East have not been scored on, and in the West Michigan has blanked all of her opponents.

Princeton's total of 237 is the equivalent of 39½ touchdowns, or within a fraction of eight touchdowns a game. That is exceptional scoring and the sort to give future opponents grave pause. The Tiger scoring has been evenly distributed throughout the five games, showing more or less sameness in the strength of the opposing teams and steady ground gaining by Nassau. The ideal schedule for a team would be that which provided graduations from game to game that would temper gradually increasing severity of test with one or two opportunities to ease up after a particularly trying game. For instance, Yale gets a comparatively easy game after the West Point battle, but the change from Holy Cross was too pronounced. From 52 points in one game to another which yields no points is a suddenness of variety in the strength of opponents calculated to bother any team.

Yale's schedule for the first month found one extremely easy game sandwiched in with three stiff ones, the scores by Yale in the four games coming in this order: 11, 18, 52 and 0. Harvard's point record has not consisted of such a sweeping swing from one extreme to the other, the Crimson's points having been made in this order: 5, 30, 33, 18 and 6. Schedules, however, are largely guesswork, for nobody can foresee what an opponent will bring forth. The Lafayette eleven, like Princeton, has made double figures in every one of its games, and with one exception there has been noticeable sameness in the number of points made against opponents, Lafayette's totals having been made in the following order: 22, 21, 43 and 21.

THE AMERICAN SABBATH.

In an interview fraught with common sense and sound logic, State Senator Ackerman "takes the bull by the horns" on the question of excise legislation and Sabbath observance, speaking from personal knowledge on the effect of the so-called liberal Sunday, which, until very recently obtained generally on the continent of Europe. It is the economic as well as the humanitarian standpoint that appeals to the Union county legislator, whose thorough comprehension of the subject upon which he speaks has been gained by many years of careful study while traveling in foreign parts.

That the senator is right, when he declares that there would be more excuse for Sunday opening of meat markets and grocery stores, no reasonable man will gainsay. Nor will he when the argument is advanced that Sunday selling of liquor would be followed by other lines of work and industry. This natural consequence has been witnessed by Mr. Ackerman on the continent, where, until but a short time ago, shops of retail merchants and in many instances manufacturing plants were running wide open seven days in the week. The condition was particularly noticeable in Paris, Madrid and other large cities. Not until the workers themselves arose in revolt, however, did the governments act, the general change of sentiment being so strong that the officials were compelled to move for an American Sabbath. For instance, last spring all the big stores in the heart of Paris were open on Sundays; now every one of them is closed up tight. Humanitarianism furnished the keynote of the solution.

In referring to the subject from an economic viewpoint, the Senator very correctly declares that the retail liquor dealer is not altogether responsible for the agitation in favor of Sunday selling. In many, many cases, the saloons are really owned by the breweries and the handful of men who control such plants are really chargeable with the offence of advocating a condition similar to the "late Continental Sabbath." Were the average saloonkeeper, however, his own free agent, almost to a man he would be Mr. Fort's most enthusiastic supporter in his fight for the Bishops' law. One does not have to go outside our city to find that every owning saloonkeeper is glad that the Bishops' law is on the statute book and that he would oppose any modification of its provisions.

Mr. Fort's position on this subject is known to every man, woman and child in the state. He has nothing to hide and refuses to be a party to any deception to the public although the platform on which he stands is silent on the subject of the prelates' measure. Where Mr. Katzenbach stands nobody knows; apparently not even Katzenbach himself. Why he thus hides his views from the public is not understandable and unless he comes out clearly in favor of the Bishops' law or as an advocate of the so-called liberal Sabbath, he is doomed to ignominious defeat for the American people do not admire a man who is afraid of his own convictions.

THE BILL BOARD.

The campaign against the billboard is on in earnest in New Jersey, according to the Elizabeth Journal, which gives the following review of the situation:

"The crusade against the billboard is at last reaching a point, in this section of the State at least, where something definite seems likely to be accomplished. By the action of the Committee on Public Places and Amusements, of the Common Council, of Newark, all theatrical managers will be obliged in the future to submit to the members of that committee on a certain day of each week all the posters they intend to put out. In other words, Newark proposes in the future to carry on an intelligent plan of supervision as contrasted with the hap-hazard scheme endured by most of the towns and cities in this State. The good sense shown by this neighboring city of ours is well brought out by the reasons given for the action which has been taken. Evidence has been presented in the Juvenile Court, for one thing, that the posters which have been put up exert a strong influence on the minds of the young.

"In Jersey City, following the move made against the indecent poster by St. Bridget's Holy Name Society, the billboard has become a campaign issue. Mayor Fagan, urged to action by the Catholic clergymen, has taken a lively interest in the poster agitation. The result is, the Chief of Police has announced that he will arrest the theatrical managers causing such posters to be placed on the billboards of the city. In the future precinct commanders will be held personally responsible for all the indecent displays in their particular fields. It has been the custom of the advertising agents of the Jersey City theatres to submit the posters to the Chief of Police for his sanction, but it is admitted by the chief that many of them he never saw at all. But in the future this unintelligent and dangerous way of meeting a practical problem will not prevail. The posters will all be carefully inspected, which is another encouraging sign of awakened interest in the regulation of the billboard.

"The interest in the problem is by no means confined to Newark and Jersey City. The Plainfield-North Plainfield Town Improvement Association plans to have a taxation scheme introduced at the next meeting of the Common Council. The idea is in Plainfield, apparently, to banish the billboard entirely, if possible, in order to bring about what is becoming more and more popular in this country—the city beautiful.

"In an article on 'The Crusade Against the Billboards,' by Clinton Rogers Woodruff, first vice president of the American Civic Association, printed in the Review of Reviews, this writer shows that the agitation in New Jersey is only a part of a larger movement which is spreading persistently throughout the country. He says:

"'The billboard certainly is not gaining in popularity. The revolt against the objectionable use of billboards is spreading day by day. They are being attacked in various ways and the lawmaking an dtaxing powers are being resorted to to control, and, if possible, eliminate them. A goodly number of bills were introduced in the recent sessions of the State Legislatures along the lines suggested by the American Civic Association to give the local authorities power to license and tax them. They were all defeated because the billboard promoters were, for the time being, stronger, and beter organized; but the people, who are the real opponents of the billboards, are only awakening to their responsibilities in the premises.'"

Do You Realize

that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

Pianos to rent at moderate terms.

DEFENDS AMERICAN SABBATH

orously resent any attempt to repeal the Bishops' law because it gives them privileges and opportunities for rest and social pleasure which they had not previously enjoyed. The State Constitution declares among other things in defining the rights of the people the benefits of pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness. The pursuit of safety and happiness when applied to society as a whole is more complete in the observance than in the desecration of the Sabbath. The Republican candidate for Governor has clearly defined his position regarding the Bishops' bill and so have the candidates for Assembly from Union county. Should they not receive the support of all in favor of upholding the high standard of civic-righteousness?"

Former Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. W. L. Mauldin, of Greenville, S. C., have returned home after a visit with Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue.

Mrs. George Whitley, formerly of West Fifth street, has returned from Beverley, Mass., where she spent the summer, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitley, of Essex street.

RAT DOES TRAPEZE ACT.

Walks Telegraph Wire, Beset by Sparrows Until the End.

A gray rat walking along an electric wire 30 feet above the ground for many blocks furnished a novelty on West Baltimore street. The feat, which excels that of any trick rat ever exhibited in a show, would seem a dream of the imagination but for the fact that the spectacle is absolutely vouched for by thousands of persons who watched the strange sight from six o'clock until eight. Beset by a number of English sparrows, which seemed to take a fiendish delight in attacking the badly handicapped rodent, he at times varied his steady gait along the wire by acrobatic performances calculated to ward off the attacks of the birds. He would sit up on his haunches on the slender wire, no larger than a lead pencil, and reconnoiter before continuing his hapless journey from pole to pole. After a most gallant fight for life, which deserved a better recognition under the rules of fair play, the unfortunate animal was finally knocked from the wire at Carrolton avenue and Baltimore street and dispatched by a dog. Just how the rat got on the wire in the first place has not been satisfactorily explained, but it is thought that a dog chased him somewhere—some persons say as far east as the neighborhood of Howard and Baltimore streets—and forced him to run up a pole.—Baltimore Dispatch to Washington Post.

WHEN A "HUNCH" HELD GOOD.

Chinese Laundry Ticket Suggested a Bet on "Wing Ting."

Kay Spence, a well-known horseman of Mexico, Mo., won $1,000 at the Louisville, Ky., race meeting a short time ago as the result of a "hunch." Mr. Spence has a large breeding stable of "runners" near Mexico, and attends all the big racing events in the country. Not long since he was in Louisville and entered the betting ring to see what odds were being offered on the various entries. He found that Joaquin was the favorite at even money, and pulled his wallet from his pocket, intending to bet on that horse. His attention was attracted by something that fell from his wallet to the ground, and he stooped and picked it up. It was a Chinese laundry ticket. He looked at the "books" again and found that there was an entry with a Chinese name, Wing Ting, at ten to one. That settled it, for he considered he had received a "hunch" that could not be overlooked. Wing Ting won handily. Needless to say, those who backed the favorite considered Spence the seventh son of the seventh son.—Kansas City Star.

The Blessedness of Giving.

The tremendous benefactions of Carnegie and Rockefeller are having the effect, we are told, of giving the small-fry philanthropists cold feet and scaring them out of the game, until it comes to pass that the man who has only the beggarly $100,000 or so, to bestow, evinces a decided disposition to buy fun less expensive, if likewise less intense with his money. This goes to suggest that philanthropists are but flesh and blood, after all, and hanker not to enter in a race where they are to be not only beaten but distanced at the post. The widow's mite is unexceptionable, of course, and it seems a pity that nobody hears the widow's name thundering down the ages.—Puck.

Satisfied as It Was.

A Richmond (Va.) minister not long ago was asked to perform a marriage ceremony by a young negro couple, says Harper's Weekly. As he had employed the groom for a year or two, he consented, knowing what prestige would come to the couple by reason of having been married by a white minister. At the appointed time the happy pair arrived and the ceremony proceeded. "Do you take this man for better or for worse?" the minister asked. For all her shyness the bride spoke up bravely. "No, sah! ah don't," she said. "Ah'll take him jest like he is. If he was ter get any better, I's 'fraid he'd die; an' if he was ter get any wuss, ah'd kill him myself."

He Had 198 Chances.

Gov. Stuart of Pennsylvania said in Harrisburg of a bill that he opposed: "This bill, at first glance, is full of promise and enthusiasm and hope, but it is naive. It is like the young man of Kensington who proposed for the hand of the millionaire's daughter. 'Well,' said the millionaire, frowning thoughtfully, 'what are your prospects? Is there any chance of promotion in your business?' 'Any chance?' cried the young man. 'Well, I should say so. Why, we employ 200 men, and my job is next to the lowest in the establishment.'"

That Law Again.

For miles and miles the through passenger train had plodded along in the wake of the slow freight. The travelers grew irksome and even petulant. "Conductor," says one of the boldest of them, "why do you not get that freight to take a siding while we go by?" "Under the Hepburn law," explains the conductor, sadly, "we are not allowed to pass anything."—Success Magazine.

Where He Was Known.

"Who is this fellow Rush you spoke of?" "Oh, he's a well-known chauffeur." "A well-known chauffeur?" "That's what I said!" "Why, I never heard of him." "Well, you would if you were a court clerk, like I am!"

Old Friend—Won't he listen to reason?

"No; won't listen to anything. When he takes a notion, right er wrong, the hull earth can't move him."

"Well, don't despair. Get a place for him on a newspaper, and in time he may become a great leader of independent Journalism."—N. Y. Weekly.

Too Personal.

Miss Elder—Well, I maintain that women can do anything that men can.

Mr. Gazzam—Oh, no. The auctioneer's business is one a woman cannot go into.

Miss Elder—Nonsense. She'd make every bit as good an auctioneer as a man.

Mr. Gazzam—Just imagine an unmarried woman getting up before a crowd and exclaiming, "Now, gentlemen, all I want is an offer!"—Chicago Journal.

Furthermore.

Hello, Jordle. What's your hurry?"

"Hello, doctor."

"I haven't seen you lately. How is your wife by this time?"

"O, she's quite well, now.'

"Glad to hear it. Fully recovered, has she?"

"Yes, thanks to you, doctor."

"In addition to which, Mr. Jordle, my bill—let me see, yes, here it is—will be $57. Shall I receipt it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Not a Circumstance.

"Didn't the thunder storm disturb you last night?"

"Thunder storm? I didn't know there was one."

"You didn't? Where on earth do you sleep?"

"Nowhere on earth. I sleep within three feet of an elevated railway track."—Chicago Tribune.

Yearning for a Change.

"I wish they would hurry up and complete the flying machine," said the man who lacks the recreation spirit.

"Why?"

"Because I'm tired of going out in a boat and hearing everybody sing 'Sailing, Sailing.' I'd like to hear 'Up in a Balloon, Boys,' for a change."—Washington Star.

A SUFFICIENCY.

Fondmar—Wish to marry Jennie? Why, she is my only daughter!

Fargorn—Well, what of it? That's all I want, one!—Chicago Journal.

Old Joke.

Wright—I see that kerosene was first used for lighting purposes in 1826.

Penman—Gracious! Is that joke about the cook leaving suddenly through the roof, as old as that?—Yonkers Statesman.

A Better Brand.

Tom—Shortleigh has given up the idea of joining the north pole expedition. He says he doesn't care to court death in the arctic regions.

Jack—Well, I don't blame him—seeing that he is now courting a rich widow.—Chicago News.

And Then He Got Mad.

"Mrs Cissie said she thought it must be very pleasant to be married to a clever man!'

"And what did you say, wife?"

"I told her that of course I didn't know—I had only been married once!"

English as She Is Spoke.

Myer—I'm going over to the barber shop to get a hair cut.

Gyer—Why don't you get them all cut while you are at it?—Chicago Daily News.

Impossible.

"You should sleep on your right side, madam.'

"I really can't do it, doctor. My husband talks in his sleep, and I can't hear a thing with my left ear."

Terrible Revenge.

Manville (much excited)—He ruined me in business. He smirched my good name. He filched from me the girl I loved; but at last, ha! ha! I am revenged!

Neate—Good gracious! What did you do?

Manville (hissing through his set teeth)—I recommended him to spend his holidays at the seaside lodgings I had last year, and he's going to do it.

TOO SHORT-WAISTED.

Lady—Good morning. I left my bathing dress here yesterday by mistake; may I have it, please?

Bathing Man—This the one, miss?—The Tatler.

The Latest.

Rounder—Wedderly wasn't at the stag party last night, was he?

Bounder—No. He was stormbound.

Rounder—Why, there wasn't any storm last night.

Bounder—Oh, yes there was. His wife had a brain storm.—Chicago News.

Her Best Recollection.

Mrs. Lapsling was explaining the nature of the injury sustained by Johnny when he fell off the back porch.

"It's a wonder he ever went through it alive," she said. "The doctor says he came mighty near fracturing his juxtaposition. You know that's the bone next to the Medullion obligato."—Chicago Tribune.

Modern Improvements.

Fire Insurance Agent—I fear I must charge you extra rates. You burn kerosene oil here, I see.

Mr. Subub—Yes, but we run no extra risk—no risk at all. The kitchen is separate from the house, and there is a skylight in the roof big enough for the servant girl and the cookstove to sail through without hurting anything.—N. Y. Weekly.

Believed.

Physician — Your boy will pull through all right. He has a wonderful constitution.

Mr. Tyte-Phist—I am glad to hear it, doctor. In making out your bill, of course, you will not make me pay for what his constitution has done in pulling him through.—Chicago Thibune.

Slight Mistake.

First Stranger—Excuse me, but you are a physician, I believe?

Second Stranger—You are mistaken, sir.

First Stranger—But I overheard you say you followed the medical profession.

Second Stranger—And so I do. I'm an undertaker.—Chicago Daily News.

Keeping the Peace.

Citizen (breathlessly)—A lot of roughs are rioting down street, smashing windows and clubbing inoffensive citizens.

Policeman—Been smokin' opium, I'm thinkin'. I'll run around and pull a Chinese laundry.—N. Y. Weekly.

At the Side Show.

Ballyhoo—I can't seem to scare up a crowd. All our attractions are too old.

Museum Manager—Let's get up an eating contest between the two-headed girl and the elastic-skinned man.—Cleveland Leader.

Aero Club Note.

Bacon—You say Santos-Dumont never smokes when he's up in his balloon?

Egbert—Never; but when he comes down the first thing he likes is to be helped to alight.—Yonkers Statesman.

All Right.

"What does McDobbs call his series of pictures of the moonshiners of the Kentucky mountains?"

"Studies in still life, I believe."—Cleveland Leader.

Boynton Square Pot Furnaces

The many acknowledged disadvantages of the old-fashioned round fire pot have been entirely overcome in the patent Square Pot—an exclusive feature of the time-tried Boynton Furnaces.
First of all, the grate bars are of equal length and motion, extending under the whole layer of ashes, making clearance quick and complete. No place to clog; no choking; no poking. Solves problem of perfect combustion. Ash pit is square—cleanest, best draught, handiest.

THE SQUARE POT. Patented
With the square pot there is greater ease of operation, more radiating surface, more economy of fuel, than in any other construction known. Your plumber, steam fitter or tinsmith will show you.
There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

HAVE CRAZE FOR FORMULA.

Smokers Follow Fashions in the Use of Tobacco.

"Make me up a package of tobacco according to the formula used by Edwin Booth," said the man with a southern accent. "That is the third man who has asked for that kind of tobacco to-day," said the dealer. "It is strange that people from remote parts of the country as well as New Yorkers make a fad of buying the same brand of tobacco that Booth smoked. And it isn't always the Booth mixture that they want. I have filed away the formulas for mixing the favorite tobacco of many famous persons. Smokers the country over have heard of this collection of recipes and one feature of every man's trip to New York is to try a pipeful of some big man's favorite tobacco. In most cases this special mixture is so strong that the nerves of the average smoker cannot stand it. He has to give up after a few pipefuls and go back to a popular mixture, but he has the satisfaction of having had the experience."—The New York Sun.

A PRETTY SAFE PROPHECY.

De Pachmann's Humor at Expense of His Confrere.

Vladimir De Pachmann, the Russian pianist, and Goldmark, the famous opera composer, met in front of the latter's Vienna home a short time ago. Goldmark is a most estimable old gentleman and a writer of exceptionally brilliant and melodious music, but his one great fault is most overwhelming conceit, a trait which often gives his friends occasion for much merriment at his expense. As De Pachmann and Goldmark walked away from the composer's house, the pianist pointed backward over his shoulder and said: "That modest little edifice will be signally distinguished some day after you are dead." "Indeed," murmured Goldmark, blushing with pleasure. "Yes," continued De Pachmann; "they will decorate it with a tablet." "And, pray, what do you suppose they will say on the tablet after I am dead?" asked the composer, eagerly. "To Let," was De Pachmann's pithy reply, as he scuttled across the Ring Strasse.

In the Interests of Peace.

A party of youths were camping in the mountains of the up-state district, says the Philadelphia Ledger. One of them disturbed the others every moment his lungs would allow by a ceaseless attempt to sing. One of the party, being somewhat of a musician, inwardly vowed vengeance, and at last determined to put his feelings to words. Supper was in progress as the would-be singer entered. At the end of the verse he turned to the musician and said: "The funny thing about me is that I can sing with a chew in." The musician looked at him in a kind of charitably contemptible way, and answered in a long drawl: "Well, then, for goodness' sake, put a chew in."

The Artist's Mistake.

A trained nurse was looking through the advertising pages of a magazine. Presently she came to a picture which arrested her attention. "It's pretty," she said, showing it to her patient, "but can you see what's wrong with it?" The patient saw a picture of a very attractive trained nurse about to hand a cup of something to an equally attractive patient who reclined in bed. "No," she admitted. "It looks all right to me. What's the matter with it?" "The nurse's apron has big strings, whereas it should be fastened with a trim belt. I never saw a nurse in my life who wore big strings on her apron. The artist probably never noticed."

A Hydropathic Cure.

"Well! Well!" was the favorite exclamation of surprise of a certain literary worker. "Well! Well!" no matter whether things were well or ill. "Well! Well!" he exclaimed the other evening at the end of a semi-tragic story. "Two holes in the ground," said a fair listener. It took him a moment to catch on; then he exclaimed: "Well! Well! Well!" "Three holes in the ground," said the girl. And the man was cured of his favorite phrase.

Reason for His Absence.

"I never see Crocket down here any more," said the artist, as he took a seat in the most comfortable chair. "Why is it? It used to be that I never came down but Crocket was here. If he wasn't actually here, a knock at the door, and Crocket." "He came down here not long ago," she explained, "and said he was awfully hard up. I offered him a five and he took it. That's why."

Stating the Case.

A woman came to court claiming as daughter the wealth of the deceased millionaire. "But if you were his daughter, why didn't you mention it when he was alive?" she was asked. "Why, what'd been the use? He'd have known I wasn't, and, besides, I only just thought of the scheme."

Seaside Engagement.

"You understand, of course, that this engagement is only for the summer?" The man nodded. "Well," resumed the woman, "if you're a good cook you may have $30 a month for the season."

Which?

"There is talk of a theatrical trust with a capital of a billion dollars." "Stage or United States money?"

BOWLING.

Frank O. Ball, captain of the bowling team at the Park Club, expects soon to announce the members of the first team which will take part in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament. The tournament will start about November 1. Owing to an injury to his foot it is doubtful whether Alex. Miln will be able to roll on the team for the present.

FOOTBALL.

Drop kicking was rampant in Saturday's games, there being nearly a score of them the Minnesota and Pennsylvania State teams each making two and winning on that account. With a crack drop kicker at Pennsylvania State, a good one at the University of Pennsylvania, another good one at Carlisle and two skilful ones at Swarthmore the State of Pennsylvania comes near to having a monopoly of drop kickers. An 11 to 11 score in one game and an 18 to 17 result in another were among the potpourri of happenings on Saturday.

SHORT SPORTS.

Scholastic football on Hope common today—the two local high schools, city and borough, are rushing the pigskin.

Rubenstein, who won his match with Harold Durar in the semi-final round of the high school boys tennis tournament yesterday, will meet Laurence Bromfield in the finals for the school title at Briggs court this afternoon. Bromfield plays a hard, placing game, using strokes, while Rubenstein depends a good deal on cutting the ball.

Paul Collier and Ted Gavett, two of the members of last season's five, were in the line-up for the Y. M. C. A. in the game with the Baptist church team Monday night. They showed up in good form.

Leal's school boys have no football team this season, but have got right to work with basketball and are holding regular practices in connection with their class at the Y. M. C. A. Duke and Brown are the only members of last year's t eam in school, but the six weeks practise before the season opens will round some of the material into shape.

A special class for teachers of city and borough schools is being formed at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Eleanor Van Tuyl, manager of the girls' high school basketball team has arranged a game with the girls' team from the Westfield high school, to be played in the city school gymnasium a wek from today. It will be the first game of the season for both teams.

Armwrights to Bowl Raritans.

The Armwright Bowling team will will rowl a match series with the Raritans on the Plainfield Academy aleys tomorrow night. Ed. Britton will captain the local men. The Armwrights will play a return match with the Rahway five in this city next week.

(Other sporting news on page three).

Y. M. C. A. Boys to West Point.

The first of the series of outings for the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will be a week from Saturday. At this time, twenty of the boys, in charge of Boys' Secretary L. A. Soule, will go to West Point for the day. The party will see the cadets play football and will be present at the afternoon parade.

Grand Sir Herald Visits.

Grand Sir Herald Horace J. Martin, of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, spoke to the members of White Cross Castle, at Whitehouse last night. The lodgemen turned out in force in his honor and a reception was held. Eagles from Califon and Annandale were present.

—The working building a new storage vault in the basement of the City National Bank is about completed. The vault is much needed owing to the increased demands for a place to store valuables.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Susan Benner.

Mrs. Susan S. Benner, widow of Wesley Benner, died on Monday night at her home in Plainfield avenue, Metuchen, aged eighty-one years. She was born in New England, and spent most of her life in Metuchen and Plainfield. Mrs. Benner was a member of the Episcopal church, of Metuchen. She leaves two children, George Benner and Mrs. Frederica Waite, of Metuchen. Mrs. George S. Silzer, wife of the Middlesex County Senator, is a granddaughter.

SUE MAYOR FOR LIBEL.

Orange Executive Said to Have Made Serious Charges.

Alderman Daniel G. Bury has instructed his lawyer, City Counsel William A. Lord, to start suit in libel for $10,000 damages against Mayor Isaac Shoenthal, of Orange, and Alderman Harry W. Berryman has instructed Mr. Lord to take up the case, and may take similar action. The two aldermen charge the Mayor with libelling them in a speech which the latter delivered in the 5th ward last Friday night, in which the Mayor charged that Republican members of the Common Council attempted to mulct the city out of $900 in the purchase of a new fire truck. It is alleged by the plaintiff that the Mayor's language was defamatory, and that he conveyed the impression that the Republicans had profited financially by the fire truck transaction. Both Bury and Berryman are members of the fire committee.

Mayor Shoenthal said yesterday afternoon that he was not aware that he said anything libellous in his speeches, and added that he expected to keep on talking and telling the people of conditions which he knew of. "This sort of thing only advertises the campaign, and it is a good thing to arouse interest," concluded the Mayor.

Lecture On Egypt.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Moldenke will give his illustrated lecture on the subject of "In Upper Egypt and Nubia," at St. Peter's Lutheran church, on Grove street, tonight, for the benefit of the church. This will be the third of a series of lectures on the subject.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

BIG FAIR ENDS TONIGHT

"Gathering of the Clans" Will Terminate With Many Special Attractions.

WORKERS ALL JUBILANT

Attendance Last Evening Eclipsed Previous Records and the Receipts Were Correspondingly Large.

Enthusiasm of the all-wool-and-a-yard-wide variety was very much in evidence at the "Gathering of the Clans" last night. The attendance was much larger than on previous occasions and where the crowd is there's always sure to be "something doing." All of the many attractions, both indoors and on the grounds, did a rushing business all evening and the way the receipts swelled the grand total was a joy to the promoters of the big fair. The booths in the Casino proper were besieged with eager buyers and the outfits of many were greatly depleted before the rush subsided.

The balmy atmosphere caused a good part of the crowd to devote most of the time in taking in "The Cycle of Fun" and the numerous attractions did a land-office business. The "hot dog specialists," Lew Timpson and Harry Hall, didn't have time to ballyhoo for patronage it came so fast and they had to summon volunteers to slap on the mustard and hand out their wares. Judging by the dimes that jingled into their cash box there will be an awful scarcity of "mutts" for the next ten weeks.

The Gold Medal minstrels played to S. R. O. in the large tent and they put on extra numbers in celebration of the agreeable condition of affairs, speaking atmospherically. Harry Blimm introduced a dancing specialty that sent waves of applause to the top of the center pole and Harry Messersmith made good with a new monologue, "Twenty-five rooms in our House." Tonight the troupe will put on a double bill and they promise a lot of good stuff that has never yet been handed over the footlights.

At Edward Luzenberg's watch booth, the attendants worked overtime handing out the pocket clocks to lucky guessers and "Queen Lilly," the mite of a horse, was viewed by large crowds. The cane rack, Foxy Grandpa and the flap-jack tent were also borne along on popularity's wave.

On the Casino stage, the pantomime tableaux, "The Comedy of Ation," were again put on at 10 o'clock and they were very much enjoyed by the big gathering.

Tonight marks the close of the fair and everybody interested is making preparations to receive the banner attendance. It will be the last opportunity Plainfielders will have to enjoy the many attractions and at the same time add their mite to the hospital fund as no "carry-over" is contemplated. Everything on the booths will be disposed of and it will be well worth the visit alone to hear the auctioneers entice the change from the people's pockets.

Accidentally Shoots Chum.

Roselle Park, Oct. 23.—Adam Hohenstroeder, fifteen years old, living at Westfield avenue and Magie street, was accidentally shot, Monday night, by a playmate, Alexander Jack. They had an air gun, which Jack discharged while pointing the weapon at his companion. The bullet entered young Hohenstroeder's leg, inflicting a bad wound. Dr. Pierson, who is attending the lad, fears blood poisoning may result from the wound.

Funeral of Mrs. Lewis.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Stowers Lewis was held at the home of her son-in-law, D. F. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, yesterday afternon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends. During the service two selections were rendered by a quartette composed of Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Etta Raibert, Elmer D. Cutting and Judge William N. Runyon. The body was afterward sent to Binghamtown, N. Y., where interment will be made today.

Defamation Suit Off.

The suit for $10,000 damages for defamation of character which Jennie Grotty, a servant, has instituted against Simeon A. Cruikshank, and which was to have been tried this week, in the Union County court has been put off for the term. It is reported that the case is not likely to be tried, that it may be settled before another date is fixed.

Fire Drill In Borough.

Superintendent Krebs, of the borough schools, sounded the fire signal on the bells at the Someset street school this morning at about 11 o'clock. The building was emptied of pupils in about a little over two minutes. There was no confusion.

Rev. Mr. Craig Cannot Attend.

Rev. Mr. Craig, who was expected to speak at the prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will not be able to attend and the regular service will be held.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. Ross, 403 East Seventh street.

Colonel Dungan to Marshal Merry-Makers in Somerville.

At a meeting in Somerset Hall, Somerville, last night, ararngements were perfected for the mummers' parade in this city Hallowe'en night. H. W. Reusswig was elected president of the committee in charge and J. M. Lambruskin, secretary.

Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., will be grand marshal and Captain A. W. Mack, of Company M, will be in charge of the second division. Members of the city fire department and of Company M will act as aides, and the Hudson River Military Academy Cadet Corps in charge of Captain Wilson, will form the escort. Various sub-committees were appointed to arrange details.

PATENT "MEDICINE."

"Sadie Bailey Fowler" Puts Spell on Pennsy "Cons."

There is an ancient founded tradition in Rahway, handed down from the native Indian tribe, of a Sadie Bailey Fowler who made "good medicine." Alderman "Jim" has long been one of the devotees of this hasbeen, and he has innoculated his fellow conductors with the cult.

"Things went wrong all the way from Philly, and being a little skittish about the Hudson meadows, I thought it good policy to stop over and consult the spirit f Sadie Bailey Fowler, particularly as I knew the disturbing influence of 'Jim' was then communing with 'Hughey:'"

—Neuman Brothers did a big business in Bartlett and Sickle pears today. Tomorrow they will have a new lot of an especially nice variety in their big fruit display.

LAST CHARCOAL RELIC IN JERSEY AT BUENA.

At Buena, formerly Buena Vista, in Atlantic county, is to be seen the last relic in southern New Jersey of the charcoal mill. How many hundred years ago it was built no one knows. It was last used in 1870. For a century before Atlantic City or Vineland was founded charcoal burning was the principal industry of that county.

To this day marks of the old kilns are to be seen throughout the pine section. To this old mill all the coal that was ground in South Jersey found its way. When ground and sifted, it was carted by ox teams to Philadelphia and used in whisky distilleries.

The wheel of the old mill was made of stone bound by iron, in which are cogs to correspond to the cogs in the circular basin constructed to catch the dust of the coal. Round and round this basin trudged the horse that furnished the power.

Old residents say lean horses became fat in a few months after breathing in the dust of the coal. Farmers often loaned their animals long enough to get them fat.

There was also something about the dust that preserved the wood, for the old frame still partly hangs together, although lighter parts have long since decayed. Relic hunters have carried away some of the wood. The mill was built of the best material, mortised and tenoned. So far as known no nails were used.

Miss Phebe E. Sayer, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. James R. Joy, of the borough, for some time, will leave tomorrow for her home in Illinois, where she will remain for an indefinite time.

PERSONAL.

Miss Gilmore, of Brooklyn, is visiting Miss Cuzan, of West Second street.

Mrs. Hall, youngest daughter of Rev. Dr. Smith, a former pastor of Trinity Reformed church, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Van Winkle, of East Seventh street.

The W. C. T. U. will meet in the rooms on Madison avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, when the delegates to the recent State Convention in Jersey City will tell of that gathering.

A meeting of the Protestant ministers of Middlesex county has been held at New Brunswick for the purpose of considering the matter of dropping the score or more of excise cases where the indictments pending have not yet been tried. Nearly two-score of hotel keepers were indicted through evidence obtained through the detectives of the Law and Order League in 1906. In one case a conviction was found. The prosecutor thinks it will be difficult to convict the remainder, but the ministers, it is said, do not take the same view.

SCHOOLBOYS IN TIE GAME

City and Borough High School Elevens in a Hard Fought Contest.

FINAL SCORE 5 TO 5

Boroughites Surprised Local School Boys and Played the Better Game—P. H. S. Fumbled At Critical Times.

Before a crowd of 300 cheering school boys and school girls, the football teams of the city and borough high schools played a 5-5 tie game on Hope Common yesterday afternoon, and the two elevens, evenly matched, fought for every foot of ground in a contest that was not decided until the timers' whistles blew. The boroughites sprung a surprise on their opponents and until within six minutes of the end of the game the score was 5-0 in their favor.

The city high eleven received the kick-off and it was through their unsteadiness at the beginning of the game that the borough team scored. A poor pass for a punt gave the North Plainfielders the ball on city high's 25-yard line and in four rushes the fast boroughites made the touchdown, gaining through the left side of their opponents' line. Byron McClintock was sent over the line for the North Plainfielders' only score less than two minutes after the game began. He failed to kick the goal.

A minute or two after the next kick-off, another poor pass for a punt gave the boroughites the ball abount the same distance from the city team's goal line as the one which resulted in the scoring. It looked like another touchdown, for the North Plainfielders got within striking distance of the goal by the use of a quarterback run behind the entire wing as interference. But Captain Murphy's men steadied and the boroughites lost the ball on downs a yard and a half from the goal line. Murphy broke through the borough's defense four successive times for several yards at each rush and the ball was out of danger. Neither team got within striking distance of the other's goal line during the remainder of the half.

In the second half, city high started out to play hard, fast football. They began to use the forward pass, and though penalized once, it proved the direct means of their score. They gained almost forty yards by using it three times successively and when within striking distance of the goal, Loizeaux sent Bingaman through the line twice in succession for the touchdown. Phillips missed the rather difficult goal necessary to win the game for Plainfield. The city high eleven were working the ball steadily down the field when time was called.

The game was marked by a good deal of fumbling, especially by the city high team. They were very unsteady at first, but played winning football in the second half. Individual playing was again a feature and Murphy, Bingaman and Loizeaux proved the best ground gainers. Borough high was stronger on the defense, when the teams played straight football and Conroy at quarterback played a heady game and made some brilliant tackles. Byrn McClintock and Parsons were the best ground gainers for the borough team. Parsons and Day, who have been kept out of school by sickness, were in the game yesterday for the first in two weeks. The summary:

Fountain, Cullen	left tackle	Smith
Sewell	left guard	Beecher
Burke, Titsworth	centre	Powlison
Morris	right guard	Steiner
Hammond	right tackle	Day
K. Phillips	right end	Herrman
Loizeaux	quarterback	Conroy
Murphy	left half back	Overton
Caldwell	right half back	Parsons
Bingaman	full back	B. McClintock

Referee—Phillips. Umpire — Mr. Phelps, of N. P. H. S. Timers—Brown, of N. P. H. S., and Lyness, of P. H. S. Fifteen and twenty minute halves.

"Prince" After Another Record.

Charles Brower, the owner of the fast trotter, "Prince," which lowered the track record of eight years' standing at the Driving Park last week, will attempt to lower the wagon record for the track Saturday with the horse. The best time to wagon is 2:23¼, and Brower is going to try to break this record. The horse will trot at abobut 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

MISS AGNES KELLY BRIDE OF W. J. DOUGHERTY

Miss Agnes Irene Kelly, of Clinton avenue, and William J. Doughetry, of Elizabeth, were married in St. Mary's church, at 4 o'clock, yesterday afternoon. The ceremony which was performed by Rev. B. M. Bogan, the pastor, was witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Elizabeth and this city.

The bride was attended by her sister Miss May Kelley, as bridesmaid, and Mayor Pierre P. Garven of Bayonne, was the best man. The ushers were Frank Kelley and Charles Kelly, brothers of the bride. Miss Mary Smith presided at the organ and as the bridal party entered the church she played the wedding march from Lohengrin. On leaving the church, the Mendelssohn wedding march was played.

Following the reception was held at the new home of the couple, 826 West Sixth street, which was handsomely furnished and awaited the bride and groom. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends who showered congratulations upon Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty. An elaborate supper was served during the evening. Later the couple left on a wedding trip which will incluude the the Jamestown Exposition.

The bride enjoys a large acquaintance among Plainfield friends. Mr. Dougherty is chief of the detective force of the New Jersey Central, and has a host of acquaintances along the line of the road. His friends employed by the company remembered the bride with many handsome gifts, including a costly bed-room suit. Another valuable gift was a grandfather clock which is 107 years old. This was from an intimate friend.

BOROUGH MAN WEDS AT WEST BRIGHTON

Miss Eleanor Kahle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Kahle, of West Brighton, Staten Island, and Clarence Bardwell Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Peck, of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, were married at 4 o'clock, yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's Episcopal church, West Brighton, in the presence of a large and fashionable throng of society people from New York, Staten Island, Plainfield and other cities in the east. It was a lavender wedding and the color scheme was most effective.

The bride's attendants were Miss Frida Semler, as maid of honor, and Miss Gladys Peck, sister of the groom; Miss Cornelia Kahle, sister of the bride; Miss Muriel Kendall and Miss Ursula Barzinger, as bridesmaids. All but Miss Peck were from West Brighton. The best man was Everett Peck, brother of the groom; and the ushers were Arthur Peck and Alston Abbatt of Plainfield; Howard Johnson, of West Virginiaa, and Herman Kahle, of West Brighton.

The bride wore a lace robe, richly trimmed with lace and carried a shower boquet of lillies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a lavender robe and the bridesmaid's gown were of lavender chiffon. They wore lavender hats and carried chrysanthemums of the same color.

Following the ceremony a large reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Today Mr. and Mrs. Peck will sail for Cuba on their wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at Charleston, West Virginia, where the groom and Howard Johnson are partners in the Charleston Electrical Supply Company Mr. Peck is a graduate of Yale, Class of 1895, and is well-known here. The bride received a large collection of valuable gifts. She is prominent in social circles at her home.

Prof. Daniels to Sepak.

Professor W. W. Daniels, of Princeton University, will address the mass meeting of borough Democrats at Saengerbund Hall Tuesday evening. Senator Silzer, of Middlesex county, will be the speaker of the evening. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer will preside at the meeting, and the county and borough candidates will be present.

Leals to Play Y. M. C. A.

The basketball team from Leal's school will meet the Y. M. C. A. five in the association gymnasium Monday evening at 8.15. This is the first game for the school boys.

N. B. H. S. vs. N. P. H. S.

The borough high school eleven will play the team from the New Brunswick high school on the Westervelt avenue grounds Saturday. The game is to be called at 3.30.

—While the gang of Italians was working on Watchung avenue yesterday excavating for the double trolley tracks, one of the large gas mains broke. The work at that point was temporarily suspended while the gas department made the repairs.

MINSTREL SHOW AT TIMBO CLUB'S DANCE

As an added attraction for the annual reception and dance to be held in Saengerbund hall next Monday night, the Timbo Social Club has secured the Gold Medal minstrels to put on an elaborate first part, commencing at 8.30. Part of the troupe appeared for the past week at the hospital carnival and made one of the biggest hits in "The Cycle of Fun." These same artists will sit in the customary circle and in addition to a chorus of eighteen will be added by two of Elizabeth's best known end men, "Bob" Schwartz and George Carroll. The Gold Medal bones and tambos will be Harry Blimm, Harry Roberts, Tom Muir and Fred Miller, with Joseph C. Martin in the center

Though the complete program has not been made out, it is a certainty that the well known minstrel organization will put on the best show it has ever given locally. "Tommy" Timbo, founder of the social club that bears his name, will be honorary interlocutor and in addition will give a violin solo on his Stradivarious fiddle. B. Collins Firstbrook will introduce his "Frankfurter and Roll" specialty that kept the crowd in good humor on the Casino grounds and Dennis O'Brien will make his first and only appearance with a monologue, "I draw a salary for keeping still."

LOCAL THEATRE MEN INVADE POSTING FIELD

Refusing to comply with the demands made by the company now in the field, Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, and his partner in the Perth Amboy playhouse, Michael L. Shannon, have organized a bill posting company to be known as the American Posting Service. It is to be a stock concern and will be incorporated under the New Jersey laws. Messrs. Counihan and Shannon are named as proprietors and John A. Lawrence, advertising manager of the local theatre, will be manager.

The new company will erect stands throughout Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, covering Plainfield, Perth Amboy, South Amboy, Metuchen, Woodbridge, Sewaren, Westfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook and Somerville, with its service. It will be allied with the Morrison Posting Service, of Chicago; The William Penn Bill Posting Company, of Philadelphia, and the Melvin Posting Service, of Detroit. In this way a general campaign in theatrical and commercial work will be conducted. Jack Richardson, who was with the Newark Billposting Company for many years, will be in charge of the shop. This will be located in Plainfield.

Mr. Counihan and Mr. Shannon previously had part of their theatrical posting done by a Newark concern but were forced to discontinue it because of demands that it be given all the work or none. They immediately took steps to organize the American Posting Service and will conduct an aggressive business.

A POPULAR SERVICE NEXT SUNDAY EVENING.

Under the auspices of the Young People's Society, Ernest K. Collier, president of the Big Brothers' Movement, of New York city, will be the speaker at the First Baptist church, Sunday evening.

Mr. Coulter is a lawyer, deputy clerk of the lecturer of the department of education. His story of child life on the East side, mingling pathos and humor, is said to be deeply interesting and told in a fascinating way.

Miss Lena Thompson Weds.

Miss Lena Thompson, of 313 West Front street, and Clarence Wiggins, of Caldwell, Essex county, were married Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated. Only the relatives and intimate friends of the couple were present. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Rosa Mundy, of Caldwell, as bridesmaid, and Andrew Thompson, brother of the bride, as best man. Miss Dorothy Simms, of Caldwell, and Miss Viola Holt, of Richmond Hill, S. I., were flower girls. After the ceremony and reception, Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins left in an automobile for a wedding trip. They will reside in New York.

Dinner-Dances Discontinued.

The Saturday night dinner-dances at the Plainfield Country Club which proved to be so popular during the spring and late summer and fall, have been discontinued for this season. In this respect, as well as in golf and tennis the club has had a most successful year.

CLANS HAVE DISPERSED

Big Fete for Charity Came to An End Last Night With An Auction Sale.

NET PROCEEDS LARGE

Prizes In Various Contests Awarded to Local Society Women—No Financial Report Yet.

The "clans" have met and parted, society women have worked and played for "sweet charity" and these in charge are now busy counting up the receipts. Last night was the end of the gathering and the biggest crowd of the week of social festivity made merry at the Casino until nearly midnight. It was frosty outside but the grounds were filled, and the outside attractions drew many people. The minstrel show was the main attraction, but trade at the various booths was lively till the lights were put out. The hot dog merchants did a big business, and Jim Babbitt, the dog catcher, brought three loads of canines from upper Somerset street in the course of the evening to meet the big demand. The ring and cane booth did its best business and the flapping was incessant from the flap-jack booth. There was such a rush at the Ingersoll watch booth that all the watches ran down at 11.23 from sheer exhaustion at all the excitement.

Indoors the entire evening was devoted to auctioneering off the stock at the various booths. Charles Lyman swung the hammer as the auctioneer and refused to hear the smaller bids. There was keen rivalry for the possession of the dainty things unsold, and money almost shouted. Nothing but a greenback "raise" was noticed by the auctioneers, and the prices paid at the candy booth were as fancy as the confectionery which prompted the bidding.

The awarding of articles in the various contests of the fete was the occasion for much enthusiastic excitement. Mrs. Henry K. Tetsuka won the antique warming pan, amid great applause. The miniature went to Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Marion Hall carried off the prize doll. There was much enthusiasm when Mrs. J. Evarts was announced as the winner of the dainty work stand. George Wharton Edwards' painting, "The Sunny Hour," was not awarded last night, but the winner will be announced later in the week.

Mrs. J. E. Corlies said today that the fete had not netted as much as was anticipated, but that the sum to be turned over to Muhlenberg Hospital would be a large one. It is too early to announce with any accuracy the profits, for several of the committees have not turned in their receipts as yet, but the affair will add several thousands to the funds of the hospital.

Mrs. Henry L. Hall, who was in charge of the booth where fancy articles were offered, announced today that the sales at the booth had netted $1,050.25, after all expenses were paid. This is twenty-five cents better than Mrs. Hall did at the carnival last year, when the net proceeds of her sale of similar articles amounted to $1,050.

INVITATIONS ISSUED.

Ceremony Uniting Miss Eleanor Williams and George H. O'Donnell will be Performed Nov. 1.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Eleanor Boulden Williams, of West Seventh street, and George Harold O'Donnell, of New York, to take place Friday, November 1, at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Clinton avenue.

The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Charles Townsend. A reception will follow the ceremony, for their many friends, only relatives being invited to the church. The bride will be attended by Mrs. William S. Loizeaux, a sister, as matron-of-honor; Miss Clorita S. Wingerd, of New York, and Miss Mabel Bogardus, of Plainfield, as bridemaids. C. Allen Hayden, of New York, will assist Mr. O'Donnell as best man, and John N. Gellatly, of New York, Russell G. Inslee, of Newton, Richard Elkins, of Elkins, W. Va., and Ralph L. Crow, of Rye, N. Y., will be ushers.

Mr. O'Donnell, Mr. Hayden, Mr. Elkins and Mr. Crow were members of the Tiger Inn Club of Princeton University of the class of 1900.

Hunt Pleads Not Guilty.

Sam Hunt, colored, against whom a charge of assault was preferred by Andrew Rainey, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the city court this morning. The case was put over until tomorrow in order to let him procure counsel.

—Bartlett and Sickle pears and all varieties of apples are to be had at Neuman Brothers'. Their fruit and vegetable display continues to be the largest in town. Watch for apple "specials" tomorrow.

ALONE WITH CHILDREN MOTHER DROPS DEAD

Mrs. Harry J. Zager, who moved to this city from Perth Amboy last Saturday, dropped dead in the bathroom of her home at 1225 George street, just above Leland avenue, at 8 o'clock this morning. She had been ill more or less for the past few months but this morning was feeling somewhat better and had been about the house. Heart disease is ascribed as the cause of death.

Mrs. Zager's demise occurred under unusually sad circumstances as there was no one at home at the time but Matilda Hansen, a thirteen-year-old work girl, and her three small boys, aged eight, five and three years. Mr. Zager is a contracting painter and paper-hanger with an office at 34 New Brunswick avenue, Perth Amboy, and left for that city at 7 o'clock this morning. The Hansen girl heard Mrs. Zager drop to the floor and became hysterical when she discovered what had happened. She gathered the children about her and hurried out of the house to summon neighbors, leaving the latter to do what they could.

Drs. Hughes and Brennan were called by a Mr. Hall and the physicians notified Chief Kiely. He assumed charge of the case and through the Perth Amboy police forwarded word to the husband. County Physician Westcott viewed the body at noon and granted the burial permit.

TWO BANKS SUSPEND AS SAFETY MEASURE

Two State banks the Hamilton Bank and the Twelfth Ward Bank, of New York, suspended temporarily this morning.

Owing to this the Empire City Savings Bank, at 231 West 125th street, New York, announced that it would exercise its privilege of requiring sixty days' notice for the withdrawal of deposits. The president is Isaac A. Hopper. Its deposits are estimated at about $3,000,000.

Neither the Hamilton nor the Twelfth Ward Bank is a member of the Clearing House Association.

Concerted action for the restoration of public confidence is now being taken by the best known financiers and preparations to meet any emergency are being made. The banks will receive such cash as they need. Secretary Cortelyou is doing all in his power to assist the banks.

VANDERBILT BUYS HORSES.

Reginald C. Now Owner of Harriman's Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt has purchased at private sale of J. W. Harriman the baby geldings Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke, for which he offered $9,000 at the recent auction sale of Mr. Harriman's horses in New York. The horses, which were purchased by Mr. Vanderbilt while in New York recently, arrived at Newport yesterday and are at Sandy Point Farm, where they will be trained for exhibition in the National Show at Madison Square Garden next month.

Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke have been shown by Mr. Harriman in many of the summer shows, including Plainfield's, having won in every class in which they were exhibited. They are 15½ hands high, very stylish, and well matched, and will make a difficult pair to beat.

Mr. Vanderbilt recently sold the hackneys, Merry Matthias and Gay Matthias, which he purchased in England, expecting to sweep the American shows, but they were failures as prize winners, and Mr. Vanderbilt has decided to make a try for blue ribbons with American horses which have been thoroughly tested in this country. His new pair will be the mainstay of the Sandy Point stables, and will be brought into competition with his brother Alfred.

WIFE PLEADS FOR HUSBAND.

Her Tears and Entreaties Secure His Release in City Court.

Arraigned in the city court on a charge of disorderly conduct and abuse of his wife, Luke McGauley secured his release this morning through the pleadings of the woman he had ill-treated. She begged Judge Runyon to give him another chance and asserted that when McGauley was sober he was one of the best of men. The magistrate was not inclined at first to let up on the prisoner, but finally acceded to the wife's pleadings and suspended sentence.

"You can go, McGauley," the judge said in concluding a scathing lecture, "but let me warn you that another appearance here will mean a long term in jail. I am doing nothing this morning purely on account of your wife's entreaties but I am not in sympathy with men of your stamp and you will find it out if you ever come back while I'm on the bench."

MANY FRIENDS WITNESS PRETTY HOME CEREMONY

Miss Alice Rushmore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Rushmore, of Park avenue, and Henry Clafin Wells, son of Mrs. Henry Bartlett Wells, of North Plainfield, were married yesterday at noon at the home of the bride's parents on Park avenue in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends from far and near. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church.

Attending the bride were her sister, Miss Ellen R. Rushmore, as maid of honor, and her cousin, Miss Eleanor Riley and Miss Evelyn Wells, of North Plainfield, as bridemaids. Laura Riley was flower girl. The best man was Arthur Kendrick, of Boston, a cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Dr. Stephen Rushmore, of Boston, and William Rushmore, of this city, brothers of the bride.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor beneath a large bell of green foliage. The bride was gowned in white marquisette and the maid of honor and bridemaids in green marquisette. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses, while the maid of honor and bridemaids carried sprays of asparagus fern.

An informal reception followed the ceremony and later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Wells left on a wedding trip. They will reside in their own home in North Plainfield. The bride and groom are both well known here socially. Mrs. Wells is a student of art and has displayed exceptional talent. Mr. Wells is employed by the Ardross Worsted Company, of New York.

EJECTED FROM SALOON, BREAK GLASS WINDOW

Concluding an evening of festivity at a Somerset street saloon, where they tried to start a "rough house" among the line at the bar, last night. Fred Meeker and Chas. Dunn were intercepted by Marshal Pope and locked up over night in the borough jail. The two started early, intending to make a night of it. The sight of hats seems especially interesting to them and at a saloon where they got a good deal of their liquid cargo early in the evening, they were thrown out because of their eagerness to burn the headgear of friends with them in the large stove.

Realing toward Front street on the borough's "Great White Way," the two entered another saloon. Their condition was apparent to Rudolph Spiegel, the man behind the bar, and he refused to sell them liquor. When they started the hat-snatching game, he went for a cop. This angered Meeker and Dunn, who engaged him in a scrap at the door of the saloon. Spiegel was shoved through a plate glass window by one of the men, just before Marshal Lemuel Pope arrived and arrested them. The big window was shattered, but Spiegel escaped injury from the falling glass.

When the two good-time seekers had thawed out to some extent by their stay in the lock-up, they were released on bail by Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough. They will come before Recorder Dolliver at the session of court tonight.

DYING MAN'S PREDICTION TRUE.

Said Daughter Would Be First to Follow Him to Grave.

New Brunswick, Oct. 24.—The death of Miss Catherine McCann, the 20-year-old daughter of the late Policeman Ronald McCann, fulfilled a prediction made by Mr. McCann shortly before his death, two months ago. When the family was assembled about his bed he said that his daughter Catherine would be the first to follow him in death. His prediction made a deep impression upon all and weighed upon the mind of the young woman, who was not of robust health.

Miss McCann was a stenographer, employed in a New York office. A few weeks ago she was compelled to give up her work on account of her health and since then she had been sinking steadily.

Dissatisfied Italians Quit Work.

Several Italians becoming dissatisfied with their work on West Front street, where concrete is being laid for the brick pavement, struck at 9 o'clock this morning, on the pretense that they wanted their money so that they could return to Italy. Salva Velarde, who has charge of the gang, told the men they could quit and he would get others in their place. Later there was a report that the men struck because they were obliged to give up a percentage of their wages to Velarde in return for securing work. This report could not be confirmed. It was said that the gang would be increased by twenty Italians today.

LIBEL SUIT COMMENCED

Andrew McArdell's Case Against Courier-News and R. L. Lee on Today.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

Jury Secured at Noon and First Witnesses Called to the Stand at 2 o'Clock.

Before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth, this morning, the $10,000 libel suit of Andrew McCardell against former Councilman and Tax Collector Robert L. Lee and the Courier-News Publishing Company, was called for trial. The plaintiff is represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., and Winfield S. Angleman, while G. W. V. Moy is counsel for the defendants. All the morning was occupied in selecting a jury and at noon an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock, when the case proceeded.

The suit which Mr. McCardell has instituted for libel is based on a communication which appeared in the Courier-News on Thursday, September 21, 1906. This was signed by Mr. Lee and the article alleged among other things that Mr. McCardell had used vile language and threatened to ruin Councilman Clarence L. Murphy socially, financially and otherwise because he refused to vote for John J. Goff's liquor license.

Among the witnesses to be called by the prosecution are Councilman Ralph I. Tolles and Councilman William L. Gloak. The witnesses to be called by the defense are former Councilmen J. S. Higham and Robert L. Lee and City Editor Ralph L. Morrow, of The Daily Press.

The case was resumed at 2 o'clock this afternoon with the calling of witnesses. It will continue all the afternoon and probably all day tomorrow.

TWO COUNTIES SEEK ASSAILANT OF FARMER.

Montgomery Township Man Held Up and Assaulted, but Robbers Fail to Get Money.

North Branch, Oct. 24.—The authorities of Somerset and Hunterdon counties are endeavoring to obtain a clue to the identity and whereabouts of the two masked men who held up and committed an assault on Job Vandemark, a farmer, living in Montgomery Township, a few days ago, with the intention of robbing him. While Vandemark lives in Somerset county, the assault occurred in Hunterdon. He was in Sourland Mountains preparing to cut hoop-poles. He had just tier his horse, when two masked men, who had been concealed in the bushes, came out and demanded his pocketbook.

Vandemark refused to comply with the request. He told the men he had no pocketbook, and that if he had he would not give it to them. At that one of the men picked up a club and struck him on the side of the head. Then Vandemark started to fight. In the scuffle which followed he got the club away from the man and succeeded in reaching his axe, which laid on the ground near the wagon. He struck his assailant a heavy blow on the arm with the axe. Then the men fled.

Vandemark left his horse and made his way to the nearest farmhouse, because he knew the blow on the head had weakened him so much that he could not defend himself against both of the men should they return. The neighbors at once instituted a searching party, and the mountains for miles around were scoured, without any result. Vandemark believes his assailants were men who know him, and are familiar with the fact that he always carries money on his person. At the time he was assaulted he had about $200 in money in his pockets, and checks amounting to more than that sum.

Title Not Yet Decided.

Laurence Bromfield beat Moses Rubenstein two sets in the final round of the city high school championship tennis tournament at Briggs' court yesterday afternoon. Both sets went to deuce games, Bromfield winning the first, 9-7, and the second, 10-8. Rubenstein was unsteady at critical times, and in several games in the second set only needed a point to win. The title winner must capture three sets out of five, so the champion was not decided by yesterday's play. The two will finish the play on Briggs' court Friday afternoon. The winner is to receive a silver cup as champion of the school.

45 Properties Sold for Taxes.

Tax Collector John W. Murray held a sale yesterday of properties upon which the taxes for 1906 were not paid. The sale was conducted under the laws of 1903. In all forty-five properties were sold, aggregating receipts of about $2,000. In a majority of cases the properties were bought in by the mortgagees.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Len Rivers" as a play has most enviable qualities. Competent judges say that the humor and touches of human nature in the play will cause it to live and be popular for many years to come, while the beautiful gowns and scenery used are the cause of considerable favorable comment by the press. Miss Blanch Crozier will be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night in the character of Lena. This popular young leading woman has made a most enviable reputation in the part. She is gifted with a voice of wonderful magnetic quality and she gives the beautiful lines a reading with a vocal caress and quaint homeliness that has been marked upon everywhere she has appeared.

Lovers of the strong meat of melodrama have something to look forward to, if all reports are not wrong, in the coming engagement of Joseph Santley, who at the head of his own company is to present his new play, "Billy the Kid," at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. As the star is part author of the play it can be supposed that he has put in situations and lines which fit him, and this he is reported to have done with a master hand. "Billy the Kid" is stated to be logical in its story as weel as extremely interesting and there are moments when there is strength enough in the situations sufficient to please the most captious lover of melodrama. Mr. Santley's supporting company is reported as being a strong and well balanced organization.

A story of England in stirring days when romance was picturesque, when lovers dared much and beaux settled quarrels face to facea, is told in "Tom Jones," the light opera by Robert Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson and set to music by Edward German. The libretto is taken from Fielding's masterpiece. The comedy is delicious, the characters interesting and the situations abundant in humor and adventure. Everybody knows the success "Tom Jones" had at the Apollo theatre in London and the public will welcome its presetation by Henry W. Savage at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. Comedy, melody and picturesqueness are combined in this comic or light opera, for "Tom Jones" is hardly what is generally classed as musical comedy. It is of higher quality. The music is by Edward German, the most eminent English composer of today. The libretto is by Robert Courtneidge and A. M. Thompson. Mr. German has most happily caught the breezy and swinging tone of the tunes of Tom Jones' time and in the many musical numbers has pleased popular taste to a remarkable degree.

GAVE PRIEST $25,000.

Protestants Contribute to Gift for Dean McNulty.

In the presence of a gathering that thronged Entre Nous Lyceum last night the Very Rev. Dean McNulty, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic church, Paterson, received a check for $25,000. The money was raised by public subscription, and it will be used by the dean as the nucleus of a fund to erect a detention home for wayward and neglected Catholic boys.

The meeting and presentation tonight were preliminary to the religious and civic celebration of the dean's forty-fourth anniversary as pastor of St. John's church and his golden jubilee as a priest, which begins Sunday. The fund given to the dean last night was raised while he was in Ireland in August. Protestants as well as atholics contributing.

William Stafford, chairman of the fund committee, on behalf of the people of Paterson, handed the $25,000 check to the dean. The venerable priest stood silent while the gathering that filled the hall to overflowing cheered for several minutes.

William B. Gourley, on behalf of the Catholics of Paterson, made an address. He was followed by General J. W. Congdon, who spoke on behalf of the non-Catholics.

STOKES CALLS PARDON BOARD FOR SCHUYLER.

Governor Stokes has called a special session of the Court of Pardons, to be held Friday, to consider the case of John E. Schuyler, the Hunterdon county man who has been reprieved until November 1 for the murder of Manning Riley at Califon.

The Court of Pardons and the Court of Errors have already considered other phases of the case and have refused to interfere.

If no clemency is extended this time Schuyler will be hanged November 1, after having been twice sentenced to death and twice reprieved from the gallows.

Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, of Brooklyn, who have been spending a few days with friends here, have returned home.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Brooms which are regularly scalded and clipped will last much longer and do cleaner work. They should be kept in a bag when not in use.

To keep your favorite cook book open at the right page use a band of elastic an inch wide. When not in use you may strap it around the closed book.

A quick and simple way to mend tinware is to paste a thick piece of brown paper over the hole with a flour paste. Hot water poured upon this will harden it. When burned off it can easily be replaced.

To save the great toe of the foot wearing through the hose too quickly cut a piece of chamois and shape it to fit over the toe by sewing two pieces together in a manner similar to a child's moccasin.

A window shade which has become cracked or soiled at the lower end should be removed from the roller and turned upside down. Tack the lower end to the roller, run a hem in the upper end and replace the stick.

General careful treatment of the hair will soon restore its life and luster. When the hair becomes dry and dead looking it is suffering from too frequent shampooing or an improper manner of renovating. Brushing for ten or fifteen minutes every night will act as a splendid stimulant.

A homemade variation of the popular tea ball is a small cheesecloth bag about an inch and a half square. When the tea is put in, the open end is sewed or gathered with a drawstring and the bag placed in the cup. Boiling water is poured in and the bag removed when the tea is of the required strength. Each bag is emptied and dried before being again used.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

In the reign of Henry III. a judge's salary was $35 a year.

The average marriage rate in Great Britain is sixteen in a thousand.

It is calculated that no fewer than 85,000 people spend their lives on the canal boats and barges of Great Britain.

The use of tobacco in England is almost universal among males above the age of sixteen. The pipe is seen everywhere—in the home, on the street and the sporting field.

A Catholic settlements association is being tried in Hoxton district of London to keep track of the slum boys after they leave school, and so far the results have been good.

In London the other day a pair of riding boots worn by Oliver Cromwell were sold for $43. They were discovered thirty years ago during some excavations at Canonbury tower, Islington.

City May Build Sewer.

The plans of the New Brunswick Common Council to build a sewer in the new factory district of that city were balked last night by the high prices demanded by the contractors for the work. While the city had thought the work would cost $9,000 or $10,000, the contractors demanded $14,000. No contract was awarded.

The city may decide to do the work itself and save money, as it has been compelled to do in street paving lately, on account of the excessive prices charged by contractors.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

Bert Trotter, of this city, a crack football player, is now a member of the Metuchen Football Club, which defeated the South Amboy Y. M. C. A. on Saturday by a score of 10 to 0.

That Phelps'-made team from the borough high almost fooled the city high school eleven at that yesterday.

But if Phillips had put a little more pepper behind that kick for goal it would have been 6-5. If the ball had gone eight inches higher it would have cleared the cross-bar.

John Loizeaux, who was with the Y. M. C. A. five last year, is out of town but will be back in about two weeks to play basketball with the association five.

Murphy, Caldwell, Loizeaux and Doane are among the leading point winners in the P. H. S. track meet tomorrow.

The N. P. H. S. girls will also have a basketball team this year. They held their first practise in the new Y. W. C. A. gym today.

Bromfield had to play thirty-four games of tennis to win two sets from Rubenstein in the finals for the city high school title yesterday. The champion must win three out of five sets, and the boys will play again tomorrow.

Gymnasium classes started in the Y. W. C. A. yesterday. Miss Mosher is physical director for the eighteen women members.

The work of installing the 112 new steel lockers which arrived Tuesday for the Y. M. C. A. is now almost completed.

The Holy Cross choir boys are to have a basketball team this season. There is some good material in the church boys' club and the team will practise in the parish house, where baskets have already been put in position.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

A fair will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, October 29 and 30 at Grace church parish house for the benefit of Grace Mission. It will open Tuesday afternoon with a novel tea. There will be a special entertainment each night.

The committee in charge of the raising of money for the building fund of Faith Chapel met at the chapel last night to receive partial reports. These were gratifying, showing that the necessary amount will be received in the near future. One member of the committee has been especially active, having collected $39.12 from among 300 people. This was done by the aid of a minature iron bank called a "kodak."

A series of evangelistic services will begin at the Christian church Sunday night conducted by Evangelist John Waugh, of Brooklyn. A man of long experience in evangelistic work, Mr. Waugh comes recommended by the ministers of Brooklyn and also by the secretary of the American Christian Missionary Society at Cincinnati. For a number of years he was employed with the City Evangelization Association, an undenominational, or interdenomination society in Brooklyn. Coming in contact with the Christian church at Greenpoint, Brooklyn, he identified himself with the disciples and is now in the field as an evangelist of that church. Mr. Waugh's talks and most of the regular and special singing will be superbly illustrated by a double stereopticon lantern of the dissolving view variety. This is supplied with 3,000 excellent views which will guarantee interesting and instructive services. Mr. Waugh will speak on "Resurrection Ground" at 11 a. m. Sunday and at 7:45 his theme will be "I Am the Way." Views will be given at the Sunday-school services and at the evening service. The meeting will probably continue two weeks or more.

BASKETBALL OUTLOOK GOOD FOR SCHOLASTIC LEAGUE

Though the basketball season is still more than a month off, there is already talk of the material in the three local schools and the question of a scholastic league is again being brought up for discussion. Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., has not yet called the school boys together to discuss league basketball, but the city and borough high schools and Leal's School will each have teams and a league will doubtless be formed as it was last year.

Because they have no football team on the gridiron this season, Leal's boys have been especially active in basketball and are already holding practises three times a week. Duke, who played guard on the school team last year, is captain of this season's five, and he and Dudley Brown, who played sub for the school last year, are the only members of the team who have represented the school before. Tracy Howard, Brokaw, Bergen and Averill have graduated, but promising material has developed in Rushmore, Martin, Dallas and the two Lawrences. Brown is manager of the team this year and has arranged for ten or a dozen games with nearby schools. Duke says that the Leal's team will compete if a league is formed.

Football has kept the boys busy in the two local public schools, and no calls for basketball candidates have yet been issued. The city high school five loses Gavett and Freeman by graduation, but with Doane, Snyder, Morris and Caldwell still in school should be able to develop a fast team for the league. Within a few weeks the call for candidates will be issued and the boys will meet for regular practise in the school gymnasium two or three afternoons each week. New material is more plentiful than for the other school teams and the school that won the league contest last year should be represented by a fast five by the time the season opens.

Over in the borough, all the members of last year's five will be eligible to play. Byron, McClintock, "Tony" Overton, Conroy, Steiner and Powlison are all in school yet, and should be in better shape for a season's play together last year. All of these players but Powlison play football, however, and, as in the city high school, basketball must remain secondary until after the football season ends.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The cloth gown as a formal gown for dinner and evening is one of the features of the new styles, its very novelty giving it beauty.

Among the fur trimmed garments already displayed the handsomest are so heavily braided as to entirely conceal the union of cloth and fur.

The velvet dress and the velvet suit will be in equal evidence, and we shall have velvet costumes trimmed with cloth and cloth costumes trimmed with velvet.

Baron Speck von Sternburg has been teaching young Kermit and Theodore Roosevelt, jr., how to ride. The baron learned the art of riding from the ground up, and he was a hussar in the German army in the war with France. He gave Mr. Roosevelt many valuable points when he was organizing the rough riders.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Where the New Jersey Central has installed new bridges in the city, men are now engaged in improving the surroundings by grading the adjoining railroad embankment with a view to making it attractive.

—An opportunity to secure fine table and cooking apples at a low price is offered by Neuman Brothers. Tomorrow they will have a new lot of the best Baldwins, greenings, Snows, Northern Spies and Kings.

—In connection with its work of double tracking Watchung avenue the P. S. C. is obliged to tear out a portion of the brick pavement near Second street. This has been found to be in excellent condition after four years' wear and most of the brick can be replaced.

—The syndicate which owns and controls the largetract of land on West End avenue, the borough, has about completed a fine concrete walk from the new bridge to Rockview avenue. Thus far no attempt has been made by the city to even lay a walk to the bridge on the city side of the brook.

THE HALL OF FAME.

W. H. Shrck, of Pratt, is the only man in Kansas so far as known whose name contains no vowel.

Jean Gerardy, the famous Belgian violinist, will marry Miss Baba MacQuade, a rich young artist of Australia, noted for her beauty.

Leon A. Bereznaik, a native of Odessa, is now living in Indianapolis. He is a lawyer, a scholar, author and translator of "Trilby" in the Russian language.

Mr. Salmonson, the marriage license clerk of Chicago, took a rest after he finished filing in a certificate for Kazinieras Gumalewski and Eva Aleksandravischaite.

Samuel French, of Derby, Conn., is probably the oldest man in the state to whom a hunter's license has been issued. Mr. French's age, according to the license, is eighty-four.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 27: "Studies in church benevolences." "The foundation and purpose of the church." "Ye also are builded together for a habitation of God in the Spirit."—Eph. ii, 19-22.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Ps. cii, 18; Isa. xxxv, 1-10; Heb. xii, 22-24; Eph. i, 10, 22, 23; Zech. xiv, 8.

To one who reads the whole Bible attentively there comes a growing conviction that God is carrying forward a deep purpose in the course of human history. In the very first part, which deals with the early days of the race, foundation principles of eternal righteousness are laid down for the guidance of men, and as time passes it becomes more and more evident that God is revealing His nature and His law for men with increasing clearness and urgency. In Jesus Christ the adequate leader is found. No higher type of personality has been conceived. He reveals to us in fullness what the nature of God is in ethical perfection. He is Himself the perfect expression and embodiment in character of manhood as the likeness of godhood.

And He is the head of the church, into which it is His purpose to gather all men. The epistle to the Ephesians is, above all other books of the Bible, the clearest exposition of the nature of the church of Christ. Not only are men to be included in the divine purpose revealed in Christ, but innumerable hosts of angels and all created things are in the sweep of the eternal plan.

When one fairly grasps the stupendous significance of this all embracing purpose of redemption it is almost overwhelming. It breaks at a stroke all claims of sectarian exclusiveness and condemns all racial bigotry and prejudice. It enlarges and lifts immeasurably the conceptions of human worth and dignity and destiny. It also sobers one with the sense of tremendous responsibility.

If God is engaged in this task and this is the clew to human history and this the real meaning of society, what a different light it throws on all life and how it changes the estimates and values of things!

A new vision of the meaning of one's individual existence dawns, and the old life fades away. This is God's world; I am God's man, with real work to do for Him. He cares. He trusts me. I will not disappoint His expectations. God helping me, I will be true to my trust.

Then must begin an earnest study of one's fellow men, their conditions, needs, possibilities and prospects, a calculation of forces available, combinations feasible and careful planning how to bring to pass what God desires.

Is not all this worth while? It is greater than digging a Panama canal or generaling a war to a successful issue. All this other work of running railroads, exploiting great business enterprises, governing in civil affairs, is only incidental to the greater and more comprehensive work of bringing in righteousness, justice and mercy and establishing God's kingdom over men.

This means study of all the vast benevolent operations and responsibilities of the church of Christ.

Living as if In Heaven.

Mark those men whose life is hidden in God, so that of themselves they make no account. Thus can they delight themselves fully and freely in all that which God is doing apart from the thought of themselves, and to them therefore it is true that heaven and earth are theirs, and all things are theirs and fulfill their will because the will of God is their will. And their cup overfloweth with joy even here below because in all things they have a joy and a delight that are steadfast and full. While they walk with God all is peace, for in Him sorrow is not sorrow and pain is not pain, but all is peace and rest. All that God willeth to them is sweet and pleasant. Nor is it only that to them the will of God is sweet. It is more than this, for to them He gives the fair sunshine of His comfort and the blessed joy of heaven even here below, so that they live already, as it were, in heaven.—Henry Suso.

To Find Heavenly Blessings.

If any one should give me a dish of sand and say there are particles of iron in it, I might look with my eyes for them and search for them with my clumsy fingers and be unable to find them, but let me take a magnet and sweep it, and how it would draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies, but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings, only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Love.

Love that does not serve is not love at all. The measure of self denial that one is ready to suffer is the measure of the love that is in one's heart. Love that will not sacrifice is only a sentiment.—Forward.

Speak the Good Word.

It isn't the love that they have in their hearts
And neglect or forget to reveal
That brightens the lives
Of husbands and wives.
It is telling the love that they feel.

It isn't the music asleep in the strings
Of the lute that entrances the ear
And brings to the breast
The spirit of rest.
It is only the music we hear.

It isn't the silence of hope unexpressed,
It's the word of good cheer that we speak,
To triumph through strife
For the great things of life,
That heartens and strengthens the weak.
—McCall's Magazine.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 27.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions. The kingdom of Christ in Europe.—Acts xvi, 6-15.

Europe has been the center of the greatest conflicts of Christianity in the history of the world; hence, while it is in no sense a missionary field, but just the opposite, sending out its own missionaries, yet in a full survey of the kingdom of God Europe could not be omitted. In the topical reference Luke tells us of the introduction of Christianity into Europe by the Apostle Paul. "A vision appeared to Paul in the night. There stood a man of Macedonia and prayed him, saying, 'Come over into Macedonia and help us.'" Paul considered the vision a call of the Lord and immediately obeyed it. And what a momentous event it was when the great apostle first placed his foot upon European soil! Who could have imagined the tremendous results that were to follow? It was the beginning of the evangelization of Europe and of our own country, and through them the evangelization of the world!

The past history of Christianity in Europe has been largely one of conflict. Here the early Christian church came into conflict with Roman paganism and, after a struggle of two centuries, came off a complete victor, Constantine, the emperor of Rome, having been won to the Christian faith. It was on the soil of Europe that Christianity made its last stand against Mohammedanism. It had swept western Asia, northern Africa, conquered Spain, but was then met and overthrown so far as Europe was concerned, except for a time in Spain, from which it was driven under the reign of Ferdinand and Isabella. In Europe also was Martin Luther, and the reformers attacked the false doctrines and practices of Roman Catholicism, the result of which was the organization of Protestant Christianity. Europe for a time was almost completely Protestant, but later on some nations lapsed back into the old faith and still stand by it. The condition of the kingdom of God can scarcely be touched upon in such a brief article. The British empire, Germany, Holland and some other countries are still Protestant, while France, Spain, Italy, etc., adhere to the Catholic faith. The religious conditions are favorable rather than otherwise. Catholicism is losing its hold upon thousands of the masses of the people, and unfortunately there is an element in the Church of England with a tendency to the Catholic church. It is also sad to remember that from Germany and England spring the modern attacks upon God's word and the person of Christ. But God will take care of His own. Let us fear no criticism, no matter whence its origin, but keep on believing and sending the gospel to the nations of the world.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. iii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Ps. ii, lxvii, 1-7; lxxii, 17-19; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Acts, i, 8; xiii, 1-3; Rom. x, 14, 15; Rev. xxii, 17.

An Organized Idea.

Christian Endeavor is an organized idea. It is for the purpose of reaching the lives of young people and training them for service. It has no hard and fast rules, no set formulas or unchangeable decrees as to methods. The work is the thing; methods are subordinate. Christian Endeavor was made for the young people, not the young people for Christian Endeavor. Whatever plans, methods, times and seasons will accomplish the work are orthodox in Christian Endeavor. It is a machine capable of wide and delicate adjustment. In each local situation it should be adapted to the needs. Let the aim be to accomplish the purpose, not to have a society to save the young people nor save Christian Endeavor.—Colby D. Hall in Texas Endeavorer.

Junior Mottoes.

When in the beautiful city of Budapest lately I saw some mottoes which the Juniors of that city had colored, which when translated from the Hungarian meant "What Would Jesus Say to This?" I think it is a very important question for every Junior to ask when tempted to do wrong or, what is more likely perhaps, when tempted to neglect a duty. May every Junior Endeavorer of Ohio ask this question of himself which the Hungarian Juniors have put upon walls in many homes, and may it lead all earnestly to seek to do in all things what Jesus would have them do.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

Y. P. S. C. E.

[Endeavor acrostic.]

Note.—Each line of each verse begins with an initial of our great movement.

Yielded unto Christ, the King,
Youthful hearts and faces bright,
Yearning other lives to bring,
Ye are precious in His sight.
Yea, you cannot choose but sing,
Yonder gleams the eternal light.

Pardoned all your follies past,
Pledged to follow love's decree,
Persevere while life shall last;
Pure let each endeavor be;
Pray and work, for near and vast Presses on eternity.

Standing by the Saviour's side,
Strong to be and do and dare,
Seek the souls for whom He died,
Succor, shelter, serve and share;
Spread the tidings far and wide;
Send the gospel everywhere.

Called to service grand and true,
Choose today the work divine;
Consecrate your life anew;
Christ commands: Arise and shine!
Clouds that cross and break the view
Courage will with silver line.

Each Endeavorer should essay
Every weight to cast aside;
Early tread the King's highway,
Ever near your Royal Guide,
Eager plodding th[illegible] the day—
Eden's gates at eventide.

—A. W. in London Christian Endeavor Times.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Every doctrine must prove itself by doing.

Conscience is a good cure for undue conceit.

He is lifted in blessing who lifts another's burden.

Only a fool takes experience for a road instead of a guide.

Few things choke sympathy quicker than cherished sorrows.

The surest way to impoverish the heart is to set it on riches.

The striking sermon is the one that hits the other sinner hard.

Only those who are not afraid of being poor really become rich.

The man with a hot head evens up on tempature at the other end.

People who have sympathy for humanity are not sighing for heaven.

All the treasure houses of truth open to the master key of sincerity.

You never will make much headway going at things with the head alone.

The Lord not only loves a cheerful giver; he loves a giver of good cheer.

This world only becomes beautiful as we tackle its unpleasant problems.

If you cannot find God in folks on the street you will not find him on the golden streets.—Chicago Tribune.

FEMININE SNAP SHOTS.

A duck of a girl can make a goose out of any man.

A brother is a home made mirror that never flatters.

A kiss by any other name wouldn't rhyme with—bliss.

A girl with a dimple somehow looks incapable of deception.

The world is the shop where we get our manners manicured.

Instead of lecturing your husband, Mrs. Straitlace, try loving him.

Popularity is largely a matter of getting the right press agent.

Alas and alas! but the pinks of propriety too often get bunched with the wall flowers.

The girl who smokes cigarettes isn't the one who figures in a bachelor's pipe dreams—if he knows it.

The lamp of learning can't light up a cottage like the candle of contentment.

BITS OF WISDOM.

A wise woman is never passe. She crosses the bridge, spanning youth and age with firm step and smiling lips.

Cupid is a little fellow, but he is capable of casting a tremendous shadow.

A beautiful woman delights the eye; a wise woman the understanding; a pure one the soul.

In the great game men lose their heads; women their hearts; the first are only hurt temporarily.

Leave a little unsaid, a little to be explored in your mental attitude toward men if you would be accounted interesting.

Beauty is talismanic. To prove it send a lantern-faced "new-woman" and a professional beauty upon a begging expedition among the club men.

SAYINGS OF A SOURED SAGE.

You lose time finding fault.

A jest is sometimes the coat-tails of Truth.

The "average" man is always paid that way.

Some men are too lazy to even make enemies.

Charity begins at the benefit performance and ends at the box office receipts.

Love should be like the bee that steals sweets from the flower, yet never injures it.

A philosopher is a man who is able to size himself up correctly and not get discouraged at the result.—Peter Pry Shevlin, in Judge.

THE SEVEN AGES OF MAN.

First—Rock Age. The Infant.

Second Age—Copper Age. The Kid.

Third—Brass Age. The Adolescent Period.

Fourth—Iron Age. Sad and Flat for the wife.

Fifth—Steel or Steal age. The Trust Director.

Sixth—Silver Age. Small Change.

Seventh—Golden Age. Death always precedes it.—The Bohemian.

BOTH PSYCHICAL AND CRITICAL.

Mrs. Hackett's Good Reasons for Wearing Her Best Hat.

After reading the weather report and consulting the barometer, Mrs. Hackett breathed a long sigh of relief and took her best hat out of its bandbox. "Going to wear that down to breakfast?" inquired Mr. Hackett. "No, dear," said his wife as she tilted the hat back and forth on her head before the mirror. "I only want to be sure I get my hair done up so the hat will go on right. It's the morning for our psychical research class, you know." "I don't quite get the connection," remarked Mr. Hackett. "There, that's just right," and Mrs. Hackett laid the hat carefully back in its box after a final glance in the mirror. "What did you say, dear? The connection? Why, don't you remember I told you I was going to read that letter from Aunt Luise telling about her wonderful dream—the one where she thought she had wings and flew, and the very next day she heard of Cousin Grace's automobile accident? Well, of course, when you have to stand and read before a whole company, you want your best hat on; even if they are psychical."—Youth's Companion.

ALWAYS OVER THE HEART.

Policemen as a Rule Wear Their Badges as Shields.

Many persons are puzzled to know why policemen wear their badges so low on their coats, instead of on the flap made for that purpose. As a matter of fact, the badge or star, as he calls it, of many a policeman is right next to his heart. Some blue coats can thank their "stars" for being alive. This little metal shield has deflected the bullet of burglar or highwayman, and at times, too, has stopped the knife thrust of would-be assassins. During the last 20 or 30 years there are many cases on record showing that the little badge has been a life saver. Even bullets fired at close range, as a rule, cannot penetrate the shield. That's why a bluecoat always feels safer in keeping the star at a vital spot. When off duty some policemen wear their stars on their vests, but always directly over the heart. They are so accustomed to the little protector that they feel uneasy without it.

Village of Pelicans.

On the lower course of Casamance river in West Africa exists what a French writer has described as a "village of pelicans." The birds have been so mercilessly hunted that they avoid the presence of man, but in the neighborhood of their "village" they show comparatively little fear. There are even native African huts under the enormous baobab trees in which the birds have established their community. The nests are placed at the ends of branches, five or six in each tree. Dry branches, rudely interlaced, form an insecure looking platform covered with a thick layer of down, and there the young birds, laughingly big and awkward in such a situation, may be seen maintaining an unstable equilibrium, yet never losing their balance.—Youth's Companion.

How a Flea Jumps.

It is said that a flea leaps 200 times its height, and while it usually does land on its feet, it often falls, especially when it falls an a perfectly smooth surface, where the claws can get only a slight hold. A flea has six legs, whose great length and bulk make them so heavy that they must be a great help in keeping their owner right side up and when it makes one of those gigantic jumps! and when it lands upside down, or in some other way, its ability to kick is so great that not more than one wriggle is needed to set things right. A flea's wings are mere scales, and of no use; but small and worthless as they are, they tell the entomologist something about the proper classification of the insect. To the flea itself they have no value.

A Sacred Office-Cat.

A correspondent, writing from Egypt, says at Assuit a little while ago a German lady was much pleased at having secured for a considerable sum the mummy of a sacred cat. She was delighted with her bargain, and the Arab dealer was quite satisfied with the sum he received. But with the curiosity inherited from our first poor mother, she began to examine her mummy. She looked at it closely and even picked a hole in it. Then, encouraged by what she saw she proceeded to rip it open. Her mummy was stuffed with an English newspaper.

Thought Picture a Ghost.

Once Dr. Grenfell visited Ramah and exhibited to the astonished Eskimos some stereopticon views—photographs that he had taken there in the previous year. It so happened that one of the pictures was that of an old woman who had died since the photograph was made, and when it appeared upon the screen terror struck the hearts of the simple-minded people. They believed it was her spirit returned to earth, and for a long time afterward imagined that they saw it floating about at night, visiting the woman's old haunts.—Outing.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS ARE FINED $100 EACH.

E. M. Watson and Wife, Charged With Death of Child, Will Fight Decision.

Mount Holly, Oct. 24.—Edwin M. Watson and his wife, of Moorestown, who recently were found guilty of manslaughter for the death of Granville, their seven-year-old son, who died of pneumonia under Christian Science treatment, were sentenced yesterday to pay $100 fines, by Judge Horner, after an application for a new trial had been denied.

Thomas B. Hall, counsel for the Watsons, pleaded that they were justified under the common law, if their failure to call a physician was due to conscientious scruples or religious beliefs. He quoted liberally from English common law, and argued that common law held the case of the Watsons, there being no specific statute.

Judge Horner, in refusing a new trial, said the obligation of parents to maintain their children included, in its meaning the necessity of employing a physician in time of illness, and that failure to do this constituted a crime. Upon the denial of the motion, counsel took a writ of error, and will carry the case up. The Watsons did not pay the fine imposed, and said they would fight the decision to the end.

RINGLING BROTHERS BUY "GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH."

The announcement was authoritatively made at the Barnum & Bailey New York offices yesterday that Ringling Brothers, the Western circus men, had secured possession of the famous old show. The news came from London, where at a meeting of the sharehoulders the sale of the show by the directors was ratified. The purchase price, according to a London despatch, was $410,000.

The transfer of the show to the new managers places the five Ringling brothers at the head of the circus business in America and leaves them practically without a rival in the world. They now control the original Ringling Brothers' circus, the Forepaugh-Sells show and the Barnum & Bailey "Greatest Show on Earth."

So far as the public is concerned, it was announced by John Ringling last night, there will be no change in the policy of the show. The innovations, Mr. Ringling said, would be only such as have contributed to the success of their other shows.

The sale of the show, it is announced, is not the result of any deterioration or lack of patronage, as the season, which closed at Dyersburg, Tenn., last Thursday, was a satisfactory one.

TUNNEL PLANS CHANGED.

Caused Report of Costly Mistake at Homestead.

Elizabeth, Oct. 24.—A report that, by some blunder in the plans for its tunnel under the Hudson River from Homestead, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company would sustain a loss of close to $1,000,000 was emphatically denied last night by William C. Bowles, engineer of construction, at his home in this city. He said that the only foundation he could conceive for it was the fact that after the digging of the big bore had been begun certain plans were changed, but the extra expense would not be more than a few thousands of dollars. It was the original purpose, he said, to establish the powerhouse and yards at Bergen Hill, but later it was decided that the better place for them would be at Harrison.

The report originated in the fact that when the tunnel was started, about two and a half years ago, the rock, as it was blasted out, was run back from the tunnel and used to make an 18-foot embankment for the roadway which crosses the tracks of the Northern, Susquehanna and Erie railroads to the west of the hill. Recently workmen have been busy erecting a trestle abobut 200 feet to the north of this embankment, and some observers of this got the notion that the contractors had made some mistake and were compelled to remedy it.

M'CARDELL IS VINDICATED

Jury Awards Him Verdict in Suit Against Courier-News and R. L. Lee for Libel.

DAMAGES NOMINAL

Plaintiff Couldn't Show That He Had Suffered from Publication of Defamatory Article—Mr. McCardell Pleased.

In the Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, shortly after noon today, a verdict was awarded Andrew McCardell in his suit against the Courier-News and former Tax Collector Robert L. Lee for libel. Nominal damages, six cents, were given, it not being shown that the object of the alleged scurrilous attack had suffered to any extent as a result of the alleged vicious attack made on him in that newspaper. Mr. McCardell was greatly pleased over the verdict as were his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., and Winfield S. Angleman, both of whom fought for a vindication rather than for heavy damages.

The case went to the jury at noon, after several witnesses had been examined. When the trial, begun yesterday afternoon, was resumed this morning, former Councilman William Starr Bullock was called to corroborate the testimony of former Councilman Stephen Higham and Mr. Lee that Mr. McCardell had uttered the alleged words forming the basis for the suit. Former Mayor James F. Buckle and George J. Tobin for the plaintiff were subsequently called to testify that they were present on the occasion referred to and that they did not hear any such language used by Mr. McCardell, corroborating the testimony of Councilmen Ralph I. Tolles and William L. Gloak, both of whom were also present.

As counsel for the defense, George W. Moy summoned Ralph L. Morrow to the stand to show that Mr. McCardell was alleged to have given The Daily Press permission to publish the alleged defamatory article when suit was about to be brought by him. Judge Vail refused to allow such testimony to be put in evidence. On cross-examination by Mr. Angleman, Mr. Morrow declared that the article in question had been handed to him on the morning of the same day in which it appeared in the Courier and that he had refused to publish Mr. Lee's article on the ground that it was libellous and defamatory.

After both sides had summed up, Judge Vail charged the jury on the law. In a short time afterwards, the jury returned a verdict for Mr. McCardell. The verdict does not carry with it costs of court. No notice of appeal was made by Mr. Moy.

SON SUES FATHER'S ESTATE.

Cut Off in Will, Gets a Verdict of $22 for Board.

South Amboy, Oct. 25—Thomas Hardy, of this place, was plaintiff in an action in the Circuit Court at New Brunswick yesterday against the estate of his father, George Hardy, for board. The son claimed that his father lived with him for five years; that he had agreed to pay $20 a month board and that at the time of his death he owed $322. On cross-examination it was brought out that the elder Hardy had not left his son anything in the will and that the suit was not instituted until the contents of the will were known. The jury gave a verdict for $322 to the son.

Honors for Metuchen Postmaster.

Metuchen, October 25—Truman T. Pierson, of this place, although the youngest postmaster in the State, and possibly in the country, was elected today vice president of the National Association of Postmasters at their meeting in Washington, D. C. Mr. Pierson has been postmaster less than a year. He has two assistants at the office, which is one of the busiest in the State for a place of its size.

STREET WORK NOW PROGRESSING FAVORABLY

The street improvement work in the business section of the city is now progressing more favorably. Contractor William Foley, who has charge of the brick work, returned this morning and with the aid of two experts will rush the job as rapidly as possible. The block on Park avenue, between the railroad and Fourth street, as well as Somerset street, will be completed today and the grouting process will be started immediately, so that these thoroughfares may be opened at the earliest possible date.

The brick work will then be started on West Front street, between Madison avenue and Somerset street, with the idea of opening one side of the thoroughfare while the other is torn up. It was decided this morning by City Engineer Gavett that in opening East Front street, only the centre shall be disturbed at present. The Public Service Corporation will continue its work of laying the double tracks and upon the completion of that the brick will be laid between the double tracks and eighteen inches on either side, leaving the roadway either side of that open for traffic. This plan was thought best until it is seen what kind of weather is forthcoming. If it remains fair then one side of Front street will be opened at a time so that it will not be blocked entirely during the laying of the brick.

MANY SOCIETY WOMEN AT CHARMING LUNCHEON

A delightful society event of yesterday was a luncheon given by Mrs. George A. Chapman, of Stelle avenue for Mrs. Gernon and her daughters, the Misses Gernon, of Crescent avenue. More than one hundred invitations were issued to the affair and over seventy-five guests were present. The large room was used for the seating of the guests and this was elaborately decorated with autumn foliage and chrysanthemums.

Among those present were Mrs. George A. Chapman, Mrs. Gernon, the Misses Gernon, Mrs. J. B. Dumont, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. A. D. Shepard, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. H. KEPT WEDDING A SECRET

Newspaper Notice Informs Friends of Marriage of Well Known Local Couple.

CEREMONY LAST MONTH

Performed at Jersey City and United Miss Sarah Elizabeth Hand and James Wiswall Drayton.

DRAYTON — HAND — At Jersey City, N. J., by the Rev. George H. Mooney, Sarah Elizabeth Hand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hand, to James Wiswall Drayton, of Plainfield, N. J.

The above notice inserted in a New York paper this morning informed Plainfielders for the first time of the marriage of two widely known residents, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Hand, daughter of Assessor and Mrs. Charles H. Hand, of Belvidere avenue, and James Wiswall Drayton, of East Ninth street. The announcement came as a great surprise and is still more so from the fact that the ceremony was performed last month but was kept a secret by the couple.

When Mrs. Drayton was asked about the wedding by a Daily Press reporter, she declared there was nothing more to be said. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. Mooney in Jersey City and only the necessary witnesses were in attendance. They afterward returned to Plainfield and have since been living at their respective homes, saying nothing about the wedding for reasons known to themselves.

The couple will leave today for an extended wedding trip and at its conclusion they will make their home at 1212 Martine avenue, where a new residence completely furnished awaits them.

Both Mr. Drayton and his bride are widely known throughout the city and borough. The latter has always resided in Plainfield and in recent years has been in charge of her father's extensive real estate business. Mr. Drayton has also lived here practically all his life and holds a responsible position in New York.

DAVIS AS BUSINESS MAN.

Hudson Boss Accumulates in 15 Years $540,000 of Realty.

Jersey City, Oct. 25—In addition to the sixty-five pieces of property in Jersey City, assessed at $275,485, Robert Davis, the Democratic boss of Hudson county, owns $148,000 worth of property in Kearny and Harrison, and $96,000 worth in other Hudson municipalities. Besides, he owns stocks and bonds in various corporations, the value of which he alone knows, but his friends declare that he is more than a millionaire.

All this has been accumulated, it is said, since 1892, when the Republicans gained control of the Jersey City Mayoralty. At that time a friend loaned him $10,000 to start the Jersey City Supply Company, which has since done a good business in furnishing supplies to the Hudson Board of Freeholders, Jersey City Board of Works and to other municipalities and contractors therefor throughout the county.

LOCAL BOYS AT RIDGEWOOD AT Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

Assompanied by Boys' Secretary L. A. Soule, of the Y. M. C. A., the local delegates from the boys' department to the boys' Y. M. C. A. conference to be held in Ridgewood today, tomorrow and Sunday, left on the 2:31 train this afternoon. Those who made the trip were J. Stanley Robbins, president of the boys' department; Stanley Carner, vice president; Alfred Manley, secretary; Wilbur Dunning, chairman of the religious work committee of the boys, and Russell Morriss, chairman of the social work committee of the department.

During the three days of the convention there will be daily sessions and the policy of the boys' department in association work will be discussed, together with routine business. There will be several special religious services, led by men prominent in Association work in the State. The local delegation will be entertained at the Ridgewood Y. M. C. A.

Isabel Seaman Whiting.

Isabel Seaman Whiting, wife of Rev. John C. Whiting, formerly of this city, but now pastor of the Claremont Park Congregational church in the Bronx, New York, died yesterday morning early. A simple service was held yesterday in New York city and the body was removed today to her former home at Millport, N. Y., for interment. A memorial service will be held in the Claremont Park church, in the Bronx, Sunday morning, November 3, at 11 o'clock.

READY FOR KATZENBACH

Plans Have Been Completed for the Reception to the Candidate.

ON NEXT WEDNESDAY

No Address at Plainfield, But Remainder of Schedule for County Tour Is Unchanged.

Several changes have been found necessary in the plans laid by the Democratic campaign commitee for the tour of Union county to be made by Frank S. Katzenbach next Wednesday, but as far as this city is concerned the schedule originally announced will be adhered to. Owing to difficulty experienced in securing a suitable hall and making satisfactory arrangements for transportation the committee has decided to eliminate the speech which was to have been made in Plainfield and during the evening the candidate will deliver only two addresses, one in this city and one in Rahway.

Mr. Katzenbach and his party will return to Elizabeth from the tour of the county about 6 o'clock in the evening, and he will then be the guest of General D. F. Collins at dinner at the Elizabeth Club. At 7 o'clock Mr Katzenbach and his escort will proceed to the 'Port in carriages.

General Collins has announced that nearly 3,000 Democrats from nearby towns will be in evidence. The procession will make its way uptown and at different points the Democratic ward clubs will fall in. There will be no scarcity of red fire and music and from all indications next Wednesday night will be one to remain long in the memory of local Democrats.

When Mr. Katzenbach arrives in Elizabeth at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning he will be met by the Democratic campaign committee and a number of touring cars will be in readiness at the Burkely to whirl the candidate and his party throughout the county. The start will be made as son after 10 o'clock as possible in order to allow the speakers sufficient time to cover the route mapped out. Barring delays the committe anticipates no difficulty in touching at all the points originally mentioned with the exception of Plainfield, and it is probable that the return to this city will not be later than 6 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the Colored Democratic Club of Elizabeth on Monday evening at which plans will be completed for participating in the parade next Wednesday and the colored voters are prepared to make their presence felt. They will turn out at least 75 strong.

A meeting of the parade committee of the campaign body has been called for tonight at which the finishing touches will be given the arrangements for the procession, and all will be in readiness tomorrow.

It is probable that a dozen automobiles will be required to carry the candidate and his party and the campaign committee will take no chances on falling short in this respect. There will be plenty of machines and everything has been done to insure a successful tour of the county.

FINANCIAL HYSTERIA CAUSES SUSPENSIONS

Announcement was made in New York today that the Borough Bank, of Brooklyn, the Harlem Savings Bank, of New York, and a small savings institution at Providence, R. I., had been closed temporarily as a result of the financial condition in the city. The officers of each institution declared them to be solvent and that they would be reopened within a few days.

The condition of the market today was one of hopefulness, the large sums of money being placed to the credit of banking institutions yesterday having a sanguinary effect. It is now generally believed that the worst is over and that while it may take some time to regain a normal condition, it will surely come and that banks and trust companies generally will be generally benefitted by the shakeup.

Mrs. Mary Duffy.

Mrs. Mary Duffy, a former resident of Raritan, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ward, of New street. She was seventy-three years old and had lived in this city but a short time. The funeral will be held in St. Bernard's church, Raritan, tomorrow morning and burial will be made in that place.

—Fruits and vegetables both in and out of season are always to be found at Neuman Bros.' store. Bartlett and sickle pears and table and cooking apples will be features in tomorrow's display.

CLANS' RECEIPTS $4,242

Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney, Treasurer of the Big Gete, Announces the Gross Receipts.

REPORT OF BOOTHS

What Each Attraction Took In During the Six Days When Society Worked For Charity.

After long and tedious sessions "straightening out accounts" by those in charge of the various booths at the "Gathering of the Clans," the reports of the chairmen and chairwomen of the different committees have finally all been handed in, and Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney, treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital, under the auspices of which the mammoth fete was held, announced today that the gross receipts total to $4,242.17. There is a possibility that other money may come in yet, but the reports of the various booths show that this amount was taken in during the six days that society worked for charity.

Mrs. Glenney and her co-workers cannot yet announce what the net receipts of the affair will be, for their work in financing the big fete is but half through. The expenses must be considered and there are scores of bills to be paid before funds which poured in when the Clans gathered can be turned over to the hospital. The "bills against the Clans" are about all in, and within a week, the financial committee will have completed its work.

The gross receipts from each of the booths were announced by Mrs. Glenney as follows this afternoon: Books, $79.47; ball game, $35.41; candy, $312.40; cane rack, $77.31; dinners, $164.85; dolls, $102.55; flowers, $73; fancy work (total receipts from the eight tables), $1,027.64; fortune-telling tent, $13.50; Ingersoll watch booth, $126.96; hot dogs, $181.12; industrial booth, $88.45; ice cream, $31.20; lemonade, $46.61; minstrel show, $109.55; orange grove, $100.09; novelties, $38.65; preserves, $141.02; peanuts and popcorn, $20.42; pancake stand, $74.06; shooting gallery, $35.80; stationery, $266.67; tobacco, $131.28; welsh rarebit table, $317.13; professional entertainers, on the grounds, $39.12; silhouettes, $93.45; cloak room, $16.97; hat room, $4.55; horse show, $23.10. The amount taken in from admissions during the fete totalled to $439.26 and the donations up to noon today amount to about $77.

W. C. T. U. HEARS REPORTS OF THE STATE CONVENTION.

Reports from the State W. C. T. U. convention held at Jersey City last week, were presented at a meeting of the local union held in the rooms on Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon. Those who reported were Mrs. P. H. Bennett and Mrs. M. Winter, while Mrs. E. A. Parse also had something to say about the State gathering. The delegates told in an interesting manner of the various features of the convention, including the Bible readings, the reports of the State officers showing the great progress being made along the lines of temperance. The reports afforded much encouragement to the local members in their work. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, who is county president of the union, gave her report on Sunday, but she added a few words yesterday to the other reports.

At a business meeting of the union arrangements were completed for the fair to be held at the rooms on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The committee in charge stated that all the details are well in hand.

Thomas J. Kane.

Thomas J. Kane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, of West Third street, died this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital where he had been undergoing treatment the past six weeks for a complication of troubles. He was thirty-two years old and had resided in Plainfield all his life until a few years ago when he went to Brooklyn. He was a mason by trade and was in the employ of his uncle, a contractor. When the illness began which ended in his death he decided to come to the home of his parents and from there entered Muhlenberg. Surviving him are two brothers, Martin and Michael Kane, and one sister, Miss Winifred Kane. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Several Men Want Contract.

Several men who desire the job of carrying the mails between the post office and railroad station, have submitted bids for the work. Ambrose Withrow, colored, at present holds the contract, it having been sub-let to him by the man who originally had it. He is one of those who has bid for the contract. No announcement will be made by the postal authorities as to who the lowest bidder is until November 1.

"KINGSTON COTTAGE" DESTROYED BY FIRE

"Kingston Cottage," at Lake Hopatcong, the handsome summer home of Mrs. Eustis, of New York, well known to Plainfielders, was entirely destroyed by fire early last night. The cottage was unoccupied and what started the blaze is a mystery. The few people now at the lake were unable to stay the progress of the fire and beside it had gained such headway that their efforts would have been futile.

The cottage was located close to the "Ithanell Cottage," and occupied a prominent site at the head of the River Styx. Frank Weed, of this borough, who left yesterday for the lake to spend a few days fishing, was among those who witnessed the conflagration.

Mrs. Eustice and her family left the cottage a few weeks ago, taking all the necessary precautions to protect it during the winter season. The fire was not discovered until the whole dwelling was enveloped in flames and it was impossible to discover in what part of the building it started.

This is the second cottage at the lake that has been destroyed by fire within two weeks, "Casadora," the former summer home of F. T. Woodhull, having fallen prey to flames on October 14.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE FOR LEAL'S SCHOOL TEAM

Though the local basketball season will not begin for more than two weeks, Manager Dudley Brown, of the Leal's school five, has already scheduled eight games with high schools and preparatory schools and is arranging for others. The schoolboys will open their season with a practise game with the Y. M. C. A. team at the association gymnasium Monday night, but the first scheduled game by the management is with the five from the New York Collegiate School, which will be played here Friday afternoon, December 6.

Manager Brown has completed arrangements for the use of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium for the home games of the season, and five of the eight contests scheduled so far will be played in this city. Of the out of town games, the first will be with Betts Academy, and the local five will go to Stamford, Conn., for the game late in January. This is the longest of the out of town trips, the others being return games with Pennington Academy, at Pennington, and with the New York Collegiate School, at New York city. Both of these games will be in February. This return game with the New York Collegiates will conclude the season, coming February 28.

The schedule, as arranged to date, was given out by Manager Brown today as follows: Friday, December 6, New York Collegiate School, at Plainfield; Monday, December 16, Hudson River Military Academy, at Plainfield; Thursday, December 19, Kingsley School, of Essex Fells, at Plainfield; Friday, January 17, Pennington Academy, at Plainfield; Friday, January 24, Betts Academy, at Stamford, Conn.; Friday, February 7, Cartaret School, at Plainfield; Friday, February 21, Pennington Academy, at Pennington; Friday, February 28, New York Collegiate School at New York.

The majority of the games will be played in the afternoon, and Manager Brown has arranged as far as possible to leave Saturdays free because of the probability that games in the local interscholastic basketball league will be played Saturdays. The representatives of the schools to be represented in the scholastic league have not as yet held a meeting to form the league or arrange a schedule. Other dates are pending with schools in the vicinity, but no other dates have as yet been secured.

MARRIED BY THE RABBI AT THE ARLINGTON HOTEL

In a simple ceremony performed by Rabbi Max Davidson at the Arlington Hotel on Somerset street last evening, Miss Lena Jacobson became the wife of Jacob Jacobson. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Farbman, and there were about twenty-five present at the ceremony, which was performed in the hotel parlor. The bride has only been in this country a few months, having come over from Russia in August. Jacobson is in business in New York and has been staying at the Arlington Hotel. The couple will make their home in the borough.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the hotel. The evening was passed informally, and later a collation was served.

LOCAL MAN A SUICIDE

Discovery of Jacob Scharf's Body Leads to Story of Murder Mystery.

POLICE LEARN FACTS

Stabbed Himself With His Own Knife—Formerly Worked at Pond's and Lived On West Fifth Street.

After several New York detectives had worked the greater part of yesterday on the theory that a murder mystery was to be unravelled, they succeeded in establishing the fact that the body of a man found in Madison Square Park, Wednesday night, was that of Joseph Scharf, of Plainfield, and that he had committed suicide. The story of a park pedestrian to the effect that he had seen three men get out of a cab and proceed to a tree beneath which the body was discovered a short time afterward, is what led to the "mystery."

The police were at first inclined to believe that Scharf had been murdered in some nearby place and carried to the park and the impression was strengthened when it was learned that the man had been stabbed through the heart but not through the clothing. A dragnet was thrown out and several people who were known to have been in the park at about the time the "mysrterious" cab drove up, were arrested and held as witnesses. They were afterward released.

In the search conducted by the detective they came upon a knife a few feet from where the body was found, afterward identified as Scharf's, and they learned that he had been acting queerly at the Waverly Hotel on Eighth avenue, where he lived. The only thing about the whole affair that remained a mystery was the man's reason for stabbing himself beneath his clothing.

Scharf was well known in this city and was employed until two months ago in the blacksmith department at the Pond shop. He boarded at the home of Charles Hepner, of West Fifth street, and left there when he lost his position. He announced to the family and friends that he was going to New York to seek a place and that if he did not he would return. Cards in his pocket giving his Plainfield address led to his identification.

MISS ARLINE BROWN WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Her Selection, "A Daughter's Sacrifice," Declared the Best by Judges.

The silver medal oratorical contest held at the First Presbyterian church last night, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., was largely attended and a success. There were a number of contestants for the prize, and after careful deliberation the judges awarded the medal to Miss Arline Brown, whose selection, "A Daughter's Sacrifice," was considered the best. The judges were Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, H. C. Krebs and Kenneth Robbie, and the medal was presented by Mrs. T. C. Bodine.

An excellent programme was given as follows:

Song, "America;" piano solo, Miss Grace George; recitation, "Old Soapy," Miss Florence Fowler; vocal solo, "The Fairy's Lullaby," Mrs. Charles Clarke; recitation, "The Sober Hat," Miss Edna Doughty; piano solo, "Imps and Sprites at Work," Miss Beatrice Miner; recitation, "The Result of Treating," Miss Ida Englehart; piano solo, "Pilgrim's Chorus from Tannhauser," Miss Ruth Wean; recitation, "The Christmas Story," Miss Mary T. Smith; vocal solo, "Gretna," Mrs. Charles H. Clarke; recitation, "A Daughter's Sacrifice," Miss Arline Brown.

"Formal" Charge of Murder.

New Brunswick, October 25—Geo. Thompson, 12 years old, and his brother, Thomas, 14, are in jail here on formal charges of murdering Abe Kauffman at Avenel on Sunday last. They will be held to await the coroner's inquest on Saturday. While County Physician Suydam did not find any marks or evidence of violence at the autopsy, Coroner Bishop decided that it would be better to hold the boys pending the inquest on account of the many stories as to a fight in which the Thompson boys are alleged to have beaten the Kauffman boy.

Window Breakers Fined.

Fred Meeker and Charles Bunn, who were arrested Wednesday night for breaking a plate glass window in a Somerset street saloon while on a drunken spree, were fined $3 apiece by Recorder Dolliver at the session of borough police court last night. The North Plainfield justice also specified that they should pay for the damage, and this they consented to do before their freedom was granted.

Found only in

Boynton Furnaces

Did you ever operate a furnace made with the old-fashioned round fire pot, with its sloping sides to catch ashes and retard combustion; its grate bars of uneven length constantly requiring raking; its big waste of fuel?

Then you will appreciate the many advantages of the square fire pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces. Walls are perpendicular, instead of slanting; a touch of the shaker removes all ashes without clogging or the necessity of raking.

Gives 25 per cent greater heating efficiency than any other pot of equal diameter

This is the only construction in which the grate bars operate with even motion under the whole fire bed, giving quick, perfect combustion and the fullest benefit of every ounce of fuel.

There's but one square pot—found in all Boynton Furnaces. Your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith will gladly show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

With Election Day a little over two weeks off, both parties in the borough are finally stirred to activity in the mayoralty fight. The Republicans, who will support Frank Wynkoop for mayor, are the more active, and the local G. O. P. is solidly organized. The supporters of Harry Swackhamer, the Democratic candidate, have been working quietly, but have accomplished practically as much. Those who know say that the fight will be a very close one this year. Both candidates are employed out of town during the day—Mr. Wynkoop on the Central railroad and Mr. Swackhamer in the coal business in New York city. But the two are well known among the voters, and each has his group of supporters. Dunellen looks upon the election as the day's fight at the polls, for no other important offices are to be filled.

The masquerade ball of the New Market Field Club will be held in Friendship Hall, New Market, tonight. This is the first social affair of the new club and there has been a big sale of tickets. The committee in charge consists of William Piddington, Jr., Frank Pierce and Claude Penrose. If the affair proves a success, it is planned to hold similar social events during the winter months.

The fast eleven from the Somerville A. C. will be in the borough tomorrow afternoon for a game with the local team. Captain Lake of the local team will put his strongest players in the game, and the eleven has been together for evening practice several times in preparation for the game. The game is called for 3:30.

Rev. Theodore L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, of Plainfield, will be in charge of the services at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow, in the absence of the regular pastor, Rev. Henry N. Jordan.

The voters are rather backward about registering. Tuesday is the last day of registration, and none except those who register on or before that day can vote on Election Day.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Annapolis expects a hard game with Lafayette tomorrow. Edwards, of Princeton, will referee the game and Dr. Carl Williams, of Pennsylvania, will officiate as umpire.

Lyon, Carlisle's right guard, sprained his ankle in practise this week and will be unable to play against Pennsylvania tomorrow.

The biggest change at Pennsylvania since the football season began was made Wednesday by Coach Torrey, of Montclair, when he shifted Draper, the big tackle, to centre rush. Draper is fast and weighs 200 pounds and Torrey believes he will be just the man to oppose Schultz, of Michigan, in the Ann Arbor game November 16. Schultz is also a big man, tipping the beam at 230 pounds.

Conover, the Lafayette halfback, who has been on the side lines for the past three weeks with water on the knee, resumed practise this week, and distinguished himself by making a fifty-five-yard run for a touchdown.

Captain O'Donnell, of the Holy Cross team, has been shifted to fullback, and should make one of the stars of the Eastern colleges.

Schultz, who is playing centre for Michigan, is, according to some of the best football critics in the country, the best man at that position in the colleges.

Lafayette and Lehigh are now directing their attention to the preliminary work for their annual game. All previous games were more for the purpose of outlining the available m aterial.

Waldo Pierce, who scored Harvard's touchdown against the Navy on Saturday, promises to be one of the most valuable men to the Crimson eleven.

Carlisle has games with three of the four big colleges—Penn, Princeton and Harvard.

"Pop" Leuder is using his new line-bucking play with success at Cornell. Had it been perfected for the Penn State game the result might have been different.

Levine, Pennsylvania's former star end, is coaching the University of Tennessee, and is meeting with great success.

Yale's work this season has not been so spectacular as that of the Tigers, but the Blue coaches have developed something that the Tigers lack—team play.

With Wylie kicking almost as well as Coy for Yale, the latter may be shifted to end, for which he is qualified.

Michiman's line is not very delicate this year. Schultz, the centre, weighs 220; Graham, right guard, 205; the tackles 190 and 195, and two 210-pound men are working for left guard.

At Yale and Princeton the hardest work of the coaches is to discover glaring faults. There is fear that the players may become too confident after rolling up big scores.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The Plainfield Art Store in the Y. M. C. A. building is the place to have your pictures framed or purchase art materials of all kinds.

Harry K. Lister, of North avenue, is always pleased to show his stock of Edison phonographs and Victor talking machines. He carries a large stock of records.

A. M. Griffen, the hardware merchant, is ready to look after your stoves or heaters and do all kinds of sanitary plumbing. His stock of hardware is large and complete and prices are low.

The Woodhull & Martin Company is showing an exceptional stock of fall and winter gods in every department. The women folks will find attractive dress goods, furnishings of all kinds, laces, embroideries, white goods and a handsome display of lace curtains, while the men will be interested in the furnishing department devoted to them. The prices are very reasonable.

TALES THAT TELL.

A highway woman at Asbury Park, N. J., in robbing a ticket agent nearly smothered him with a woman's old woolen skirt.

A Northfield (N. H.) cat has returned to its home on the farm of Edward Heath after an absence of two years with one previous visit a year ago.

A Michigan dog caught in a trap set for wolves, tied to a tree, gnawed the sapling down after hours of work and dragged the trap home, a distance of several miles.

Small boys near Deadwood, S. D., have been making money by selling dogs to Chief John Kills-a-Hundred and his tribesmen, and the Indians have been growing fat.

Charles Beck, of Worcester, Mass., swam out into Lake Quinsigamond one day recently with a fish line between his teeth. A few minutes later he returned, and on the hook was a pickerel.

with a 10-year Gold Seamless Wire frame.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

If you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, to the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia, dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eyestrain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

"A Value Always Better Than Elsewhere."

Watson Ways Are Imitated But Not Duplicated

Every good thing is imitated. But the imitation always is an imitation—never as good as the original.

While our fabrics can be almost duplicated, and correct styles are the same everywhere, the "know how" which we have developed for fifty years of experience positively cannot be matched.

This "know how" makes Watson suits by far the best value in Newark.

We offer only thoroughly high-grade suits—every seam strong; every strain-point reinforced, every out-of-sight detail as perfect as the visible parts.

Watson Made Suits $10, $12, $15, $18, $20, $22, $25.

Fine Fall Weight Overcoats

Crisp Fall days demand extra apparel—and Fashion dictates certain styles which we have exactly followed.

Watson overcoats embody every desirable point of style, fit and that permanent elegance which comes only from careful planning and conscientious tailoring.

We offer the popular diagonal grays, herringbone effects, modish browns and sober blacks fabrics to suit every fancy.

Fall Weight Overcoats $10, $12, $15, $18, $20 $22, $25.

roles in various plays, most of which were written especially for him. This season he appears not only as the star, but part author as well of a play, "Billy the Kid," which as the title implies, deals with the free life of the western country. It is reported to be a strong story, logically told, and to offer to the star many opportunities. The production is reported as being very elaborate and the supporting company an exceptionally strong one. Young Santley is to present "Billy the Kid" at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night.

POWDER AND BALL.

It is proposed to grade French troops not according to height, but to length of stride.

The gunpowder used in the various armies of the world is made up from different formulas, which are carefully guarded.

Experiments have recently been made with an inflammable paste on bullets. When the bullet leaves the muzzle the paste ignites, leaving a stream of smoke behind it and enabling the marksman to watch its course and if necessary correct his aim for the next shot.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Annie Russell is to appear in a new play called "Paid In Full."

Nance O'Neil is not to appear in "His House In Order," in which John Drew is to star.

It is claimed for "The Merry Widow" that it is the biggest success in light opera since "Erminie."

Wilton Lackaye is to appear in "The Bondsman" in New Orleans and other prominent southern cities.

George Broadhurst has completed the scenario of a play in which Douglas Fairbanks is to star next season.

Mrs. Leslie Carter is to make a tour in "Du Barry," "Zaza" and "Camille." John Luther Long is writing her a new play.

Henry W. Savage has made a proposition for a tour of the United States by the company now playing "The Gypsy Baron" in Leipsic.

Four companies are now playing George Broadhurst's "The Man of the Hour." The original company will remain for its second winter at the Savoy theatre, New York.

Gertrude Quinlan, who played the role of the boarding mistress' daughter in "The College Widow" and made a big hit, is to play the leading comedy role in "Tom Jones."

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

An Esperanto church has been established in Constantinople. Its object is to afford facilities for worship to visitors of all nations.

Rev. Thomas W. Walker of the Woodlawn Baptist church, Augusta, Ga., has married 820 couples during the thirty years of his ministry.

A new Episcopal diocese cannot be created in England until a $350,000 fund has been raised voluntarily, this being to provide income for a $9,000 annual salary for a Bishop.

Rev. William E. Toll, who has just entered on his new duties as archdeacon of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church, was born in Bedford, England. He was ordained in Chicago, however, by Bishop Whitehouse in 1871.

The three Methodist denominations of England, now united as one great church, will issue from its book room a ten cent monthly, a two cent magazine suitable for family reading and localization and later a denominational newspaper.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

A great deal of gold trimming will be seen this season, and of that old gold, some of it of an almost brownish tinge.

White costumes will be worn quite throughout the winter, even for street and visiting, and with these gold trimmings suggest themselves quite as a matter of course.

Velvet is tremendously popular this season, and especially suited to the styles, as the smooth fitted effects show up the richness of velvet much better than other modes.

Broadcloth is the cloth par excellence this season. It always has held its own in the very front rank of fabrics used for street costumes, but this year its scope extends beyond that, to dinner and evening gowns.

Some of the most effective of the swirling skirts are made plain, close fitting around the hips, as prescribed, and not too rippling from the knees, so that large medallions or motifs of braid set in at regular intervals around the bottom will show up well.—New York Post.

LAW POINTS.

The right of the legislature to prohibit contractors for the public work of a municipal corporation to exact from their employes more than eight hours of labor daily is sustained in Keefe versus People (Colo.), 8 L. R. A. (N. S.), 131.

Repudiation, after becoming of age, of a contract to pay for merchandise which had been furnished to the promisor during minority is held in Lamkin & Foster versus Ledoux (Me.), 8 L. R. A. (N. S.), 104, not to revest title in the vender.

The right to sell the property of a charity under execution issued on a judgment rendered for the nonfeasance, misfeasance or malfeasance of its agents or trustees is denied in Fordyce versus Woman's Christian National Library Association (Ark.), 7 L. R. A. (N. S.), 485.

FRIENDSHIP.

A really good friend is so rare that to lose one is a tragedy.

There are plenty of good friends for those who deserve them.

The greatest pity in the world is when two friends who have been useful and agreeable to each other quarrel.

When an unmarried man loses a friend by death he goes to the funeral. After he is married he sends his wife.

Have you one friend in the whole world whom you would be willing to hear everything you have said about him behind his back?—Atchison Globe.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

How kind people are to the man who is going to die!

No man is as wretched as he imagines himself to be.

You can't realize how little money there is in a five dollar bill until you break it.

If you want to know what a man's weakness is, let him do the talking, and he will mention it.

The church will not hold all who want to see a wedding, but you bet there are seats to spare at every funeral.

RAT IN COLLEGE GIRL'S LAP BREAKS UP PARTY

CAT MAKES PRESENT TO COEDS AND UNIQUE ACROBATIC PERFORMANCE ENSUES.

New York.—Discussions of pedagogics and the "higher thought" were rudely interrupted when a small gray kitten walked into the Bryn Mawr tearooms, at One Hundred and Twentieth street and Broadway, and deposited a huge gray rat in the lap of one of the college girls who were drinking tea and discussing political economy.

The cat was Maltie, a gray Maltese kitten pet of Mrs. McCarr, proprietress of the establishment, patronized exclusively by Barnard and Columbia college girls.

Maltie, accustomed to praise on similar occasions, decided to display her captive to the amusement of her mistress' guests, but, to her utter amazement, a stampede ensued. The ladies, Maltie thought, were utterly lacking in appreciation, for immediately it was discovered there was a rat in their midst pandemonium reigned.

Pedagogics were forgotten. A wild flourishing of skirts to the accompaniment of screams announced the sudden agitation on the part of the strong-minded young.

Added to the commotion made by the Barnarders was the panic of the waitresses. The tray-bearing Hebes became a prey to the same wild terror. Trays were dropped, tea spilled, eggs scrambled by mistake rather than intent, while the waitresses climbed to safety on the tables.

At last a man came to the rescue. A negro porter coolly chased the offending rat to the street, while a young woman—a teacher, who ought, if only for example, to have preserved her equilibrium—screamed hysterically: "That wicked cat! Take the poor, little rat away from the monster!"

Meanwhile tabby, who had sought admiration and encountered disgrace, made a few biting remarks in feline language regarding her sex not calculated to improve the cultured atmosphere for which Bryn Mawr is noted.

YOUNG NIMRODS BAG COW.

Owner Reports Affair to Authorities, Who Will Check Gameseekers.

Wardner, Idaho.—After having swallowed all the literature describing the adventures of "Lynx-Eyed Larry" and other mighty hunters of the prairie, two Wardner youths, Harry Monger and a boy named Cook, set out to follow the examples of these illustrious gentlemen. A 22-caliber rifle having been procured, the two set out in quest of big game, which is, unfortunately, scarce in this district.

After some hours' hunt the best that had turned up in this direction were the cows out at the Collins ranch. The boys suddenly came face to face with the cows coming round a bend in the road and immediately took a shot at one of them, striking one of the best just below the backbone and making a wound that disabled it.

It happened that one of the Collins boys was behind the herd and had not noticed the game hunters, and when he came forward and demanded an explanation, the excuse was put forth that the boys thought the herd was going to trample on them, and shot in self-defense.

The matter was at once reported to the authorities and further steps will be taken at once. Collins, the proprietor of the cow, is a poor man who runs a dairy wagon in Wardner. He is the owner of a large family, and the loss of the cow is a severe blow to him.

Dog Yanks Mad Bull Away.

Stroudsburg, Pa.—Herbert Reicke, aged 85 years, was saved from a horrible death by a faithful dog. The aged man was knocked down and gored by a bull. The dog then caught the bull by the nose and held on to it with great tenacity. While the bull was bellowing around and trying to shake off the dog Reicke escaped.

Car Can't Kill This Baby.

Altoona, Pa.—"The ole fender knock me down; hoit me head," said Alton Fluke, aged two, as he scrambled to his feet, after being hurled some distance by a trolley car.

It was a narrow escape, and the fender saved him. He has been struck several times by trolley cars and never seriously hurt.

Announce—Beginning tomorrow

A Sale of $18, $20, $25 and $28 Raincoats at $13.75.

The collection comprises our stock of 210 Raincoats, every one of which is rainproofed by the Cravenette Process and actually keeps you dry.

The fabrics are covert cloth in tans and olives; Oxford mixtures; cheviots in grays; herringbone weaves and plaids.

The styles include the M. & B. Longcut, cut long and roomy; and the M. & B. Frenchcut, slightly shaped in the back.

Scores of times a man really needs a Raincoat to protect his other garments from the elements. And the man who owns an M. & B. Raincoat wears it many times when there's no indication of rain.

That's because they're a handsome and stylish overcoat, even when the sun is shining.

Every one of these coats shows the result of careful tailoring, which identifies all M. & B. garments from the ordinary.

GOWN GOSSIP.

Longcloth coats festooned with black satin ribbon are among the elegant novelties that will be favored this winter. They are to be worn over longcloth skirts similar in shade, but untrimmed soutache will be seen on most of the cloth dresses and cloaks.

Many of the long wraps are fashioned with a great deal of fullness at the back, which may be left in gathers or brought into a box plait, and these are usually given a bordered effect by a band of the same fur cut on the cross-grain. Similar bands form the finish for the sleeves.—New York Post.

WEIRD STORY TOLD OF REINCARNATION

SOUL OF BRITISH OFFICER KILLED IN BURMAH REENTERS BODY OF NATIVE CHILD.

TELLS ALL ABOUT SLAYING

Another Boy a Major Drowned While Boating—All Circumstances of Disaster Related with Minute Fidelity to Facts.

Rangoon.—Within the last few weeks a most extraordinary case of alleged reincarnation—claimed to be the soul of a British officer—has made its appearance in Burmah. It is the second of its kind in recent years, and has accordingly attracted widespread attention.

Reincarnation is a fundamental doctrine of Buddhism, and a reincarnation of a human identity, in human form, though changed in outward aspect, is called a "minza." As a rule, the "minza" is a very ordinary looking child, in no way different from his childish companions.

A few years back A. W. Tucker, district superintendent of police in Pega, was killed by a gang of dacoits, whom he had rashly attacked at close quarters, after discharging his revolver and without waiting to reload it. His call to his orderly to fetch ammunition gave the clew to the dacoits, and they killed him.

Just about the time this tragedy was being enacted in one part of the district, a humble Burmese woman gave birth to a baby boy, who in time, before the days of his babyhood were well over, claimed to be no less a personage than the murdered police officer.

So circumstantial were his accounts of the encounter with the dacoits as to appear the narrative of an eye-witness, and when questioned on various other points in connection with the life of the deceased officer he is asserted to have answered with such exactitude that the Burmese people who flocked to hear him discourse were convinced of the truth of his assertions. Peculiarities of action and speech were faithfully reproduced, and generally, quite a sensation was created.

Within the last few weeks a still more interesting case of "minza" has made its appearance, and we quote the account of a Rangoon Times correspondent from Meiktilla:

"There is a little blue-eyed, light-haired boy here, between three and four years old, the son of hard working and matter of fact Burmese parents belonging to the laboring classes, who until quite recently prattled like any other child of that age. The other day, however, he astonished his mother by gravely claiming that he was the late Maj. D. J. Welsh, border regiment, come to life again, and went on to describe the house where he had previously lived, the number of ponies he had and other personal matters.

"His mother was frightened, and called in the neighbors, to whom the queer albino repeated his story, describing how he and two others—a lady and a gentleman—were drowned in the Meiktilla lake in a boating accident during a storm at night in March, 1904, when the three and only occupants of the boat perished.

"That's the year in which Mrs. Reade, Lieut. A. W. Quinlan and Maj. Welsh, both of the border regiment, did lose their lives in this manner (as consequence of omitting to put down the center board of their sailing vessel).

"Large crowds assemble daily to hear the little child-man speak. Of course skeptics will say that it is a 'put-up job.' The answer to this is that Burmese coolies are not given to romancing to such an extent. Several methods have been applied to test the genuineness of the child's utterances, and people are satisfied that he has not been tutored.

"The parents would have to be wide awake sharpers to succeed in foisting such a story on the public through the instrumentality of a mere infant, and there is no suggestion that they are not what they appear to be, simple-minded folk."

GOLF.

An outline of American ideas on the rules is to be sent by the United States Golf Association to the rules committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, without awaiting the advance copy of the revised rules that board has offered to send to this country for suggestions. The St. Andrews committee has a revision under way, the first since 1897. Its chairman. Capt. Burn, desired the American views on the work prior to the final report of the committee to his club. As this report is due in May the United States Golf Association to save time will send across a code based on the views of American players. Whatever it contains that appears good to the Scotch committee may as a consequence be used in the revised rules without awaiting a reply in the spring based on the advance copy of its report.

President Daniel Chauncey, Leighton Calkins and W. Fellowes Morgan, as a sub-committee of the United States Golf Association's executive committee, has the work in hand. Circulars asking for opinions on any changes thought desirable in the rules have been sent to about 300 golf clubs and to prominent players and the report of the sub-committee will be a consensus of the answers. On the adoption of the report by the executive committee it will be forwarded to the Royal and Ancient committee.

"The rules, especially with the points to be added by the St. Andrews committee based on questions sent to it since 1897, are comprehensive and fair," said one of the sub-committee yesterday, "although our players have different ideas regarding some of the penalties. For instance, some think that disqualification is too severe at medal play for teeing before the marks on the teeing ground and that a penalty of one stroke would be more equitable. Suggestions of this nature will be made on a number of the rules. But the report will be mainly a plea for clearness in definitions and a rearrangement to make the rules a better working code. The rules should show at a glance what may or shall not be done on the tee, through the green, in hazards or in putting."

Mr. Barnes, American

CHAPTER I.

The Shock in the Marseilles Depot.

"I wonder if I can head off those cursed Corsican murder enthusiasts?" mutters Mr. Barnes, of New York, as he stands on the deck of the French steamer with Marseilles looming up in the heat mist ahead of him on a May morning of 1883, after the escape of the bridal party from Corsica.

There are very few passengers, Barnes' gold having sent the steamer back on her return voyage to Marseilles within two hours after her arrival at Ajaccio.

His glance is turned contemplatively beyond the whirling, eddying wake of the propeller's foam toward that curious island of a semi-mediaeval race, 200 miles behind him, whose rugged mountain slopes and chestnut valleys are the home of that undying revenge that the Corsicans think is noble; that they worship, idealize and call "the Vendetta."

The representative of New York fashion, American sportsmanship and modern materialism, who has flitted to the island and plucked not only the young English lieutenant, Edwin Gerard Anstruther, but his bride, Marina, the daughter of the Paolis, from the meshes and entanglements of a feud that only ends with death, notwithstanding his reward is to be the hand of the beautiful girl he loves, emits a low, contemplative, melancholy whistle.

He mentally glances back and sees the house of Musso Danella in the moonlit chestnut groves of Bocognano, and Marina in her bride's gown, her sensitive, passionate face filled with that weird mixture of undying love and uncanny horror as she shuddered from the arms of the man she had just sworn to cleave to through life and muttered: "Antonio's murderer!" Next he remembers the strange proof that brought back the wild happiness to the bride's face as she learned there was no taint of her brother's blood on Edwin Anstruther, her husband; that her horrible belief was due to circumstantial evidence and the jealous and crafty plot of Musso Danella, her guardian, the man lying dead upon the floor of the bridal chamber, Tomasso's dagger in his heart; and then had fallen fainting into her bridegroom's arms.

With this, the mind of Mr. Barnes reverts to his desperate efforts to get the whole party to Ajaccio before the natives of the little commune of Bocognano learned they had now another to avenge, and to the death of Marina's brother on the beach in the duello had been added that of Danella, their old-time friend, and to his peasants their kind maestro and proprietor.

Additional concern makes the face of the American even more grave as he mentally hears the distant ringing of the rifles on the mountain side as the carbineers shot old Tomasso Monaldi, who having become an assassin, had fled as a bandit, as the party made their weird ride to the Corsican seaport.

"If no deaths had followed the appearance of Marina's husband and me in the island, perhaps the accursed affair might have slumbered and died out," reflects Barnes, gloomily; "as it is, there's no telling where the devilish thing may end. If they have money enough to pursue us, holy poker, they may even include me in the scrimmage."

A little, delicately gloved hand laid upon his arm interrupts his meditation. Miss Enid Anstruther, standing beside him, looking like a joyous fashion-plate in a light Parisian traveling dress, whispers archly: "Thinking of me?" then suddenly ejaculates in almost frightened tone: "Oh, I hope not! Your face is so moody, dear." Blushes spring upon the sensitive face, and his young English fiancee whispers with a piquant pout: "Gloomy, and going to marry me in three days? That's not very complimentary, Burton."

"No, in two, if we can make quick connections for London," answers Burton, rapturously. "One day is past. But I wasn't thinking of you, young lady," he continues, tenderly, giving her delicate cheek a caressing, proprietary pinch; "I was thinking of—"

"What we left behind us," shudders his vivacious betrothed. "Don't let us think of that weird horror, when—when—" The radiance of her blue eyes and the blushes on her fair cheeks suggest the rest.

"When our wedding day is so near," whispers Burton, tenderly. "I would be very happy, too, if our Corsican friends would only forget it." He checks himself, biting his lip and adds: "However, the modern world is before us. I can see the Pharos light-house and the Iles des Perdus."

"Why, we are nearly at Marseilles," ejaculates Enid.

"Yes, only breakfast between us and every-day France," returns her escort. "Now just run down and direct Thompson to get your traps together and then tell Edwin to hurry Marina. They should be on deck. You know as soon as landed, we'll get right on to London. We can probably catch the morning train."

Miss Anstruther's answer makes Burton chew his moustache; she says: "If Marina is strong enough."

"Strong enough? She's got to be strong enough. We must get out of France. The further we are away from Corsica, the better. In France they don't need a reciprocity treaty to take us back to that mediaeval island. There is no telling what devilish complexion the natives of Bocognano may put upon the two dead men we left behind us. I don't want to alarm you—I wouldn't say this to Edwin or his bride—but the sooner we are out of France, the better."

"And you think that will be the end of the matter?" asks his fiancee, clinging closely to his arm as if Mr. Barnes were potent to save her from the whole Corsican race.

"Well, I think it would have been had we got away without old Tomasso killing Count Danella and the French carbineers shooting old Tomasso. As it is"—Barnes pauses suddenly and asks abruptly: "Did poor old Tomasso Monaldi have any close relatives? Not so very close, either. Cousins, even to the second and third degree often take a hand in these barbaric feuds."

"I believe while I was there," answers Miss Anstruther, "I heard a daughter spoken of. Etheria, she was called—the betrothed, I understand, of that mediaeval young cavalier who acted as bridesman and made that awful Smollet speech to Marina. Young Bernardo Saliceti, a member of the local governing body, ambitious to be elected to represent Corsica in the French chamber of deputies."

"Humph, a young Corsican swell betrothed to the daughter of the man killed on the mountain. Besides, I've heard the dead Musso speak of a half-brother, Corsican on the mother's side—one Corregio Cipriano Danella. De Belloc mentioned him as we rode down the mountain. Corregio lives most of the time in southern France, but has the damnable ethics of his island," mutters Burton, then he suddenly checks himself, for Edwin Anstruther is bringing his bride up the companionway to the deck.

Every time her eye lights on her bridegroom, the flush of happiness transforms the bride's face into a dream of passionate loveliness. Each time she touches the arm of Edwin

"And You Think That Will Be the End of the Matter?"

Anstruther, Barnes notes that her slight fingers cling to the young Englishman's stout muscles as if to be certain a living husband is beside her and she is not bereft. Still there is a confidence in the young Corsican lady's bearing that makes the American, who now considers himself as her physician, more hopeful of her physical strength.

"Ah, Marseilles is ahead of us, dear Dr. Barnes," she says, her dark eyes lighting up in their enthusiastic southern way. "To-morrow, Paris; the next day, London, where, Edwin tells me, you hope to be happy, happy as—"

"As I am," interjects Anstruther. "Enid has promised to make you so, hasn't she, my boy? And I'll see that she does it. No delays for trousseau; minister to the mast and sentence executed at once on that young lady who is putting her head over the taffrail to hide her blushes, which she'll pretend come from the sea air."

"Please attend to Marina's blushes, Edwin; they're enough for any man to take care of," laughs Miss Anstruther.

"Yes, and take Mrs. Anstruther in to breakfast," commands Barnes, deftly giving Marina her English name, thinking it will impress upon her that she is no more a Corsican.

"Breakfast!" says Mr. Anstruther, promptly, and leads his bride into the dining salon.

"Though I am not married, I am hungry also," remarks Enid, suggestively.

"All right, step in quick," returns Burton, but pausing at the cabin door, he whispers: "Excuse me a moment. I see an old friend forward."

"What, you are not going to sit by my side?" pouts his fiancee.

"In a minute. Order my breakfast for me."

A minute later he is standing among the few third-class passengers in the extreme bow of the boat, addressing an old Corsican, who, costumed in his best broad-brim sombrero and silver-buttoned coat, is seated upon a hen-coop and economically eating some hard-boiled eggs and roasted chestnuts he has produced from his pockets.

"You don't remember me, old Mateo," remarks Barnes, gazing at the ancient innkeeper of the auberge Il Pescatori.

"By the blessings of the saints, I do, honored Signore Barnes, of New York," replies the representative of old Corsica, his eyes lighting up with a lurid glow. "A grand duel that we arranged on the beach a year ago! All Ajaccio has been out to see where Antonio died and Marina took the oath of the vendetta. It helped business grandly. Has she killed yet?" The old man's tone is moodily eager.

"Not yet," answers Barnes, sententiously.

"Per Baccho, I saw her with another English officer in the stern a few minutes since. They say she's wedded to him. Hasn't found the man who slew her brother, but given her beauty to another of his accursed race. 'Tis shame on Corsica!" mutters the old vendetttaist, disgustedly.

"I believe on the morning of that duel," interjects Burton, "you were kind enough, Mateo, to give me quite a little history of the vendetta on which you seem to be an authority; how your father, a fisherman, fell in one, and you drowned the man who killed your father."

"Ah, that memory is a pleasant one, Signore. I can always sleep in peace; my enemy had no relatives or descendants."

"But where there are relatives and descendants, the feud goes on?" The American knocks the ashes from his cigar.

"Until there are no more left, of course! Even to all who bear the name or have a drop of the blood in their veins if they are men and Corsicans," answers old Mateo, stoutly.

"Ah, but you seem quite an authority on the subject. But are these feuds ever permitted to include women as victims?" asks the American, his eyes very anxious.

"Maladetto, why not? Women produce two-thirds of the vendettas," mutters the old man, sardonically.

Mr. Barnes turns moodily away from this cruel aspect of the infernal passion of unending revenge. As he enters the dining salon and seats himself beside Miss Enid, he mutters to himself: "By Jove, am I losing my nerve?" for the thought that his delicate fiancee may possibly be drawn into the horrible blood feud has produced a new sensation in his veins.

Half an hour afterward the Ajaccio boat is pulled up alongside of the Quai Jollette in Marseilles and is discharging its few passengers and little freight into that bustling artery of modern commerce full of moving wagons, shrieking cabmen and the other etceteras of a great commercial port.

The ladies are below getting their little baggage together, assisted by Edwin. Barnes, who has already sent a waiter on shore to bring a carriage, with an after-breakfast cigar between his teeth, is pacing the deck of the vessel.

A bright, smart little telegraph boy flies up the gangplank. After asking directions of the first officer, he steps to Mr. Barnes and hands him a blue envelope.

"A wire from somebody who knew I was on this boat," thinks the American, and hastily tearing it open, reads:

Burton H. Barnes,
Steamer Constantine arriving Marseilles. Ajaccio, May 26, 1883.

En evant double quick! The devil is behind you. Look out for Saliceti. Details by letter. De B.

From instinct Mr. Barnes touches his hip pocket just to be sure his revolver is there. Then he paces the deck meditatively for a moment, cogitating: "Something must be happening in Corsica for that old Algerine campaigner De Belloc to send such a dispatch. Best the ladies don't see this," and tears the message up, tossing the pieces overboard. As he does so Miss Anstruther is beside him, a fluffy white parasol over her head.

"I think," says Mr. Barnes, "we'll go to London as soon as possible. We have but 20 minutes to catch the train. Ah, here's Tompson with the valises!" He takes Miss Anstruther's maid, an English girl of about 20, and rather helpless in a French-speaking country, puts her with the heavier articles of their baggage into a voiture and dispatches her to the railroad depot at once. Returning to his fiancee on the deck of the boat, he says impatiently: "Why doesn't Edwin bring Marina on deck?"

This is answered by the young Corsican bride herself. "My husband," she lingers on the word radiantly, "will be along in a minute. He is cording up our baggage, sailor fashion. 'All atauto,' I think Edwin calls it. Is it all ashore now, dear Mr. Barnes," and Marina drapes her light traveling robe with graceful hand about her pretty feet.

"Yes, as quickly as possible. Come, Enid!" and the American leads the way.

Marina waves her hand to her husband, who springs down the gangplank carrying the corded articles and cries: "Hurry, Edwin! Twenty minutes to catch the Paris train."

SPARROW NEST OF MONEY.

Greenbacks Worth $15 Recovered from Eaves of House.

William McGrath of Belleville, N. J., walked into his bedroom several days ago and saw a sparrow fly from the top of a clothes closet out through an open window.

There was a green piece of paper in the bird's bill, and McGrath at once thought of a roll of money he had left in the closet. He found that many of the bills had been stripped from the roll.

He decided to watch and see if the bird came back. The window was left open, and the other day McGrath saw a sparrow fly into the room. He waited a few minutes and it came out again and went to a house about a block away, flying in the eaves.

McGrath obtained a ladder and got permission from the occupant of the house to climb up to the eaves, and was rewarded by finding a nest made of greenbacks and straw. There were $5, $2 and $1 bills there, aggregating about $15, but in pieces.

McGrath is now trying to piece the bills together.—N. Y. World.

SIGN OF SERVITUDE.

In Persia women are held in little esteem and it has been said with some truth that to wear her dress is to be a slave.

FESTIVAL OF THE WELLS.

Custom of Unknown Origin Observed Each Year in England.

The annual custom of decorating the wells of the village of Tissington, in the heart of the peak of Derbyshire, which for centuries has taken place on Ascension day, was duly observed.

Many visitors joined with the villagers in the thanksgiving service held in the church. There a procession was formed, and each of the five decorated wells was visited, psalms and Ascensiontide hymns being sung.

Upon the stone frontage of the wells a wooden structure covered with a layer of clay had been placed, and flowers had been wrought into exquisite mosaics, with scriptural passages interwoven.

The origin of the celebration is involved in obscurity, but the uninterrupted continuity of the observance in recent years may be due to the circumstance that during a terrible drought in Derbyshire the Tissington wells did not fail.—London Standard.

Dachshund Proved Innocence.

A black and tan dachshund gave evidence in a law court in New York recently. He belongs to Mrs. Fanny Henning, whose neighbors complain that he howls all night long. In support of their contention they exhibited photographs of the dog with his mouth wide open, taken from windows overlooking the Henning's back yard. One witness swore that the dog barked 234 times in seven minutes, so the judge suggested calling the dog. In he came, leisurely, walked to the witness chair and climbed into the seat, yawning lazily and blinking in the sunlight. The court ushers tickeled him in the ribs, rubbed his head roughly, pinched him, and even pulled his ears. He appeared to be so well bred that not so much as a whimper was heard. The judge said that the neighbors had evidently been disturbed by another dog.

HOW BIRDS FLY.

The long feathers of a bird's wing are fastened to the bone. It is this which gives the wing the strength and surface wherewith to beat the air.

Robin's Strange Nesting Place.

At the Crown, Cricklewood, England, the public house at which all the motor omnibuses from the Elephant and Castle and Victoria and the horse buses from Charing Cross to Cricklewood stop, a robin built in a gas lamp.

The nesting place is within the reach of anyone standing on the ground. At one corner of the lamp a very small piece of the glass is broken, and through the hole the robin gained access to its new home. A family of four young robins has been reared and can be seen in the corner of the lamp.

THE VALUE OF APPRECIATION.

Few Realize the Worth of Appropriate Words of Praise.

Has it ever struck you what a sweetener of life lies in a few words of appreciation and encouragement? How few of us take the trouble to stop a few minutes and praise a servant for work well done, or even pause to tell our nearest and dearest how we appreciate all the daily services which we have apparently never noticed. When our friends die we hasten to send beautiful flowers as a last appreciation of our love for them. But would it not be better if we had helped them by a little praise when they were working, or if we had cheered them in the dark days when they were troubled and suffering? Only a few words of appreciation! The cost is nothing, but the recompense is beyond price. Let the husband tell his wife how much he prizes her love for him, and the wife tell her husband how truly she recognizes all his care for her, and the mother should reveal in words how much she values her children's affection, while the child who says to its mother, "Thank you for all your love to me," has rewarded her far beyond knowledge or understanding.

HE FOUND THE DONKEY.

Imbecile Developed a Real Trait of Sherlock Holmes.

The usual group was gathered around "The New York Store" talking of Dick Mullins' lost donkey. Every one had been looking for it, without success since it had strayed out of the pasture lot a day or two before. Jim Thompson, a lanky individual, regarded as more or less of an imbecile by the townsmen, finally spoke up: "I think I could find your donkey." "How can you find him, Jim," asked the owner, "when the best men in town ain't been able to git a trace of him?" "Wa-al," rejoined Jim, "I kin try, can't I? How much is it worth to ye?" The owner "allowed" it was worth a dollar. All right," said Jim, and walked away on his search. To the surprise of all, he returned in less than an hour, leading the missing donkey by a rope halter. "Sakes alive!" exclaimed Mullins, as he paid over the dollar, "how in the world did ye find him so quick, Jim?" "Wa-al," returned Jim, "I thought to myself, 'now, if I was a jackass where would I go?' And so I went there, and he had."

Thin Cream.

Nobody in Cedarby liked to say that Amos Howe was habitually untruthful, but his old neighbors had a cautious way of accepting his statements. "It's best to take anything Mr. Howe says with a good pinch of salt, isn't it?" asked a newcomer to Cedarby. "M—yes," admitted one of the old residents. "Or if you're real partic'lar, it might be jest as well to set Amos' remarks away to cool for awhile, and then if anything rises to the top, skim it off, and that'll be about all you can take without injuring your digestion, ma'am."—Youth's Companion.

Rudeness of Mother Earth.

There's a lot of contrariness about our Mother Earth," said the woman. "You'd think if we loved her she'd be good to us, but she isn't. This is what she did to me all right enough. I went down to lie on her sands for a week and loll in her ocean. For a few days she was lovely; then she put sand in my ears and made me deaf as a post for awhile; then she sicked her jellyfish on me so it was absolute agony to go in the water. This wasn't enough, so she ended by handing me an underdone soft-shell crab that sent me straight home to the doctor."

Skeptical Poet.

Joaquin Miller was once conversing with a learned professor who was visiting California. To the poet's query, "What do you do?" the professor answered that he held the chair of metaphysics and logic at a New England university. Whereupon the venerable Miller with an encouraging smile, reassuringly patted the professor on the shoulder. "Logic and metaphysics, eh? Well, I suppose we must have people to look after these things, even if they don't exist."

Uncle Sam's Attractive "Ad."

"See the world" is the attractive heading of Uncle Sam's call for sea soldiers. "Men wanted for the United States marines. Duty on sea and shore and our island possessions." The poster shows a natty-looking marine in uniform with a suggestion of the island possessions pictured behind him. The wording and coloring of the poster attract attention and suggest pleasant possibilities. Uncle Sam evidently thinks it pays to advertise.

Shy on Mythology.

Says a San Francisco bank president: "This spring I entertained a prominent banker from Tucson, Ariz. I invited him to the Merchants' association dinner. My friend listened to the many speeches very attentively, and said, afterward: 'I noticed that almost every speaker said, "This city, like Phoenix, will rise from her ashes." Now there is some mistake about that. I have lived in Arizona all my life, and I know for a fact that Phoenix never had a conflagration.'"

Not Real Music.

"Pop!" "Yes, my son." "What is a trick pianist?" "A trick pianist, my boy, is one who makes you think he is furnishing music when he is not!"

FORT'S CARAVAN COMING

Gathering of the G. O. P. Clans at Park Ave. at 2 o'clock Tuesday Afternoon.

IN 14 AUTOMOBILES

Spellbinders Will Invade Union County, Starting Out from Elizabeth in the Morning.

As announced in The Daily Press yesterday, J. Franklin Fort will speak at an open air mass meeting to be held at the corner of Park avenue and Second street on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. At 1 o'clock, the nominee and his party will reach Plainfield on the whirlwind auto tour of Union county. The spellbinders will be entertained at luncheon here and after talking in Park avenue will visit the shop district where he will likely also make a speech. There will be fourteen autos in the political caravan, which will set out from Elizabeth at 9 o'clock in the morning to spread the gospel of Republicanism among the voters. A big brass band will be the signal for the gathering of the people.

The following itinerary and program has been arranged by the county committee:

Leave Dix building, Elizabeth, at 9 a. m., arrive at Lyons Farms, Looker's store, 9.15; speak 10 minutes; leave 9.25.

Arrive Union, Meeker's Inn, 9.40; speak 10 minutes, leave 9.50.

Arrive Springfield, 10; speak 15 minutes, leave 10.15.

Arrive Mountainside, Klopp's, 10.30; speak 10 minutes, leave 10.40.

Arrive Summit, 11; speak 20 minutes, leave 11.20.

Arrive New Providence, 11.35; speak 10 minutes, leave 11.45.

Arrive Berkeley Heights, 11.55; speak 10 minutes, leave 12.05.

Arrive Scotch Plains, 12.30; speak 15 minutes, leave 12.45.

Arrive Plainfield, 1; lunch from 1 to 2; speak 30 minutes, leave 23.0.

Arrive Westfield, 2.45; speak 15 minutes, leave 3.

Arrive Garwood, 3.10; speak 10 minutes, leave 3.20.

Arrive Cranford, 3.30; speak 15 minutes, leave 3.45.

Arrive Kenilworth, Smith's Hotel, 3.55; speak 10 minutes, leave 4.05.

Arrive Roselle, 2.20; speak 10 minutes, leave 4.30.

The Republicans are preparing to give Mr. Fort and the county nominees a royal reception when they stop at Scotch Plains. Posters announcing the meeting and other means have been employed to acquaint the people in that section of the visit of the candidates. Mr. Fort will speak in front of the Liberty pole at 12:30 o'clock and judging by the enthusiasm there will be a large crowd out to hear him.

FIRST OF THE RECITALS AT MRS. G. P. MELLICK'S.

The first of a series of violin and piano recitals to be given during the winter, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George P. Mellick, on East Seventh street. The artists were Mons. Edouard Dethier and Miss Carolyn Beebe, both of New York, and their selections delighted the large assemblage.

The program, a choice one, comprised selections of well-known composers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and the rendition convinced everyone that the artists have a true conception of the music of those early times. The interpretation left nothing to be desired even among the most critical present.

These recitals are being given under the direction of Miss Maud Van-Boskerck, of West Seventh street. The second recital will be given Friday afternoon, November 8, at the home of Miss Susan Corey, 1111 Park avenue.

Elected to Veterans' Association.

Constable John Manley, of Park avenue, received notice today of his election as a member of the Veterans' Association of the Metropolitan Insurance Company. The election carries with it the gift of the organization's insignia, a pretty sterling silver button. Mr. Manley was awarded a handsome gold badge by the company for faithful services, last June, having completed twenty years in its employ.

All-Day Meeting at Warren Chapel.

The annual all-day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held at the chapel on Thursday, October 31. This meeting is intended only for the members of the society, and a lunch will be served at noon under the direction of a caterer. This is intended as a reward of merit for faithful service during the year and for that reason no one outside of the members is invited.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, of Nutley, who has been visiting relatives in the borough, has returned home.

MYSTERY IN THEFT OF TROUSERS AND MONEY

James Manson, who lives at Third and Liberty streets, hailed Patrolman Saunders at 11:30 last night and told him that a man had entered his room while he was asleep and appropriated a pair of trousers with $18 and a check for $5 in the pockets. He had been aroused by his wife, he said, who told him that she had seen the thief disappearing down the stairs. Manson hurried out and before calling the officer found the missing trousers alongside the front porch, and the check a little further off.

Saunders immediately got busy on the case but from facts that he was cognizant of led him to believe that there was something wrong in the story. He passed the corner of Liberty and Third streets at 11 o'clock and saw Mrs. Manson and Robert Morley sitting on the porch steps. He spoke to both of them and passed on. In the time intervening between 11 o'clock and 11:30, according to the information, Mrs. Manson had retired and gotten to sleep, the thief had stolen the trousers and Manson had dressed fully and secured the policeman.

The case was reported to Chief Kiely and he made a strict investigation but learned nothing more. It was established fully, however, that it was sometime after 11 that Morley had left the premises and that the retiring of Mrs. Manson and the robbery occurred in a very few minutes. An effort was made to get Morley's statement, but he could not be located.

KATZENBACH GIVEN BIG OVATION AT DUNELLEN

Greeted by an enthusiastic crowd of voters, Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, spent fifteen minutes in Dunellen this morning, meeting the leading politicians of the borough. He was scheduled to speak, but arrived late and merely greeted the voters. Nearly a hundred people turned out and he was given a warmer reception than J. Franklin Fort, the Republican candidate two weeks ago.

The candidate's party, which is today making a whirlwind automobile tour of Middlesex county, was in fifteen big cars. There was a special car for the band, which gave a concert at the postoffice corner, where Mayor Wynkoop and Henry Swackhamer, Democratic candidate for mayor of Dunellen, greeted the party, and introduced Mr. Katzenbach to the voters. The party included the county candidates of the ticket and the candidates for the State offices.

The autos arrived in Dunellen at about 9:45 this morning from New Market, where there was a band concert and hand-shaking bee at Nelson's Hotel. A group of the leading voters of the village were gathered at the hotel to greet Mr. Katzenbach, who spent about ten minutes shaking hands and talking with the voters.

NO AMATEUR OPERA HERE THIS SEASON.

That the Plainfield Operatic Association will not present any attractions this season is now practically an assured fact. William Holmes, who was largely responsible for the organization, having taken the initial steps to form it, does not feel like giving his time in directing rehearsals as in the past, and no one else in the organization cares to undertake the task. Thus far no steps have been taken to resume for the winter and it is not at all likely that any such efforts will be made.

The operas given in the past, while not always a financial success, received commendation from the point of amateur theatricals and both Mr. Holmes and the members of the association were congratulated for the success attained. It was rumored that another similar association would be formed under the direction of William E. MacClymont, but this is not at all likely. Mr. MacClymont says that his time is too much taken up to assume such responsibilities.

Young Women Hold Evening Service.

The Young Women's Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, held its first evening meeting at the First Baptist church last night, it being decided to have similar services at intervals during the winter for those who cannot attend in the afternoon. There was a good attendance last night, and following a devotion service conducted by Miss Hattie Mattison, a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Thomas Kane's Funeral.

The funeral of Thomas J. Kane, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday, will be held in St. Mary's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock. A solemn requiem mass will be said and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

HOSPITAL TAX PROTEST

Mr Atterbury Argues That It is Contrary to the American Idea of Charity.

PRIVATE BENEVOLENCE

Reasoning of Those Favoring "Saddling Its Support On City," He Declares Is Unsound—Points Out Results.

The folowing letter has been received from Albert H. Atterbury with a request for publication:

Editor The Daily Press:

Dear Sir:—As a taxpayer and a contributor to Muhlenberg Hospital, I wish to protest against the proposal to saddle its support on the city.

A hospital is a charitable institution. Our American idea of charity is that it should depend on voluntary contributions, and that its activity should be limited by those contributions. In this view a hospital is a noble and beneficent institution, helping those in affliction, and a great convenience to those who need such a place in time of illness and who are able to pay for it. With the latter class we are not concerned. The so-called "pay patients" expect to pay their own bills without assistance.

Of the other, (i. e., those needing assistance) the city should and does pay for necessary medical care for those in great need of it, who are utterly destitute. It does this on the same principle that it provides a poorhouse for those whose producing power is below the minimum needed to support life. I believe that last year the hospital received $1,000 from the city and $4,800 from the county, $5,800 in all; this certainly seems a pretty liberal allowance.

Eliminating these two classes, there remain the people who are normally self-supporting, but are temporarily in difficulties. The discriminating assistance of this class is the office of charity in its highest and best sense, but such charity must be personal and not political, and we should be most careful not to deaden the self-respect of the recipient by making them feel that the community owes them a free bed in a hospital. Time was, when self-respecting Americans discountenanced public beneficence and relegated all charity to the sphere of private benevolence. That policy developed a nation of men, independent and self-reliant, but kindly disposed one to another and ever ready to assist in time of trouble. Nearly all the great philanthropies of this land have been developed by private enterprise, and I see no reason to change our policy and saddle them on the taxpayer. Charity is and ought to be a personal and voluntary matter. Who can decide on his neighbor's ability to contribute? If A feels that he cannot contribute to the support of the hospital, why should he be forced to do it by means of a tax? If B feels that ten dollars is all he can afford to give, why should he be compelled to give fifteen dollars?

The argument that the hospital should be supported by law because it is a "good thing," is not sound. Every object for which we expend money is, or is supposed to be, "good," and as the supply of money is limited and the demand boundless, everyone must apportion his expenditure as his judgment dictates. The Young Men's Christian Association is a "good thing," but should the taxpayer therefore be forced to support it? The same is true of the "Fresh Air Funds," and relief associations, and industrial schools, and dozens of other institutions. None of them can logically be excepted if we admit the propriety of public support in any one case.

I admit these ideas are old-fashioned. The absurd socialistic notions which have made such progress in the last twenty years have affected us as well as others. It is the fashion to put everything off on the "State," and the "State" in some shape or form is doing many things that formerly pertained to individuals, and in most cases is doing them badly.

I also wish to express a doubt as to the financial success of the scheme. It seems to me very likely that as public support increases, private contributions will decrease. Certainly many will feel that as they are taxed for the hospital they are under no obligation to contribute anything more. If that result should follow, we shall be worse off than ever.

ALBERT H. ATTERBURY.

German Republicans Meet.

An enthusiastic and largely attended Republican mass meeting was held in Elizabeth, last night, under the auspices of the Fifth Ward Republican Club, largely composed of Germans. An exceptionally strong sentiment was expressed for the ticket, especially in favor of J. Franklin Fort, the gubernatorial candidate. The principal speakers of the evening were Surrogate George T. Parrot, Assemblyman Moxon and County Registrar F. H. Smith.

MURPHEY BEST ATHLETE

Daily Press Medal for P. H. S. Champion Track Athlete Won by Murphey, '08.

1908 VICTORIOUS

Senior Class Athletes Win the Most Points and the Tug of War—Loizeaux, '08, Half a Point Behind.

By winning 19½ points in the annual track meet of the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon at the Plainfield Driving Park, Chauncey Murphey, 1908, won The Daily Press championship gold medal by a half point over Charles Loizeaux, 1909, who made a total of 19 points. Murphey won the title of champion track athlete of the school last year by a safe margin, but this year had a dangerous competitor in every event in Loizeaux, and it was not till Murphey finished first in the last event, the half mile run, that he cinched the title. Loizeaux was about a yard behind him in the race when he crossed the line, easily winning second place over Guion Fountain, 1910. Winning points in every event except the running high jump, the athletes of the senior class amassed a total of 42 points, winning the championship class cup from the class of 1909 by a margin of eleven points. The 1908 team also won the tug of war.

It was a great day for 1908. Heeling their track athletes with an enthusiasm and spirit that brought nearly the entire class to the field, the seniors, and especially the girls of the class, cheered and sang and tooted their applause on tin horns through the entire meet, and when their class carried off both the class championship and the individual championship, their enthusiastic demonstration was unchecked. The members of the class, about thirty-five strong, went to the field in a big stage, lavishly decorated with the class colors, red and white, and occupied a large section of the grandstand. Though the juniors were ahead in the meet till the last three events, in which senior athletes took first place, class spirit vented itself in the cheering and singing of special parodies, composed for the occasion, through the entire meet.

The rivalry between Murphey and Loizeaux called forth the keenest enthusiasm of the day. Loizeaux, "ninety per cent. nerve," was in every event, and won three firsts, a second and a third, eliciting applause from the entire school. Murphey had strained his left knee in jumping, and was in poor condition, but he landed two firsts, three seconds and tied with Hammond, '08, for third place in the pole vault, making the half point needed to carry off the title. The last event, the half mile run, decided the championship. Murphey, though hampered by his flapping knee bandage, took the lead on the first quarter and sprinted away from his two most dangerous competitors, Loizeaux and Fountain, on the stretch, crossing the line slightly ahead of Loizeaux.

The inter-class tug of war was a special event at the end of the meet and in this the seniors won from the juniors, in the final tug, with about a yard of rope to spare. In the preliminary tugs, 1908 won from 1910 and 1909 had an easy time with 1911. The teams for each of the classes follow:

The summary of events follow:

100-yard dash. Won by Charles Loizeaux, '09; second, Chauncey Murphey, '09; third, Allen Snyder, '09. Time 11 1-5 seconds.

Standing Broad Jump. Won by Chauncey Murphey, '08; second, Howard Runyon, '10; third, William Lounsbury, '08. Distance 9 feet 11½ inches.

Running High Jump. Won by William Dey, '09; second, Guion Fountain, '10; third, James Mauger, '10. Height, 4 feet 7½ inches.

440-yard Dash. Won by Charles Loizeaux, '09; second, Harold Hammond, '08; third, James Mauger, '10. Time, 1:00 1-5.

Running Broad Jump. Won by Harold Hammond, '08; second, Chauncey Murphey, '08; third, Charles Loizeaux, '09. Distance, 18 feet 1 inch.

220-yard Dash. Won by Charles Loizeaux, '09; second, Chauncey Murphey, '08; third, Allen Snyder, '09. Time 23 4-5 seconds.

60-yard Dash. (For boys not more than 16 years old.) Won by James Mauger, '10; John Riffert, '09, and William Lounsbury, '08, tied for sec-

THE WORK'S HISTORY

Former Mayor Gilbert, the First President of the Local Association, to Preside Tonight.

Founded in Plainfield October 28, 1867, the Young Men's Christian Association begins tonight to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of association work in this city. For three days there will be special meetings and special services, in which men prominent in Y. M. C. A. work throughout the State will take part. The local association building is elaborately decorated for the occasion and J. H. Manning, for nineteen years general secretary of the association, as chairman of the anniversary committee, has arranged an elaborate program to celebrate the foundation of local Y. M. C. A. work.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, who was elected first president of the Y. M. C. A. November 18, 1867, will be toastmaster at the big banquet which will open the anniversary at the association auditorium tonight. More than a hundred men prominent in the growth of the association in this city, will be present at the banquet, and various speakers will summarize the development of the work here since its foundation forty years ago. The banquet will be served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, as caterer.

Arrangements have been completed for special Y. M. C. A. services at the local churches tomorrow morning, and speakers prominent in association in the State will occupy the church pulpits. In nearly every instance, there will be special music at the services. The list of speakers at the churches follows: Crescent Avenue church, J. S. Tichenor; First M. E. church, George A. Warburton; Park Avenue Baptist church, William A. Tisdale; Congregational church, J. T. Sproull; Grace M. E. church, C. W. Dietrich; First Presbyterian church (evening), C. W. Dietrich; First Baptist church, T. B. Penfield, secretary of the Theological students' department of the Y. M. C. A. international committee. L. E. Hawkins, of New York, spoke at the Seventh-Day Baptist church at the service this morning.

In the afternoon there will be a mammoth mass meeting for men at the local theatre, at 4 o'clock. The speaker, William Knowles Cooper, prominent in association work in Springfield, Mass., will speak of the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. in a city. There will be special music by the Lotus Glee Club. At the same time as this meeting, F. B. Shipp, member of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., will address a mass meeting for women at Trinity church. The Lotus Glee Club will render seceral selections. Mrs. Henry M. Maxson will preside at the meeting.

Association work in this city had its foundation at an informal meeting on the evening of October 28, 1867, held at the residence of former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, at Sixth street and Madison avenue. The object of the meeeting was stated by Mr. Gilbert, in the preamble to a set of by-laws, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, actuated by a desire to promote evangelical religion among the young men of Plainfield and vicinty, and impressed with the importance of consecrated effort to aid in accomplishing this object, do hereby form ourselves into an Association to be known as the 'Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, New Jersey,' and we hereby agree to labor earnestly and unselfishly together in behalf of the great end proposed and to be governed by such laws as may hereafter be adopted by the Association."

There were but eight members present at that first meeting, but at a meeting held November 4, by-laws and a constitution were adopted, signed by the following fifteen persons: Alexander Willey, Jr., Henry Smith, Francis E. Marsh, H. Otis Newman, Robert E. Brand, Theodore Y. Bainbridge, Elston M. Dunn, Nelson Runyon, Charles H. Horton, James W. Jackson, C. H. Morehouse, A. F. Campbell, Randolph M. Stelle, A. T. Shotwell and Alexander Gilbert. A board of directors was appointed the following week and at a meeting held November 18, the following officers were elected, the first officers of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A.: President, Alexander Gilbert; vice president, J. W. Jackson; treasurer, T. Y. Bainbridge; recording secretary, H. O. Newman; corresponding secretary, Nelson Runyon.

The association later leased rooms in the second story of the "Woodland Building," now 126 Park avenue, meeting there for the first on Febru-

WOMEN'S CLUB FEDERATION HOLDS MEETING TODAY

Plainfield clubwomen are largely represented at the thirteenth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, held yesterday and today with the Women's Club, of Orange, on William street, East Orange. More than 500 women attended the sessions.

The meeting opened yesterday morning with a musical program. Miss Sophronia Anderson gave the greeting from Essex county, and the State president, Mrs. Henry H. Dawson, responded. Mrs. Sarah S. Platt Decker, president of the general federation, brought a greeting from that body.

Champe S. Andrews, of the Public Health League, of New York, gave an address on "Public Health." Mrs. Peter Stryker read a report on town improvement and a twenty minute discussion of it followed.

Last night a musical was given by well-known talent and Mrs. Decker made an address on geeral federation topics. A reception followed. This morning Harry E. Black spoke on "State Free Employment Agencies," and Rev. Frederick Lynch, of New York, discussed "The New Internationalism." The rest of the morning was taken up with the reception of reports from the various departments of work. This afternoon, Miss M. Louise Edge gave an extended report for the department of organization and Professor Lucius Hopkins Miller, of Princeton University, spoke on "The Bible as Literature," and following some minor business the meeting adjourned.

TWO POLITICAL RALLIES IN BOROUGH NEXT WEEK

BOTH PARTIES TO HOLD MASS MEETINGS.

Both the Republicans and Democrats will hold their mass meetings next week. Both rallies will take place in Saengerbund Hall, the Democrats being set for Tuesday night and the G. O. P. on Wednesday night.

Preceding the Republican mass meeting on Wednesday night there will be a big street parade with Mayor N. B. Smalley as chief marshal. The Bound Brook Republica Club, the Somervile Republican Club and the J. Franklin Fort Republican Club, of Greenbrook, will be in line and there will be plenty of fireworks. Former State Senator C. A. Reed will preside at the meeting and the speakers will be former Governor John W. Griggs, Assemblyman Alfred A. Barber and State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen. Music will be provided, a couple of drum corps having been engaged.

Professor W. N. Daniels, of Princeton University, and State Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex county, will be the speakers at the Democratic rally. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer will preside. There will be music at the hall.

LAURENCE BROMFIELD IS P. H. S. TENNIS CHAMPION.

By winning the third set in the final round of the City High School tennis tournament, Laurence Bromfield, 1911, won the title of tennis champion of the school yesterday afternoon. The score in the final set was 6-3. His opponent was Moses Rubenstein, 1908. In play in the finals Wednesday, Bromfield won two deuce sets by scores of 9-7 and 10-8. Darkness prevented the completion of the three out of five set match. Yesterday's set was easier for Bromfield, and his opponent was never in the lead.

As winner of the school title, Bromfield will receive a handsome silver cup, offered by the athletic association of the school. Bromfield resigned from the city high school yesterday and will move to Denver next week. The cup is to be engraved and forwarded to him.

STORY OF THE BIG BROTHERS MOVEMENT TO BE RELATED.

Tomorrow evening a meeting of rare interest is expected at the First Baptist church, for which arrangements have been made by the Young People's Society. The speaker will be Ernest K. Coulter, the president of the Big Brothers' Movement of New York city. Mr. Coulter's experience as clerk of the Children's Court gives him a story to tell that brings both smiles and tears, and awakens impulses to nobler, more helpful living. All are cordially invited, and it is hoped that many young people outside the congregation, if not otherwise engaged, will find it convenient to attend.

Miss Gussie Long, of Park avenue, is visiting her uncle, George W. VanNest, of Martinsville.

5 YEARS FOR STRYKER

Patricide's Plea of Non Vult Accepted by Justice Bergen in Somerset Court.

PROSECUTOR FAVORS IT

Tells the Court That Evidence in His Possession Is Not Sufficient to Convict of Murder in the First Degree.

Before Justice James J. Bergen, at Somerville, yesterday afternoon, Richard P. Stryker, indicted for the murder of his father, John C. Stryker, a prosperous farmer who lived near Readington, on August 26, 1907, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded non vult. This was accepted by Justice Bergen, who sentenced the prisoner to fifteen years at hard labor in State Prison.

Prosecutor John F. Reger stated that he had decided to accept this plea after a consideration of the evidence in the case. He said there were no eye-witnesses to the shooting and that the only testimony to maintain the indictment was that of two or three fitnesses, one of whom was the mother of the defendant, whose testimony was that immediately after the shooting she entered the room and saw the defendant and her husband engaged in a struggle on the floor; that the defendant was on his back with his father on top of him.

Charles Gilligan, an employe of the dead man, said that he saw the defendant on his back with his father on top of him, clutching his throat.

The defendant's statement was that when he entered the room after some previous trouble with his father about money, his father knocked him down, got on him and choked him until his breath was almost gone, and that then he did the shooting. This statement was in a measure corroborated by the fact that the clothing of the dead man was burned by the fire from the pistol and the course of the bullet was consistent with the defendant's story.

While the statement of deceased was somewhat different from that of the defendant, the prosecutor said he did not think the State could prove the wilful, deliberate and premeditated killing necessary to constitute murder in the first degree under the statute.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the defense, asked for clemency. He declared there had been differences between the father and son; that the father was also addicted to drink, and that on several occasions had threatened to kill the defendant; that the shooting occurred after a fight and while the defendant was on the floor being choked; that the fathers knife was found on the floor after the fight, and that the defendant claimed that his father had threatened to use it. He further stated that the whole family was in sympathy with the defendant.

Young Stryker comes from one of the best families in Branchburg township. He served in the Spanish-American War, and had spent the greater part of his life in the West. About a year ago he returned to his father's home to assist him in managing the farm. His father died in Somerset Hospital, in Somerville, five days after he was shot. When the young man, who was then confined in the county jail, heard that his father was dead, he tried to kill himself with a penknife by cutting his throat. He was taken to the hospital and placed on the bed where his father had died that day, and recovered. He is about thirty years old. His father was sixty.

Special Musical Service.

Under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, a special musical service will be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night. The regular quartette, with the exception of Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, who is taking a needed rest, will present the program. Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; E. Maxwell Honeyman, tenor, and F. C. Iglehart, Jr., baritone, will be assisted by Miss Alice C. Miller, pianist. This program will be rendered: Piano and organ, "Largo," Handel; anthem, "Seek ye the Lord" Roberts; tenor obligato, by Mr. Honeyman; trio, "My God—My Father," Schenecker; anthem, "Great is the Lord," Sydenham; duet, "Quis est Homo," from "Stabat Mater," Miss Case and Miss Burd; offertory solo, "The Cross," Markham, Miss Case; piano and organ, "Melody in F."

Bridge Wants His Rug.

George Bridge, of Fourth street and Rock avenue, notified the police last night that someone had stolen a valuable rug from his front porch. He informed the sergeant that he certainly wanted it back and asked that extra measures be taken to get it. The cops were on the job all through the night but Bridge's porch is rugless.

FOOTBALL.

"Now is the time," observes a Western writer in pure and elegant phraseology, "when ambitious football teams negotiate with a lot of dubs and sweel all up when the score is printed."

The Springfield Training School players wear crimson jerseys. They play Harvard on October 26, and in order that there shall be no confusion of identity the S. T. S. men will have new jerseys with a wide stripe of white around them.

The first university tea will be held at Harvard on November 29. It is devoutly hoped at Cambridge, however, that November 26 will not witness the holding of the university team.

Bill Edwards was wanted to umpire the Pennsylvania-Michigan game, but nothing could induce him to miss the Bulldog-Tiger grapple on the same date.

Not only did Vorhis, of Pennsylvania State, drop two goals against Cornell, but led his team in advancing the ball, making 167 yards.

Dartmouth and Amherst have been putting up close the scrappy fights against each other for the last two years, fights attended by low scoring, and they will renew the strife today. This is one of the biggest games between members of the New England group of colleges, among which there is the keenest of rivalry. As there is no Brown-Dartmouth game this year today's affair in a measure takes its place. Within the last few years Dartmouth has occupied a very prominent position in the football ranking, though she fell down last year. But year before last, when the Hanoverians were stronger than last year, they were held to a 0 to 0 tie by Amherst. The game last year was almost as close, Dartmouth winning, 4 to 0.

Neither Amherst nor Dartmouth has been scored on this year. Neither side entertains for a minute the belief that its opponents will be able to show a clean slate after today. The Dartmouth coaches are confident their team will win by a comfortable margin, although the work in practise this week has not been altogether satisfactory. Coach Hubbard, of Amherst, hopes for a couple of touchdowns against the Green and possibly a field goal.

A team that has Charles Daly with it all season, as Harvard is having theis season, is bound to derive benefit therefrom. Daly is a fine general and a line played. Between Harvard and West Point he played the game six years, which is a greater length of experience than falls to the lot of most players. He knows Harvard

IT'S ALWAYS BAD.

The Best of Backs Are Bad When The Ache, and Plainfield People Know It.

A bad back is always bad.
Bad at night when bedtime comes,
Just as bad in the morning.
Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for

Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill?

If you don't, some Plainfield people do.

Read a case of it:

Charles H. Lippencott, painter, of 107 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The statement made by me some years ago regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me was not only true at that time but now I am glad to confirm it. I had dull heavy pains around my groins, dreadful backache, dizzy spells and in damp weather or when I caught cold the trouble was so bad I could not get about. I tried my best to find some prescription or remedy to cure me, but without success. I was suffering intensely when I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy, but it only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. In a short time I was cured. I have used your remedy since then and with the same satisfactory results. I am glad to say anything in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

football, and he has had some experience in playing a certain amount of Yale football, such as is made use of at West Point. Also he has served on the football rules committee. Before the Yale-West Point game last Saturday Daly said Yale would not make two touchdowns. The result of that game showed that as a prophet he also qualifies. He and Cutts are men fitted to carry out Coach Crane's ideas of having Harvard go in for a little originality of her own. Here is Cutts with something new in the way of a ladder stunt to improve tackling. The men leap over a ladder placed on its side when going at the dummy, a wrinkle intended to instill proficiency in the flying tackle.

GOLF.

The concluding play for the Golf Committee and Green Committee cups will be among the events scheduled at the Plainfield Country Club, tomorrow. There will, however, be a competition for consolation cups in Class A and B until the latter part of November.

Entries for the Eastern Professional Golfers Asociation championship next Thursday and Friday at Brookline closed Thursday with the treasurer, David Hunter. A total of forty or fifty is expected when all the letters come in. The early names include Aleck Smith, the title holder, and Aleck Ross, national open champion. New England will have the strongest representation, with the metropolitan district next, and a few professionals fro mthe Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore clubs will also be in line. A newcomer will be H. H. Barker, the Yorkshireman, now professional at the Garden City Golf Club, who will start for the first time in this country at Brookline. Dave Hunter has gone to Providence for the Wanamoisett tournament and he will give out the entries Sunday.

Owing to conflicting dates the women's one day tournament to have been held at the Morris County Golf Club on October 30 has been postponed until next spring.

Secretary Leighton Calkins and the M. G. A. team for the Lesley cup match left for Boston Thursday. Yesterday they were lookers on at the Philadelphia and Boston match, besides doing some practising, and today the New York team plays the winners in the final. W. Fellowes Morgan, president of the M. G. A., goes to Boston this afternoon.

Four professional golfers, considered the best in this country, played a special thirty-six hole medal play competition at the Brae Burn Country Club Thursday. The players were Aleck Ross, the Brae Burn professional and open champion of this country; Aleck Smith, professional at the Nassau Country Club and national open champion a year ago; Aleck Campbell, of the Country Club and Gilbert Nicholls, of Woodland. Campbell proved an easy winner, getting a 73, for his morning round and 72 in the afternoon, making his total 145. Nicholls was second with 153, Ross third with 155 and Smith had 158. The winner was never in better form during his career and his golf was well nigh perfect.

CRITICIZES MR. MEREDITH.

Against Methods of Nutley's School Superintendent.

The general methods employed by School Superintendent A. B. Meredith in conducting the schools of Nutley were severely criticized by Samuel Silberburgh, at a meting of the Second Ward Improvement Association of the town Thursday night. Mr. Meredith was formerly a member of the Plainfield High School faculty. Mr. Silberburgh thought the municipality would be beter off without the supervising principal. It would gain, he said, if it had to pension him off. The alleged recent action of teachers in the Yantacaw School, in taking pupils from heated rooms into the cold air outside, was also criticized by Mr. Silberburgh. The speaker suggested that the association take steps to find out why the Board of Education has not issued any report recently.

with a 10-year Gold Seamless Wire frame.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

If you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, to the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia, dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eyestrain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In his new role, Billy, in "Billy the Kid," Joseph Santley, one of the foremost of the younger generation of players, is said to have a part which fits him to a nicety. It certainly should as this talented young actor is not only the star of the production but a part author as well. The play is said to deal with certain phases of life out in the western country which, to the more effete eastern mind is especially interesting and it is shown what a bad influence exerted at an opportune moment might do to a youngster just budding into manhood. From a production standpoint it is understood that the play is extremely well mounted and that the management has surrounded the star with a carefully selected company of more than ordinary excellence. Santley will present "Billy the Kid' at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night.

Henry W. Savage's company in the new English comic opera, "Tom Jones," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. Here is an event of uncommon interest to all who enjoy a happy combination of comedy and music. "Tom Jones" is new to this country, though its reputation is known from its success in London, where it scored a tremendous hit at the Apollo theatre. Its American production by Mr. Savage has attracted an unusual degree of attention, both from the general public and musicians. It is a novelty, unlike the class of musical plays which have been common for several seasons. In contrast to Viennese waltzses and jingling topical songs, there are old English melodies in the breezy, swinging measure of two centuries ago, with rollicking glees, merry choruses, spirited madrigals and graceful solos and trios. The music is delightful, and, furthermore, it is novel in its departure from the recent style of musical comedies. Because of its originality, it possesses a greater charm. Everybody will like it. It captures the fancies and haunts the ear pleasantly. Then, too, there is an excellent story in "Tom Jones." The book of the opera is exceptionally interesting. All the characters do things that sustain interest throughout, and there is romance and adventure and a fund of comedy.

Everybody has real the details of the New York Madison Square Roof Garden tragedy, and many have watched the fragments of evidence and theories advanced, suggesting the motive, but few have made themselves so fully acquainted with the facts as Hal Reid, the author of the drama, "A Millionaire's Revenge," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. Mr. Reid claims that in his play he has told the true story and made a stage version which is, beyond doubt, absolutely convincing and satisfactory. From the first meeting of the principals to the act and terrible consequences, not one point of interest has been lost or evaded. That the episode is sensational and full of thrills may readily be imagined, and no production of the class has been made in many years, which will so faithfully picture the doings of New York's great white way, as the drama offered by the Mittenthal Brothers.

I James O'Neill's elaborate revival of "Virginius," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, direct from its New York triumphant run, special attention has been given, by the manager, Edgar Forrest, to the groupings on the streets of Rome,—Patricians, Plebeians and the other ranks of Roman society are passing to and fro, or standing in groups to discuss the topics of the day. A street in Rome, one of the scenes in "Virginius," is shown with great detail, in the foreground is the bronze statue of the Wolf of Rome suckling the twins Romulus and Remus; it is in this scene that Appius first beheld the fair Virginia and lusted for her, which led to her and his own death.

AMUSEMENTS.

At Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, week of October 28, will present The famous Boston Fadettes, America's foremost Woman's Orchestra, Innes and Ryan in a gorgeous costumed singing specialty; the Four Casting Dunbars, the world's greatest aerial artists; The Kemps, the best colored act in America, in a neat and refined comedy sketch. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thorne and company, present the hit of all laughing hits entitled "An Up-Town Flat;" the newest and best of motion pictures and other Keith & Proctor artists make up the balance of the bill.

At Proctor's theatre in Newark, another great big laughing show will be headed by a great scenic, singing novelty, entitled "Crusoe's Isle," employing sixteen people in the cast; Frank Fogarty in a brand new Irish monologue, W. H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols and company in a comedy sketch, "From Za-Za, to Uncle Tom;" Byron and Langdon, singing sketch; James H. and Jenny Jee, dancing, jumping and cycling on the tight wire; Clarke, Bergman and Mahoney, singers and dancers; the Five Musical Spilers, saxophone and xylophone experts, and other new motion pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hill, of this city, have been visiting Henry Cruser, of Neshanic.

THE SIDE-STEPPING NOMINEE.

More and more are the Democratic State leaders becoming impressed with the fact that the party made a woeful mistake in nominating a side-stepping man for governor. What better evidence is needd to show his unfitness than the lamentable tatement he made last night on the excise question. For weeks, the public press on behalf of the voters as well as the State leaders have been urging Mr. Katzenbach to come out in the open and define his belief on the excise matter.

And what did he say? Why, simply that he would obey the will of the people as expressed through the Legislature and that, anyhow, he did not consider the subject of much importance. What a silly answer! As Governor, of course he would be expected to do that much at least, but that is not what the voters want to know. Mr. Katzenbach is dodging the issue. It is his own views on the excise question that the people demand to know. Probably only Mr. Katzenbach himself takes the position that the matter is of small moment and there is "method in his madness." If the candidate has any idea at all of becoming governor, he must mend his ways. He must be as honest with the voters as he expects the voters to be with him. In this age the electorate will not tolerate a wishy-washy side-stepper.

THE FORUM.

Down With Milk Trust.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of yesterday you say "Milk dealers have a new factor to deal with" and show what that factor is.

The rise in the price of milk has been brought about largely by the demand, and the demand has been caused by an extravagant use of it in too many households. So, in order to act in concert the dealsr and producers have formed a trust and raised the price. If every family in the city and borough would resolve to cut down the quantity, each day, to about one-half of the amount they now use, the milk trust would soon be glad to put it at the former price. If the people allow this trust to stand, it will not be long before the price will be again advanced, and it will keep going up until it gets to be twelve cents a quart.

It is the extravagant use of it, and the toleration of the price these men put on it, and think the public will stand it, that causes the trust to boldly make the price most and size they want it made. It remains with households of the city and the borough to say whether this trust shall keep on in raising the price.

Down with the milk trust should be the cry.

PASSENGER WITH CANCER GIVEN $5,000 DAMAGES.

Atlantic Coast Railway Company Called Seven Physicians in Court to Testify in Suit.

Freehold, Oct. 26.—A jury, which for two days had been sitting before Circuit Court Judge Wilbur A. Heisley, rendered a verdist Thursday night for $5,000 damages for Mrs. Mary B. Tonnele, of Metuchen, for injuries alleged to have been sustained by a fall from a car of the Atlantic Coast Electric Railway Company, at Asbury Park, June 28, 1906.

Mrs. Tonnele's evidence, taken on deposition in bed at her home, and read in court, was to the effect that the car had passed the corner at which she informed the conductor she wished to alight, and when she again asked him to stop the car he did so. A sudden jerk threw her violently to the roadway. Pebbles were ground in her face and hands, and she was black and blue from her chest to her abdomen, she declared, as a result of the injury.

A little over two months ago cancer of the stomach developed, and her family physician, Dr. Alfred L. Ellis, of Metuchen, and Dr. Henry Spence, of Jersey City, gave it as their opinion that the c ancer resulted from the blow on the abdomen.

The defense had seven physicians as expert witnesses, all of whom gave it as their opinion that the cancer was not a result of the injury, though each of them declared that science had not yet reached the point where it could be ascertained what caused the cancer. The physicians called for the defense were Dr. Edwin Field and Dr. Biddle H. Garrison, of Red Bank; Dr. Joseph Ackerman and Dr. James F. Ackerman, of Asbury Park; Dr. Joseph T. Welch and Dr. George H. Baker, of Long Branch, and Dr. Alfred Stengel, of Philadelphia.

OBITUARY.

Miss Mary Osborn Hayes.

Miss Mary Osborn Hayes, daughter of the late Samuel and Mary Osborn Hayes, died at her home on Martine avenue, Fanwood, yesterday afternoon. The funeral will be held at the residence Monday afternoon at 2 o clock.

Mrs. Fred Bohnaker.

Mrs. Augusta Bohnaker, wife of Fred Bohnaker, and who formerly resided on East Front street this city, died Thursday night at her home, 19 Brentnall place, Newark. She is survived by local relatives and also had many friends in Plainfield. The funeral will be held at her late home Sunday afternoon.

Vincent Flynn.

Following an illness of two weeks with spinal meningitis, Vincent Flynn, the young son of Detective-Sergeant and Mrs. John Flynn, of West Front street, died at 11 o'clock last night. He had been sinking steadily for several days despite every effort made to stay the progress of the disease. The boy was seven years old. Another child in the family, a two-year-old daughter, has also been ill with the same trouble. The funeral will be private.

PERSONAL.

Miss Alice Perkins, of Elizabeth, who has been spending a few days with friends here, has returned home.

Miss Lulu Randolph, of West Eighth street, who has been visiting friends at Bound Brook, has returned.

Mrs. Garrett M. Conover and daughter, of Rocky Hill, have been spending a short time with relatives here.

Mrs. Helen Huff, of West Fourth street, has returned home after spending three weeks with relatives at Eureka, Ill.

Mrs. Aletta Huff, of Centerville, Hunterdon county, has been spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. A. S. Mosher, of West Fifth street.

Mr. and MMrs. Peter Walsh, Miss Demaray and Mrs. Peter Vroom, of Pluckemin, have been visiting relatives and friends here for a few days.

Miss Anna Case, soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will soon open a studio in the Babcock building. She is now making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Braider, of East Front street.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, returned yesterday from Atlantic City, where they attended the meeting of the Synod of New Jersey.

SCHUYLER SAVED.

Court of Pardons Commutes Sentence to Life Term.

John Schuyler, convicted of the murder of Manning Riley, at Califon, Hunterdon county, will not be hanged November 1, his death sentence yesterday having been commuted to life imprisonment by the Court of Pardons.

The vote of the court was three for the death penalty and five for commutation.

Governor Stokes and Judges Bogart, Vroom, Gray and Dill voted to commute. Chancellor Magie and Judges Vredenburgh and Green voted for the death sentence.

Prosecutor George K. Large, of Hunterdon county, appeared in the interests of the State, and Alvah A. Clark represented Schuyler at the hearing yesterday.

The reason for commutation of sentence is that Justice Reed, who sat in the case, thought Schuyler might have accidentally kiled Riley, and that, as the evidence was entirely circumstantial, the ends of justice would be satisfied with commutation.

German Club Social.

The first social meeting of the German Club, of the North Plainfield High School, was held at the residence of Miss Stahlberger, on Central avenue, Thursday night. German was the feature of the evening. Games were played in German, a dainty luncheon was served and each member was presented with a unique menu card printed in German. Miss Cooley and Miss Ellis won prizes for marked ability in the German games.

CHANGE IN SCHOOL METHODS.

Consolidated Temples of Learning Is Now the Order.

"The old country schoolhouse of not so long ago will soon be a relic of the past," said James Tighe of Altoona, Pa., according to the Washington Post. "Although one traveling through the country sees many of these old fashioned structures, he does not realize that they are rapidly being deserted and that a consolidated schoolhouse will be met with farther up the road. These new buildings are graded, and many have several high school courses, so that one teacher now teaches only one class, whereas in the old days the pedagogue taught everything from the alphabet to Latin. Of course, the consolidated schoolhouse is not so convenient to all the children, as they have to go a greater distance, but all of them ride to school nowadays. The consolidated school is much cheaper to the community, and what the farmer saves in taxes he puts in sleighs and wagons, so that his children may ride. Pupils can also remain at their home school much longer than they formerly could, and this also is a great saving. We may expect great results from this change, for the farmers with their poor schools have turned out some wonderful men, and they should do even better under the new conditions.

STAND BY ONE ANOTHER.

One Place at Least Where Woman Befriends Woman.

"There is just one place," lamented the grocer's clerk, "where woman is the friend of woman. That is in a grocery. If a woman happens to get 'stung' with a poor brand of tea or coffee or soap or anything else, she takes precious good care no other woman whom she can influence shall suffer from the same cause. In buying anything else women go on the principle that misery likes company, and allow their sisters to run into all kinds of errors they themselves have been guilty of. But in the matter of buying groceries they treat each other like Christians. For that spirit of helpfulness the grocer usually pays. It is responsible, for example, for all those packages of coffee over there in the corner being thrown on our hands. One woman tried a sample. She didn't like it, and she made it her business to see that no other woman whom she met in here should throw her money away on that sort of coffee. And it is the same way with everything else—if one woman sees another in doubt as to the quality of any article, she advises to the best of her ability."

Capacity of a Munich Porter.

An English family touring in Bavaria, called at the world-famous Hofbrauhaus, the pride of Munich, recently, writes our correspondent. To the waitress serving them the head of the family in a matter-of-fact way, simply held up his five fingers. To the family's astonishment the waitress came back with five quart pots filled to the brim with beer. The visitors bravely struggled with the beer, but only managed to dispose of about one quart between them. Knowing that it would be considered an insult to leave beer, they called a porter and ordered him to finish it. In less time than it takes to relate the Bavarian accomplished the task. Wiping his mustache, he demanded sixpence for the "job," and, having obtained the money, instantly ordered and emptied another quart pot.

A Celebrated Celibate.

A young and handsome rector was recently engaged for a fashionable church. One of the vestrymen with a keen relish for a joke circulated the rumor that the new parson belonged to the order of celibates, thinking thereby to baffle the spinsters and widows of the congregation who were many. One matron, with several marriagable daughters, assembled these and a few young friends about her, and gave the group a solemn warning. "Now, girls," she said, "you must not fall in love with the rector. You know he is a celebrity!" And a celebrity the poor man remained so long as he was rector of that church.

Farmer Fools the Bees.

John B. E. Wright, who lives on a farm two miles north of Elmer, N. J., has the third story of his house bored with holes, which swarms of honey bees have found, much to his delight. The holes lead to closets in the bedrooms, and the unsuspecting bees make honey where it can be gathered from the inside by simply opening a door. It is Wright's keenest delight to take a friend and a loaf of bread to the third floor, open a closet door and start a feast of bread and honey.

Centenarian Killed by Wasp.

Mrs. Cox of Gloster place, Forest Hill, was stung on the neck by a wasp while entertaining a number of friends in celebration of her 105th birthday and died the same night. Mrs. Cox was able to read and sew without the aid of glasses, and had not known a day's bad health for the past 37 years. Her husband, who died last year, was 98 years old.—London Express.

Feeling His Loss.

Higgins—I see Tighs is wearing a mourning band on his hat. I wonder if it is for his first wife? Wiggins—Of course not. He married again last month. Higgins—Yes, I know he did, and I am under the impression that he is just beginning to feel his bereavement.—Chicago News.

POEMS WORTH READING.

Beauty.

Beauty was born of the world's desire
For the wandering water, the wandering fire.
Under the arch of her hurrying feet
She has trodden a world full of bitter-sweet.

The blood of the violet is in her veins,
Her pulse has the passion of April rains.
Out of the heart of a satin flower
God made her eyelids in one sweet hour.

Out of the wind He made her feet
That they might be lovely, and luring and fleet.
Out of a cloud He wove her hair,
Heavy and black with the rain held there.

What is her name? There's none that knows—
Mother-o'-mischief, or Mother-o'-rose.
What is her pathway? None may tell,
But it climbs to heaven and it dips to hell.

The garment on her is mist and fire,
Anger and sorrow and heart's desire,
Her forehead-jewel's an amethyst,
The garland to her is love-in-a-mist.

Her girdle is of the beryl-stone,
And one dark rose for her flower has grown.
Filled to the brim with the strength o' the sun,
A passionate rose, and only one.
—Nora Hopper.

The Perfect Day.

Into our lives—a rose amid the thorns,
A star in night—there came one perfect day.
Framed all in sunshine, lit with light of love,
And compassed round with blessing ev'ry way.
Hush! let us keep it, sweet,
By God's own grace, complete.

Now, though the shadows gather round our path,
Now, though the darkness rise and hide the light;
Now, though we never reap life's aftermath,
Nor ever touch again so fair a hight;
Now, let come what come may,
We knew one perfect day.

Sweet, looking up, we know that pain must rise,
And strife, to mar that day's most perfect peace;
But, looking farther, in God's light of love
We see the land where all the discords cease;
And where—God grant—we may Believe that perfect day!
—Unidentified.

The Little Red Leaf.

"Brief, O brief,"
Said the little red leaf,
"Is the span of life, I find;
But it's very fine fun
To dance in the sun
To the tune of the minstrel wind.

"Then, master, play,
And the while I may
I'll foot to the measure fair,
With Mirth for friend
To the very end,
A rollicking, frollicking pair.

"It will not be long,"
(Thus saith the song!)
"Ere the break in this narrow arc!
Ere the time comes when (Take heed, O men)
I shall eddy into the dark!"
—Clinton Scollard.

Compensation.

A sad little teardrop
Rolled out from her eye,
And after it followed
A sob and a sigh.

And then something happened,
Perhaps 'twas a kiss,
But a glad smile appeared,
Bringing comfort and bliss.

While the tear paused a while
On the side of her face,
It was caught by the smile
In a happy embrace.

As the sun dries the rain
On a warm summer day,
So the smile held her close
Till she vanished away.
—Irene Elliott Benson.

Bridging a Name.

I know a maid of many charms,
As clever as she's pretty;
In verbal tilts she oft disarms
Her foes with word shafts witty.
"Dear Margery" she used to be,
This more than merry midget,
Compact of grace and witchery,
But now they call her "Bridget!"

A certain game evolved the change,
She finds it most alluring;
Her friends declare it wondrous strange,
But she's beyond all curing.
It's "bridge" by morn, by noon, by night,
If not she's in a fidget;
Yes, such is her bridge appetite
They've come to call her "Bridget!"
—New York Sun.

A Matter of Disposition.

De candidate he come along
A-talkin' to de crowd.
He shake yoh han' so good an' strong
It sho'ly makes you proud.
His way's de slickest ever wuz,
He tells de lates' jokes
An' stops to ax you how you does,
An' how is all de folks.

It ain' foh his intelligence,
Although dat's somethin' neat,
Nor yet de way he meets expense
When it's his turn to treat,
Dat causes us his praise to sing
Fum early until late.
De disposition is de thing
Dat makes de candidate.

The Bread Winner at Home.

We make the cotton that clothes us—
The corn fer the bread we eat,
An' the stills that make the "moonshine"
An' the cider, sharp an' sweet!
Then, it's "Hoe yer row!"
An' the world'll know
That the country's hard to beat.

II.

Don't keer fer the Wall Street money,
Whar folks are takin' their ease,
The hives—they drip with honey,
An' plenty's left fer the bees!
Then, it's "Hoe yer row!"
An' the world'll know
It's come an' go as you please!

The Country Faith.

Here in the country's heart
Where the grass is green,
Life is the same sweet life
As it e'er hath been.

Trust in a God still lives
And the bell at morn
Floats with a thought of God
O'er the rising corn.

God comes down in the rain
And the crops grow tall—
This is the country faith
And the best of all!
—Norman Gale.

"Then I've got you in time!" shouts a voice from the quay that makes Barnes start and turn about.

Before them stands Miss Maud Chartris, her high, bronzed boots more bronzy than ever, the cardinal red of her long, silk stockings that outline her legs from knees to ankles even more aggressively gleaming. A pert little sunshade is over her straw-hatted head, which is adorned by two long, blonde pigtails tied with blue ribbons which she flops about defiantly. The rest of her between knees and neck is a white muslin frock and pink sash.

"Ma said I was to catch you, Edwin, at the boat if you came on it. She wants you at her hotel, the Grand, Rue Noailles. You're to look after that plumbing job in her house in London. The master plumber is robbing her."

"Awfully sorry I cannot accommodate your mother, Maud," remarks Anstruther. The carriage engaged by Barnes is standing ready for them. "We steer straight to the depot. I thought your mother was in London already."

"No, we're going back to Nice. Von Bulow is there. Between us all, ma means to marry him. How I pity the German. I'll ride up with you and tell you all about it," cries the Chartris girl, whose widowed mother sternly represses the unfortunate Maud from growing into young ladyhood and absolutely denies her birthdays till she, Lady Chartris, has captured another husband.

Already Enid and Marina are on the back seat, Anstruther steps in; Barnes likewise.

"Room for one more!" cries Maud, who springs in and kisses both of the young ladies effusively.

Already the carriage having rolled up the Boulevard des Dames and passed the Arc de Triomphe has turned into the Rue Bernard du Bois, making for the big railway station, out of which nearly all trains leave Marseilles not only for Paris, but everywhere else.

"You give my compliments to your mother, Maud," remarks the sailor, trying to cut off Maud's conversation. "Tell her to write me at my London address and I'll hoist her plumber at the yard-arm."

By this time they are at the great station. Miss Chartris skips out and the rest follow her from the carriage. Trains are ready to leave for the four quarters of the globe; the platforms are filled with hurrying passengers.

It is hard to believe a medieval vendetta can be inserted on such a scene. Barnes, glancing at his watch, finds they have ten minutes before the train departs: he says cheerfully but hurriedly: "Look out for the ladies, Edwin; I'll find Tompson and the rest of the baggage," and goes off to get the tickets and make the necessary arrangements.

But "look out for the ladies," is more easily said than done.

Three jabbering porters have seized their hand baggage and are carrying it in sections towards different trains that will scatter the pieces to the west and the Pyrenees, to the east and Italy.

Edwin pursues these; then Enid gives a gasp. Another porter, calling: "Arles, Tarascon and Avignon!" has pounced upon her special handbag and is rushing away with it. Miss Anstruther flies after him, leaving Maud and Marina together.

Five minutes later, Barnes returns to find Edwin supporting Marina, whose face is very pale, and whose eyes are scarcely conscious. Were it not for the stout arm about her, she would fall to the platform of the great station, under the feet of the hurrying throng.

Miss Chartris is gazing meditatively at her, chewing the blue-enameled knob of her parasol and furtively tucking something in her glove.

"What the deuce has happened to her?" asks the American.

"She is too ill to speak," answers the young husband, astounded. "What am I to do? We cannot take her on the train in this shape. She is absolutely unfit to travel. She has nearly fainted again." For Marina's eyes, seeing Edwin, close again in apparent despair.

"What produced it?" demanded Barnes. "She was the picture of health when I left her."

"Do you know how this occurred?" asks Edwin, eagerly.

"Not so much as you do!" replies Miss Anstruther; "Maud, how did this happen?" She turns suspicious eyes upon Miss Chartris, who cries nervously: "What are you jumping on me for? I was only keeping Marina's handbag and umbrella, and Edwin's canes and rug, and I looked round and she'd got it in the neck!"

"Not a dagger?" shudders Enid. But a hasty inspection of Marina's white throat relieving her, Miss Anstruther cries: "Maud, how dare you use such ambiguous Americanisms! What has she got?"

"How do I know?" pouts Maud, aggressively. "She was too groggy to speak."

"It can't be paralysis!" shudders the groom, trying in vain to revive Marina.

"Not a bit," answers Barnes, after hasty examination.

"Do you think we dare put her on the train?" queries Edwin, anxiously.

"As a friend, I would say we must get her away, but—" The American pauses.

"Mercy! You have some news from Ajaccio?" Enid breaks in, trembling.

"No more news, only it is wise to be moving on. But," Burton feels the fluttering pulse of the bride, "but as a doctor, my opinion is she must remain here for a few hours at least. I'll get a carriage. Here, Tompson," he says to the maid who had followed him from the crowd in the depot, "help your mistress with the grips!"

The two gentlemen support Marina outside the station, and Maud following, says: "Take her to the Grand, our hotel. Ma's got lovely rooms there."

"Yes, it's only a short distance," remarks Barnes, "and we can make your wife comfortable at once."

The whole party soon reach the Grand hotel on the Rue Noailles. Here they are received with mixed exclamations of surprise and delight and then concern by Lady Chartris. "Marina was well, you say, only a few minutes ago and fainted at the railroad station. What produced it?" cries the English matron, after the young Corsican lady has been taken to a bedroom and a well-recommended physician sent for, Enid staying by the patient until his arrival.

Mr. Barnes doesn't deem it wise to go into details with Lady Chartris.

"You had better descend and make yourself comfortable in the cafe, Edwin," he suggests. "Young husbands are too nervous when their wives are sick."

Taking Anstruther down with him he whispers: "Besides, did you notice whenever she looked at you she swooned again. Best keep away until you learn the true reason of this sudden attack."

"Do you think it is heart disease?" asks Edwin, distractedly.

"Not the kind you mean. I can tell you that your bride is as normally healthy as any woman in the world," answers the American. "It was some shock to the brain or nervous system, I think. The question is, what was it?"

"Can it have been anything connected with that horrible island?" queries Edwin, anxiously.

"That I'm now about to attempt to discover," observes Burton.

Meditating as to what the blow is, Barnes leaves the young English officer and comes upstairs, to interview the only witness he thinks available—the adolescent Maud. As he reaches Lady Chartris' parlor, that lady's door is slightly open, and words issue to him that make him pause outside the entrance.

"But as a Doctor, My Opinion is She Must Remain Here for a Few Hours' Rest."

"Now, Maud," says Lady Chartris, sternly, "what caused Mrs. Anstruther to faint? You were alone with her."

"Ma, I didn't do it! Sure, I didn't!" falters the girl.

"The truth, or I shall take you to my bedroom. You know what will happen to you there, if you don't tell me everything." The voice of the mother suggests awful possibilities.

"Yes, ma, I will; I'll tell you every blessed thing—don't look at me that way. Why, I was just walking round with Marina and I left her for a minute and a gentleman, French and Italian mixed, said: 'You are with Madame Anstruther?' He stumbled over the name, and I answered proudly—Marina looked awfully fetching—'You bet, she's my cousin by marriage.' Then he said: 'Give her this, with my regards,' and handed me a note. Well, I gave it to Marina and that finished her."

"Finished her?"

"Yes, she kind of read it in two pieces. First she drew up and looked like—like you when you think you've caught me in something awful—strong, savage and horrible. And when she read the second part, then she looked like I look when I'm going to catch it."

"And then?" Lady Chartris' voice is intense with excited curiosity.

"Well, then Edwin came up and caught her just as she was going to fall on the floor of the railroad station, and they brought her here."

"Is that everything?"

"Ain't it enough? How should I know anything more?"

"Oh!" exclaims Lady Chartris, in extreme disappointment. A moment after she adds, suavely: "You will have no lessons to-day, Maud."

"Bully!" ejaculates her offspring in wild delight; but sets up a stifled howl as her mother continues: "You can spend the day in bed."

"For what? Handing Marina a paper that anybody would give her?"

"For running away from your new governess on the Quai Joliette. Miss Marston reported it. To bed at once!"

The face of the eavesdropping Barnes becomes gloomy. Here is a witness whose evidence he wants and isn't going to get. He promptly enters Lady Chartris' parlor and says: "Hi, Maudie, run downstairs and I'll follow you and we'll buy some marrons glaces together."

Maud is half-way down the first flight before the last of Barnes' sentence is out of his mouth.

"How dare you send my child away when I had ordered her to bed?" remarks her mother, angrily.

"Bed? Oh, Maud is too young to be sent to bed."

"You think she is too young?" Lady Chartris' tone is appeased.

Two minutes after, Miss Chartris, eating bonbons in the seclusion of a magnificent confectioner's shop on the Cours Belzunce, remarks, suspiciously: "What are you doing all this for, Mr. Barnes of New York?"

"I've got a little information to get from you, Maud," says the American. "What kind of a looking man was he who gave you the communication for Mrs. Anstruther?"

"He was an Italian or foreigner or something of that kind with the manners of a waiter or a gentleman. He had a long, thin scar over his left eyebrow. I noticed that because his sleeve buttons had the same crest as Musso Danella's—by the by, how's dear Musso?"

"The deuce! Do you think Marina knew him?" The American's voice is hoarse with concern.

"How can I tell? Bridie didn't see him. I simply gave her the note. I knocked her stupid, and she almost fainted."

Then Maud's eyes opened bigger than ever, for Mr. Barnes says sternly: "Give me that note!"

"What makes you think I've got it?" Maud mutters, affrighted.

"Give me the note you picked up from the floor of the depot when it fell from Marina's fainting hand, and tucked in that left glove of yours."

"Not unless you buy 'em for two boxes of marrons glaces!" asserted the infant, commercially.

"Done!" says the American, sharply.

Miss Chartris unbuttons her left glove and carefully extracts from it and passes him three pieces of paper.

"Now pay up!" she exclaims.

But after matching the three fragments of a letter and glancing hastily over them the face of the gentleman in front of her has grown so distressed and horrified that the candy she is eating slips from Maud's fingers and falls upon the floor of the shop.

CHAPTER II.

The Document in Barnes' Pocketbook

"You have read this?" Barnes is speaking while he is deciphering as well as he can the mutilated note.

"How could I—in the carriage with you and after that under mamma's awful eyes?"

"Where's the fourth—the other piece?" asked Burton, savagely.

"I—I couldn't get the other—the people were stamping about so," stammers Maud. "She was tearing it up when she keeled over."

"Did Marina say anything?"

"Yes, she sorter gasped: 'Don't tell him!' Then Edwin grabbed her. But what's in it?" asks Maud, as Barnes strives again to gain the full meaning of the three-quarter epistle.

"Nothing that would interest a little girl."

"But it would interest ma. Let me tell ma. Then she'll let up on me."

"Not a word to anyone!" says Burton, sternly.

"Two more boxes of marrons glaces."

"Here, buy them!" The American passed to Maud's eagerly outstretched hand a couple of 20-franc gold pieces. "But—" Barnes' demeanor has become terrifying, "if you blab of this to Edwin Anstruther, I'll tell your mother that you kept this note from her."

"Great Jones!" mutters Maud, shivering. Then she implores: "But if I keep dark, you'll beg me off for running away with you?"

"Yes, avoid your mother's eyes for two hours and I'll probably put something in Lady Chartris' head that will make her so happy she'll think you the nicest little chick out of its shell!"

The American courteously leads the Chartris infant to her hotel, but even as he bids the child adieu at the door, the clerk coming out, says: "Monsieur Barnes, a note for you at the office."

Burton has been compelled to register himself and party. He steps in, tearing open an envelope addressed in an unknown hand, reads what, stable-minded as he is, gives him a shock.

"This compels me to tell Edwin. I must post him a little bit," he thinks rapidly, and acting with equal promptness, steps into the cafe. Not finding Anstruther there, Barnes walks up the stairs.

At the door of his wife's chamber, the English naval officer is pacing the corridor.

"Marina is much better. She has recovered her senses," says Edwin elatedly. "But Enid believes it best for me not to see her immediately, and the French physician declares it is madness at present to think of the fatigue of a long railway journey for my wife."

"I had feared that," remarks Barnes. "The important thing is now to guard her."

"Guard her?"

"Yes. It is now imperative that I tell you, Anstruther, something I would have kept from you."

Two minutes' hurried conversation and the English sailor says in quarter-deck directness: "I understand. No one goes into that door except the doctor and Enid. If anyone prowls around here—lend me your revolver, Barnes. You always carry one."

"Yes, and you must from now on do the same," answers the American as he passes the weapon to the Englishman. He steps to his own room, and gets another pistol from his valise, muttering grimly: "If I have to shoot, it will be to kill. Now, this makes it necessary to see Elijah Emory at once. Luckily I cabled him."

Making his way hurriedly to the busy Cours Belzunce, Barnes steps into the Hotel des Deux-Mondes, a well-known house of commercial entertainment. A moment's inquiry of the polite clerk and he steps into the correspondence room of the hotel. After looking about a moment, he places his hand on the shoulder of a man engaged in writing.

"I saw you come in the door, Barnes!" says the man, continuing his labor. "Glad to behold you. Your wire from Ajaccio came last night. I've got all the information for you. I missed you at the gare, and reckoned you'd gone on to Paris. Here's what you wanted, finished." He passes him the paper.

Barnes glances carefully about the room—which is deserted.

"There's no living thing here except flies," remarks Emory. "I took care of that before I began to write my confidential report for you. I'll keep my eye on the door, so you can speak freely."

"Have you ever been over in Corsica?" whispers his client.

"Never!" says the detective. "And I don't hanker after going there. If a Corsican commits a crime and gets to his blessed island, he can stay there—for me. To arrest him the gendarmes might have to kill his whole tribe; they hang together like a flock of wild hogs."

"Yes, too much. Now I'll tell you what I want you to do for me, Emory. I want you to act as a buffer."

"A buffer agin what?"

"Against the intangible. I haven't settled exactly against whom, but listen to my story. It won't take over half an hour. Then you'll know how to act."

Rapidly, but under his breath, Barnes tells the American detective of the extraordinary, uncalled for and mistaken Corsican blood feud that he fears instead of having been satisfied two nights before by the death of two men, has been increased and extended.

During the first of his story, Emory beams upon him with the genial smile of a man expecting ducats. During the latter part of it, his face grows worried, several times he nervously wipes the perspiration from his brow, and squirms all over his seat uneasily. At the close he shudders: "Gee whiz,

"Gee Whiz, You Want Me to Put My Finger in a Regular Corsican Vendetta?"

you want me to put my finger in a regular Corsican vendetta? Not on yer blooming life! Not for all the rhino in Baring Brothers'. Besides, women sometimes take a hand in these affairs and play the very devil."

"Yes, it's because one unfortunate lady is already in this affair and another may be drawn into it I speak to you," implores Barnes. "I know money won't tempt you, Emory, but a countrywoman, or rather one who will be a countrywoman—"

"Oh, you mean the future Mrs. Barnes of New York. Well, for her sake, hang me if I don't go you!"

BOWLING ENTHUSIASTS TO ARRANGE A TORUNEY

Bowling enthusiasts from this city, Bound Brook, Raritan, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Westfield, will meet in the Plainfield Academy on East Second street, Monday night, for the purpose of discussing plans for a winter tournament. A number of propositions will be considered, among them the conducting of a five-man tourney and a two-man tourney, the latter along lines similar to the one that proved so successful last season under "Warrie" McLaughlin's management.

Interest in the bowling sport, which was at a high pitch last winter, has continued this fall and indications point to a very busy season with the pin-hitters. Last year,s winning team, the Armrights, is again in the field and is meeting fives from Somerville, Raritan, Rahway and Plainfield. In the event of a five-man tourney being advocated, the Armrights will be among the first to enter and another local team, the Ironsides, will also compete. All the cracks who were in the two-man contest conducted by "Warrie" McLaughlin have announced that they will enter again if a tourney of this nature is agreed upon.

Monday night's meeting will be called at 8 o'clock and committees will be appointed to arrange the necessary details.

BOROUGH SCHOOL ELEVEN WINS FROM NEW BRUNSWICK

In a one-sided game, the North Plainfield High School eleven defeated the team from New Brunswick High School, 18-0, on the Westervelt avenue grounds this morning. In the first five minutes of play McClintock was shoved across the line for a touchdown. N. P. H. S. scored once again in this half, Conroy making a touchdown. McClintock kicked both goals.

In the second half, the borough boys again scored by the use of end runs and the forward pass. McClintock made the score and kicked the goal. Through the rest of this half the ball seesawed up and down the field, neither side scoring. The New Brunswick boys outweighed their opponents, but N. P. H. S. had by far the finest team work.

The line-up was as follows:

N. P. H. S.	N. B. H. S.
Herrman	Reynolds

Suicide Not Former Plainfielder.

While acting in behalf of friends who were anxious to see that the body received proper burial, Chief Kiely learned yesterday that the man found dead in Madison Square Park Wednesday was not Jacob Scharf, a former resident of this city. The New York police believed it was and word was sent here to that effect but when Chief Kiely and intimate acquaintances viewed the body yesterday they found it was not the Plainfielder. The suicide's name was the same and he formerly lived in New Jersey, facts which led to the wrong identification.

ary 11, 1868. After that work was carried on for a time at the building on East Front street in which the Dime Savings Bank has long been located. From there the association moved to the "Vanderventer Building," later to the Vanderbeek building at Park and North avenues. The work was carried on in this building until the present Y. M. C. A. building was completed in 1894.

The association today requires the outlay of about $10,000 a year, and with 663 men and 111 boys enrolled as members is carrying on active work in religious, educational, physical and social work, with a local women's auxiliary branch and a boys' department organized in 1902.

THERMOMETER FACTS YOU MAY NOT KNOW.

History of Little Instrument Everybody Looks At.

There is one little instrument in which the interest of all classes of people in this country never diminishes through all the changing seasons of the year, from the first day of January to the last day of December. It regulates the business pulse of the nation, and is the shrine to which men of all occupations turn. And this little instrument is the thermemter, which bears the name of Fahrenheit.

Before the seventeenth century men could only judge of the amount of heat prevailing at any place by their personal sensations, and could only speak of the weather in a very indefinite way as hot or very hot, cold or very cold. In that century several attempts were made by scientifics experimenters by means of tubes containing oil, spirits or wine and other substances to establish a satisfactory means of measuring heat, but none of them proved successful. Even Sir Isaac Newton, who applied his great mind to this work, and also the nated astronomer Halley, failed in their attempts to produce a heat-measurer.

It was reserved to Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, an obscure and poor man, a native of Dantzig, to give to the world the instrument which has proved to be so serviceable to mankind. He had failed in business as a merchant and, having a taste for mechanics and chemistry, began a series of experiments for the production of thermometers. At first he made these instruments, using alcohol, but soon became convinced that the semi-solid mercury was a more suitable article to use in the glass tube.

Fahrenheit had removed from Dantzig to Amsterdam, and there, about the year 1720, he made the mercury thermometer which has ever since been fashioned much like the original made nearly two centuries ago.

The basis of his plan was to work on the tube the two points, respectively, at which water is congealed and boiled and graduate the space between. He began with an arbitrary marking, beginning with 32 degrees, because he found that the mercury descended 32 degrees more before coming to what he thought the extreme cold resulting from a mixture of ice, water and salammoniac. In 1724 he published a distinct treatise on the conclusions that had resulted therefrom.

Celsius, of Stockholm, soon after suggested the more rational graduation of 100 degrees between freezing and boiling point. This was the centigrade thermometer. Reaumur proposed another graduation, which has been accepted by the French. But by far the largest part of the civilized world Fahrenheit's scale has been accepted and used with 32 degrees as freezing, 55 degrees as temperate, 96 degrees as bloodheat and 212 degrees as boiling point.

It is true that the zero of Fahrenheit's scale is a solecism since it does not mark the extreme to which heat can be abstracted. This little blemish, however, does not seem to have been of any practical consequence.

Arctic explorers have persisted in describing temperatures below the zero of Fahrenheit and scientists have produced artificially temperatures far below any ever dreamed of by the thermometer-maker of Amsterdam. There is doubt as to the year of the death of Fahrenheit, but it is generally placed at 1740.

Blanche Walsh is to have a new modern play by Hartley Manners, and it will be presented after the first of the new year.

George Broadhurst has submitted to Brady & Grismer the scenario of his play, in which Douglas Fairbanks is to star next season. Fairbanks is now playing an important part in "The Man of the Hour" company.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wilcox, of Crown Point, N. Y., are visiting their son, Rev. George A. Warner, of Washington avenue.

PLAINFIELD'S Y. M. C. A. CELEBRATES ITS FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WITH A BANQUET, ADDRESSES IN CHURCHES AND A MASS MEETING

Spirited Speeches Telling of the Origin and Growth of the Association Movement in This City the Feature of the Prosperous Institution's Big Birthday Celebration.

SOME FOUNDERS TALK

Two Days' Observance In Which Practically the Entire Populace Takes Part Closes With Big Meeting at the Theatre.

Commencing with a big banquet held in the association auditorium Saturday night and attended by nearly a hundred representative men of the city, celebrated by a series of special sermons at the various churches, and concluding yesterday afternoon with a men's mass meeting at the New Plainfield theatre, the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city has come and gone. The feature of the association since its foundation October 28, 1867, by eight Plainfielders on the instigation of former Mayor Alexander Gilbert and a presentation of the opportunities for men's advancement along lines of physical, spiritual and moral development as set forth from the church pulpits and at the mass meeting yesterday.

At the association auditorium Saturday night the big banquet was attended by three of the original founders, former Mayor Gilbert, H. O. Newman and T. C. Aldrich, who had seats at the speakers' table. J. W. Jackson, the first vice president, and Nelson Runyon, the first corresponding secretary of the institution, were expected to be present but could not. The banquet, which was served at eleven tables in the auditorium, was an excellent meal and was attended by men prominent among the lawyers, politicians, clergymen, physicians and educators of this city.

The Speakers.

At the speakers' table, J. W. Gavett, president of the association, presided as toastmaster, and with him were former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, the founder and first president of the association here, H. Otis Newman, the institution's first recording secretary, T. C. Aldrich, one of the early corresponding secretaries, W. D. Murray, C. W. McCutchen, H. Raymond Munger, former presidents of the Y. M. C. A., and David E. Titsworth, one of the earlier vice presidents. Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, said grace before the banquetters sat down at shortly after 7 o'clock.

The feature of the evening's speeches was the remarks made by

Y. M. C. A. Building.
—Courtesy Monarch Printing Co.

Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House. Mr. Gilbert came to the banquet after a strenuous day's work at the pulse of New York's financial situation in which he has been a controlling element during the business troubles of the past week. His speech will be found in another column.

Mr. McCutchen's Talk.

Charles W. McCutchen, for five years president of the association, beginning with 1871, was the next speaker. He spoke of the auspices significance of the formation of the association in this city. Speaking of Mr. Gilbert, the founder, in this connection, he said: "The Young Men's Christian Association is honored in having such a man as Alexander Gilbert as the father of the institution. We ought to feel honored because of the action of this man in the current week. He has stood in the place of the direst need and has cut out the corrupt sore of the financial patient, staying a ruining financial panic in this country and perhaps abroad. We ought to feel the honor."

Mr. McCutchen went on to speak of the causes that have made the association work in Plainfield a success. Prominent among those he mentioned the subtle influence which one man exercises over another to change him in the hour of emergency. The influence of Jesus Christ, the speaker said, was just such a fascinating personal influence that is a mutual bond today at the beginning of the association work in this city.

Mr. Murray's Speech.

Following Mr. McCutchen, W. D. Murray was introduced as the next speaker. Mr. Murray has been for some time chairman of the Y. M. C. A. international committee, besides having been president of the local association for eleven years, beginning in 1887. He spoke in behalf of the younger, active element of the association, dwelling particularly upon the foreign work in which he has had a large share on the international committee. He gave interesting statistics of the growth of Y. M. C. A. work in foreign countries. All over the world, he said, the rulers and most influential statesmen of the various countries have commended and supported the work, which is now being actively carried on in eleven foreign countries. He concluded his remarks with a powerful appeal to the young men to enter upon the work abroad and voiced a hope that Plainfield would send young men to this great field for work abroad.

W. K. Cooper's Address.

The last of the speakers was William Knowles Cooper, prominent in association work in Springfield, Mass. He spoke of the great growth of the Young Men's Christian Association in this country, emphasizing the influence of the association as a means for promoting Christian unity, abolishing denominational divisions and uniting with a strong bond all who call Christ Lord and Master. Speaking of the three fold development of body, mind and spirit, Mr. Cooper said that past as the school house and the church were side by side on the New England hills so were the educational and religious phases of life molded in the work of the association. Physical development will make every man his best as a servant of God and Y. M. C. A. athletics have done much to raise the standard of American gymnastics. Emphasizing the value of the Chrstian influences the association offers, Mr. Cooper spoke of the boys' department as a miniature Y. M. C. A. and concluded with a summarization of the scope of the institution.

Concluding the evening's speeches, Toastmaster Gavett made an appeal for co-operation by the young men in the work, speaking especially of the need of enthusiastic workers on the various committees of the association.

In the Churches.

Yesterday's anniversary services were conducted in the various local churches with out of town speakers in the pulpits in the morning. J. S. Tichenor was at the Crescent Avenue church, William A. Tisdale at the Park Avenue Baptist, J. T. Sproull at the Congregational, C. W. Detirich at Grace M. E. in the morning and the First Presbyterian in the evening, and T. B. Penfield at the First Baptist church in the morning. George A. Warburton was to have been the speaker at the First M. E. church in the morning, but did not arrive in town in time, so that his place was taken by William Knowles Cooper. L. E. Hawkins spoke at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday morning. The speakers at all the churches dwelt particularly upon the anniversary occasion and upon the scope of the association work for the development of body, mind and spirit. Music was a feature at all the services.

The Mass Meeting.

The wet weather of the afternoon made the mass meetings rather slimly attended. At Trinity Reformed church, where F. B. Shipp was to have addressed a mass meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, the attendance was so small that the women adjourned to the men's mass meeting in the New Plainfield theatre. President J. W. Gavett, of the local association, was in charge of the meeting, the speaker of which was William Knowles Cooper. On the platform were seated Rev. J. A. Chambliss, H. Raymond Munger, Ernest R. Ackerman, H. Otis Newman, Chas. W. McCutcheon, T. C. Aldrich, Su-

WOMAN TRUANT OFFICER

Miss Adelaide Ball Appointed for City Schools by Superintendent H. M. Maxson.

INSTEAD OF POLICEMAN

Mr. Maxson Believes a Woman Officer to Be More Efficient Than a Policeman—Miss Ball's Duties.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson of the city schools announced this morning that Miss Adelaide Ball, daughter of F. H. Ball, of Franklin place, had accepted the appointment as truant officer of the city schools. Miss Ball will begin her duties at once.

At the last meeting of the city Board of Education, Superintendent Maxson was empowered to appoint a truant officer for the schools and said at that time that he believed a woman could secure the best results. For almost two years there has been no truant officer and before that Florence McCarthy, of the local police force, acted in that capacity for the board of education. Mr. Maxson believes that more can be accomplished by tact toward securing the attendance of children at the schools than by the force of the law.

Miss Ball's work will be for the most part with lowergrades of the local schools. A census of the children in attendance at each of the schools will be taken and a card system record will be kept at the city high school. Miss Ball will be in her office there between 9 and 9.30 every school morning, until after all the absences for the day are filed by telephone from the various schools. After this list has been secured, Miss Ball will investigate each case, going to the homes to discover if the children have been sent to school. She will aim to co-operate with the parents, and cases of need, where the child has insufficient proper clothing for attendance at school on cold or stormy days will be referred to the Plainfield Organized Aid Association, which will co-operate with Miss Ball in her work.

RAIDED A "SPEAK EASY"

Chief Marshall Weiss Leads Successful Surprise on Alleged "Joint".

FIVE ARRESTS MADE

John Consoli's Fruit Store On the Bridge Raided and Men Drinking There Arrested—The Liquor Seized.

As the result of a successful raid conducted by Chief Marshal George Weiss of the borough police force, five men were arrested yesterday at the fruit and peanut store of John Consoli, at 23 Somerset street. Consoli, the police say, has been running a "speak easy" for some time past, but Sleuth Weiss hunted down the wrongdoers and pinched the house, assisted by Marshal Lemuel Pope and Ambrose Campbell.

The men in the store at the time the Chief and his trusties sauntered in were the proprietor of the place, John Consoli, George Haymaker, Edward Potts, Surdon Jones and Chas. Gulick. Of these, Consoli is an Italian, and Potts and Jones are colored. The men had all been drinking, it is said, and were getting noisy in their intoxication. When they saw how successfully they had been surprised, they gave in without much struggle and were led in a triumphal procession to the borough lock-up. This morning Consoli was released on $200 bail and Gulick furnished $25 for his freedom. The others are still incarcerated and will come up for a hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver tonight.

A considerable quantity of liquor, including some "rock and rye," was found in the store and Consoli, the police say, was doing a rushing business when the police interrupted. It is not known how long the Italian has been trading in liquor. The four alleged drinkers were arrested on a drunk and disorderly charge, but Consoli will have to face the court as proprietor of a "speak-easy." Consoli's store is almost on the bridge on Somerset street and is only a few feet in Somerset county.

Alvin Voorhees.

Alvin Voorhees, aged fifty-seven years, died suddenly Saturday night at his home on East Sixth street. He leaves a wife, one daughter, Grace C. Voorhees, and a son, Walter L. Voorhees. The funeral will be held at the late residence tomorrow night at 8 o'clock and at the Hightstown Baptist church Wednesday morning. Interment will be at Hightstown.

PASTOR ADVISES VOTERS

Rev. Mr. McCrea Tells His Congregation Why Fort Should Be Supported.

ON EXCISE QUESTION

First M. E. Minister Points Out That Democrats Are Silent On Sunday Observance.

"The Church and the Open Sabbath," was the subject of an earnest and interesting discourse delivered at the First M. E. church, last night, by Rev. A. C. McCrea, the pastor. His sermon was largely stimulated by recent utterances of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in The Daily Press in which the latter described conditions as he found them on his trip abroad last summer. He spoke especially on the question of the relation of the church to the open Sabbath.

He declared that there is but one stand that the churches can take, that which will advance the cause of civic righteousness and the best interests of a community. "One party," said Mr. McCrea, "declares its position on the excise question which is for the strict observance of the Sabbath, while the other party says nothing. The church and all religious forces should have no hesitation in choosing the party to be supported under such conditions and declare emphatically against the open Sabbath.

"It is not the grocer or the dry goods man that is asking for an open Sabbath, but the men who represent the liquor interest. We do not find any one else asking for a loose enforcement of our Sunday laws. New York city has declared against the open Sabbath and if New Jersey should permit everything to be open the State would soon become a common ground for the lawless and those who care nothing at all about an observance of Sunday."

Mr. McCrea spoke openly and fearlessly on the subject and it was noted that in the congregation were many men prominent in local county and State affairs who afterward took occasion to concur in the opinions expressed by the pastor.

N.G.N.J. BATTALION DRILL TO BE HELD HERE NOV. 9

Announcement is made by the commanding officers that on Saturday afternoon, November 9, a battalion drill of four companies of the Second Regiment, will be held on Hope Common in this city. This will be the first drill of the kind held here since Company K was organized and much local significance is attached to the field day evolutions.

The companies participating will be Co. K, of this city; Co. M, of Somerville, and Cos. C and I, of Elizabeth. They will be in charge of Major W. B. Martin, formerly captain of Co. K. Similar drills have been held at Elizabeth and Somerville, and the reason why Plainfield was selected this time is because of its central location.

Conference Delegates Named.

Governor Stokes has appointed Major Carl Lentz, of Newark; Charles C. Black, of Jersey City, and Edward A. Armstrong, of Camden, to represent New Jersey at the national conference to be held at Columbus, Ohio, on November 12 for the consideration of the subjects of State and local taxation. The conference will be in charge of the National Tax Association.

CLEARING HOUSE'S HEAD DEFENDS THE PRESIDENT

WANT TAXES REDUCED?

Then See That Your Children Faithfully Attend Public School.

THAT'S THE SOLUTION

Every Taxpayer Will Be Interested In This Brief and Lucid Explanation of the Laws.

In reference to inquiries from taxpayers seeking information relative to the Perkins tax law and the reason why it did not reduce the amounts of tax payers bills this year, it seems in order to review the history and the status of the railroad tax legislation. A reporter interviewed Mr. Ackerman on the subject with the following result. Mr. Ackerman said:

"The Legislatures of 1905 and 1906 were Republican in both branches. Legislation of a very important character was passed in the interest of the people among which was the Duffield act of 1905 and the Perkins law of 1906.

"The Perkins law covers the taxation of the main stem at the average tax rate of the State for States uses and by a special enactment all of the proceeds of this tax over the above one-half of one per cent. is given to the support of the public schools. The Perkins act means the main stem of a railroad which must extend one hundred feet in width.

"The Duffield act providing for the taxation of second class railroad property means, 'all terminals, switches, stations and railroad property of every kind, outside of the main stem,' and is assessed locally at local rates for the benefit of the localities wherein the property lies.

"These laws speak for themselves and they tell a truthful tale of the efforts of the Republican party to legislate in the interest of all the people.

New Jersey has no State tax.

"The Duffield act has been declared to be constitutional by the highest courts of the State. It cannot be successfully assailed in the State courts.

"The Perkins law has been approved by the Supreme Court and I believe its constitutionality will also be affirmed by the Court of Errors and Appeals.

"Union county's share of school monies to be received from the operation of the Perkins act amounts this year to about $171,000 which sum is being held by the railroads pending the pecision of the court.

"If the final result shows that the Perkins act is constitutional there will be a material reduction in the tax rate throughout the county of from 10 to 14 points, which will be equivalent to an average of about $1.20 per thousand dollars valuation, providing, of course, that the local budget shall not be increased. The taxes from the Perkins law will be distributed as follows:

Clark township	$ 340.4
Cranford	6,336.7
Elizabeth	75,327.6
Fanwood	2,732.6
Garwood	1,131.5
Kenilworth	841.4
Linden	2,279.5
Mountainside	446.2
New Providence T'ship	899.9
New Providence Bor	953.7
Plainfield	28,561.7
Rahway	15,768.8
Roselle	4,395.3
Roselle Park	5,089.5
Springfield	2,739.1
Summit	7,969.1
Union	4,819.9
Westfield	10,635.6
	$171,269.1

"If the Perkins law had not been contested in the courts these amounts would now be in the treasuries of the school boards of the different municipalities, giving a corresponding reduction in the local tax rate.

"The figures are based on this year's valuations and budgets and cover the money held in abeyance by the railroad companies. As the school attendance has a bearing on the amount the county receives from the State, parents can therefore assist in the reduction of the tax rate by seeing that their children faithfully attend school.

"If the $171,000 for Union county is not paid this year it will be added to the amount to be paid by the railroads for the succeeding year, resulting, of course, in a still greater reduction in the tax bills next fall provided the law is upheld by the courts.

"The Perkins' act in full operation will prove of great benefit to the people, providing care and economy are practiced by local administrations."

PURIFYING BUSINESS

Runs On Metropolitan Banks Due to Methods of Few Financiers Who Juggled With Their Funds, He Declares.

"Many believe that the financial troubles through which we are now passing are due to the unwise utterances of our President, but I want to say right here that, notwithstanding the impetuoussity of the man, it is my conscientious belief that four years of Theodore Roosevelt as President of the United States will do more to elevate and purify the moral and business sense of this country than any influence that has been brought to bear upon it in the past decade."

This tribute to President Roosevelt was given by Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, the first president of the local Young Men's Christian Association, in his speech at the anniversary banquet of the institution Saturday night.

Mr. Gilbert is president of the New York Clearing House, and through the financial troubles of the past week in New York city, he has been at the helm of metropolitan finances. Through the days of the tottering of securities and the feverish excitement of those who had their deposits in certain New York banks, he has been in the thick of the fight and at the banquet Saturday night was thoroughly exhausted as the result of the strenuous week at the financial pulse of the city. His speech as a founder of association work in Plainfield follows:

"Nothing but this anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association could have tempted me to leave my home tonight; I am too full for utterance—not too full of dinner, or of any liquid element, or of emotion, but too full of the mental effects of the stirring week through which I have just passed. I have not had a moment of time to think of this anniversary occasion nor of this speech.

"I have been through the most trying week of my life in New York city, and am absolutely tired out. You know what the stirring events of this week have been. Several financial institutions have been embarrassed, owing to the fact that their control has passed into the hands of men who, departing from the old-fashioned, conservative principles of banking, have used them to promote their own selfish plans and enterprises. Happily, the strong, conservative forces are now in control of the situation in New York; the sober second thought of the people is beginning to assert itself and, with the return of confidence, conditions will be righted and will once more resume our onward march to a great and prosperous future.

"Many believe that the financial troubles through which we are now passing are due to the unwise utterances of our President, but I want to say right here that, notwithstanding the impetuousity of the man, it is my conscientious belief that four years of Theodore Roosevelt as President of the United States will do more to elevate and purify the moral and business sense of this country than any other influence that has been brought to bear upon it in the past decade.

"I suppose a few remarks about the foundation of this association, of which I happened to have been the first president, are in order. The incidents of that meeting forty years ago at my home, where the first impetus of life was given to the association in this city, are still clear in my mind. I remember distinctly that first meeting and all its details—I could almost give the speech that I made when I was elected president.

"It is a pleasure to see these faces of my fellow workers at that time here tonight and to recall the share each had in the formation of the institution. There's Brother Newman, a man who has always been true to the association. I believe that his activity and interest as a founder did more to build up and sustain the interest than was done by any other man. Brother McCutchen here, came in two or three years after the work was started, but I shall never forget his influence in its be-

DUNELLEN.

In a game witnessed by nearly 200 spectartors, the local football eleven won from the Somerville A. C. team by a score of 13-0 on the borough field Saturday afternoon. The home team gained ground considerably by the use of straight football, attacking their opponents' line often for several yards at a time. In the first half Smith went over the line for a touchdown and Lake kicked the goal. Shortly afterwards, Smith broke through on a punt and threw a Somerville man for a touchback. After seven minutes of play in the second half, Smith again scored a touchdown. Lake missed a rather difficult goal.

As captain of the team, Lake played a star game, showing good judgment in his selection of plays. Hampered by a bad ankle, he changed to right end in the second half, Manning taking his place. Dunellen's best ground-gamers were Maltby and Smith. The local eleven was made up as follows: Lc., Pierce, Rutledge; lt, Tyler; lg, Carman; c, Meyer; rg, Danz, Schneider; rt, Smalley, Dineen; re, Manning, Lake; gb, Lake, Manning; lhb, Banks; rhb, Smith; fb, Maltby. Referee, Churchill. Timer, Moffett. 20 and 15 minutes halves. A return game will be played next month.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the Democratic candidate for Governor, got a warm reception in the borough when he stopped on his whirlwind auto tour through Middlesex Saturday. Senator Silzer, Surrogate Daly and other county officers will address a big mass meeting to be held in the borough hall Wednesday evening, and the borough and county candidates will be present at that time.

The board of registry and election will meet in the borough building tomorrow afternoon from 1 to 9 o'clock to revise and correct the voting list and add the names of new voters.

The teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday-school will meet at the home of Superintendent A. A. Lake tonight.

Boynton Square Pot Furnaces

The latest and most important improvement in furnace construction is the patent Square Pot used exclusively in Boynton Furnaces and making them the most easily operated, the most economical, the most efficient heaters in the world.

The Square Pot, unlike the old-fashioned round pot, has a grate area equal to that of the ashes, cleaning as well at the sides as in the middle.

The walls are perpendicular, hence no clogging, resulting in quicker and more sensitive combustion, less waste of fuel, and a constantly active radiation.

Grate bars of equal length and motion; the ash pit is square and deep—everything is designed to reduce your work to a minimum.

Settle the heating question at once by letting your plumber, steam-fitter or tinsmith show what the square pot means to you. Found only in Boyntons.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

The Registry Board meets tomorrow from 1 o'clock to 9 p. m. for the purpose of correcting and revising the township registry list. The borough board meets at the same hour in the Fanwood fire house.

Funeral service of the late Miss Mary Osborn Hayes, who died at her home in the borough Friday afternoon, will be held this afternoon from the house.

The Port Watch society held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the church. Captain Sandin had charge of the meeting.

The regular weekly meeting of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was held last night in the class room of the church.

Several from here were among the many who went on the Central excursion to the Battlefield Gettysburg yesterday.

Mrs. John Z. Hatfield led an interesting meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held last night in the parlors of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr., entertained friends from out of town over Sunday.

Miss Sadie Lee was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—George Edward Green, of this city, has taken a position as pressman in the New York office of the American Bank Note Company.

—Before laying the double tracks and the brick pavement on Watchung avenue, City Engineer Gavett is having all the necessary water and sewer connections made on that thoroughfare between North avenue and East Front street; also a couple of new catch basins for surface water.

—The work of connecting the newly-laid brick pavement on Park avenue was started today. It is expected that it will be opened for traffic before the latter part of the week. Somerset street is being rolled today prior to the process of grouting. Contractor Meeker expects to resume his concrete work on East Front street today.

Mission or Arts and Crafts FURNITURE.

Here is furniture for all the people—for the modestly furnished cottage or the most palatial home; furniture suitable alike for the living-room, library, den, hall, professional or business men's offices, clubs, cafes, hotels, billiard rooms, etc.

Simple in outline, solid in construction, restful to the eye, Mission or Arts and Crafts furniture has come to occupy a prominent place in almost every home, and you will hardly find an office nowadays not equipped with mission furniture. Mission furniture is so wholly sensible and so immensely serviceable that it is no wonder it appeals to every one. And even if it were not so desirable in every other way its low price would win for it much favor.

Naturally this great furniture store devotes much space to the show and sale of mission pieces—more space this year than ever, and this space is so crowded that hardly an aisle is left to walk thru. You can see here practically everything needed for home or office furnishing and many novelties you have never seen and not thought of. The variety is stupendous. Doubtful if any house in the country shows a greater diversity; and mind you, this stock comes from the very best factories in the country, the most of it the product of Stickly Bros. Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., whom we represent in Newark.

We illustrate a few of the moderate priced pieces now on our floor and give you this little list to indicate the price range:

Mission Side Chairs, $2.50 to $14.50.
Mission Desk Chairs, $4 to $10.50.
Mission Armchairs, $5.50 to $44.
Small Mission Rockers, $4.50 to $18.50.
Mission Arm Rockers up to $48.
Mission Hall Settees, $12.75 up.
Mission Sofas, $24.50.
Mission Tables, $2.60 to $112.
Mission Writing Desks, $9 to $100.
Mission Lamps, $9 to $31.50.
Mission Cellarettes, $12 to $51.
Mission Footstools, $4 upwards.

Mission Office Desks, $21 to $152.
Mission Office Chairs, $7.50 to $24.
Mission Hall Clocks, $29 upwards.
Mission Bookcases, $15.25 to $72.
Mission Sideboards up to $128.
Mission China Closets, $16 to $51.
Mission Side Tables, $14.50 to $41.
Mission Extension Tables, $12 to $88.
Mission Dinner Gongs, $4 to $30.
Mission Magazine Racks, $1.75 to $9.
Mission Hall Racks, $11.25 to $31.
Mission Costumers, $2 to $13.50.
Mission Plant Stands, 50c upwards.

SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Job C. Kenyon, complainant, and Margaret J. Thomas et al., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above-stated writ of fieri facias to me directed I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Sheriff's office, in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey:

WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTIETH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1907,

Beginning at a point in the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road, distant thirty feet at right angles from the centre thereof, and in line of lands of the estate of Philip G. Voorhees, deceased, and running from thence with the line of that land, southerly six hundred and ninety-nine and twenty-six one-hundredths feet to a point in the northerly side line of Laramie road; thence with the northerly side line of Laramie road easterly two hundred feet to a point in the rear line of the Cameron avenue lots; thence to form a division line between the parties hereto northerly along the rear line of the Cameron avenue lots six hundred and seventy-eight and five one-hundredths feet to a point in the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road aforesaid thirty feet southerly from the centre thereof at right angles; thence with the proposed new southerly side line of Randolph road westerly two hundred and one and twenty-six one-hundredths feet, more or less, to the point and place of beginning. Being lots numbered one hundred and thirty-two (132) to one hundred and thirty-eight (138), inclusive, and also lot number one hundred and seventy-three (173), on map entitled "Map of Laramie Park, situated in the city of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1905, F. J. Hubbard, civil engineer, Plainfield, N. J."

It is understood and agreed that no building shall be erected within forty (40) feet of the southerly side line of Randolph road, as above described, and that any building erected on any of the above-described property shall be erected for no other purpose than that of a private dwelling, and the cost thereof shall not be less than two thousand dollars.

Being the said premises conveyed to the said Ira L. La Rue by deed of Joshua D. Loizeaux, trustee, and wife, dated January 23, 1906, which deed is recorded in the Union County Clerk's office in book number 460 of deeds, pages 336, etc.

And the said party of the first part covenants and agrees for himself, his heirs and assigns, that he will lay out and open through the premises above described a street thirty feet from curb to curb, being an extension of Arlington avenue and running from the southerly side of Randolph road to the northerly side of a proposed street called Laramie road.

And it is agreed that neither the mortgagor nor the heirs or assigns of the mortgagors shall be entitled to any credit on the interest payable on this mortgage for the taxes which may be levied on the mortgaged premises or for any part of such taxes.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Harvard couches have adopted the Yale plan of building up a team, whereby the best two men for a place must oppose each other and fight it out.

Germany Schultz, the Michigan centre, according to reports from the West, is a wonder, and the Wolverines count on him to keep Dwyer, of Pennsylvania, out of every play.

Walter Camp and the Yale coaches are anxiously awaiting the arrival at New Haven of Frank Hinkey. The latter was responsible for the introduction of the forward pass at Yale and the improvement in the working of this pass is expected upon the arrival of Hinkey.

Many members of the first eleven of the College of the City of New York are on the hospital list. Capt. Linton has a sprained ankle and Kohn has water on the knee.

Princeton has run up a total of 237 points and is easily ahead of other teams in scoring. Pennsylvania is second on the list with 189 points.

Schedules are largely guesswork. The Lafayette eleven, like Princeton, has made double figures in every one of its games, with one exception. There has been a noticeable sameness in the number of points made against all opponents.

The Stevens Institute team has recovered from the drubbing it received at the hands of Princeton. The team is improving and, with the exception of Trayer, all the regular players are practising daily.

Annapolis coaches are not satisfied with the performance of Richardson at fullback and Magruder is getting a try-out in the position.

The struggle for positions on the Carlisle team is still keen, and a merry fight is being waged between Bowen and Gardner, veterans, for end positions.

The list of football mishaps this season has assumed quite respectable proportions and five fatalities have been recorded. However, every one of these occurred in games where the players were little more than boys, who probably forgot the rules in the excitement of the moment. Leonard J. Clarkson, a student at Norwich University, was the first fatality recorded, his death being diagnosed as heart failure induced by his exertions in a football scrimmage. Thomas Betram, a schoolboy of Portage, Pa., was kicked in the head during a game and succumbed to concussion of the brain. Eugene Bourne, of Salt Lake City, was another who died from a similar injury, and Leo Strahmeyer, of Iowa City, had his spine fractured in a prep school game. The latest victim was Albert Flowers, of Zanesville, O., whose skull was fractured, causing death.

SPORTS.

The closeness of that individual track championship contest at the P. H. S. track meet Friday shows that there are two crackerjack athletes in the school.

That Phelps-made borough high school eleven did things on the gridiron again Saturday in the game with the boys from New Brunswick. P. H. S. take notice.

Bromfield won the tennis title at the city high school, but he has left school now, so it looks as if Rubenstein, the runner-up, were the champion of P. H. S. after all.

There is a big advance sale of tickets for the minstrel show to be given next Saturday evening in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the athletic association.

The Leal's school basketball team will play a practise game with the Y. M. C. A. five at the association gymnasium tonight.

half. He is as ready and willing now as then to give the helping hand. He can never lose his interest in Plainfield nor his interest in the man who needs his help. Brother Titsworth, too, came along in the fullness of time, and has helped the work a lot. The application of these founders, and the consistent work of others, all materially assisted in building up the work.

"Men bonded together by Christian ties or Christian obligations have a higher and a broader view of live than others. They are actuated by the better impulses toward the enduring life. I believe that it was the word 'Christian' in the title of the association that made the work endure and grow to its present magnitude. The eight founders did not know at the start what their efforts would accomplish, but the Young Men's Christian Association has lived to make good, and now ranks among the strongest branches in the State. I take great pride in the feeling that I had a very small part in the organization of this association."

FARMERS' INSTITUUTES.

One to Be Held at New Market November 14.

Secretary Franklin Dye, of the State Board of Agriculture, has announced the list of proposed farmers' institutes to be conducted throughout the State during November and December. The list includes twenty-five meetings, two of which are to be conducted in Mercer county. The first will be at Pennington on Saturday, December 7, and the other at Windsor on Thursday, December 19.

The Hunterdon county institute will be at Locktown on Friday and Saturday, December 20 and 21. Burlington county is to have four meetings. The first will be at Wrightstown on Monday, December 9; the second and third at Moorestown, December 10 and 11, and the fourth at Mt. Holly on December 18.

Middlesex will have two meetings, one of which will be at New Market, on November 14, and the other at New Brunswick on December 6. The other institutes will eb conducted in the farming centres of the various counties.

If the funds allow, other institutes will be arranged and will be conducted during the latter part of January and the first of February.

The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture will be held on January 15, 16 and 17, at the State house.

Bowling Meeting Tonight.

The meeting of bowling enthusiasts with a view to organizing a fall and winter tourney will be held in the Plainfield Bowling Academy promptly at 8 o'clock. Representatives from teams at Somerville, Raritan, Bound Brook and Westfield will be in attendance.

ELECTION FORECASTINGS

Leaving Essex Out, Fort Has a Big Lead Over Katzenbach Now.

SITUATION MAY CHANGE

Democrats' Predicted Landslide in Hudson Would Defeat the Republican Nominee.

The last week of the campaign opens with Fort much in the lead. His chances are improving, too. Perhaps he lost a little ground during the last week in North Jersey, but there was no loss in South Jersey, unless possibly it was in Atlantic county. The feeling against the bishops' bill in that locality is decidedly better. But what was possibly lost by Fort in Atlantic was gained in the other counties. The pluralities that Fort will poll between Cape May and Mercer counties promise to be very large. It looks as though these pluralities alone might win the victory. In addition, the Republicans are reaasonably sure to carry Mercer, Somerset, Union, Morris, Middlesox, Bergen and Ocean counties, Monmouth and Passaic appear pretty close. Because Mercer is Katzenbach's home county the Democratic leaders hope to carry it. It is doubtful, but the plurality may be quite small.

Where does Democratic confidence come in? A party leader and organizer claims that Katzenbach will get 20,000 plurality in Hudson, 3,000 in Passaic, 5,000 in Essex, 1,500 in Warren, 1,00 in Hunterdon and 1,000 in Sussex. If that happened, it would probably elect him. But the figures are too high unless a Democratic landslide is in the air, of which there is not the slightest indication. While a much closer and more accurate estimate can be made a week from today, here is an estimate from a most conservative source, computed according to the outlook today:

Republican—Atlantic, 1,000 plurality; Bergen, 1,200; Burlington, 3,600; Camden, 7,000; Cape May, 1,300; Cumberland, 4,00; Gloucester, 1,600; Mercer, 1,000; Middlesex, 1,200; Monmouth, 500; Morris, 1,800; Ocean, 1,500; Passaic, 1,000; Salem, 1,000; Somerset, 1,000; Union, 2,000—total, 30,950.

Democratic — Hudson, 12,500; Hunterdon, 1,500; Sussex, 1,200; Warren, 1,800—total, 17,000.

This purposely leaves Essex out of the calculation. It looks as though the result would be very close in that county, and especially as between Fort and Katzenbach. Conditions may change several times before election. The variance in the claims of the two county committees shows how much at sea both are. The Republican chairman asserts Fort will get from 10,000 to 15,000 plurality. The Democratic chairman gives Katzenbach from 6,000 to 12,000 plurality in the county. Half of the extreme plurality claimed by the Republicans would, according to the above estimate, give Fort 20,000 plurality in the State, while the extreme Democratic claim in Essex would still leave Katzenbach in a minority if the other counties voted as indicated.

"THE CONQUERING HERO."

Five-act Impromptu Production in Bloomfield Car Causes Panic.

Passengers in a crosstown trolley car near Bloomfield, Saturday night, had more excitement than they had expected. Some of the women screamed and became so excited that a small panic followed. The excitement was all caused by five brief acts in a serio-comic melodrama.

Time—Saturday night. Place—

Act I. Scene—Interior of steetcar. Patrolman Drew enters with John Fritz, a prisoner.

Act II. Prisoner sings, "When I Get You Out of Here."

Act III. Scene—Car in front of police station. Officer tries to leave car with prisoner. Prisoner tries to escape. Lands left on patrolman's jaw. Passengers try to escape.

Act IV. Patrolman handcuffs prisoner. Women passengers, forgetting fear, cry "Poor man!" Also call guardian of peace "Horrod thing!"

Act V. Scene—Interior police station. Fritz peering forth through cell bars. Justice conducts trial. Fine, $10.

Squire Resigns.

Governor Stokes received and accepted Saturday the resignation of George A. Squire, president of the Board of Managers of the State Reformatory at Rahway, where the Hahn Investigating Committee unearthed so many scandals. Squire left the State during the investigation, and could not be served with a subpoena to compel his further testimony before the committee. Governor Stokes then wrote to him that he must appear and testify or resign his office. Squire declares in his resignation that his move is due to ill-health.

PRESIDENT OF VASSAR TO MAKE ADDRESS HERE

Among the entertainments planned for the coming week one of unusual interest is to be given Thursday evening by Miss Hartridge at the Casino for Dr. James M. Taylor. Dr. Taylor is president of Vassar College, which owes its present position to his ability and his untiring efforts in its behalf. He is not only an able and magnetic speaker but a man of delightful personality and social charm.

After his address, which will be delivered at half past eight, Miss Hartridge will hold a small reception in order that he may renew his acquaintance with his old friends here and that some of the older pupils and their parents may have the pleasure of meeting him.

Dr. Taylor will spend Thursday night as the guest of Miss Hartridge and will visit the elementary department of her day school on Friday morning.

JERSEY GUNNERS DON'T LIKE LICENSE PROJECT.

Gunners here are not in favor of the idea of B. C. Kuser, the new president of the New Jersey State Fish and Game Commission, who wishes to tax every hunter a fee for a license, whether he resides in the State or not.

Kuser's proposition is to charge residents of the State a nominal license fee, and to tax non-residents $10 each. With this money he proposes to establishe a monster game preserve and propagate various kinds of game, fish and fowl.

Local sportsmen say that there is much game in the woods, even though the gunners have been uncommonly numerous in recent years, and that there is no need to tax the local residents for game breeding.

Mrs. Mary P. Bradley.

Mrs. Mary P. Bradley, mother of J. L. Bradley, of Watchung avenue, died at her home in Newark on Saturday. Mrs. Bradley was descended from Revolutionary stock, her ancestors having been among the early settlers of New Jersey. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from her late residence, 24 Webster street, Newark.

Miss Reynolds Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Reynolds, of Church street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bessie Reynolds, to Remson Reade, of Elizabeth. The wedding will occur early in April, 1908.

MEDAL OF HONOR MAN BROTHER OF J. R. TRUELL.

Captain Edwin M. Truell, a brother of John R. Truell, of this city, and who was one of four brothers, all of whom fought for the Union in the Civil War, died at his home in Washington on October 12. He was a natice of Wisconsin and was sixty-six years old. Captain Truell had lived in Washington about thirty-five years, being employed in an official capacity in the internal revenue bureau of the treasury department.

In the Civil War, Captain Truell served from 1861 to 1864 in Company E, Twelfth, Wisconsin, Infantry. For conspicuous gallantry in action near Atlanta, Ga., July 21, 1864, he was awarded a medal of honor by act of Congress. He was an original member of the Medal of Honor Legion, and at the time of his death was secretary of the Medal of Honor Club, of Washington. For the last thirty years he served as treasurer of the Washington Humane Society. He is survived by a wife.

Wild Man Hunt.

An Italian who is believed to be demented was caught after an exciting chase in the woods near Cliffside yesterday afternoon. Before being secured the man overpowered one patrolman with a club and severely bit the right hand of another. He was locked up in the Hackensack jail. His identity is not known.

perintendent Henry M. Maxson and W. D. Murray. Singing was a feature of the service, and the Lotus Glee Club quartette, of New York, of which Charles L. Lewis, of this city, is a member, rendered several selections. E. C. Martin led the singing of the meeting, and several gospel hymns were sung during the service. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan acted as accompaniest. After the reading of a selection of scrip ture by Rev. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, President J. W. Gavett, introduced William Knowles Cooper, the speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Cooper said in part:

"The Young Men's Christian Association today holds in its grasp the solution of the problems of the community that every young man must face. The association is a source of help because of its relationship with the churches, for the problem of the two organizations is the same. The physical department of the association offers the solution of the city business man's problem for exercise. In these days of the "quick or the dead" success depends upon fine personal development and health of the man. The counsel of the Y. M. C. A. physical director offers the solution of the question: 'What must I do to be saved physically?'

"The educational opportunities in the aassociation make possible advancement to the young man by boarding influences for advancement. It has a big bread and butter significance to the young man seeking educational advancement. Then, too, the Y. M. C. A. is a great power as a religious force. It is eternally true that a man is essentially a religious animal. No man here dares to say that he is entirely devoid of religious emotion, or that there is no God. Religious life can be sacrificed only at an awful peril and a terrific loss in these days. There is a broad field for religious work in connection with the association and each should feel personally responsible for supporting this need of workers. The work will enrich your civic life, too, by making you first and foremost right with God. The services of every man can be used."

OUR BEER IS STRONG SAYS BELGIAN GULPRIT

Louis Christie, a Belgian who came to this country three months ago, got drunk Saturday night and developed a crazy streak at Third street and Plainfield avenue as friends were taking him home. He knocked his helpers down and ran around like a wild man until Patrolman Saunders stopped him.

When he was arraigned in court this morning a cousin appeared as interpreter. He informed Judge Runyon that Louis was certainly drunk but he had a good excuse to offer.

"What is it?" the court asked.

"Why, Louis says he always drank beer in Belgium but he never got drunk. The beer in this country is made too strong but he didn't know it until it was too late."

The excuse brought a laugh from everybody in the room and as Louis moved away under a suspended sentence, a sympathetic bystander whispered to the cousin a simple recipe for weakening the amber fluid.

Complications Over Wiltse.

Although "Lou" Wiltse, of this city, finished the season with the Newark Eastern League team after his reinstatement and was reserved by Manager Burnham for next season in the regular way, the national commission claims jurisdiction over the player. Burnham has been requested to remove Wiltse's name from the reserve list. The commission also made it plain that Wiltse could be retained by Newark on payment of a price, not named. Burnham refuses to make an offer for him and says that he will lay the matter before the National Association in New York tomorrow.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The newly-organized Young People's Association of the First Baptist church will hold a meeting Friday night.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a business and social meeting in Vincent chapel Friday night.

An all-day sewing meeting will be held at the Congregational church tomorrow. Luncheon will be served. All the women of the church are invited.

The fall rally of the local Christian Endeavor Union will be held Thursday night, November 7, probably at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a Hallowe'en social at the home of Miss Ida Randolph, Mt. Pleasant, tomorrow night.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A., tonight. Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will teach the lesson.

Council Meets Tonight.

The second adjourned meeting of the Common Council this month will be held tonight, when some action will probably be taken about the petition of the Board of School Estimate for an increased appropriation to build the new primary school on Darrow avenue.

"Jack" Hall a Demonstrator.

John P. Hall, former proprietor of Camp Ram's Horn at Lake Hopatcong, has been appointed demonstrator of the State Board of Health's tuberculosis exhibit which is being shown in all the leading cities. He enters upon his duties at Newark tomorrow.

Ancient "Public Penance."

One of a number of ancient manuscripts which have just come to light at Taunton, in England, bearing the date 1424, refers to "orders of public penance," imposed on persons behaving badly in church, calling each other names, and other offenses. The offender had to stand in the middle aisle of the church during the whole service and sermon, generally wearing a white sheet and holding a white wand. After the sermon a full confession had to be made and pardon asked before the whole congregation. One instance of this form of punishment occurred at Skillgate in 1703, when Jane Webber made a confession of quarreling and fighting with another woman in church during service.

Where Mark Twain Had Gone.

When Mark Twain was working hard on one of his earlier books that brought him fame he sailed for Europe with his family. He kept up his writing on shipboard, leaving it only for brief recreations. One day an approaching storm drove him to the cabin, and as he retired to work he left word with his daughter, then a very little girl, to explain his absence. "If they ask for me," he said to her, "say that I won't be long; I have only gone to write an anecdote." A little later a passenger accosted the child: "Where has your father gone?" "He won't be gone long," lisped the child; "he'th only going to ride a nanny-goat."

Tin Mines in Malaya.

A correspondent from the Malay peninsula states that the projected railway from Hongkong will be likely to traverse the rich mineral regions of Siamese Malaya. Lang Suan has a tin supply that cannot be exhausted in a hundred years to come, while the same may be said of Renang. There are 70 mines in the region of Lang Suan, most of which are worked by natives, but the European concessions in the latter place, as well as in Renang, are exceptionally encouraging and already are giving excellent returns. There is no lack of capital, even the natives making themselves better acquainted with modern machinery and bringing it into use.

Giving Herself Away.

"Gracious, Katherine, why are you blushing?" "I—I never was so embarrassed in all my life. That handsome young man kissed me in the dark hallway and then said: 'I beg your pardon, I thought it was your sister.'" "And what did you do, my dear?" "Why—why, I was so flustered I thought I was being introduced to some one and said: 'The pleasure is all mine!'"

Annoying.

"I suppose your family had a good time in Europe." "Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "I don't think mother and the girls enjoyed themselves all the time. You see, they had so much trouble figuring foreign money back into dollars that every now and then they were embarrassed by finding they had accidentally ordered something that wasn't expensive."

The Result of Habit.

"Just think what professional habit will do for a man!"

"In what way?"

"I know a fellow who used to belong to a minstrel troupe, and he says daily custom so hardened his sense of shame, that he never heard mention of the family skeleton in the closet without wanting to rattle his bones."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The popular young actor, Joseph Santley, has a great big success in his new play, "Billy the Kid," if the verdict of the recent engagement in New York can be relied upon. Play and actor were not only well remembered, but the theatres at which the play was presented were packed at each performance. The play is a wholesome one, yet at the same time it is as full of dramatic climaxes as a nut is full of meat. The scenes are all laid in the great southwest, New Mexico, and are presented in four acts. The first shows the exterior of the big house on the "Home ranch," the second, the interior of the "broken heart" saloon; the third, the dining room of a hospitable Colonel's home and the last is placed in the same locality as the first. Mr. Santley is supported by what is said to be one of the strongest companies that has been got together this season and the production to be a most elaborate one. Star and play will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night.

Decided interest has been manifested in this country over the American production of the new English comic opera, "Tom Jones," which Henry W. Savage will present at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night, with a specially selected cast and a special orchestra. "Tom Jones," offers much that is novel and for this reason has a distinctive quality of public appeal. It is not a musical comedy, but more on the order of comic opera, and in contrast to the general tone of musical comedies it is old English in atmosphere and melody. The story is based on Henry Fielding's famous novel of Eighteenth Century romance and adventure. The narrative is vigorous, the characters strong and the comedy pronounced. The libretto itself would make a clever play. But this strength is enhanced by a musical score in the best vein of Edward German, the leading English composer of the day. Mr. German has caught the true quality of old English music, and the glees, madrigals, solos, choruses and other songs, and the spirited dance music possess a charm both for those who like popular airs and for the skilled musicians. When "Tom Jones" was produced at the Appollo theatre in London, it made a decided hit and its music was whistled and hummed in the street and played at home. The American production of "Tom Jones" ranks with that of "The Merry Widow" in the degree of interest that has been awakened.

Those who have read the thrilling story of the New York Madison Square Roof Garden homicide and the circumstances which led to the tragedy, will now be able to see the whole drama enacted by a Mittenthal Brothers company next Friday night at the New Plainfield theatre. The play is written by Hal Reid, and is entitled "A Millionaire's Revenge." All the famous scenes have been painted from photographs of the various places of interest and a company of twenty-five people selected for figure and temperament to portray the roles of the principals in the affair.

In James O'Neill's elaborate revival of "Virginius," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night, direct from its New York triumphant run, special attention has been given by the manager, Edgar Forrest, to the groupings on the streets of Rome—Patricians, Plebicians and the other ranks of Roman society are passing to and fro, or standing in groups to discuss the topics of the day. A street in Rome, one of the scenes in "Virginius," is shown with great detail, in the foreground is the bronze statue of the Wolf of Rome suckling the twins Romulus and Remus. It is in this scene that Appius first beheld the fair Virginia and lusted for her, which led to her and his own death.

POINTERS ON GAS STOVES.

How to Avoid Unpleasant Odors When Cooking.

For the woman whose troubles arise from the odor of cooking the remedy lies in having a small pipe between the range and the chimney to cary off the odorous gases. A large bowl of water placed near will also help to prevent odors of cooking penetrating the house.

If there is a constant smell of burning when cooking is going on, examine the burners. They are probably filled with sediment from "boil overs" of yesterday.

The smell of gas when a rubber tube is used (no leak being apparent) is usually caused by the tube itself having become saturated with gas. New tubing is the only remedy.

When having the gas range put in be sure to see that the supply pipe is large enough to allow sufficient gas to enable all the burners to be used at the same time. This is very necessary. It is annoying to discover you can't boil two kettles when the oven is in use. See also that the oven is large and commodious and that there is plenty of room on the top for boiling, frying, etc. It is poor economy to use a gas range that is too small, says the Philadelphia Press.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The Michigan Federation of Labor has adopted resolutions declaring for suffrage for women in general and for Michigan women in particular.

The United Teamsters of America, in convention at Rochester, N. Y., adopted a resolution calling upon congress to submit to the State legislatures for ratification an amendment to the United States constitution prohibiting disfranchisement on account of sex.

The Nurses' Association of the Pacific Coast, at its recent annual meeting, passed a resolution in favor of woman suffrage, after debate. The newly elected president, Dr. Helen Criswell, was among its supporters. Last year asimilar resolution was laid on the table.

The Era Club of New Orleans, including some of the most representative women in the city, is questioning all gubernatorial candidates as to where they stand on the woman suffrage question. Not content with asking simply for a statement of belief, the Era Club demands, "If not, why not?"

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Wilbur D. Nesbit is to write an opera with Raymond Hubbell.

Seymour Hicks is making a dramatization of Cosmo Hamilton's novel, "The Duke's Son."

Martha Morton is to rewrite her play, "The Movers," and it will be seen later in New York.

Maude Adams is to appear in her new play, "The Jesters," in New York abont the middle of January.

Selena Fetter, who in private life is Mrs. E. M. Royle, is playing a part in her husband's work, "The Struggle Everlasting."

Weedon Grossmith, the very funny English comedian, has revived his old vehicle, "The Night of the Party," which he presented in New York some six or seven years ago.

DROPS OF WATER.

A well at New Burlington, O., yields both salt and fresh water.

The Amizon is navigable for 2,200 miles from the sea, the Mississippi for about 2,800.

If the seven longest rivers could be placed in a straight line they would lack only 550 miles of encircling the earth.

"Thank you!" Barnes gives Emory a grateful grip, adding, earnestly: "Now, let's look over this affair. There's money enough in the pockets of one or two of these people to carry the feud to the ends of the earth. A few moments ago I told you about Edwin's bride following the man she thought had killed her brother to Egypt. Now, when I walk down Broadway on a pleasant evening from the theater, I'm not going to be looking over my shoulder for a dagger in my back. There's only one way to settle this affair."

"How's that?"

"Squelch it!" says Barnes, savagely, "by killing those who would murder me and my kin."

"But, the French government?"

"The French government won't prevent my defending myself. In Corsica itself France has practically never interfered in vendettas. As I wired, you have obtained as far as you can, a list of all the relatives of Musso Danella." Barnes looks over the paper Emory has given him and observes: "All, except Corregio Cipriano Danella, Musso's half brother, are practically French."

"Yes," says Emory, "except there's a cousin—a kind of knock-about fellow, Enrico, who's Corsican also—I didn't get him till the last. You'll find his name at the bottom of the page."

"Where is he?" asks Barnes.

"Oh, Enrico's about the Riviera some place, I reckon. They say he's always near a gaming table when he's got any money in his pocket. When he hasn't, Enrico don't care what he does to get more," answers the detective.

"But, from your report, Corregio, the brother, is now in Marseilles. We'll take this Corregio first. He has a country estate near Serra in the island and spends the balance of his time chiefly in southern France; is intensely Corsican," returns Barnes. Taking from his pocketbook the fragments of the note Maud had given him—the one that had produced Marina's nervous stroke—he places them before the detective, and asks: "Is this Corregio Danella's handwriting?"

"I can't tell, but I'll find out for you," answers Elijah, then his eyes begin to roll, as he mutters: "Whew! judging from the part of it I can read, that's a nasty document."

"Yes, though I don't think we've got the worst of it, it is as crafty as it is cruel. It was given to the bride not entirely recovered from the agitation of that horrible wedding night to so shock her delicate and already overtaxed nerves that we cannot move away from here. Some devil in Marseilles is trying to hold us here till these bloodhounds arrive from Corsica and have time to act. Here's another note in the same handwriting that puts me in," remarks Burton, moodily. "I received it at my hotel half an hour ago. It's the Corsican custom to give a delicate hint to the doomed." He reads:

"'Have a care of yourself! This is thy warning. Remember death is on you and your spouse and your offspring, born and unborn.'"

"Pleasant reading for a man with his wedding day just ahead of him," snarls the New Yorker. "That's what makes me as vindictive as they are."

"Do you think with this in your hand," whispers Emory, impressively, "you should have a wedding day. I've heard such monstrous reports about them from Perrier, the French detective, who went over these once—"

"Not until this is finished," interjects Burton, with a moan of disappointment.

The detective's comment makes even Barnes' regular pulse beat slower.

"Well, what are your plans to meet this?" asks the American criminologist.

"My plans are very simple," says Barnes, tersely. "I'm going to get our women in a safe place and then—then the hunted becomes the hunter!"

"But how are ye to get the women safe? Someone may be potting 'em while you're rounding up the others! How are ye going to fix that?"

The American's plan, as he whispers it to Emory, is so adroit that the detective emits a triumphant whistle and says: "Gee whiz, just the idea!"

"Everything must be ready for tonight," directs Barnes. "No other Corsican steamer than the one on which we arrived will come today. By tomorrow I hope to have the ladies reasonably beyond pursuit."

"All right. I think I can fix it for you."

"Meantime," says Barnes, "see if you can find what cables bearing on this matter have been received from Ajaccio and to whom addressed."

"That will be difficult!"

"Not if you give the telegraph clerks enough money."

"Yes, most anything can be done the way you spend money, Mr. Barnes." This last issues from Emory's smiling lips as the American is writing a check. "I'll report progress to you not later than one p. m.; that'll give you time for your arrangements."

Coming from this to the Grand hotel, Barnes shortly strolls into Lady Chartris' parlor and has an interview with that matron which places her in the seventh heaven of delight.

"You think of going to Nice?" he suggests; he would have proposed some little Italian watering place, but knows that the widow will only consider the spot where Van Bulow, the young German diplomatist, is located.

"Yes, I've concluded to remain there a few weeks until the season absolutely ends," responds Lady Chartris, "only the good hotels are so cruelly expensive."

"Well, there are some lovely and retired villas on the little Bay of Villefranche, a 20 minutes' carriage drive from the Promenade des Anglais. Supposing you engage one?"

"Do you think I'm a Croesus!" screams the widow in horror. "Do you want to ruin me? Do you suppose I have your pocketbook, Mr. Barnes of New York?"

"That's exactly what I want you to suppose, my dear Lady Chartris. I'll pay for the villa; you occupy it. In about a week from now, Mrs. Anstruther and probably Enid will be your guests; perhaps Edwin and I also for a little while. But you are to say nothing about that. You'll keep Tompson, Enid's maid, and take her on with you. The villa is to be rented by you and entirely in your name."

"And you pay the running expenses?"

"With pleasure."

"Oh, Mr. Barnes, how magnificently generous."

"Don't leave here earlier than the day after to-morrow. In fact, that is the day you must leave, but make your arrangements quickly after you reach Nice. You'll have no trouble in finding an unoccupied villa at Villefranche; it's so near the end of the season. Be sure its grounds run to the water and have a landing place. You will say nothing of our going to Nice to anyone—especially your child," he remarks, commandingly, tempering his words, however, by adding: "Maud is too young to keep a secret."

"Yes, childish tongues will babble," smiles the widow as Burton goes moodily away.

Mr. Barnes' features are still very solemn, as early in the afternoon, after another interview with Emory, he says to Enid, who is in consultation with him: "You think Marina is well enough to be conveyed in a carriage a mile or two?"

"Why, certainly, she is out of bed now. Don't fear for her courage as regards herself, Burton. It is my brother the dear girl is alarmed for."

"This morning," remarks the American, under his breath, "I had hoped, with Edwin's aid, to get you, Enid and Marina to England, where three or four London bulldog detectives and the fear of the British hangman would have probably kept Mrs. Anstruther safely from murderous pursuit until I had settled the affair. But now this devilish letter has given her such a shock that we dare not immediately subject her to the fatigue of the long railway journey to London."

As he shows it to them and they try to decipher it, Barnes hastily explains how he had purchased the mutilated letter from Maud Chartris with marrons glaces.

"And that awful child concealed it from us!" cries Enid. "Her mother should be told immediately."

"What, and have Lady Chartris rush tremblingly back to London when, without danger to herself, she can do us a grand turn in Nice?"

"In Nice? How?" Enid asks, astonished.

"Tell you in a minute," replies her fiance. "The fourth quarter probably contains the infernal portion that caused the bride's alarm for you, Edwin, for her fears I know are not so much for herself, as for you. Now I, with your assistance, am going first to make Enid and Marina safe."

"How?" demands the English girl, whose face has grown pallid.

"By Lady Chartris. She's going to take a secluded, water-washed villa at Villefranche in her own name. House rentals have to be reported to the municipal officials. With the name of Lady Chartris attached to it, no one will guess that we will occupy it!"

"But Prunella Chartris would fly from a vendetta as she would from the smallpox," says Edwin.

"Quicker!" cries Enid.

"Quite right, but Prunella Chartris shan't hear of a vendetta. We'll turn up at Villefranche, Edwin, in about four days, leave the ladies there, amply guarded, and then you and I, my jolly seadog, will turn out attention to our Corsican friends. We will be footloose, and can do the hunting and killing, if necessary, and settle the affair in some way definitely and forever." Barnes' manner is lighter than his heart.

"You'll find me with you," answers the English lieutenant. "This is the second time, because she loved me, that my bride has been driven to despair. But how do you expect to get Enid and Marina from Marseilles unnoticed by the people that are already hunting us, to the villa near Nice?"

MORSE CLINCHES TROPHY

His Play at Park Club on Saturday Will Win for Him President's Cup.

LEADS FOR ANOTHER

All Scheduled Events Will Be Concluded On Election Day—Much Interest Taken.

The weekly competitions for the President's and Golf Club cups and the last regular play for the October cup, were the events of interest at the Park Golf Club on Saturday. All the scheduled events will be concluded on Election Day and there is special interest at this time in the finish of the various competitions.

It is practically a certainty that Charles B. Morse will win the President's cup. He has 20 1-2 points and the only player who can possibly overtake him is Dr. H. K. Carroll and he leaves on Saturday for a trip to California. The leading point-winners for the President's cup follow:

Charles B. Morse, 20 1-2; Dr. H. K. Carrell, 18; W. V. Byard, 14; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 13 1-2; Reuben Knox, 9; Charles A. Reed, 8.

Those who have qualified for semi-final play for the October cup are as follows: Rev. C. L. Goodrich, J. B. Betts, Charles B. Morse and W. V. Byard. This will probably be started on Saturday. The postponed semi-final match for the September cup was played on Saturday and Charles B. Morse defeated R. V. Carpenter, by 1 up in 19 holes. He will probably play the final match with W. V. Byard on Wednesday.

Charles B. Morse also leads in the competition for the Golf Club cup, scrath event, with 20 5-6 points. In this competition is in the other Dr. Carroll is a close second with 20 1-2 points, while W. V. Byard has 16 1-2, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 14 1-2; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 12 1-2, and Charles A. Reed, 11.

These scores were returned on Saturday for the President's, Golf Club and October cups:

Reuben Knox, 98, 14-84; L. R. Thurlow, 103, 16-87; J. B. Betts, 115, 25-90; Charles A. Reed, 100, 9-91; W. V. Byard, 104, 10-94; S. St. John McCutchen, 105, 8-95; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 106, 11-95; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 104, 8-96; R. V. Carpenter, 115, 18-97.

NEW YORK CHAMPS WINNERS IN SOCCER

The Cameron football team, champions of the New York Amatuer Association Football League, had a narrow escape here on Saturday, where the Plainfield Football Club led the visitors by 2 goals to 0 at the end of the first half. Thereafter, however, the Camerons played exceptionally fast and tallied four times, winning the game with two goals to spare.

Spalding and Jamison played the star game for Plainfield, making the two tallies for the locals. For the winning side, Hastings and Cameron scored two goals apiece. So far in this series neither the Camerons or the McGregors, of Yonkers, have been defeated. Saturday's game was witnessed by a large crowd. The line-up:

Camerons.	Position.	Plainfield.
Sheridan		Hoyle
	Goal.
Guthrie		Craig
	Right back.
Saunders		Mitchell
	Left back.
McArthur		McCombe
	Right half back.
Curry		Call
	Centre half back.
Ewen		McCregor
	Left half back.
Lane		Spaulding
	Outside right.
Hastings		Sutton
	Inside right.
Cameron		Jameson
	Centre.
Clarke		Gould
	Inside left.
Godowin		Bennett
	Outside left.

Goals, Hastings (2), Cameron (2), Spaulding, Jameson. Referee, Mr. Clark.

PLAY CONCLUDED FOR COUNTRY CLUB CUP

Play for the Golf Committee and Green Committee cups was concluded at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. The fine weather attracted a large number of enthusiastic golfers to the course and many good scores were made. Although the weekly competition came to an end Saturday, there will be a competition for consolation cups in the same classes. The drawings will be made early this week.

As stated a few days ago, Frank O. Reinhart won the Golf Committee cup with a total of 16 7-10 points, and C. C. Burke is the winner of the Green Committee cup with a total of 24 1-3 points. These two competitions have aroused considerable interest throughout the entire season, especially because of the fact that the committee made two classes, A and B, the latter for those who are entitled to larger handicaps. From time to time members of this class improved their game to such an extent that they soon found themselves in class A. Altogether the scheme proved to be very satisfactory.

The best scores for the Golf Committee cup on Saturday were as follows:

Arthur Murphy, 84, 11-73; W. T. Glenney, 85, 9-76; J. A. Lane, 93, 15-78. These scores were posted for the Green Committee cup: W. L. C. Glenney, 104, 23-81; W. F. Merrill, 109, 25-84; C. P. Hamilton, 111, 25-86.

HUNT CLUB CHASE.

Ride Over a 12 Mile Course Saturday.

The members of the Watchung Hunt Club met at the Mt. Pleasant Schoolhouse Saturday afternoon at 2:45 and enjoyed their weekly chase. The course selected was through Iselin on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, to Rahway and Pumptown, covering a distance of about twelve miles. There was not a spill or accident of any kind, although the territory included some difficult jumps.

The club has been agreeably surprised this season over the courtesy of the farmers over which grounds the members hunt, especially in the case of new lands. On Election Day the club will probably meet at New Market, where lunch will be had, and then over new lands in the vicinity of Stelton.

Those who joined in the chase on Saturday were Lewis E. Waring, master; Charles W. Fisk, Harvey Fisk, Harry A. Bourne, Daniel Runkle, W. H. Wildey, C. F. Wildey, C. E. S. Bellows, Paul Harrison, Charles Kelley, Christopher Comins and Miss Gertrude Noe.

Will Play in Professional Tourney.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the "pro" from the Plainfield Country Club, leaves today for Brookline, Mass., where tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday he will take part in the open tournament of the Eastern Professional Golf Association. He will meet all the crack "pros," but it is even money that "Marty" will get a place.

New York Golfers Win.

For the third year in succession the New York golfers, led by Walter J. Travis, had no trouble in winning chief honors on the tri-city matches for the Robert W. Lesley cup, at Brookline, Mass., on Saturday. Robert Abbott, of this city and Yale, was a member of the New York team and defeated his opponents by 1 up.

Thomas Kane's Funeral.

The funeral of Thomas J. Kane was held in St. Mary's church this morning, when a solemn requiem mass was said. A large gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance, many of the latter coming from Brooklyn where the young man had been employed. Father Bogan conducted the mass and assisted by Rev. Fathers Delehanty and Schiola. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearsrs being Eugene Finnegan, Philip Murphy and Harry Murphy and Harry Flood, of Brooklyn; Edward Connors, John Carty and John J. Hines, of this city. The floral tributes were unusually numerous, so many of them being set pieces that two coaches were required to carry them.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will meet tomorrow night and muster several candidates.

PERSONAL.

Raymond Coriell, formerly of this city, but now of Mamaroneck, N. Y., has been visiting friends in town for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Clawson, of Bethlehem, N. H., are spending a few days in Plainfield prior to their departure for the south for the winter.

Mrs. Nellie E. Jones, a specialist in nursing who has been attending some well known families in this city, returned to her New York home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Beekman, who were recently married at Harlingen, will make their home in this city, the groom having leased a house on West Front street.

Kicked Him in the Face.

In the city court this morning, Wade Jones and Harry Parker, colored, were arraigned on a charge of quarreling and fighting at Front and Somerset streets, Saturday night. During the mix-up, Jones knocked Parker down and kicked him in the face, the marks being plainly visible when he stood before the desk. The testimony was conflicting as to what had caused the trouble and the part each took in it and the matter was adjourned until tomorrow for the purpose of getting witnesses.

Had Nothing to Do With Theft.

The police declared today that they had fully exonerated Robert Morley from any connection with the theft of $18 and a pair of trousers from the home of James Manson at Third and Liberty streets Friday night. He had been at the house just previous to the time the matter was reported to the police and was wanted merely to get a statement as to what time he left. He went to headquarters as soon as he learned his story was needed and gave all the information he could.

Bible Classes at Y. W. C. A.

Miss Emily Cramp Taylor will give the third of her four talks on "The Crises of the Christ," tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. At 7 o'clock Miss Ethel Colton's class will meet to study the third chapter of Matthew. All young women are welcome at both these classes. Any young woman who would like classes organized for other days or hours is invited to address the Bible Study Committee, 212 East Front street.

Special Service Postponed.

On account of the inclement weather and the small attendance, it was decided last night to postpone the special service at the First Baptist church one week. Ernest K. Coulter, the president of the Big Brothers' Movement of New York city, was to have made an address. He was present, but after a conference with the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, it was arranged to have him speak next Sunday night.

William A. Schutt.

William A. Schutt, a former well known resident of the borough, died Saturday night at his home on West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, New York. He was sixty-five years old and leaves a family of sons and daughters. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and the body will be brought to this city on the 2 o'clock train for burial in the First M. E. cemetery.

Funeral of Vincent Flynn.

The funeral of Vincent Flynn, the young son of Detective-Sergeant and Mrs. John Flynn, was held at the parents' home on West Front street yesterday morning. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. Father Bogan. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Thirty Days for Old Offender.

Lud Frazee, who has been appearing in the city court at almost weekly intervals on drunk and disorderly charges, was in line this morning and got thirty days straight. Lud made a plea for a fine instead of imprisonment but it had no effect on the judge.

Vail Again On Trial.

Charles T. Vail, the former Plainfielder charged with the burning of the postoffice building at West Portal, was placed on trial for the second time at Flemington, Friday. At the conclusion of the first trial the jury was unable to reach a verdict. Several new witnesses were placed on the stand and Vail also testified in his own behalf before court adjourned. The trial was resumed this morning and will probably be finished by this afternoon.

PADRONE SYSTEM SCORED

City Court Case Shows It to Be Little Short of Slavery.

SEVEN MEN COMPLAIN

Story Related to Judge Runyon Calls For Severe Condemnation from the Magistrate.

A condition of affairs similar to slavery but without one of its redeeming features was found to exist in this city through a court case brought before Judge Runyon this morning. It came about through complaint preferred against Serafina Ferig, who is what is known as a padrone, that he had practically robbed laborers and then turned them away from their living quarters without a cent in their pockets. Seven men appeared against the accused, only one of whom was able to speak a word of English, and the story told made a deep impression on the magistrate.

According to the testimony, Ferig makes a practice of getting laborers for local contractors, paying a New York agency $2 for each man signed over to him. He charges this $2 against them and also the sixty cents car fare, a sum they have to pay out of the first money they make. They are taken to a so-called boarding place on Lake street and it is this place that called for especial condemnation from the judge.

The English-speaking complainant asserted that the building was formerly a stable and that it had accommodations for eight horses. The lower floor has been housing thirty-five men and the upper sixteen, making forty-one for the structure. In the morning and at night the inmates were served with beer, bread and bologna, the combination being called breakfast and supper. They sat on piles of straw to eat it and the same spot had to serve as their bed for the night. Despite these conditions, Ferig charged the majority of his boarders twenty-five cents a night for the "bed" and the meals cost them about thirty cents each. The proprietor ran no chance of loss as it was deducted from the pay of the men before they received it.

The complainants stated by interpretation that with the exception of the one who spoke English they had arrived in this country from Russia about four months ago. Ferig brought them out to Plainfield Thursday and they were put to work on the East End sewer Friday, their wage being $1.60 a day. They remained on the job until Saturday night and thought everything was satisfactory but when they returned to the Lake street "hotel" and had something to eat, Ferig turned them out. He declared they were not wanted any longer but when they asked for what money was due them he declared there was none. He followed it up by telling two of the laborers, one a boy of sixteen, that they were indebted to him and took from them $1.35, every penny they had. All were then sent away to make out as best they could.

Fellow-laborers took the seven to another place and they had shelter Saturday night but yesterday they tramped the streets. The police picked them up last night and when the story was learned, Ferig was summoned to court.

Judge Runyon probed deeply into the case and learned in addition to other things that Ferig sold beer at the barn and he could be held on a charge to that effect. He made the defendant cower by the lecture given him but said that he would waive any attempt to hold him for the beer selling if he would pay the seven men the two days' pay, minus sixty cents carfare and a fair proportion for the miserable accommodations provided them. Ferig readily assented and produced the money immediately.

"This is rather an unusual way to dispose of an illegal liquor case," the judge remarked, "but it is the only way I see to get these poor fellows out of town. I had no idea that such a condition of affairs existed in this city and keep in mind, Ferig, the police will watch you and your place in the future. The system you have is nothing more than slavery, only suaves had a bed and were not turned out into a storm after their day's toil."

Broke Steel "Come-Along."

Arrested on Somerset street by Chief Marshal Weiss Saturday night, Christian Fortesque, a husky Dane who has been in this country but a few months, almost made his escape by breaking the heavy steel chain twister handcuff by which the Chief was holding him. Fortesque gave a great tug, and although the Chief held on, twisted apart one of the links of the heavy steel "come-along" and was free, leaving the officer holding what was left of the broken chain in his hands. The Chief had little trouble in recapturing him. At the hearing this morning before Recorder Dolliver, the big Samson had been tamed and with the effects of the liquor worn off, meekly paid the judge a five spot to secure his freedom. Chief Weiss will put the broken "come-along" in the trophy case at headquarters.

HE WILL OBEY PUBLIC'S WILL ON EXCISE MATTERS

Frank S. Katzenbach, Democratic nomonee for Governor, declared Friday night that he would obey the will of the people in regard to the excise question. It was the first statement on that subject he has made during the campaign.

"There are many important issues in the campaign," Mr. Katzenbach declared. "I do not consider the excise question the most important. My Republican opponent has made many inconsistent statements. I have remained silent and therefore have been consistent. If I am elected Governor I will obey the will of the people as expressed through the Legislature.

"In the final analysis of the excise question, as in all other matters, it must be settled by the people, and their desire will be expressed by their votes, and thus through the Legislature. This is the only expression I will give on the excise law during the remainder of the campaign."

Pupils' Recital

The pupils of Miss Carrie C. Dewey gave a piano recital in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church Saturday afternoon. About two score were present and the various numbers of the program were rendered with accuracy and expression which called forth genuine applause.

Those taking part were: Lawrence and Elmer French, Miss Ruth Voorhees, Miss Edith Schwartz, Miss Edith Richards, Miss Elizabeth Browne, Miss Edith Lowrie, Miss Jane Brower, Miss Caroline Slauson, Miss Martha Camp, George Murray, Miss Hannah Bingaman, Miss Constance Pittis, Miss Kate Elliott, Miss Laura Bristol, Miss Jennie Nelson, Miss Florence Smalley.

Railroad Suit Still On.

The cases of Samuel Obolsky and Julius Velinsky, of this city, against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, which was begun in the Circuit Court before Judge Vail last Thursday, is still on today. William Newcorn represents the complainants. The suit is brought to recover damages for injuries received in an accident on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near Oak Tree, when the complainants were injured. On Friday, Rose Stierer, of Fanwood, and Dr. William H. Anthony, of this city, were called as witnesses.

Special Musical Service.

The quartet choir of the First Presbyterian church, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, gave a special musical service at the church, last night. There were solos, duets, trio and quartet selections by Miss Anna Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; F. C. Iglehart, Jr., baritone, and E. Maxwell Honeyman, tenor. Miss Alice C. Miller assisted at the piano. The various numbers were enjoyed by a large vongregation.

Miss Susan Hewlett Searing.

Miss Susan Hewlett Searing, daughter of the late Dr. Gideon N. Searing, died Saturday afternoon at the home of her nephew, Rev. A. S. Peck, of Woodland avenue. She came to this city from Hempstead a year ago and had been ill most of the time. She is survived by two brothers, Charles A. Searing, of Glen Ridge, and Samuel G. Searing, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Rasores Club to Meet.

The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning with Mrs. W. W. Howland, of Rockview avenue. If the weather is stormy the meeting will be held with Mrs. H. E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue. Birthday topics, "Hugh Miller," and "Richard B. Sheridan."

Street Work Suspended.

The heavy rain caused a temporary suspension of street improvement work this morning, but if it clears this afternoon it will be resumed. City Engineer Gavett is anxious to finish Park avenue, between the railroad and Fourth street, so that that block can be opened to traffic; also Somerset street. Saturday night the P. S. C. connected the double tracks between Fourth street and the Watchung avenue stand and they are now in use.

Plainfielders on the Petit Jury.

Announcement was made in the Union County Court, this morning, of the new petit jury to serve during the November term of court. The Plainfield members are as follows: Hugh A. Todd, William H. Bohl, Bateman Thatcher, Lemuel E. Hart, F. C. Lounsbury, Edward A. Laing, Charles E. Vail, Howard A. Pope and Herman H. Hanson.

—Neuman Brothers will place a lot of extra nice apples on sale tomorrow at special prices. The consignment includes Kings, Baldwins, Greenings and Northern Spies.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

If you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, to the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

SALOONS IN THE FIGHT

Republicans Hear That They Are Active Throughout the County.

EMISSARIES SENT OUT

Personal Liberty Being Talked About As An Inducement to Vote for Democratic Candidates.

Many stories of the activity of the saloonkeepers in the present political campaign have been carried to Republican headquarters of late. In Union county, if these reports are true, there is an organized effort by the saloon men and liquor interests to elect the Democratic candidates. No party in Union county has ever received such determined and undivided support from the saloonkeepers as has the Democratic party this year.

Recognizing the wisdom of the words of a Democratic speaker in Elizabeth last week, that "No man will stand for an open Sunday before his pastor," the work in behalf of this cause has been carried on very quietly by the saloonkeepers, with the real end sought always hidden behind the more alluring cry for "personal liberty."

Last year the battle for "liberal legislation" was made by the saloonkeepers openly with a blare of trumpets, but in no organized way. It is different this year. The battle cry is not "liberal legislation," but "personal freedom." It is alleged that emissaries have gone to every quarter in the county—a shrewd Italian to Berkely Heights, a smooth-tongued Hebrew to Russian Jewish settlements, and so on. Each has said "Look here, you came over to escape persecution, to acquire freedom, and here is the Republican party saying what you shall and shall not do on the one day you have to yourselves. Isn't it plain you must vote the Democratic ticket?"

Few of these audiences know that the Werts law under which the present "closed Sunday" is maintained is Democratic legislation, that the bishops' law has nothing to do with the actual question of Sunday selling, and the arguments of the men who are said to be the emissaries of the saloons and liquor interests take well. So quietly have things been done that there has been little undue publicity. As one man remarked: "Still water runs deepest, so does still beer."

There has been some talk of small campaign funds on both sides. Shrewd observers declare that as far as the Democrats are concerned it has been merely a change in the handling of the money. The liquor interests, it is believed, decided to wage the fight themselves, and they have done so to the admiration and envy of many an old political fighter. Nearly every saloonkeeper is enlisted personally in the cause. The man from whom he buys bread, from whom he purchases shoes, the butcher, the milkman, the carpenter, the painter the baker, all have been and are being importuned to vote the Democratic ticket.

Lamp Overturns; $50 Damage.

The overturning of a lamp on the second floor of the home of Thomas Powell, colored, at 654 South Second street, resulted in an alarm of fire at 6:23 last night. With the arrival of the apparatus it was found that flames were spreading about the room but neighbors practically had them under control. One extinguisher put them out and the damage will not go over $50.

A Birthday Surprise.

Lawrence Sheelein, of Somerset street, was tendered a surprise party, last night, in honor of his birthday. Fifty friends were in attendance and enjoyed music and dancing until an early hour this morning. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Sheelein and Miss Lizzie Sheelein.

In the City Court.

In the city court this morning, sentence was suspended on Wade Jones, colored, who was mixed up in the scrap at Front and Somerset streets Saturday night. Harry Parker, who failed to put in an appearance, will be arraigned later.

Friday Night Bible Classes.

William D. Murray, chairman of the Bible study committee at the Y. M. C. A., will teach the special Bible study class to meet Friday evenings. Fifteen of the association members have joined the class, which will meet for the first Friday night.

—Neuman Brothers like to cater to "hard-to-suit" fruit and vegetable buyers. They have a daily assortment that is sure to please everyone. A fine lot of apples as a specialty tomorrow.

The women of the First Presbyterian church will hold an all-day sewing meeting on Thursday in the chapel.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS ORGANIZE NEXT SATURDAY

Charles W. Rice, supreme traveling representative, will arrive in Plainfield Thursday morning to arrange for the institution of Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers of America, and the Grand Lodge of New Jersey and Delaware to take place on Saturday afternoon and night in Knights of Columbus hall. The local branch will be instituted in the afternoon and the grand lodge at night.

Thus far twenty-six charter members have been secured for Plainfield Council and this list will be increased by several additional members before the time of institution. There will be present representatives of the order from Trenton, Camden and Brooklyn, while the supreme councilor of Louisville, Ky., will take an important part in the ceremonies.

This will the last grand lodge to be instituted as all of the States except New Jersey and Delaware have similar organizations, with a membership of many thousand. Frank Weed, of the borough, has been especially active in the formation of Plainfield Council and the grand lodge, for he has been a member of the organization for several years and was anxious to have Plainfield as well as the states of New Jersey and Delaware represented.

RARITAN MURDERER GETS DEATH SENTENCE

That crime among the Italian element of Somerset county has increased to an alarming extent was evidenced yesterday, when three Italians were arraigned for sentence in the Somerset Court at Somerville. They had been convicted of murder and attempted murder. Raverio Di Giovanni, who killed Joseph Sansome, a barber, in Raritan, on the night of September 22, was sentenced by Justice James J. Bergen to be electrocuted in the New Jersey State Prison on December 9.

Di Giovanni, who received his sentence through an interpreter, became greatly excited and talked back to the court. He was subdued with difficulty and removed to the county jail.

Di Giovanni's crime was one of the most deliberate and cold-blooded in the history of the county. He stood over his victim and discharged a number of shots at his body after the victim was dead.

Joseph Cinglio, who attempted to murder James Ryan, a foreman of the Raritan woolen mill, several weeks ago, was sentenced by Judge Lewis H. Schenck to serve twelve years in the State Prison. Cinglio attempted to take Ryan's life while he was on his way to his home from the mill. He had quarreled with Ryan over a matter of wages at the mill, and threatened to "do" him outside.

He placed a revolver against Ryan's chest, but the latter was too quick for him and turned the weapon down. In the struggle which followed the weapon was discharged and the bullet entered Ryan's leg and crippled him for life. Cinglio was also sentenced to one year in the State prison for carrying a concealed weapon. The prisoner made a demonstration in court and denounced the judge for the sentence.

Salvatore Sferra, who stabbed a fellow-workman in the Bound Brook Woolen Mills eleven times in the body, was sentenced by Judge Schenck to serve four years in State prison. Sferra's victim was in the Somerset Hospital at the point of death for a week, but finally recovered.

Sferra's sentence was comparatively light, because he ha dbeen attacked by his fellow-workman, and had a young wife and infant child, who depended on him for support.

Clue to Possible Hold Up.

The borough police are holding a tan leather satchel at headquarters awaiting its identification. The bag was found on Watchung avenue near Chatham street early Sunday morning by Marshals Pope and Kiernan. It was slashed from end to end, evidently by a razor, and near it in the road were found a pair of trousers and a pair of socks. There were marks of a scuffle in the roadway and gutter. The police believe that it may have been a hold-up, but nothing has been reported as yet.

Only a Few Tickets Left.

Nearly all of the tickets for the song recital to be given by Miss Grace Carroll at the Casino, Friday night, have been sold. A few remaining tickets have been placed on sale at Armstrong's drug store at Park and North avenues.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by Wednesday night in order to insure payment at the regular monthly meeting.

GRAND JURY WILL DECIDE

John Consoli, Whose Store Was Raided Sunday, Must Go to Somerville.

LIQUOR SOLD THERE

Four Men Arrested in Raid Testify That There Was Whiskey, Beer and Hard Cider for Sale.

Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough police force, will secure a warrant to compel John Consoli, the Italian whose fruit store on Somerset street was raided by the police Sunday afternoon, to appear before the grand jury at Somerville on the charge of running a "speak easy." The man was given a hearing last night, together with the four intoxicated men arrested in the place, and Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver fined him $15 for disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace. It remains for the higher court to confront him with the charge of illegal selling of liquor on Sunday without a license.

Sheridan Jones, George Haymaker, Ben Potts and Harry Gulick, the four men arrested in the raid, were brought before the recorder last night on a disorderly charge. Jones was fined $5 and Haymaker $3. Haymaker paid, but Jones is still in a borough cell, "awaiting remittance." In connection with the hearing last night, much testimony was secured from the four men arrested in the place which will strengthen the "speak easy" case, and the men will be subject to summonses to appear as witnesses when Consoli appears before the Somerville jury.

Jones and Haymaker acknowledged that they had bought hard cider from Consoli in the store on Sunday, and Potts and Gulick, who were only arrested as witnesses, affirmed that there was a big supply of beer, and whiskey in the store. It is alleged that the store had been open Sundays for several months past and that there was a certain bunch of rounders who got liquor there on the quiet as a regular thing. Chief Weiss will make his complaint to the grand jury this week and Consoli will probably be arrested again on the "speak easy" charge and bonded over to await trial.

ARRANGED ELECTION DETAILS.

Other Business Transacted at Meeting of Republican City Committee.

The City Republican Executive Committee met at the Casino last night to perfect details for the election on November 5. Business chiefly of a routine nature was considered. Another meeting of the committee will be held on Monday night to transact any business that may come up.

The finance committee, Councilman R. I. Tolles, chairman; R. Henry Depew, Duncan W. Taylor and Councilman Herbert Buxton, has caused an appeal to be issued for funds with which to conduct the election. The appeal states "that the city executive committee has delayed its usual request for funds to defray the expenses of the campaign in order to allow every one to become familiar with the issues and to determine on which side he wishes to be counted.

"Money is now imperatively needed to defray the expenses already incurred and those incident to sending tickets this week and manning the polls on election day."

Those sending checks should make them payable to William R. Townsend, treasurer.

Out On False Alarm.

The borough fire department had a run to West End avenue in the rain this morning because a bonfire burning in a shed looked like a conflagration to a passer-by. Somebody 'phoned headuarters at shortly after 10 o'clock with the report that the barn at the old Cadmus homestead was in flames. The department made a quick run, but on arriving found that some Italian laborers, whom the rain had driven to shelter, had a fire burning on the dirt floor of the place and the smoke pouring from the crevices of the old building had roused the alarm.

Piled Lumber on Corner.

Ralph Bullman was haled before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night on a complaint from residents on Grandview avenue near Verdon street. He had been warned to remove an unsightly pile of lumber from the street corner where it has been for several days and the judge fined him $2 to make him hurry up.

New Brunswicker Drunk in Borough.

John Ward, who hales from New Brunswick, was brought before Borough Recorder Dolliver today on a drunk and disorderly charge. Marshal Kellar arrested him on Somerset street last night in a helpless condition from too free use of liquor. Sentence was suspended and the man sent home.

ROOFING COMPANY ASKS $5,000 DAMAGES

The case of the Commonwealth Roofing Company, of Jersey City, against Walter G. Clawson & Brother, mason contractors, of Dunellen, is being tried in the Union County Court, today. The suits is for $5,000 damages. G. W. V. Moy represents the complainants and Charles P. Cowenhoven the defendants.

The action is the result of a contract which the Commonwealth Roofing Company sublet to Walter G. Clawson & Brother for mason work in the construction of the Mono Investment Company building in this city. The company claims that the work was not progressing as it should and that the defendants were told that unless they put more men at work and hastened the contract it would do the work itself and charge the same to them. The defendants, it is said, hurried the work, which afterward did not prove satisfactory, hence the suit to recover damages.

The case will be on all day and a verdict is not expected before late this afternoon.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER GETS HIGH APPOINTMENT

Recent papers of Augusta, Ga., announce the appointment of Orville T. Waring, formerly of this city, to the position of Assistant Superintendent of the Charleston and Western Carolina Railroad. His many friends in Plainfield will be pleased to learn of this new honor which has just been awarded to him. This young man was a Plainfield boy, a graduate of Mr. Leal's school and then of the University of Pennsylvania, where he became a civil engineer. Since that time he has been connected with railroads in the South, and for a year or more has been stationed at Augusta. He soon gained a reputation for sterling ability and willingness to work and was recognized as one of the most valuable men in the employ of the road. He will take office November 1, when he will be next in rank to General Superintendent Lynch.

The same papers make further announcement of the approaching marriage of Mr. Waring which will take place in Augusta on Thursday, December 12 next. The young woman is Miss Timberlake, of that city. It is said that no engagement of recent years has awakened in Augusta more interest than that of Miss Timberlake. She represents one of the leading families of the State and city, and is most deservedly popular. On the happy occasion the best man will be Edward H. Waring, of Orange, the groom's brother.

NEW SCHOOL CALENDER FOR BOROUGH PUPILS

Superintendent Henry C. Krebs, of the borough schools, announced the school calendar for the term at the meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night. This calendar has been made up after consultation with Superintendent Henry M. Maxson and Principal Ira W. Travell of the city schools, and shows the various holidays and vacations of the present school year. The calendar as announced is as follows:

Tuesday, November 5, Election Day; Thursday, November 29, and Friday, November 29, Thanksgiving holidays; Friday, December 20, schools close for the Christmas vacation; Monday, January 6, schools re-open after Christmas vacation; Wednesday, February 12, Lincoln's birthday; Thursday, April 16, schools close for the Easter vacation; Monday, April 27, schools re-open after Easter vacation; Friday, June 19, commencement day; Tuesday, September 15, schools re-open after summer vacation for 1908-09 term.

The fact that there will be no teachers' institute meetings during this current school year will take three days vacation from the local pupils. Washington's birthday and Decoration day fall on Saturdays, so there will be no special holiday for them this year. Good Friday being a legal holiday in this State now, the schools will close for Easter vacation with the session on Thursday, April 16; Easter falls on April 19.

The total number of school days on which there will be sessions this school year is 185. This is five more than there were last year. Though school opened Tuesday, September 10 this year, it will open for the fall term next year Tuesday, September 15, so as to have the work begin about the second week in the month.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dunbar, of Craig place, have moved to their new home at Union street and Arlington avenue.

PARADE AND MEETING

Borough Republicans Plan Big Demonstration for Tomorrow Night.

LOTS OF RED FIRE

Former Governor John W. Griggs to Be Among the Speakers at Saengerbund Hall.

The Republicans of North Plainfield are making great preparations for the parade and mass meeting to be held tomorrow night. The demonstration promises to be one of the greatest of the campaign in this vicinity and it is intended to arouse the indifferent voters and bring them out on election day.

The borough Republicans will join forces with a delegation from Somerville, which, accompanied by the Somerville Campaign Glee Club and a fife and drum corps, will come to Plainfield. The glee club will sing campaign songs at the mass meeting to be held in the Saengerbund hall.

The leaders of the party and others will gather in front of Saengerbund hall at 7 o'clock and fifteen minutes later the parade will start. All are invited to join. The procession will be headed by the Plainfield Fife and Drum Corps. The line of march will be through Somerset street to Grandview avenue, to Watchung avenue, to North avenue, to the North Avenue station, when the delegation from Somerville will be met. Then the parade will continue through North avenue to Park avenue, to Front street to Grove street, to Linden avenue and Somerset street, where all will enter Saengerbund hall for the meeting.

Former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., has been chosen as chairman of the meeting, and the following have been invited to act as vice presidents:

Charles W. McCutchen, Charles L. Nichols, Henry A. McGee, E. A. Overton, Harrison Codington, Charles Place, William H. Shotwell, B. A. Hegeman, Murray Burtis, J. E. McClintock, Dr. H. K. Carroll, L. B. Woolston, William C. Smith, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, J. K. Arnold, Rev. C. W. Parsons, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, J. Herbert Case, Thomas Doud, A. G. Hooley, Reuben Knox, J. V. E. VanDerhoff, R. V. Cadmus, W. H. Miles, J. P. Emmons, Morris Abrams, Jacob Weinberger, Andrew Stiglitz, Rev. George A. Warner, Horace J. Martin, Sr., and L. M. French.

The speakers of the evening will be Hon. John W. Griggs, Alfred N. Barber, of Trenton, leader of the Republican minority of the Assembly last winter; Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, and State Senator Joseph T. Frelinghuysen. In addition the candidates on the county ticket will be present and may have a few words to say. Seats will be reserved for women and a cordial invitation is given to every body in Plainfield and North Plainfield to attend the meeting.

Verdict for the Complainants.

After a half hour's deliberation the jury in the cases of Samuel Obolsky and Julius Velinsky, of this city, against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, came in yesterday afternoon returning a verdict of $100 for Obolsky and $500 for Velinsky. The case was tried before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth. William Newcorn, of this city, represented the complainants.

Star Cource Begins Tonight.

The first of the series of Star Course entertainments to be given this winter at the Y. M. C. A. will be Carman's Italian boys, who are to appear at the opening entertainment in the association auditorium tonight. With the boys, whose entertainment consists of orchestral music and instrumental solos, is Elbert Foland, a reader.

An Entertaining Speaker.

Rev. Frank Hall Wright, the Indian preacher, who has done so much for the evangelization of the Indians, will speak at the regular mid-week prayer meeting in Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow night, about his work among the Apaches and other tribes of American Indians. Everybody will be welcome. Go and hear him.

Miss Annie O'Leary Weds.

Miss Annie O'Leary, formerly of this city, and Michael Davitt, of Brooklyn, were married on Sunday in St. Thomas' Catholic church, Brooklyn. The wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends of the couple. The bride is a sister of Thomas O'Leary, of West Fifth street, this city.

Eagles to Visit New Brunswick.

Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will attend a meeting of New Brunswick Castle at New Brunswick Monday night in a body. There is to be initiation of four candidates and the degree team will use new degree outfits for the first time.

BOROUGHITE WEDS BROOKLYN YOUNG WOMAN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at 432 Grand avenue, Brooklyn, when Miss Harriet Edna Pate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pate, became the bride of Weston Williams, of the borough. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, of the Clinton Avenue Congregational church, officiating.

The bride, who looked very pretty, wore an elaborate gown of white messoline silk, trimmed with duchesse lace. Her tulle veil was fastened with natural orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Arthur A. Hassell, of Brooklyn, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mabel S. Linsley and Miss Hazel Church, both of Brooklyn. The ushers were Messrs. Fred Weston, George Weston, both of Manhattan, and who are cousins of the groom, and Paul McKinney, of Brooklyn. Everett Broughton was the best man.

A reception followed the ceremony in which were attended by relatives and intimate friends only. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside in Plainfield.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT TIMBO CLUB'S BALL

The Timbo Social Club came to the fore as an entertaining organization once more, last night, when it conducted its fifth annual reception and ball in Saengerbund Hall. All previous efforts were outdone, both in point of attendance and enjoyable features and the affair stands as a record for the season. At one time there were fully 500 people in the building and the greater part of the crowd remained until an early hour this morning.

Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished music for the dancing and the scores of couples were kept in shape by Rudolph Kampf as general floor manager and Fred Moore assistant. In the early part of the evening the floor capacity was crowded and their capable directing was greatly appreciated.

In the way of novelty for the ball, The Timbo Troubadours, made up of local artists, gave a complete minstrel first part on the big stage, beginning at 10 o'clock. Joseph C. Martin was in the center as interlocutor and the end men were Harry Mimm, Harry Roberts, Tom Muir and Fred Miller, of this city, and "Bob" Swart, of Elizabeth. The show lasted an hour and went with a swing that kept the audience in good humor the entire time. "Bob" Swart was accorded a "big hand" when he was announced and got three encores with his song, "The bee that gets the honey, doesn't hang around the hive."

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair comprised Erwin Y. Neighbor, chairman; William Doud, Frank Schuck, Eddie Bellis, Tom Fay, B. C. Firstbrook and Alvin Wagner.

A Fiftieth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Camp, parents of George and L. B. Van Camp, of this city, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, yesterday, by entertaining their children and grandchildren at their beautiful home, Mapleherst, South Branch. Mr. and Mrs. Van Camp were married at Somerville, October 28, 1857, by Rev. Dr. Mesick. They were the recipients of some handsome presents. Congratulations were received after which a dinner was served and all enjoyed a pleasant day together.

Senior Class to Make Merry.

The senior class at the city high school will meet at the school Hallowe'en for a fancy dress party and dance. Miss Esther Crampton, Miss Helen Dorothy, Miss Sara Sanderson, Walter Caldwell and Chauncey Murphey have been appointed a committee to take charge of the affair and the evening will be passed in dancing and playing Hallowe'en games. Refreshments will be served.

All Saints' Church Consecration.

Invitations have been issued by the rector, wardens and vestrymen of All Saints' Episcopal church, of Scotch Plains and Fanwood, to the consecration of their church on Wednesday morning, November 6, at 10:30 o'clock. The services will be marked by many interesting features and it is expected that Bishop Scarborough will attend and take part.

First Appearance in Court.

Michael J. Hughes, who said he had never been arrested before, was dismissed with a warning when haled before Recorder Dolliver at the session of court last night. Marshal Pope found him helplessly drunk on Somerset street.

NOMINEE FORT INVADES UNION

Republicans' Gubernatorial Candidate Frankly Tells Plainfield Voters What He Will do if Elected.

FIGHTS ON PRINCIPLE

Reiterates His Advocacy of the Bishops Bill—Says Days of Partisanship Are Gone.

Stopping at Plainfield for luncheon shortly afternoon today, J. Franklin Fort, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, who was making a whirlwind trip through Union county, made a tour of the city, visiting the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant and other places of interest. At 2 o'clock he addressed a big crowd of voters at Second street and Park avenue. Mr. Fort was introduced by State Senator Ackerman and gave a five minutes ginger talk on the issues of the campaign. He said incidently:

"I have been traveling through the State talking to the people in a frank sort of a way. And I tell you I don't want any man's vote unless he believes that in voting for me he is voting for the best interests of the State. I don't want his vote simply because I am a Republican. I believe in principles. What's best for the State is what you want to consider. Every man in America is a sovereign. We have a kingship and it is the right to vote that makes a man a king in America. I believe in independence of conscience. If elected I will support the Bishops' bill and I want you to know that right now so that you won't make any mistake when you cast your vote.

"I believe in morality, good government and decency in public affairs. I would rather be defeated on principles than be elected on a platform that I didn't believe in and was dishonest to the people. You'll have good government if I have anything to do with it. Days of partisan politics are gone. I want my Republican friends to know that simply so that they will not be disappointed if they elect me governor. I told them that before I was nominated. That was political heresy in days gone by. But they took me as a venture and if you elect me I'll keep every promise I have made to the people. I am a Republican but not a partisan."

Judge Fort said that he believes that a bossed vote is as bad as a bought vote, and that he did not want either one. He declared that he would not approve of any measure simply because it might be a Republican measure. To receive his indorsement such a measure must be shown to be good to both the Democrats and Republicans alike, and therefore good for all the people of the State.

The caravan was a half hour late in leaving Elizabeth, the start being made from the Dix building, the Republican County Committee's headquarters, at 9:30. The campaigners occupied nine automobiles and in the party were County Chairman Frank H. Smith; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Assembly Candidate Carlton B. Pierce, former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, District Court Judge William Newcorn, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Councilman Herbert Buxton, former Mayor James F. Buckle, former City Judge William R. Codington, Sheriff William Lawrence, County Clerk James Calvert, William R. Townsend and Charles S. Sminck and Assembly Candidates John R. Moxon and A. F. Kirstein.

When the spellbinders arrived at Looker's store in Lyons' Farm, a score or more of voters were there to greet Judge Fort. Despite the downpour, the party was in a merry mood but the nominee confined himself to shaking hands, considering it unwise to speak in the rain.

After a few minutes rest the campaigners resumed their tour, stopping next at Meeker's Inn, in Union, where Eugene O'Reilly, formerly of this city, was on hand with Freeholder Mizell to welcome the spellbinders. At Springfield two score of voters were awaiting the candidate and his friends and the same was true at Mountainside, where a short stop was made at John Klopp's hotel.

Retracing their steps, the campaigners put out for Summit where they were greeted by a big crowd of Stars and Storms.

Most people suppose that when the stars appear to lose their liveliness of light and shine without twinkling, as minute bright points in the sky, fair weather is in prospect. Studies lately made in this country seem to contradict this popular belief. It has been found that when the stars are feeble in their scintillations foul weather is at hand. The night before a most violent storm in the south, for instance, the stars hung so quietly in the sky that they seemed to have entirely lost their scintillating power. This is said to be only one instance among many which show that an unusual steadiness in the light of the stars precedes the appearance of storms.—Minneapolis Journal.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1907.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 1.

BE IT RESOLVED (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Strike out the proviso in section three of article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, and at its first session after each United States decennial census thereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange the counties of this State into districts for the election therein of members of the General Assembly. Each assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory, in a compact form; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Errors and Appeals is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into assembly districts of the counties of this State, for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division or any part thereof is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void, the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

Forget Your Money Troubles—We Can Show You How

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

William Stites, who has for years been the leading checkers player of the Mt. Horeb section of Somerset county, was defeated three out of five games a few nights ago by Jerome Algore. The men have arranged to play again on the evening of November 4. The loser is to give an oyster supper to his friends and the successful candidates on the county ticket. As Stites is a Democrat, and his opponent a Republican, the approaching contest is creating interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, of Thousand Island Park, who were residents of Pluckemin fifty years ago, are spending some time at the latter place.

Mrs. Louis Case, of Trenton, is a guest of Rev. and Mrs. Isaac Sperling, at the Reformed church parsonage at South Branch.

Mrs. A. M. Wilbur and son, Arnold, of South Branch, are spending a few days with friends at Delaware Water Gap, Pa.

Mrs. James L. Stillwell, of North Branch, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. William Pattison, in East Orange.

Mrs. Andrew Compton entertained the Ladies' Missionary Society at her home at Pluckemin, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. George Straithie and daughter, Miss Ettamar, of Plainfield, are visiting at Sunset farm, South Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. DuMont, of North Branch, have returned from a visit to relatives in New York.

Mrs. Ellen J. Craig, of Centreville, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. V. D. Quick, in this place.

SOMERVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Voorhees announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eva B. Voorhees, to Edward Louis Keenan.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, of Easton, are guests of Mrs. Young's mother, Mrs. Aaron Vandeveer, of South street.

Miss Mary Vanderveer returned Saturday from Washington and Jamestown, where she spent a week.

Miss Grace Brokaw has returned from South Royalton, Vt., where she spent the summer.

Charles Houston is spending his vacation with friends in Virginia.

Miss Jennie Brokaw is visiting friends in Baltimore.

Miss Laura Couse spent Sunday at Halsey.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

There was a reception of the Holy Angel Society of St. Joseph's Catholic church of Bound Brook, Sunday afternoon, when the girls who received their first communion last May were received in the society.

Miss Lavena A. Voorhees, of Streator, Ill., is being entertained at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cano, in Watchung drive, Bound Brook.

Mrs. Charles Emery, of Virginia, is being entertained at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, in Hamilton street, Bound Brook.

W. R. Wadsworth, who had been visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jerry Codington, of Martinsville, has returned to his home at Oil City, Pa.

Vendon Taylor, of Jutland, was recently entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Duryea in Prospect street, South Bound Brook.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church of Bound Brook will hold a Hallowe'en social in the chapel Thursday night.

Mrs. Peter Clickner, of New York, has been spending several days with her sister, Mrs. A. Clickner, of Bound Brook.

Mrs. Warren Jones, of New York, is a guest at the home of her mother, Mrs. S. T. H. Wert, of Bound Brook.

Mrs. F. A. Smith, of South Bound Brook, has been visiting relatives in Plainfield.

WESTFIELD.

The new hook and ladder truck arrived sooner than it was expected, having made the trip from Grand Rapids in seven days. It is being housed in Irving's barn, Central avenue, until repairs at the department house are completed. The local firemen are going to have a parade to celebrate the rejuvenation of the department house and the arrival of the new truck.

No new cases of scarlet fever were reported here last week and those patients ill with the disease are on the way to a safe recovery.

The contractors on the Westfield sewer extension did some heavy blasting yesterday, some of the blasts jarring houses miles away.

STIRLING.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kafavnan and family, of Paterson, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Ananson and family, of Chestnut street, Sunday.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church of this place was filled Sunday morning by the Rev. J. S. Hancock.

Miss Ethel Morris, of Main street, arrived home yesterday, after a few days' stay with her parents at Wayne, Pa.

RARITAN.

The Christian Endeavor Society has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. J. V. M. Miss Mayme Green, of Somerset street, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Green, in New York city.

DUUNELLEN.

The borough board of registry is in session this afternoon and evening revising the voting list and adding the names of new voters. Leading local politicians of both factions are stirring up the voters to go to the borough building and register in order that as large a vote as possible may be polled election day—a week from today. Everybody is looking for one of the closets of election contests, though there seems to be a slight advantage for the Republicans. Katzenbach's visit here last week and his enthusiastic reception has boomed Democracy and the friends of Harry Swackhammer, the Democratic candidate, affirm that "you won't be able to tell till the votes are all counted." Boroughites are taking more interest in State as well as local politics than last year.

Miss Ethel Garretson entertained about a score of her co-workers in the Presbyterian church society at her home on Front street Saturday night. The evening was spent playing progressive whist and euchre and later refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. McGuire returned yesterday from their wedding trip and will stay at the home of Mrs. McGuire's father, Dr. P. W. Brakeley, for the winter. They spent their honeymoon at Boston and various New England towns in the immediate vicinity. Dr. Brakeley is preparing to leave for a trip of recuperation to Southern Pines, N. C., and during his absence Mr. McGuire will be in charge of the local drug store.

The Cheerful Workers of the First Baptist church will give an entertainment at Friendship hall tonight. The program will consist of songs, costumed dialogue, readings, solos and a chorus of women's voices, and at its conclusion a social hour will be spent and refreshments served by the young women of the church.

The New Market township committee will hold a special meeting tonight instead of next week, which is Election Day.

The Embroidery Club met last night at the home of Miss Lena Day.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The funeral of Miss Mary Osborn Hayes, held yesterday afternoon at her late home, was largely attended. Rev. James S. Broker, of Lynn, Mass., had charge of the service, being assisted by Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Baptist church, of which the deceased had been a member and active worker in for a number of years. Neither pastor or former pastor selected a special text for their remarks, each speaking of the Christian life and the patient suffering of the one who had gone to her reward. The floral display was handsome and included besides a number of set pieces from relatives, pieces from the choir, the Ladies' Circle, the B. Y. P. U. and the Farther Light Society of the church. Miss Hayes had been associated with the church organizations since their organization. During the service several selections were rendered by Charles L. Lewis, of Plainfield, one "Across the Bar," being a special favorite of the deceased. Interment was made in the family plot in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

If your name is not on the registry list you cannot vote at the election to be held Tuesday of next week. The board is meeting in the town rooms today from 1 to 9 p. m. Better get your name down if you have been missed.

Republican Candidate J. Franklin Fort and the county candidate met the local voters this noon on the green near the Liberty pole. This is Scotch Plains' first visit from a Gubernatorial candidate in a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stilliger and children, of Brooklyn, were the guests over Sunday of Mr. Stilliger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stilliger, of Front street.

Miss Elizabeth Riley, who has been visiting Mrs. Ferdinand Schmidt, of Forest avenue, has returned to her home in New York.

Miss Nancy Wade, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, has returned to her home at Milburn.

Richard Robison, of New York, has been visiting his parents, Freeholder and Mrs. John Robison.

Miss Cora Miller was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Coach Smith of Fordham has at last been able to develop what his eleven has felt the need of for weeks past, a consistent line smasher. After weeks of coaching Coffey has been taught to make ten and twenty yards straight through the opposing guards.

With Pullen back in the Army line, West Point now has one of the strongest and highest lines in the country. Pullen was injured in the Princeton game last year, but is now almost entirely recovered.

In Regan, Miller and Garrison the Pennsylvania coaches have three men who can run a team from the quarter-back position, and in case of an accident the 'Varsity will not be in the position it was last year.

Linton, the Captain of the College of the City of New York team, is back in his old position on the left of the line. His ankle still bothers him, but he expects to be all right by the end of the week.

The new rule governing the forward pass is not working out to please the rule makers, and a return may be made to last year's provisions.

McCrohan, the former Holy Cross player, now at Princeton, but ineligible for the 'Varsity, is the best all-round player on the Tigers' scrub eleven.

G. N. Young, Cornell's old quarterback, whose goal from the field beat the Tigers in 1899, has joined the graduate coaching staff at Ithaca.

Not a Navy man was hurt in the game with Harvard, and the team at Cambridge did not sustain an injury, according to Dr. Nichols and Trainer Donovan of Harvard.

Coach H. L. Williams, of Minnesota, the other day would not allow Eckerell to watch the Minnesota practice because he formerly was captain of the University of Chicago.

The Western Pennsylvania players all wear jerseys with bright numbers woven in the backs, which has proved a successful method of helping the spectators to keep a run of the play.

Some coaches take it for granted that it is impossible for any straightforward offense to gain ten yards and are not making any desperate effort to conceive some sort of an attack that will.

Young, the New York University tackle, has injured many men on his own team by his vicious tackles in practice. He has been advised to restrain himself when playing against the scrubs.

Lafayette, which periodically turns out a great team, is on hand this year with another fast eleven, and one which will make a good showing in its games with the bigger colleges it is scheduled to meet.

The preliminary training table at Memorial Hall, Cambridge, was a satisfactory experiment for the Harvard management. The second team will remain at Memorial hall, while the 'Varsity training table has been taken to Union hall.

Tommy Fennell, Cornell, 1896, whose Penn State College team defeated the Ithacans, is now aiding the coaches on Percy Field. He has not coached at Cornell for seven years, being bitterly opposed to the Warner regime—but now the hatchet has been buried.

PROCLAMATION BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt's proclamation naming November 28 as a day for national thanksgiving is as follows:

Once again the season of the year has come when in accordance with the custom of our forefathers for generations past, the President appoints a day as the especial occasion for all our people to give praise and thanksgiving to God.

During the past year we have been free from famine, from pestilence, from war. We are at peace with all the rest of mankind. Our national resources are as great as those of any other nation. We believe that in ability to develop and take advantage of these resources the average man of this nation stands at least as high as the average man of any other. Nowhere else in the world is there such an opportunity for a free people to develop to the fullest extent all its powers of body, of mind and of that which stands above both body and mind—character.

Much has been given us from on high and much will rightly be expected of us in return. Into our care the ten talents have been intrusted, and we are to be pardoned neither if we sqpander and waste them nor yet if we hide them in a napkin, for they must be ffuitful in our hands. Ever throughout the ages, at all times and among all peoples, prosperity has been fraught with danger, and it behooves us to beseech the Giver of All Things that we may not fall into love of ease and of luxury; that we may not lose our sense of moral responsibility; that we may not forget our duty to God and to our neighbor.

A great democracy like ours, a democracy based upon the principles of orderly liberty, can be perpetuated only if in the heart of the ordinary citizen there dwells a keen sense of righteousness and justice. We should earnestly pray that this spirit of righteousness and justice may grow ever greater in the hearts of all of us, and that our souls may be inclined evermore both toward the virtues that tell for gentleness and tenderness, for loving kindness and forbearance one with another, and toward those no less necessary virtues that make for manliness and rugged hardihood, for without these qualities neither nation nor individual can rise to the level of greatness.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do set apart Thursday, the 28th day of November, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, and on that day I recommend that the people shall cease from their daily work, and in their homes or in their churches meet devoutly to thank the Almighty for the many and great blessings they have received in the past and to pray that they may be given the strength so to order their lives as to deserve a continuation of these blessings in the future.

THE FORUM.

Editor The Daily Press:

I have recently noticed in your paper a series of references to Senator Frelinghuysen dealing with the petition of three hundred intelligent and representative voters of Somerset county, asking for the removal of the voting machines. The Senator evidently finds that he has insulted the voters of his county by ignoring the wishes of the voters represented in the petition and by treating a large number of them as unworthy of consideration and denominating them Italians and Hungarians in order to take the sting from this unjustifiable and offensive reflection, the Senator according to your paper denies that he so characterized the signers. The fact is, that he not only made the assertion but undertook to prove it by pointing to a name on the petition and asking me if that wasn't an Italian name. I told him it was not. Had there been, I can see no reason why the Italians and Hungarians, if citizens of the State, should not be recognized by Senator Frelinghuysen as a part of his constituency worthy of fair treatment.

Whether the Senator referred to the petition as I have above stated, or whether he did not, as he asserts, is a question for the people of this county to decide for themselves.

Again we are apprised of the startling fact that the Senator has ascertained that only three hundred (300) of the fourteen hundred (1400) voters favored the old way of casting ballots and that the majority of "intelligent" voters coincide with his views as to the purity of the ballot attained by the use of the machines the Senator must surely have had seven league boots to canvass this vast political field and get the personal views of the remaining eleven hundred (1100) "intelligent" voters, for surely he would not undertake to try to mislead the public by giving a result like that and state it as a solemn fact. He has either had the boots or is empowered with ubiquity. No! no! the Senator is too astute a politician and too rare a diplomat to make a statement, the truth of which he has not verified.

It is further asserted that after weeks of systematic effort I succeed in getting some three hundred (300) names, now the Senator must have gone carefully into this fact also, for he would not make a random statement like that and try to get the people with him by that means unless he knew it to be so, but has he more than the five senses as his guide? It seems strange that the Senator not being here should know more about it than I, who had the matter in charge. What I know about it is, that no systematic effort was made to secure signers but that it was done in the most desultory way by placing the petition in two stores and presenting it occasionally to persons on the street whom I chanced to meet, but this unsystematic method succeeded in securing three hundred (300) names to the petition, and not more than six (6) of the citizens to whom it was presented withheld their names. On that basis it is apparent that only about thirty (30) out of the fifteen hundred (1500) voters in the borough are willing to take no active steps against the machines, but that the 1,470 voters are against them. But what does this signify when the Senator is in a position where his power is greater than that ever wielded by Julius Ceasar, where he can say to his constituents though you have to pay for these machines, and though they are hateful to you, and through them many are disfranchised, they suit me and my party, and in the language of Louis the 14th, "I am the State." If the voters of Somerset county are satisfied with this state of affairs it no doubt will continue, but the remedy, if they want a remedy, lies in the ballot box.

MISSED ALTAR; GOT IN JAIL.

Booze for Wedding Guests Too Tempting for Young Farmer.

Trenton, Oct. 29.—Charles T. Weisel, a Plainsboro farmhand, came to Trenton yesterday to be married, but got arrested instead and spent the night in the First District police station, where he was this morning fined $5 for being drunk and disorderly.

He admitted that he was guilty as charged by the officer who arrested him, but excused himself by saying he would not have been in that condition except for his desire to sample a big bottle of liquor he had secured for the use of the wedding guests. The liquor tasted so good that he drank liberally and his arrest was the result. He gallantly refused to give the name of the girl he was to have married. He paid his fine and left the court, expressing the hope that he could "square" himself with the girl.

Woman Suicide Writes Mother Husband Is Not to Blame.

Mrs. Annie McGee, twenty-eight years old, of No. 11 Newark street, Newark, swallowed carbolic acid last evening while on Norfolk street, near her home. She was taken to the City Hospital and is not likely to recover. On a table in her home was found a note reading:

"Dear Mother—Come quick; have taken poison. Don't blame Jack."

Jack is the name of Mrs. McGee's husband. Her mother lives at No. 45 Spring street, Northampton, Mass. Her name is not known. Mrs. McGee's husband has not yet been found by the police. This is the second attempt at suicide by Mrs. McGee within a month.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS AN ADJOURNED SESSION

Principally for the purpose of paying some bills and incidentally to transact some business of minor importance, an adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held last night. There were eight members present and the session was not a long one.

Miss A. E. Lincoln complained about what she called the disgraceful condition of West Fourth street, where she said the dust at times is almost unbearable. She said that the thoroughfare is infrequently sprinkled in certain places, while in others it is soaked with water, making it very muddy. She also said that the attention of the health inspector and city engineer had been called to a heap of garbage which had been allowed to remain on a property close to her residence, but that nothing had been done with it. The complaint was referred to the street committee.

The complaint of Mrs. E. P. Williams, of West Seventh street and Darrow avenue, regarding a tax matter, which was presented at the last meeting, was considered and her offer to settle the bill for $77.29 was accepted upon the motion offered by Mr. Tolles. Mrs. Williams had paid a tax for a frontage on West Seventh street, and an additional tax, making about $112, had been imposed upon the residue of the property. Investigation had shown that the city would have some difficulty in substantiating its claim and upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh the Common Council decided to accept her offer.

H. W. Dunham and others petitioned to have an ordinance adopted providing for the vacating and closing of Hill street, sometimes known as Hill avenue. The petition was signed by all the property-owners interested. It was referred to the street committee.

In response to a request from the Common Council, the Shade Tree Commission reported that the trees on Putnam and Kensington avenues and streets in the vicinity have been trimmed. The commission was asked to have this work attended to at a previous meeting, the purpose being to make the electric lights on those thoroughfares more effective.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gloak and adopted, authorized the city engineer to have sidewalks laid in front of certain properties throughout the city and to effect a lien on the property for the payment of the work. Another resolution by Mr. Gloak and adopted, authorized the borrowing of $600 for the maintenance of the sewage disposal works, there not being sufficient funds on hand for the work.

Mr. Montgomery offered motions granting the petition of Mrs. E. S. Hyatt for an electric light on East Ninth street, between First place and Watchung avenue, and one on Lyman place, between Astor place and West Third street. Mr. Tyler voted no on the petition for a light on Lyman place.

In speaking of the light question after the meeting, Mr. Montgomery said that while considerable opposition had been made to his efforts to increase the number of lights throughout the city, he had not used all the money appropriated to his department, in fact he was well within the amount. This year $14,000 was appropriated as against $14,500 last year.

Henry L. Hall, of Netherwood, left this morning for Washington, where he will meet Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou for a conference regarding some business affairs.

New York city society notes announce that at the marriage of Miss Alice Birney Blackwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Blackwell, of New York, to Frank Willoughby Frost, of this city, on November 20, in the Church of the Incarnation, Miss Jennet D. Blackwell, the sister of the bride will be her maid of honor. Harry Fowler Woods, of Cincinnati, will be the best man, and H. Harwood Frost and Edwin Hunt Frost, brothers of the bridegroom; Birney Blackwell, brother of the bride; Wylie Brown, Frederick Worth Goddard and Arthur Beebe will be the ushers.

AFTERNOON SCHOOL WORKS WELL IN THE BOROUGH

"The afternoon sessions in the borough schools are proving a great success," said Superintendent Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools, at the meeting of the Borough Board of Education held last night. "I have consulted with the various teachers and I find that nobody has any fault to find with them, while many are enthusiastic. The afternoon session helps the individual pupil, we find, for it forms a period when a pupil can return for personal consultation with his teacher or explanation of some point of the morning's classes. Thus time is saved in the class room, and explanations can be given more clearly to a pupil who meets the teacher in the afternoon.

"About 150 pupils come back in the afternoon, and this is about a third of our present enrollment. Another good feature of the two session scheme is that many of the pupils look upon it as a penalty or punishment, and do better work at the morning session so as not to be obliged to return after luncheon. I find that as a result of the adoption of the system the grade of work in all the classes has been raised, and I think I may attribute it to this feeling on the part of the pupils."

This report on the afternoon session was asked for by President James R. Joy, of the Borough Board, because of the general discussion these extra sessions have aroused among some of the parents.

The Board meeting was a short one last night and routine business was dealt with summarily. Bills to the amount of $3,802.14 were ordered paid, $3,377.86 of which were from the general fund and the rest in connection with the manual training building. District Clerk Albert Steiner reported a small balance. Discussion of various matters relative to the manual training department occupied the rest of the time before the Board went into executive session. Messrs. Laing, Miller and Nichols were not present at the meeting.

NOMINEE FORT IN UNION

citizens. Postmaster Jones and Rufford B. Franklin were on hand and after a lot of handshaking, the nominee was led by the band to the town hall where he made a speech.

After being introduced by Mr. Franklin, Mr. Fort referred to the fact that the enthusiastic reception tendered him at Summit was similar to those extended daily in his three weeks tour. He said he had received the same ovation everywhere. Referring to the weather, he declared that although the day was rather dark; he was sanguine that the sun would soon appear as bright as his election as his chances for election would be.

"There are very few issues in this campaign," said the nominee, "but the people expect the candidate to come out like men and tell where they stand on those issues. The voters can demand manliness in this campaign." Dwelling on Republican reforms, the nominee pointed out that the people would no longer be compelled to vote for delegates, but could cast their ballots direct for those who sought office. He said the day was past for political deception and the situation required manly statements regarding views on the current political issues. The prediction was made by him that the next time the people of New Jersey would chbose a United States Senator it would be by their direct vote and his declaration was received with marked enthusiasm. "The next United States Senator will be elected by the people," said he and the hall rang with applause.

After dwelling on the beauties of New Jersey and its great resources as well as its extraordinary prosperity, the candidate called the attention of his audience to the unusual growth of the State in the last decade, in which the Republican party has been in power. Ten years ago he said that he campaigned for former Governor John W. Griggs and then asked the crowd to recollect what great prosperity had come to pass since that time. "If you expect to continue to grow, you must have good government," he declared, pointing out that that could come only through the Republican party.

When the Republicans came into power ten years ago, he said, there was a deficit of $400,000. Money had been borrowed from the school fund to pay the State's current expenses under Democratic rule, but the speaker added that he did not intend to make any reflections on the Democrats in this connection. Since then he said there has been $3,500,000 idle in the State treasury. The Legislature passed a law to use the surplus for school purposes. From the Perkins law, there is due this year $2,500,000 and as this was tied up until the highest court could confirm the decision already obtained the amount would be forthcoming next year in addition to what will be due for next year, making $6,000,000 in all. "What reason is there for a change?" he asked.

"I want to tell you that I stand for the Bishops' bill in its present form," he shouted, and the applause was deafening. "The American people will never sacrifice their Sabbath; they stand for the Bishops' law!"

In conclusion, Mr. Fort said he did not ask for votes simply because he was a Republican but that if the voters thought that he would do what was right, he would be glad to be their servant.

Again returning to their cars, the campaigners made for New Providence, where a few minutes was spent handshaking. When Berkeley Heights was reach William Jeffery and about fifty other voters were ready to welcome the candidate. On the way to Scotch Plains, the Jeffery estate was passed. There his six sons—the bungalow boys—had raised a banner and an American flag in honor of Judge Fort's visit. The Berkeley Heights school children cheered the nominee as he passed by. Plainfield was reached after a fifteen minute stop had been made at Scotch Plains. At the Plains, Dr. E. W. Westcott, Charles Sheelen and others formed the reception committee.

After leaving Plainfield, Judge Fort's party made for Westfield, where he spoke to a large crowd. The tourists then headed for Garwood and from there went to Cranford, Kenilworth and Roselle, the nominee making brief addresses at each place.

Drillmakers Laid Off.

Stewartsville, Oct. 29.—The large plant of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Company, near here, has given further evidence of a depression in its business. The 2,500 men employed in the various departments are now only working five days, or fifty hours, per week. A large number of the employes were laid off. It is not stated how long the new order will remain in force, but it is thought that the short-time rule will be maintained until the first of the new year.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Very little farming is carried on to any extent in this vicinity, and the farmers who once attended Farmers' Institute have long since passed away. John Geary and Thomas Saverd still continue to do a large trucking business, but the help is hard to get, and incompetent at that, so that many times they are almost tempted to give up farming in dispair. All the farmers along Plainfield avenue have either given up farming, died or moved away. Mr. Meeker made the first break, followed by Mr. Quinn. Mr. Forte died. Mr. Jones has sold his farm, and Joel Manning has rented his farm and will shortly remove to Plainfield.

The recent heavy rain has filled the lakes to almost overflowing. It was necessary to raise the gates to prevent the water doing much damage.

Prayer service will be held this evening at 7.45. The pastor will speak upon the topic, "The Unmerciful Servant."

Great preparations are now in progress for the firemen's ball to be held on Election eve.

A Democratic mass meeting will be held in Washington hall on Friday evening.

GOTHAM'S AMSUEMENTS

"Lola from Berlin," the new successful music play by John J. McNally, William Jerome and Jean Schwartz, in which Klaw & Erlanger present Miss Lulu Glaser and company, including Ralph C. Herz, at the Grand, for one week beginning last night, is a distinct departure for both star and authors. It will introduce Miss Glaser in a quaintly humorous character part with a German dialect, and in constructing the piece is held strictly within the boundaries of legitimately comedy lines. The play will tell a delightful little story, simple, but very interesting. It will be staged in three acts, and in addition to this, seven musical numbers will be rendered, which consistently belong to the situations in which they are placed. Klaw & Erlanger have given the new piece a most elaborate production and in addition to a cast of notable principals, will present a chorus of the prettiest girls imaginable, who will appear with Miss Glaser in the several musical numbers.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Round Up," which was transferred to the Broadway theatre a week ago last Monday evening, began the third week of its run at this house last night. This is the greatest dramatic hit of the season in New York. Its remarkable success shows the desire of the theatre-going public for strong plays of genuine human interest. That it meets this demand is the secret of its phenomenal public favor. The Indian battle in the third act is the greatest feature of this kind ever presented on the stage and far surpasses in thrilling realism the battle scenes in all plays in American stage history. The scene is a wonderfully graphic stage picture and is a photographically true representation of the bad lands of Arizona. The opening incident in this act is the appearance of sixteen mounted Apache Indians moving along a cliff on the mountain. This is a thrill in itself, the Indians appearing riding on a ledge of rock at least thirty feet above the stage level. The matinee performances Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are largely attended by women and children who greatly enjoy the wild west scenes, the bucking horses and the battle.

Henry Miller is making arrangements to send Henry Woodruff in "Brown of Harvard," the "original college play," to London next summer. By then Mr. Woodruff will have appeared in this lively and sparkling comedy three seasons, during which time he will have presented it in every principal American city from coast to coast and from the lakes to the gulf. Gaston Mayer, who controls the Adelphi and Royalty theatres, London, is very anxious to secure the play for one of his houses and is coming to New York in December expressly to see Mr. Miller about the matter and make final arrangements. Notwithstanding the failure of "Strongheart" in London, Mr. Mayer is convinced that "Brown of Harvard" would be successful there, being a more typical American play, and because the story revolves about a boat race between a Harvard and an English crew, and because of the great personal popularity of Henry Woodruff in the world's metropolis. Henry Miller will be appearing in "The Great Divide" in London at the same time Mr. Woodruff is playing "Brown of Harvard" there.

CONDITIONS ON MARS.

Days and Years and Light and Heat on the Red Planet.

The days in Mars are of about the same length as ours—24 hours, 39 minutes, 23 seconds. Mars makes her orbit around the sun in a little more than 686 days; therefore the seasons are almost twice as long as they are with us. The atmosphere of Mars is rich in watery vapors. Oceans can be seen, and at the poles thick ice, which melts when summer comes. The variations in temperature are extreme. Mars receives only half as much solar heat as our globe does. The sun appears half as large, and the nights receive their light from two moons, which are smaller than ours—Deimos and Phobos.

The weight is such that one of our kilograms would only weigh 376 grams there. A man is only able to carry his own weight on his back. Transported to Mars, he could carry three times as much, something like 225 kilos. In taking observations of Mars through the telescope one can see a distinct red disk, marked with more or less brilliant spots. Some of the spots which are greenish are the oceans; other very red ones are the continents, greater in extent than the oceans, which is the opposite to the way the earth is disposed. The most brilliant spots are the ice covered regions of the poles and the clouds are almost equally bright. The atmosphere of Hars is more transparent than ours, and its sky is incomporably clear.

The waters of Mars are more divided and disturbed in inland seas joined by long arms, which are sometimes incurving, but oftenest almost rectilinear, and which mark the brilliant surface with dark lines, just as the line of lead devides the panes of glass in our church windows. All these dark lines form a pattern which is relatively symmetcical and which does not seem to have been made by chance. A plan so regular must have been designed, and for a long time the observers of Mars have been disposed to consider these lines as canals dug by the inhabitants of the planet for the needs of their civilization.—Charles Torquet in Metropolitan Magazine.

RARE HALF DOLLARS.

Good Specimen of Those Dated 1796 and 1797 Are Valuable.

The half dollar is one of the most plentiful of all the series of United States coins, having been issued regularly each year with but five exceptions since the coinage of the denomination first began in 1794. These exceptions were the years 1798, 1799, 1900, 1808 and 1816.

This is the reason why so few of them are rare nowadays and that many specimens of the early dates are to be had for little more than face value in a condition that would indicate they were only a year or two old, instead of dating back nearly a hundred years, as many do.

Altogether there have been issued 235 varieties of the half dollar, and all of the branch mints have struck coins in this denominations, except those of Dahlonega, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C., which were authorized to strike only gold coins.

The very rare half dollars are those dated 1796 and 1797. Of those of 1796 there are two varieties, one with fifteen stars on the obverse around the bust of Liberty, the other with sixteen stars. Each of these two varieties has brought over $100 when in perfect condition.

The 1797 half dollar is the next rarest, and a very fine specimen of this coin has brought as much as $120. The next rarest is the 1838 half dollar struck at New Orleans, with the mint letter "O" under the bust. This coin is worth from $50 to $75. Another rare half dollar was struck at the San Francisco mint in 1866. This coin omits the motto of "In God We Trust," which is boren by all the other varieties of the year, and is valued at $24.—Elder Monthly.

Toilers and Idlers.

A farmer, a journalist, and a lover of music is the author of "Toilers and Idlers," published this fall by Wilshire Book Co., New York. His name is John R. McMahon. He took up the piano a number of years ago on account, he says, of the favorable size of his hands; but his capacity to reach two octaves or so is counterbalanced by an awkwardness due to rural pursuits. As a matter of fact, agriculture and music are his ideals, but literature is his profession.

OFFICE OF THE STREET COMMISSIONER.

City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

To JOHN I. BREWSTER, or unknown owner of No. 700 to No. 706 East Seventh Street.

Pursuant to the requirements of Sections 3 and 6 of the ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled: "An Ordinance concerning the construction, maintenance and repair of sidewalks," approved April 10, 1899, amended by ordinances approved August 4, 1902, June 6, 1905, June 6, 1906.

You are hereby notified and required on or before December 1, 1907, to construct a sidewalk abutting on the premises owned by you, situate No. 700 to number 706 East Seventh Street, in the City of Plainfield, Union County, and State of New Jersey, which sidewalk shall be constructed of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner; the flags shall not be less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, nor less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part.

In default of compliance herewith, the Common Council is authorized by law to order the required work to be done and paid for; to make the amount of the expense and cost a lien upon the said abutting lands in front of which said work is done, to be collected in the manner provided by law and to bear interest at the same rate as other assessments; or payment may be enforced by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided by the statute.

ANDREW J. GAVETT,
Street Commissioner of the City of Plainfield.

"What do wild animals do when they are hunted? Take to the water!" remarks Burton. "That leaves no trail. Do you think, Anstruther, that you can navigate a yacht?"

"Do you think that you can shoot a pistol straight?" growls the British naval officer.

"Very well. A yacht will be waiting for us, engaged by Emory. There will be nothing but English seamen on board, not over many of them. We'll put the girls on board to-night. We're both armed and our party will not be noticed driving on the Prado, where everybody drives. In a little bay, as I have arranged it, off the Corniche road, near the Bains du Roucas Blanc, a boat will be waiting. There we'll put the ladies on board and sail away. Then who'll be able to tell where we go to?"

Edwin rises, but at the door, which had been left open so that the gentlemen could keep their eye on the passage to Marina's room, he turns, and noting Barnes' longing eyes directed toward his sister, says with sailor bluntness: "Old man, you seem to think of everybody but yourself in this matter. Are you aware that this projected cruise won't permit you and Enid to be spliced in London in three days from now?"

"I had not forgotten that," replies Burton. "How could I?" His eyes still on his beautiful fiancee, who, notwithstanding her anxiety and trouble, looks lovely as a goddess and tempting as a nymph.

"Well," says the sailor, "we jacktars have a custom of getting married before we start on a cruise. There are ministers in Marseilles as well as London." Then Edwin Anstruther walks off, leaving Mr. Barnes confronted with a young lady whose lilies have changed to roses and—the greatest temptation of his life.

The poor fellow thinks of the damnable document he has in his pocket, proclaiming death to the unfortuate woman who marries him; he remembers Mateo's horrible statements as to the fate of females marrying into a blood feud and forces the desire from his eyes.

His embarrassment is increased by the superb manner of his fiancee.

Then Mr. Anstruther Walks Off, Leaving Mr. Barnes Confronted with a Young Lady Whose Lilies Have Changed to Roses and—the Greatest Temptation of His Life—

Without a word she walks up to Barnes and unaffectedly tenders him her lips.

"Don't think me forward," she whispers sweetly, "but if you think you can take better care of me as your wife—if you feel very much disappointed at the—the delay." Her words are faltered out bashfully.

The accursed warning—threatening death to her he marries—rustles in his pocketbook as he crushes her to his breast. It stays the mad rush of his passion. He forces himself to calmness and whispers, his face pale, his lips contorted: "For God's sake, don't misunderstand me. I love you more dearly than ever, but until this affair is settled, it would be an infamy if I married you."

"Good heavens! You fear they are going to kill you?"

"No, if there is any killing to be done, I propose to do it." For an instant he is about to show her the infernal document. His hand is already on his breast pocket, when it stops, palsied. Barnes remembers the impulsive courage of his betrothed. "My Lord, if she saw this," he thinks, "Enid would insist on marrying me offhand. She'd think it her duty to stand as my wife in the front of the skirmish and defy them." He says slowly, almost brokenly: "You must trust me in this matter, dear one. Only never doubt my love."

"Oh, that would be too horrible," she falters, "Burton, that would break my heart. You know more about the affair than I. You are the best judge." Her lips are tendered to him again, but Barnes notes with a sigh their salute is colder, and that tears are very near the divine eyes of Enid Anstruther.

Away from him, she wrings her white hands, and in the solitude of her chamber, wails: "Oh, everything seems to be changed since yesterday." Then the natural pride of the maiden coming to her, she says haughtily to herself: "The next proposition as to the naming of the wedding day shall come from you, Mr. Barnes of New York.

CHAPTER III.

Playing the Enemies' Game.

Mr. Barnes attempts to forget his postponed nuptials in arranging the details of his darling's safety. Emory shortly brings to him an old canceled check upon a branch of the Credit Lyonnais bearing the signature of Corregio Cipriano Danella, but comparing it with Marina's mutilated note and also the warning sent to him, the American cannot be certain of the handwriting.

"Perhaps it has been disguised in both the epistles," suggests the detective, and continues his report. "As far as I can find from a clerk in the telegraph office, Rue de la Republic, that I have sometimes hired before in such matters, there was a long cable came from Bernardo Saliceti at Ajaccio to Corregio Danella late yesterday evening. It stated that you and your party were to arrive on the Constantine; that you by your arts had murdered his brother, and that Madame Anstruther, for the defense of her husband against the just vengeance of Tomasso Monaldi, had produced his shooting by De Belloc's cavalrymen. This is only as the operator remembered it. My emissary didn't dare to try and get a duplicate of the dispatch, which was already on file. The French government keeps a sharp eye upon its telegraph offices."

"Isn't it curious," asks Burton, "that there is no account yet of the Corsican tragedy in the French journals here?"

"Politics!" answers the detective. "There is an election here shortly, and they fear some complication with the English government. I doubt if you will hear of the affair in an official way—at all events not till after the election for deputies. Perhaps that's what makes young Saliceti so eager to do you up. If he stood as a representative of the time-honored vendetta every rustic commune in his island would give him its vote."

"That being the case," says Barnes, "we have only ourselves to rely upon. Have you made all arrangements about the yacht?"

"Yes, I've got the schooner Seagull, Mr. William Jameson, Glasgow, chartered for three weeks. Jameson is returning to Scotland and is very willing to lease the boat. We have cleared her for Naples. Crew of six men and mate, all Scotch. The captain, as I told you before, has gone to England, so your naval lieutenant must act as your navigator. She is found as to stores for crew, but as you have suggested, I have put ice and cabin supplies on board, according to the memorandum you gave me."

"Then I think we'll be able to live very comfortably for a couple of weeks," observes Barnes, meditatively, lighting a cigar.

"The Seagull has already dropped out of the Vieux port, where she was laying and she will be off the Corniche road as you directed. I'll have a boat on shore at the Roucas Blanc."

"Then the next thing is to get the ladies on board, and that, of course, we cannot do until after dark," remarks Burton. "You had best not be seen about here any more, Emory, but you had better be on board the Seagull when we arrive there, so as to turn the vessel over to me. See who arrives on the next steamer from either Bastia or Ajaccio, and if this Bernardo Saliceti turns up, notify me if there is any meeting between him and Danella."

"Yes, I'll shadow everything, even you," chuckles the sleuth, grimly. "By the by, here's Perrier's address in Nice. He is quite often there. You will find him, for a French mouchard, perfectly reliable."

"Engage two trustworthy men," said Barnes, "to follow our carriage on horseback this evening. I must take no chances with the ladies in our company." Then Barnes goes off to Lady Chartris' parlor to make some necessary financial arrangements with that lady.

Mr. Barnes has scarcely finished these and Lady Chartris has carried away his check delighted, when Maud bounces in upon him, her eyes big with excitement and mystery. "Gee, Marina is a case!" she whispers.

"Why?" asks Burton, glancing sharply at her.

For All The Family

Here is a strength-giver and health-creator that should be in every family medicine chest.

Many a father suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion has found that Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge corrects the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, weight at the pit of the stomach, want of assimilation of food and consequent weakness, and made life worth living to him. Many a feeble, tired and dispirited mother has found its mild tonic influence of much benefit—aiding her digestion, giving tone to her stomach and strength to her system.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

is a splendid children's tonic, improving the digestion and assimilation of food, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating and restoring perfect health. There is no tonic more scientifically suited to regular family needs. It is a safe Worm Cure.

If you lack the enjoyment of perfect health, ask your druggist for a bottle of Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge. All good druggists sell and frankly recommend it, because they know what it does for their customers. Sold in single size bottles at 35 cents; double size bottles, 50 cts.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One of the most striking successes of the present season in the melodramatic field is said to be the new play in which the talented young actor, Joseph Santley, is now appearing, "Billy the Kid." The play is reported to tell a powerful story and to tell it well with comedy scenes and adventure enough to satisfy the most captious. Play and star are announced for the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

Promise of keenest enjoyment is given in the performance at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night of Henry W. Savage's company in the new English comic opera, "Tom Jones," which will be presented by a big company and with a special orchestra. The local public knows the standard of Mr. Savage's attractions. "Tom Jones" is his latest offering. It is a new English comic opera, with a story based on Fielding's famous novel. The narrative is decidedly interesting, dealing, as it does, with Eighteenth Century persons and incidents. There is a fund of comedy alternating with decided dramatic strength, and with this is a music score of especial charm.

One of the interesting episodes in the melodrama—"A Millionaire's Revenge," is a unique supper which the gilded geese and "men about town" call little parties. It is held in a studio at midnight, away up in a tower, two hundred feet above the beat of the police. The atmosphere suggests Bohemia and the Red Cafe. There are thirteen at the table; for youth, beauty, brilliancy and folly the pick of a great city. A huge pie is placed upon the table and the subdued strains of a hidden orchestra waft in the merry notes of an old song—"Four and Twenty Blackbirds." The pie is gradually opened and from the center slowly rises the form of a beautiful girl—almost a child. She is dressed in a gauze which floats in the air like a vision. Presently the girl steps upon the table. Thirteen revellers are entranced. They hail her Queen of the Orge. There are fourteen now, and the toast is, "Women and Wine." The girl is very happy that night. The men throw gold at her and she is the most beautiful thing in the great city. Before the morning dawns, the doves fly away from her and today she is a broken-hearted woman. "As ye sow, so shall ye reap." "A Millionaire's Revenge" is billed to play at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night.

Those who remember James O'Neill as leading man in prominent stock companies both in the East and West, also with Edwin Forrest, Edwin Booth, Barry Sullivan, Charlotte Cushman and Adelaide Neilsen, some twenty-five years ago, and his fine interpretation of Shakespearian and other classical roles, have often expressed a desire once more to see his "Virginius" with the added finish of the experience and study of intervening years. All must recognize in his rare elocutionary powers, magnetic personality and intellectual reading, gifts which fit him pre-eminently for the part of the heroic Roman father so beautifully drawn by Sheridan Knowles. Mr. O'Neill has been appearing during a run at the Lyric theatre, New York, to large and enthusiastic audiences who are demonstrative at each performance in showing their admiration for this sterling actor of recognized ability and genius. Mr. O'Neill has been secured to appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night.

Local theatre patrons will be afforded an opportunity next Monday night of witnessing a highly artistic and enjoyable presentation of the greatest emotional drama, "Monte Cristo" with a complete scenic production, by Joseph King's New York company. The performance throughout is maintained at a high standard of artistic excellence. Nothing has been left undone in the way of scenic aids and accessories and competent stage direction will insure a harmonious performance.

Making War Maps In Jersey.

For the purpose of making maps, showing where regiments could be mobilized in the hills in the event of war, and also for a land garrison to strengthen Fort Hancock at Sandy Hook, eight government employes from the War Department are making surveys at Navesink, Locust Point and Brown's Dock and Atlantic Highlands. The party his its headquarters in tents on the grounds of Dr. A. P. Edwards at Locust Point.

Murphy Laid Up.

Ex-Governor Murphy, chairman of the Republican State Committee, is confined to his bed in his Newark home by an injury to his right knee. He was injured at the Essex county convention in September by a fall and since then has been obliged to do the work of the campaign on crutches. The trouble became aggravated by Mr. Murphy's activity, and now it is likely that he will not be able to take part in the active work again during the campaign.

Raymond Coriell, formerly of this city, who has been visiting friends here, has returned to his home at Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will hold a Hallowe'en social in the lecture room of the church tonight at 8 o'clock. All young people of the church and congregation are invited.

GOLF.

Later advices from Boston concerning the tri-city golf competition for the Robert W. Lesley cup, finished Saturday on the links of the Country Club of Brookline, show that nothing sensational was accomplished in the way of scoring. It had been expected that when the picked players of New York and Philadelphia clashed something out of the ordinary would be accomplished, but, on the contrary, the golf as a rule was mediocre.

The best complete foursome scores of the afternoon were credited to Ward and Douglas and Reid and Whitlatch, both returning 77s. Whitlatch and Arden Robbins were substituted for Herreshoff and Peters. The Douglas-Ward combination beat Edwards and Alcorn 2 up and 1 to play, while Reid and Whitlach won by 6 up and 5 to play over Kemble and Clements.

The gallery in the afternoon again paid homage to the champion, who was paired with Graham against McFarland and Carr. The metropolitan pair turned for home 1 up, having gone out in 41, to 42 for the Quakers. Travers and Graham finally won by 4 up and 3 to play.

Abbott and Robbins fitted well together, going out in 38, against Service and Pfell. The pace was also fast coming home, and when the New Yorkers finished 3 up on the sixteenth green their card showed even 4s for the in holes, so that had they played the bye holes they would have had an excellent chance for 74.

Travis and Brokaw, who defeated Perrin and Tillinghast by 3 up and 2 to play, also went fast. Their card read 39 for the first half, and a good finish would have given them a 76. It can be seen by this that none of the winning pairs was hard pressed.

Now that the New Yorkers have been so unexpectedly successful at the old-fashioned foursomes, the chances are that they will look more favorably on this style of match in the future. Golfers in Scotland claim that to play foursomes well is the highest test in the game.

The second annual championship tournament of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association will begin at the Country Club of Brookline today. Alec Smith, of Nassau, is the title holder, having won a year ago at the Forest Hill Field Club. Conditions call for thirty-six holes of medal play to-day for the championship proper. The program is as follows: Tuesday, October 29—Thirty-six holes medal play for the association championship. First prize, championship medal and $100; second, $80; third, $70; fourth, $50; fifth, $30; sixth, $20; seventh, $10; eighth, $10. Wednesday, October 30—Four-ball foursomes for professionals only. First prize, $50; second, $30; third, $20. Thursday, October 31—Four-ball foursomes for professional and amateurs. Prizes to be announced later. It is the wish of the Country Club golf committee to have professionals bring their amateur partners with them if possible. An entrance fee of $2.50 will be charged to amateurs.

Entries will close today for the thirteenth semi-annual competition of the University Club, to be held at St. Andrews tomorrow. There will be the usual 36-hole medal play handicap, for which gross and net score prizes have been offered. About fifty starters are expected.

"SPIKES" IS INTERVIEWED ABOUT HOLY CROSS CLUB

"Yes, Saturday was a strenuous day for Holy Cross Club; I thing so." said Spikes, whose long suit is philosophy and silver speech.

"Was it indeed!"

"I think it was!"

"What happened?"

"Well, you see, it was this way—we had a football game in the afternoon and a club meeting in the evening. There was something doing at each event."

"Did Holy Cross win? Sure, I think they did, score 37-0, and the trick was easy. Gee! but you should have seen 'Goat-hill!' Who? O, yes, Nash. He thought it was a game of pick-up-and-carry and tried to carry the Ashland Club feller who had the ball over our line for a touchdown. But the referee said it was straight football, gave the ball to Orange and penalized us half the distance of the field. Lots of fun? Sure, but I yelled so I couldn't sing my solo Sunday night. Wait till we meet Hudson River Military Academy though on Wednesday afternoon! There won't be any chip carrying business then. Looks to me more like wrestling with a load of bricks."

"The evening meeting! Heard I was fined ten cents? Yes, I think I was. You see there's some fun in putting it all over the other fellows and forty or more of us were at the club meeting later and our enthusiasm made the rooms a little warm, but ten cents all around cleared the atmosphere.

"Say, but that was a good meeting! The secretary's report showed a membership of over fifty boys in the club and active work being done by the various committees. The treasurer reported a very comfortable balance in the treasury and more due in the way of fees and fines. Yes, my ten goes in too.

"The membership committee reported eight new names for membership. The club balloted on 'em right there. Six were received, one rejected and one carried over till next meeting. The athletic committee reported the schedule of football games and received the names of candidates for the basketball teams. The entertainment committee reported that three plays would be given by the fellers in the club rooms in November. We'll use the proceeds for general club purposes. The plays are 'A dinner for two;' 'a little more cider,' and 'Box and Cox.'

"The club button? Yes, it is pretty. That's what the girls think, I'm told. Teacher at the high school asked if girls were members of the club. I wonder why? O, you think it is because the girls wear the pins. Well, I think it is well, so long. I'm off for choir practice. Come and see us in the brick wrestling contest Wednesday afternoon. Time? 3:30. But keep outside the lines. I nearly lost my top piece Saturday."

LOCAL BOWLERS ORGANIZE

Five Men Team City Championship Tourney to Be Arranged.

10 TEAMS TO COMPETE

Francis J. Blatz Elected President of New Organization and Judge Runyon Heads Executive Committee.

With the organization of a bowling club at the Plainfield Academy, last night, the membership rolls of which will include about seventy-five local pin-smashers, interest in bowling will be maintained in this city during the winter by a five men team city championship bowling tournament to be started within two weeks. There were about sixty bowling enthusiasts at the meeting, and with John Campbell as temporary chairman, Francis J. Blatz was elected president of the club. Subsequent balloting resulted in the election of Charles W. Runyon as vice president, John Campbell as treasurer and V. W. Nash, Jr., as recording secretary.

The object of the organization, as stated at the meeting, is the formation of ten teams to compete for the bowling title of this city. Plans for conducting the tournament were discussed and it was decided to turn the matter over to an executive committee to be appointed by the president. Mr. Blatz announced this committee today to consist of City Judge William N. Runyon, chairman; Chief P. S. Kiely, Thomas M. Muir, Harry Van Emburgh and William Schaub, of Raritan. These men will hold a meeting within a few days at which time ten local bowlers with the best records on the alleys will be chosen. These will act as captains of ten teams to be formed. A membership and entry fee of $2 will be charged to all who wish to join these teams and the names of these entered will be drawn from a hat by the captains of the various teams in order at a meeting to be held some time after November 9, when the players' entries close. The teams thus formed will compete for the local bowling championship, match games to be played on the Plainfield Academy alleys on Second street.

In this way it is believed that the good players will be distributed among the ten teams and better sport can be secured. The executive committee has been empowered to arrange a schedule and lay down necessary rules for conducting the tournament. Entries are coming in fast and it is believed that there may be bowlers enough to form more than the ten teams. The organization is to hold monthly meetings.

LEALS OUTCLASSED IN GAME WITH Y. M. C. A. FIVE

The Leal's school basketball team scored five points from fouls in their first game of the season at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night, while the association five ran up a total of thirty-seven points. Outclassing the school boys in every department of the game, the Y. M. C. A. players shot baskets almost at will, netting the ball seventeen times during the game. Collier, of last year's five, shot seven baskets, Rumsey four and each of the other players made points from the floor.

The game was marked by individual playing on both sides, and neither team showed especially good team work. The passing was loose and at times even careless. The Y. M. C. A. five started off with a rush, and had amassed twenty-five points at the end of the first half, while Duke had caged the ball once from the foul line for Leals. Both teams made fouls freely during the entire game. The teams lined up as follows:

Y. M. C. A.—Gilmore, lf; Rumsey, Collier, rf; Collier, Rumsey, c; Gavett, lg; Hoagland, Loixeaux, Rumsey, rg.

Leals — Rushmore, lf; Duke (Capt.), Martin, Campbell, rf; Brown, c; Martin, Dallas, lg; Laurence, Duke, rg.

Baskets from the floor: Collier, 7; Rumsey, 4; Gilmore, 2; Hoagland, 2; Gavett, Loizeaux. Goals from fouls: Duke, 4; Collier, Gavett, Gilmore. Y. M. C. A. was awarded two points for foul on man shooting, and Leals got one point in the same way. Referee, C. B. Morse; umpire, P. B. Allen; timer, Howard Ladd. Fifteen and twenty minute halves.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Leal's school boys were outclassed in their game with the Y. M. C. A., last night, but showed up pretty well on the floor for a scholastic team. Duke and Brown are the only two members who played with Leal's last year, and Laurence had never played in a game before. But practise has done lots for the team, which will yet play fast basketball with school teams.

John Loizeaux was in the game with the Y. M. C. A. five for the first this season, last night. He has just returned from a business trip and will be with the association team for the rest of the season.

The P. H. S. girls will start their basketball season with a game with the Westfield high school girls at the school gymnasium here tomorrow afternoon. The local high school five held the title of State champions last season, and there is fast material in the school this year for another winning team.

The Holy Cross choir boys will play the football eleven from the New York Military Academy on the Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon at 3:30.

Local bowling has been given a new impetus by the movement started last night for a five men city championship tourney. The captains of the ten teams will be announced within a few days.

Miss Edna Wildey and Miss Natalie Wildey, of the Plainfield Country Club, lost their match at Orange Saturday, when matched against a pair from Orange for the runner-up title in the women's tennis tournament given by the Orange Lakn Tennis Club.

The Perth Amboy high school football team has cancelled the game scheduled with the city high school eleven for Saturday on Hope Common. Manager Parsons is trying to secure a game in place of the one cancelled.

KID GLOVES SAVE HIS LIFE.

Elizabeth Man Has a Narrow Escape from Being Fatally Burned By Electricity.

Elizabeth, Oct. 29.—A pair of kid gloves probably saved Charles Stamler, a dry goods clerk, on East Jersey street, Elizabethport, from being shocked to death Sunday by electricity. He was passing Third street at Broadway just as a trolley car came along, and, waiting to let it pass, started to go around its rear end.

The pole of the car in some way got entangled in the guard wire, which broke and fell to the street and in its descent crossed the feed wire, which was heavily charged with electricity, and communicated it to the broken wire. This struck Stamler, knocking him flat and badly buring him across the face and neck. He pushed the deadly wire from him with gloved hands and then regained his feet. A flame more than a foot high leaped from the broken wire before the current was shut off. The young man went to the nearest physician to have his burns cared for.

Second Sighter Hit It.

South River, Oct. 29.—George La Vee, a barber, of Main street, while at a second-sight entertainment of the Fays a couple of years ago was told that his long-lost brother, whom he had not heard of in twenty years, was working in a surveying party on the Mexican Central Railroad. He wrote to the railroad people, learned that his brother had been working there, buf had left, and since then he has been tracing him up. Yesterday he was reunited to his brother, who received some of his letters and came on unannounced to give him a surprise. The brother left home when thirteen years old.

PUBLIC COMMISSION SHOULD MANAGE HOSPITAL IF PEOPLE ARE TO BE TAXED FOR ITS BENEFIT

Former Mayor Buckle Takes that View and Former Senator Reed Agrees With Him—Former Mayor Randolph and Wm. M. Stillman Agree With A. H. Atterbury.

SOME STRONG PROTESTS

Prominent Citizens Arouse the Voters to the Importance of the Question to Be Sumbitted At the Polls Tuesday.

In the fight to elect the county and State tickets, local voters have almost lost sight of the fact that on Tuesday next a proposition will be submitted to the people to include Muhlenberg Hospital in the city tax budget. The scheme is to levy a tax of one-third of a mill on the $100. Aside from the fact that it is a serious question whether such an innovation would be legal, some promiwise and unjust under present conditions.

Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mr. Randolph's Objection.

When former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph's attention was called to the argument of Albert H. Atterbury against the scheme presented through the columns of this paper, he warmly approved of Mr. Atterbury's stand.

"I consider it an unfortunate proposition. It is not in harmony with the true genius of republican institutions. It would be a departure leading on to other errors in the direction of loading the taxpayers with burdens they should not bear. On its moral merits, it might be worthier than some of the taxes now imposed, but on principle we cannot afford to agree to such departures.

"It is no more according to the essence of our democratic plan of government to support hospitals by tax, than to support in the same fashion hotels, or trolley lines, or Sunday-schools. They are all good and must be provided for by private enterprise. If we force into our tax system expenses not suitable thus to be raised, if we oblige property owners to disgorge whether they will or not, money needed for general utility or for public charity, we shall in no very long time find this whole scheme of paternalization tumbling about our heads, and our government credit in ruin.

"Our municipal gvoernment already goes much too far in imposing taxes. Our taxes are increasing by leaps and bounds. The condition is burdensome, the tendency is disastrous. No taxpayer likes it, but the taxpayer lacks organization, and the 'organization' bleeds the taxpayer. If it were the last thing I were saying to my fellow citizens in the town in which my childhood was passed and most of my life has been spent, I would say once more, throw off the yoke, reconstitute your party, and let economy, ability and honesty prevail. Decrease the burden of taxation and let there be no more piling up of municipal indebtedness to hang as a shadow against the sunlight of the city's hopes."

Mr. Buckle's Plan.

Former Mayor James F. Buckle, who has had some experience as a member of the Hospital's Board of Governors, today declared himself as opposed to the proposition on its face.

"To me it looks like 'taxation without representation,'" he said. "The hospital is a fine charity but I don't believe in using public money for such a purpose when the city has no voice in its management. My plan is that the hospital to get public funds should be controlled by the city. A commission of say five members should be appointed in place of the present private board and the nominations should be made by the Mayor subject to the approval of the Common Council. A small body of managers accountable to the city would be far better. I don't care how few they make it; only let it be managed by the city. There is no justification for an argument that it would become a political body any more than there is to charge the Board of Education with being a political commission. That's my idea of it and I expressed my views at a meeting of the city commission the other night when the subject was considered."

Mr. Reed Approves Plan.

Former State Senator Charles Arthur Reed took the same view practically. Like Mayor Buckle he is in hearty sympathy with the plan to obtain general support for the institution, but he does not believe that taxation should be used for such purposes unless the municipal authorities have a voice in its management.

"It ought to be run like a bank; have a board of nine or less members and let the city name the members too. Under present conditions only a few citizens give much support to the hospital although all are permitted to share in its benefits. It is a very worthy institution and deserves support from the city treasury, but as I say I think that its management should be under the control of the city at the same time. No, I don't think politics would have any effect. I would not like to see that and I don't think it would occur. But I do think, just as Mayor Buckle does, that there should be a public commission or in other words that the people should have a voice in its management."

Mr. Pearson Urges Tax.

Edward C. Pearson, of 817 Second place, takes the opposite view. In a communication to The Daily Press he says:

"The point of Mr. Atterbury's objection to an increase of the city's contribution seems to be that a hospital in its nature is necessarily a charitable institution, and that it should be supported solely by individual gifts. This does not seem to me well taken. In many of the cities of the United States hospitals are public charges, and there is no good reason why the collective action of society for the aid and betterment of those incapable in whole or part to provide for themselves should not take this direction as well as many another which no one thinks of challenging. Besides it is not proposed to 'saddle' the support of the hospital on the city, as Mr. Atterbury elegantly expresses it; far from it.

"There is no danger that money raised by taxes will be applied by the hospital authorities to the care of patients who are able to pay for its advantages. The small amount which is asked for will not pauperize the institution, nor should it result in any diminution of individual contributions. Divided among the taxpayers the amount added to each one will be so small as to be inappreciable. The citizens of Plainfield are justly proud of the hospital and its work, and I trust no one will be deterred by Mr. Atterbury's long argument from voting favorably on the proposition to increase the amount to be annually paid by the city towards its maintenance."

[If Mr. Pearson will carefully read Mr. Atterbury's letter he will find that the argument is made that the hospital here is a private charity; not a public one like Bellevue Hospital in New York.Ed.]

Mr. Stillman's Views.

"I would respectfully protest against the city of Plainfield aiding Muhlenberg Hospital by raising an annual sum for its support by tax-

DIRECT PRIMARIES A LAW

Provision for Popular Election of the United States Senators on Statute Books.

A DOZEN BILLS SIGNED

Important Bills Sanctioned by Stokes Were New Idea Measures—Publicity for Contract Bids.

Governor Stokes signed yesterday a dozen bills passed at the last session of the Legislature. Among them were the measures providing for the popular choice of United States Senators, and for the nomination of candidates for office by direct vote of the people at the primaries. Both were New Idea measures, finally passed on the last night of the session.

The direct primary law was a committee substitute for the two bills introduced by Senator Colby and Senator Hinchliffe. The Colby bill provided that the direct primary system should be applicable to the selection of candidates for Governor, Presidential electors, Representatives and delegates to a constitutional convention, as well as to other elective county and municipal officers. The committee substitute eliminated from its provisions those officers. It provides that when petitions of not less than one hundred voterss are filed for a candidate for a county office his name shall be printed on the official ballot, and on a petition of not less than fifty voters the name of a candidate for a municipal office shall also be printed on the ballot. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes at the primaries is to be declared the party nominee.

Senator Colby on the last day of the session introduced the bill signed yesterday providing for a popular expression in the selection of United States Senators. It provides that not fewer than one thousand voters of a political party may file a petition with the Secretary of State indorsing any member of their party as a candidate for United States Senator. In filing his acceptance of a nomination for State Senator or Assemblyman a candidate may sign and file a copy of one of two statements. The first of these pledges him, regardless of personal preference, to vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest number of votes in his party at the primary election in the county, and the second pledges him to vote for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in the party in the State.

Ripper Bill Amendment Signed.

The Governor also signed Assemblyman Sullivan's bill amending the so-called Jersey City ripper act by eliminating from its provisions the financial officers of Jersey City and Newark. The original ripper bill made the terms of all city officials expire contemporaneously with those of the Mayor. It was designed primarily to end the terms of all the present city officials of Jersey City in the event of the Fagan administration being terminated.

Another bill signed by the Governor was designed to make the National Guard law of the State conform to the provisions of the Dick military bill, in order that the State might continue to receive from the government the appropriations for its militia provided for in the Dick measure. To do this it was necessary that the law should be amended prior to a certain date in next January. It was discovered, however, immediately after the Governor signed the bill yesterday, that there is no provision making it take effect immediately. Under the State constitution all laws, unless otherwise specified, become effective on July 4 following the date of their approval. The new law will, therefore, apparently fail in its purpose.

The Governor also signed the following bills:

By Mr. Robbins, providing that all contracts for State work exceeding $500 shall be advertised for.

By Mr. Bradley, appropriating $10,000 for operating the new electric plant now being installed in the death house in the State Prison.

By Mr. Bradley, validating the resolutions under which the Senate and House appointed separately investigating committees and authorizing the committees to sit after the adjournment of the Legislature, and to exercise all the powers confetred upon them by the resolutions under which they were created.

By Mr. Silzer, amending the school law by providing for the filling of vacancies on boards of school estimate.

By Mr. Barber, making it a misdemeanor to aid any inmate of the State Home for Girls in escaping from the institution.

MANDY DUNHAM THREATENS TO USE A PISTOL AGAIN

Mrs. Mandy Dunham, a well-known colored woman, appeared in the city court this morning to prefer charges of assault and disorderly conduct against her son, George Cline.

"It's hard to have your boy arrested," she said to Judge Runyon, "but he certainly is a bad one and if the police don't take hold of him I'll be compelled to do what I did once before."

"What was that?" Judge Runyon asked.

"Why, I shot him," Mandy exclaimed with a toss of her head. "Deed I did, Judge. I put a bullet right into his body and they had me in jail at Elizabeth for it, but friends got me out. He pestered and pounded me."

Mandy received assurance from His Honor that the undutiful George would be apprehended and punished sufficiently to satisfy her that she won't have to use a pistol again.

GIFT OF LOVING CUP AT GOLDEN WEDDING

The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, last evening, at their home on Mercer avenue was an occasion full of reminiscent and present charm. It recalled the marriage of David Nevius Groendyke, of New York, and Jennie Hegeman, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hegeman, at Lamington, N. J., October 29, 1857.

The beautiful home last evening, appropriately decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and enlivened with strains of music from a violin and harp, made a pretty setting for the groups of relatives and old time friends who presented their congratulations to the bride and groom of 1857.

The affair was a surprise arranged by the family of Mr. and Mrs. Groendyke, and a pleasant surprise to them was the presentation of a gold loving cup containing fifty exquisite roses, the gift of intimate friends for many years. James R. Joy made the presentation in a speech full of happy allusions and congratulatory wishes. Supper was served at small tables. Relatives from New York, New Germantown, Cranford, Bethlehem and Somerville were present.

PIANO FOR COUPLE THIRTY YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Snyder, Jr., of 30 Bank place, celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding, last night, a feature of which was the presentation of a player piano. During the evening there were piano solos by Mrs. Henry Phillips, Miss Ulma McCormick, Bert Harold, Harold Cook; cornet solos by Benjamin LaVere; violin solos by Albert Naylor; vocal solos by Mrs. Benjamin Snyder and Harold Willard; selections on the played piano by A. E. Willard and monologues by Henry Phillips.

The celebrants received many handsome gifts, including berry sets, fruit dises, china, etc. Mr. Snyder presented his wife with a sapphire and diamond ring. The piano was a Mathushek & Son instrument.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Seyffer, of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Tier, Edward Bennett, M. F. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, Bert Harold, Benjamin LaVere, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips, Mrs. A. McCormick, Miss Ulma McCormick, Harold Willard, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dutterhofer, Harold Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Terry, Albert Naylor and Emerich Spitzer. Supper was served at 12 o'clock.

Thrown by Trolley Car.

Howard Manning, of Grant avenue, attempted to board a swiftly moving trolley car opposite police headquarters last night. He caught hold of the handle but was jerked from his feet and thrown almost to the sidewalk. Sergeant Overbaugh assisted him in recovering his equilibrum and found that beyond a few bruises he was unhurt.

DEMOCRAT TALKS EXCISE

Prof. Daniels, of Princeton Univ, Says Republicans are Evading the Real Issues.

BOROUGH'S BIG RALLY

Somerset County Democrats Appear Before Local Voters—Swackhamer Speaks.

Because of incompleted arrangements for the transportation of Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex, from Woodbridge, where he spoke before a meeting early last night, to the borough, the North Plainfield Democrats did not hear the bright young legislator at the mass meeting in Saengerbund hall last night. Professor W. W. Daniels, of Princeton University, was on hand, however, and he made a ringing speech. Walter C. Linbarger opened the meeting and introduced Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhammer as chairman. Aside from the speakers of the evening, who included Professor Danniels, Horace Coddington, of Somerville; Frank Allen, the candidate for Assembly; William J. DeMond, the candidate for Surrogate, and Frank Ross, the candidate for Sheriff, there was a majority of the local candidates present, and many leading Democrats in the audience.

The principal speaker of the evening, Prof. Daniels, in his address alluded to the excise question at length, saying that it was really a side issue of the campaign, but was brought into undue prominence by the Republicans to hide the more important issues of the campaign. "The main question of this election to my mind," he said, "is this: Are the people of New Jersey to rule themselves, or are they to be ruled by unlawful corporations and combinations of corrupt schemers? Voters must think carefully of this and act with utmost seriousness of consideration at the polls."

In his speech, which was interrupted from time to time with enthusiastic applause, Professor Daniels touched up many of the leading issues of the campaign. He spoke at the outset of Mr. Katzenbach, the party candidate for Governor, saying that he had known the man since the two had been in Princeton together and had watched his career with pride and satisfaction. He spoke of the man's electrifying effect upon the voters and of the popularity he gives evidence of. His main theme was a discussion of the abuses in the various State departments, and he went into the subject at length. He said, in speaking of the State asylum trouble and the investigation at the Rahway reformatory, that the Republican party is responsible for such long continued and gross abuse of official power and dwelt upon the connivances of the party to retain incompetent and corrupt officials in office. He stated that there was a good deal of graft in connection with these institutions, and cited instances and statistics in support of this statement. He spoke of the fact that party politicians are in some cases holding two or more offices and read a list of such officials who draw salaries for more than single important political job.

His attack upon the use of voting machines was of a nature to prove it obnoxious to both parties and he stated that the machine method of casting the ballot should be done away with. He spoke of the expense involved in the purchase of such machines, and cited incidents to show the inaccuracy of them, which practically amounted to a disfranchisement of the voter. He said that the rapid increase in taxes was in a measure due to the creation of many new offices by the Republicans as plums for political favorites, and spoke of the influencial "pulls" held by the railroads and corporations, stating that the legislature was watched by representatives of these industries, who defeated or put through bills to benefit their own interests.

Horace Coddington gave a brief outline of the history of the Republican party, citing distinct instances of the abuse of power and waste of public money and the enactment of laws injurious to the State. He said that the politicians are building up a dangerous coalition at the State capital and among the henchmen and managers of the Republican party. He attempted to show that if the people of the State should vote to continue the Republican organization in power after the disclosures that have been made and the abuses in the various State departments shown to exist, it would be an invitation to the wrong-doers to continue the practices, and stated that if the voters sanction this practice they have no grounds for the complaint. He stated that the expenses of the State government had advanced from a half million to nearly five millions since the party has been in power. A large part of this increase, he said, is due to the creation of unnecessary boards and commissions, the salaries

OPENING RECEPTION AT THE PARK CLUB

The opening reception marking the resumption of social activities at the Park Club attracted a large number of society people from the city and borough, last night. The younger set seemed to be largely in the majority, while there was noted an absence of many of the older members of the club who heretofore have been prominent in affairs at the club. This was due to some extent to several other social events occurring at the same time.

The clubhouse was prettily decorated for the occasion, there being a profusion of clematis, while palms and ferns added to the general beauty of the scene. It was expected that a representation from the Yale Glee Club would be present to give a program of music, but this could not be arranged and in place of the college boys, Brown's famous colored quartet enlivened the affair with a popular program to the delight of all present.

During the early part of the evening, which was devoted to the reception features, the wives of the governors received, among whom were Mrs. George D. Hallock, Mrs. B. Van D. Hedges, Mrs. J. B. Betts, Mrs. Clifford W. McGee and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore.

After the reception the rest of the evening was devoted to dancing, music being furnished by von Der Heid, of Newark. The dancing was continued until a late hour, there being an intermission for the serving of refreshments. The affair was planned and given under the auspices of the entertainment committee of which Harry McGee is the chairman.

MORE COMPLAINTS MADE AGAINST PADRONE PERIG

Despite the fact that he received a warning Monday morning to change his method of boarding laborers at exorbitant rates and turning them adrift without money, it appears that Serafina Perif, the Lake street padrone, is still pursuing the same tactics. Four more of his "bonded men" visited police headquarters this morning and charged that he had taken all the wages due them and had then turned them out. One of the complainants is a German, who stood by Perig in the city court Monday, and asserted that his methods of doing business were all right.

"I don't like the idea of having this business coming up continually," Judge Runyon remarked, "and I think we had better have Perig down here and settle it once and for all."

He gave instructions to the police to take the four complainants back to the Lake street lodging place for shelter tonight and to notify the padrone to appear in court tomorrow.

Perig has been securing the laboreres for the East End sewer contract, held by Foster Callahan, and practically has control of the hiring and discharging. Callahan has nothing to do with them beyond paying Perig a stated wage per day for each man.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the First Baptist church a Hallowe'en social and entertainment was held in the lecture room of the church, last night. The affair was arranged by the entertainment committee, of which Miss Helen Armstrong is the chairman. Miss Marguerite Serrell is the chairman of the refreshment committee, and pumpkin and apple pies, crullers and coffee were served last night.

The first part of the evening was devoted to playing all sorts of Hallowe'en games and everyone had a jolly good time. Afterward an informal program of music was enjoyed. This included piano duets by Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and the singing of popular songs by the young people. There was an unusually large attendance of young folks and the social was a great success.

Euchre Club Reorganizes.

The Friday Evening Euchre Club, which was prominent in social affairs last winter, has again organized for the coming season and will meet in the Camera Club rooms Friday night. A prize euchre will be held and light refreshments and dancing will follow. All previous members and their friends are invited to attend. Nominations for officers will be in order and the election will follow on the succeeding Friday. The present arrangements are in charge of Arthur B. Caleen, Lloyd Van Middlesworth, Mrs. LeRoy Woolley and Miss Mabel Gano.

Henry L. Hall, of Netherwood, has returned from a business trip to Washington.

KATZENBACH SPEAKS HERE THIS AFTERNOON

The Democrats' Gubernatorial Nominee Tours Through Union County Today.

HE ARRIVES AT 5 P. M.

To Address Pond's Men and Then to Talk in Front of the Hotel Kensington.

Following closely the whirlwind automobile tour of J. Franklin Fort and other Republican nominees, yesterday, Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, in company with the party's spellbinders and county candidates, is making a similar tour of Union county today. The gubernatorial candidate and his party will arrive in Plainfield at 5 o'clock and will visit the Pond Machine Tool Works, where the nominee for Governor will address the men employed at that lagre plant. Returning he, together with other speakers, will address a meeting to be held in front of the Hotel Kensington at 5:30.

The tour began this morning, the party holding the first meeting at Roselle Park at 10:30. A half hour later another meeting was held in Linden, and at 11:30 the gubernatorial nominee addressed a large crowd at Cranford. The party reached Garwood at 12:10, just after the large factories closed down for the noon hour and it proved an opportune time for the candidates to meet and talk to the army of men employed there. From Garwood the party went to Westfield, where a large number of people were addressed at 12:40. A stop was also made there for dinner. Continuing the tour a meeting was held at Mountainside at 2 o'clock, another at Springfield at 2:30, one at Union at 3 o'clock, still another at Lyons Farm at 3:30 and one at Kenilworth at 4 o'clock. The last stopping place on the tour was Scotch Plains, where Mr. Katzenbach spoke at 4:30. In every town there were just as many out to hear the Democratic candidate as there were to hear the Republicans yesterday and there was much enthusiasm. Mr. Katzenbach emphasized the important issues of the campaign, reiterating his previous statement that the excise question should not be overshadowed by other more important issues. He said that it was up to the people to elect the kind of legislators who would enact laws best suited to their needs.

Leaving Scotch Plains the party came directly to Plainfield, where they remained after supper. Mass meetings will be held tonight at Rahway and Elizabeth, Mr. Katzenbach being scheduled to speak at each place.

Y. M. C. A. Entertainment.

Carman's Italian boys' orchestra and Elbert Foland, a reader and impersonator, were at the Y. M. C. A last night in the first entertainment of the Star Course of association attractions for the winter. The auditorium was well filled and the various numbers well received. Special applause was elicited by the violin solo, "Il Trovatore," by Paolo Votto, a boy in the orchestra. He showed excellent power of expression. Foland's numbers were popular, especially his impersonations.

Brothers to Form Partnership.

Robert Schreiner, who has been employed by L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, for a number of years as head clerk, will soon resign his position there to form a partnership with his brother, Bertholde J. Schreiner, who conducts a pharmacy at Park avenue and Second street. Mr. Schreiner has made a great many friends during his employment at Randolph's pharmacy, both with patrons and the trade.

Game Warden's Commission Revoked

Freeman Straight, formerly game warden in North Plainfield, has had his commission revoked, and he no longer holds the position. This action was largely due to his activity in attempting to collect evidence from neighbors to the effect that W. J. Buttfield permitted his dogs to run at large at certain seasons of the year which is against the law. Mayor N. D. Smalley interested himself in the case in behalf of Mr. Buttfield.

Russell Stewart, of Randolph's pharmacy, who has been detained at home as the result of injury to his hands, has returned to work again.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Considering the hour of the meeting, the Republican candidate for Governor, J. Franklin Fort, and the other candidates on the ticket received a hearty welcome from the voters here yesterday. The party only remained 15 minutes, the time being given over to handshaking and greeting the candidates.

The local bowlers did not send a representative to the meeting held in Plainfield Monday night for the purpose of organizing a bowling league. The town could have put a strong team in the field by a combination of the Plains and old Suburban teams.

A valuable sheperd dog, the property of Mrs. Augusta Miller, was poisoned by someone feeding it a dose of strychine yesterday. No reason can be assigned for the act, as the animal was the friend of all and had been a pet in the family for several years.

Mrs. Charles Hand and daughter, who have been spending several weeks with Mrs. Edward L. Hand and other relatives in Plainfield, have returned to their home in Florida.

The registry board met yesterday and revised the registry list for the election, Tuesday of next week. Several new names were added to the list.

Owing to trouble on the circuit, the electric light service in town and the borough was out of commission last night until near nine o'clock.

Mrs. H. C. Smith, of Union street, has been entertaining out of town friends.

WESTFIELD.

The annual convention and dinner of the Master Builders' Association of New Jersey will be held this afternoon and evening at Westfield Club hall. The election of officers and reports of officers will be the first business of the meeting.

C. H. Lockwood is making a continuation of First street, Westfield, from Rahway avenue to the Fanwood line, through property recently purchased.

Peter Winfeldt and John Campbell, of Westfield, were drawn Monday to serve on the petit jury for two weeks, commencing next Monday.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Newark Orphan Asylum will be celebrated this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Coles Home, Mountainside.

The election boards sat at the polling places yesterday to register voters from 1 to 9 o'clock p. m.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

SOME TRICKS

"There are tricks in all trades," says the old proverb—and we are not denying that there are "tricks" in tailoring.

For instance, a thorough pressing after the garment is completed will in a measure take the place of proper building and shaping during construction.

We say "in a measure" for nothing but the most thorough constructive tailoring can make a garment permanently well fitting like Watson clothing.

Our clothing is shaped and formed and fitted as it is built. We do not depend on pressing to produce shapeliness.

So our $15 Fall weight overcoats are sure to hold their original shape and fit, through the hardest service.

Far better value than you can possibly get anywhere else.

And the same holds true of the $10, $12, $18, $20, $22 and $25 overcoats.

All winners.

We're told our $2 Derby hat is equal to those sold around town at $3. Come and see them!

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

All competitions will be concluded at the Park Golf Club on Election Day with special events, including members' handicap competition for the Holiday cup and an approaching and putting contest.

The semi-final play for the October cup will be the event of interest at the Park Golf Club on Saturday.

There will be commencement of the convenience of the members who want to play late in the season.

FOOTBALL.

Coach Yost is using Beladorff, a big Russian, as a tackling dummy, and the candidates are getting some lively tackling practice.

Hallenback, the Pennsylvania kicker, sends out a most difficult ball to handle. His punts have a peculiar twist and a puzzling shoot, which bothered even Dennie, Brown's excellent quarterback.

Teams in the West evidently are more evenly matched than in the East. In twenty games played out West both teams scored, while the number was very much less in the East.

Besides Schouchuk, the Eskimo, the following Indian tribes are represented on the Carlisle team: Chippewa, Sioux, Oneida, Seneca, Onondaga, Mission, Cheyenne, North Cheyenne, Caddo, Delaware and Tuscarora.

There has been little really clever running in kicks this year, and an absence of backs taking the ball while on the run. Richardson, who played at Brown late in the 90s, has had no recent equal at this style of game.

It has been a long time since the Indians have been seen in a football game in New York, and there will be a big crowd to watch them play on the Polo Grounds against Princeton on Saturday. They play better football than when last seen in New York.

If individual effort could make a team win Princeton would be one of the fastest teams in the country, so far as Dillon has anything to do with football for the Tigers.

Coach Warner of the Indians saw Pennsylvania play against Brown, and has come to the conclusion that the Indians would have to take a decided brace if they wanted to make an impression on the big teams. The Indian game with Bucknell showed a number of the Redskins' faults that will have to be corrected. Some of the aborigines are tackling too high, and there is more fumbling than necessary in evidence. In addition the punts are not handled with the amount of skill they should be at this time of the season.

The action of the Trinity College football officials in abolishing the training table is warmly approved in many official quarters at Yale. Many members of the university faculty spoke in favor of such a move when the extensive football reform plans were under discussion a year ago, but it was decided not to take so radical a step at that time. Instead the football players were forbidden to form training tables at the college expense until after the fall term opened, and free board at the tables was prohibited. Prof. Chittenden of Yale is a strong opponent of the present training table diet, and favors following the example of A. A. Stagg of Chicago University in putting the athletes on a simplified or possibly a vegetable diet.

The managers of the New York University and Fordham elevens have come to an understanding unique in the history of college football. They have agreed to practice against each other twice a week hereafter, neither team to attempt to score any goals.

COURT DECIDED IN HIS FAVOR

Cooper Fought to Retain Formula Which Has Made a Fortune.

L. T. Cooper, the man who believes that 90 per cent. of all ill health of this generation is caused by stomach trouble, is fast winning a national faith in his theory. His claim is now admitted by a surprising number of people throughout the country, and he is gaining new adherents every day.

While speaking of his success in a recent interview, Mr. Cooper said: "I believed ten years ago that any one who could produce a formula that would thoroughly regulate the stomach would have a fortune. When I got hold of this formula I knew within six months that I was right, and that my fortune was made. I called the medicine Cooper's New Discovery, although I did not get up the formula. I have owned it, however, for over three years. I have had one lawsuit over it, which I won in the courts. When it was settled The Cooper Medicine Company became the only firm in the world that can prepare the medicine. [illegible] sold like wildfire. As I have [illegible] simply [illegible] the stomach in [illegible] nature does the rest. [illegible] number of complaints associated with stomach [illegible] the medicine has relieved [illegible] kinds of cases."

Among statements obtained recently from users of this medicine that is arousing such universal discussion is one from Mrs. Emma Stanley, living in Chicago, at 713 Washington Boulevard, who said: "Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper had to deal with. I was troubled for years with my stomach. I consulted with doctors and took many patent medicine preparations without result. My stomach was in such a wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate.

"I was very nervous, and could hardly sleep; I had a roaring in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak. Then there was a very sore spot at the pit of my stomach that nearly set me wild.

"I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I used four bottles, and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quieted, and I am so much improved that I feel like a new woman.

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well."

We sell the Cooper medicines and consider them well worth a trial by any one afflicted with chronic stomach trouble and its attendant diseases.

How Men Can Save $3 to $5 on this Fall Suit.

We candidly believe that no better clothing, ready to put on, is sold in any Newark store than the clothes we sell, and we are anxious to bring you to our way of thinking.

Knowing clothing as we do, having in charge of our department an expert who has devoted a life to the buying of clothing, we can speak with authority.

We want to persuade you to get rid of the "department store" idea and judge the clothes we sell strictly on their merits. We cannot hope to convince you of the truth of any statement we make by publishing glittering generalities.

So we are going to offer you an exceptional inducement to try one of our Suits this Fall—an inducement it would be unnecessary to make to any one who has bought clothes here before, but one which is open to them and all others nevertheless.

We are going to sell

$15 and $18 Suits for $12.

Any clothing manufacturer will tell you that you cannot buy an all-wool suit from a manufacturer for $12 in these days of high prices. That makes this offer all the more important because the suits at this price are strictly all wool.

You may choose from medium and dark shades of cloth, and have your coat in any of the various fashionable single-breasted models you may desire.

The selling at $12 begins tomorrow and continues Friday and Saturday.

It is just as though we put a dollar in the coat pocket of each of these suits that the boy might find it there after he put the suit on. The only difference is the parent pays a dollar less for the suit.

This offering in conjunction with the Men's Suit offer above will hold for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Boys' $5 Suits $4.

Boys' Double-Breasted Suits with belts and two pairs of knickerbocker or bloomer trousers come in smartest styles, tailored and finished handsomely; made of dressy mixed and solid color cloths; suits that will rival many sold at $6; sold here regularly at $5; priced for this occasion, $4.

We urge parents to see these suits, as we know that showing them will sell them. There can be nothing near so good elsewhere for the money. Of this we are sure.

Our Clothing Store on the Second Floor is splendidly stock and the variety of styles in both Men's and Boys' Clothing is simply immense, and the price range is wide enough to suit all pocketbooks.

Men's Shoes are on the Second Floor.
Men's Hats, Men's Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Ties, Gloves and Half Hose on the First Floor.
Men's Fur and Fur-lined Coats and other Automobile Clothing on the Second Floor.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Plainfield Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Agnes Christiansen, of 311 Prescott place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was sick from kidney disease, and suffered all kinds of hard pains in my back and loins, and about the kidneys. I could not bend over to pick up anything, and occasionally had dizzy spells and headaches. I could not rest well at night and on the whole my condition was such that life did not seem worth living. Doctors being unable to help me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which had been used with success in our family. I took them, finding relief in a short time and continued taking them until cured." play for the consolation cups, Classes A and B, at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. This competition will continue through a part of November. The drawings will be made this week.

The active season at the Plainfield Country Club will be concluded on November 28 with a cross country tournament. In the meantime the Saturdays will be taken up with the play for the consolation cups. On Election Day there will be special competition for the Election Day cups, morning and afternoon.

Although the active season at both local golf courses will close this month, play will continue as long as the weather permits. This has always been the custom heretofore and the clubhouse will be kept open for

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The monthly missionary meeting will be held at Warren chapel tonight and William D. Murray will speak.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon and elect officers.

Prominent speakers are expected to address the fall rally of the local Christian Endeavor Union on Thursday night, November 7, at which time the winter's work will be taken up in earnest.

Clifford A. Braider, organist of the First Presbyterian church, is preparing to give an evening musical at the church, similar to the one of last year. The program will be given by the quartet choir.

An all-day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held at the chapel tomorrow. A hot lunch will be served at 1 o'clock. Only members of the society are invited to this meeting.

The revival meetings at Monroe Avenue M. E. church are largely attended and filled with much interest. Rev. E. E. Roberson, the pastor, is conducting the services and his topics furnish the basis for spirited and helpful talks. Tonight the topic will be "A Fast Young Man." The meetings will close on Sunday night.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. W. H. Freeman, 1008 South avenue, Neitherwood.

—Arthur Logan, of Morristown, has taken a position as prescription clerk at Dudley Miller's pharmacy on Park avenue.

—Contractor Arthur E. Smith, of this city, has resmued work on the new bridge over Robinson's branch of the Rahway river at Rahway. Operations were temporarily suspended on account of the great quantity of quicksand found there.

ation," said William M. Stillman, a prominent lawyer. "As a lawyer I believe such action wouid be unconstitutional and that any ordinance passed to permit such taxation could be set aside.

"As a citizen I believe such action unwise. No true charity should be supported by the State. The vital principle of benevolence is at once sapped. Muhlenberg Hospital would be reduced to the level of the Plainfield Poor House. As a friend and contributor of the hospitay for many years I believe it unwise as many of its regular subscribers, after paying their taxes, will refuse their subscriptions, feeling that whatever is everyones business is no ones and hesitating to pay twice for the same object."

DEATH ENDS ILLNESS OF CHARLES M. WILSON

Following a long illness from a complication of troubles, Charles M. Wilson, one of the best known residents of the city and a leading contractor, died at his home on Madison avenue shortly after 11 o'clock last night. He was stricken with paralysis in January, 1906, and since that time had been confined to the house the gerater part of the time. Bright's disease developed eventually and was the specific cause of death.

Mr. Wilson was born in Ringoes, Hunterdon county, sixty-two years ago, and moved to this city in 1865. He was a carpenter by trade and entered the building business, continuing it up to the time that illness prevented, although all his contracts were finished. He built the new Muhlenberg hospital, the Stirling, Powlison and Jones' buildings, the Hygeia ice plant and many other structures in the city and borough.

As a member of the First Baptist church, Mr. Wilson was active in its affairs for many years and at one time was a teacher in the Sunday-school department. He never sought public office but was a member of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., the Master Builders' Association, and was secretary of the Union Building and Loan Association. In all his business dealings, Mr. Wilson was regarded as strictly straightforward and impartial and among his friends he was held in high esteem.

He is survived by a wife, three daughters and four sons. They are the Misses Charlotte, Elizabeth and Mabel Wilson, all of Plainfield; Howard and Charles Wilson, of Detroit; Augustus Wilson, of Rye, N. Y., and George Wilson, of Plainfield. The funeral will be held at the late residence Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be at Hillside.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

As a taxpayer I make protest against the incredible folly of our Common Council in tearing up a good pavement and laying down a poorer one, in Front street and Park avenue. It is a wicked and shameful waste of the public money to tear up the present solid foundations and lay brick instead. If something was deemed necessary to be done the present foundations of heavy stone should have been kept and a top dressing of "Hassell" cement used. If I remember rightly Wallace Vail laid this macadam from one end of Park avenue to the other using large blocks of mountain stone and it is incredible folly and waste to tear it up.

WILLIAM M. STILLMAN.

Editor, The Plainfield Press:

I have addressed the following open letter to the County Board of Taxation, regarding the increased amount of tax, levied upon a small piece of property in your city, owned by myself. If you will kindly give the same space in your valuable paper it may prove of interest to others who own a small real-estate interest in Plainfield, and are likely to be taxed out of their little holdings:

I own a lot 60x40, at Nos. 147-149, East Fifth street, Second ward, city of Plainfield. It being a butt lot the most that it could sell for is $800. I am assessed at a valuation of $1,200.

The buildings have been built fourteen years and of course have not increased in value, yet the taxation is increased at the same rate. Several months ago I had an offer to sell by near neighbors, but when they found out what the water tax and the property tax amounted to they refused to take it. I cannot increase the rental, as the people would rent separate homes, smaller apartments having been built since, which are available.

The amount of taxes on my property per month is $5.14, water tax $2.50 per month; the compelling me to lay a sidewalk for the second time $6, making my expenses $8.14 per month.

I had to expend $150 for repairs last year and this year $160 for repainting.

Last year the taxes were $50, and as compared with taxes in this city, sixty dollars seem exorbitant.

The property has not increased in value since I bought it, and yet the taxes have steadily been advanced from $32 to the present exaction of $60. Wonder that the small property owners want to get out of the city of Plainfield?

Bridge Whist for Charity.

Under the auspices of a number of society people of Plainfield a bridge whist party will be given at Truell Hall, tomorrow afternoon, for the benefit of The Day Nursery, the City Union King's Daughters' charity. A number of valuable prizes wil be offered to the winners and the affair promises to be a large successful one.

All the Members Are Invited.

All of the active and honorary members of the Missionary and Aid Society are invited to the all-day sewing meeting to be held at Warren chapel tomorrow, commencing at 10 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock. Those in charge have prepared an attractive program and a large attendance is expected.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN.

A neat sum was netted by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church by the entertainment and musicale given in the church parlors last night. The program consisted of instrumental selections, recitations and dialogues by various members of the society, and there were about 150 present. The numbers were well received and called forth genuine applause. The program included two duets by Mrs. Day and Miss Day; a dialogue, "True Character," by Miss Lillian Garretson and Miss Lucy Clawson; recitation, "The Ladies' Aid Society," by Miss Anna McCullough; children's trio, "Tying on the Leaves So They Won't Come Off;" reading, "Kentucky Belles," and "The Old Front Gate," by Miss Ruth Gardner; piano trio by Mrs. Day, Mrs. William Tabb and Miss Day, and a dialogue, "How Mrs. Garrick Hired a Cook," by the Misses Day and Nelson. At the conclusion of the program, refreshments were served. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Miss Ruth Gardner, chairman, Miss Bertha Nelson, Miss Iva Dayton and Mrs. William Nelson.

Local Democrats will turn out in force at the borough hall to hear Senator Silzer and some of the county candidates, who are to make addresses at the mammoth mass meeting to be held there at 8 o'clock. Much interest is being shown in the county situation by the local voters and the speeches tonight will deal with these issues somewhat at length. Harry Swackhammer, Democratic candidate for mayor of the borough, will be present and is scheduled to speak. At the same time a mass meeting will be conducted at South Plainfield, and after concluding his address here, Senator Silzer will go to the other meeting in an automobile, accompanied by the county candidates.

Deputy State Councilor Frank O. Nelson has arranged for a joint meeting of the Daughters of Liberty, Rockview and Lakeside Councils to be held at Friendship hall, New Market, Thursday, November 7. The State Councilor has been invited to attend and there will be initiation of several candidates.

The condition of the young son of Freeman D. Bierman, who was operated upon for adenoids a fortnight ago, shows consistent improvement.

C. Harry Dodwell, who was recently appointed notary in the borough, has received his commission.

Friendship Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. Meeker, of Plainfield, this afternoon.

W. C. T. U. WORKERS ARE HOLDING A FAIR

The fair which opened yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the rooms on Madison avenue, was largely attended and was a big success. The rooms have been appropriately decorated, and the various tables present an attractive appearance. There is offered for sale fancy, useful articles, cake, candy, crochet articles, the work of Mrs. J. W. Yates; toys, while the refreshment table was well patronized.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson is chairman of the general committee in charge and she is assisted by the different members of the union. At the fancy table Mrs. Amanda Maxson and Mrs. David E. Titsworth are in charge. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse presides at the apron and useful article table, and Mrs. J. W. Yates is at the table devoted to crochet work. At the candy table Miss May Cahoone and Miss Fanny Cahoone were in charge. A table devoted to a variety of articles, all of which were solicited by Louie Bennett. He was in charge. Mrs. Peter B. Bennett presided at the toy table, which was a delight to the little folks. Those at the refreshment table were Mrs. Emma Cox, Mrs. M. Winter, Mrs. Charles E. Vail, Miss May E. Howlett and Mrs. Alvah TenEyck. Miss Susie Jackson and Mrs. William Udell took charge of the cake table.

The fair will continue this afternoon and night, when several additional attractions will be offered.

NOMINEE FORT CAPTURES UNION COUNTY VOTERS

Two enthusiastic meetings, one in Elizabeth and the other at Rahway, last night, completed the tour of Union county made yesterday by John Franklin Fort, who is rounding up the last of the votes which the Republican party hope will place him in the Governor's chair. The day, begun in cold and rain, with small crowds and much discomfort, improved steadily in all respects until, at the Rahway meeting, the candidate received an ovation that has not been surpassed during the campaign. The Elizabeth gathering, though there were nearly 1,400 persons in the audience, was less demonstrative.

Mr. Fort's manner of speaking at the first meeting was different from that which he has employed in his talks so far. Instead of the deliberate and judicial mode of address he usually uses, he spoke in quick, short sentences, covering every point he has made in his speeches, but snapping them out instead of going into detail. Lack of time may have had something to do with the speed with which the candidate defined his stand on the political issues, for he had just come from Perth Ambo and was due to speak in Elizabeth before catching the last train for Newark.

Good government, Mr. Fort said, was the real issue of this election, and if elected he proposed to give the best possible. He went on to tell how the State deserved it, referring to the great increase in population in the last few years, caused by the improvements in the State and its increased prosperity. These newcomers, he declared, were entitled to the best kind of government if they were to be expected to stay and induce others to settle within the State.

Pursuing the same policy that he has all over the State, Mr. Fort announced that he did not wish the vote of a single man in New Jersey if that man did not believe that his election would be a benefit to the commonwealth. He added:

"And if I'm elected Governor I will be Governor, and no one else. I will not sign a bill just because it may be good for the Republican party or the Democratic party. It must be good for the whole State. Some of you people may not like that kind of thing, but if you elect me that's the kind of government you are going to get."

The subjects of good schools, in which the audience betrayed a great deal of interest, and the providing for them by the State, brought up the question of railroad taxation and the $3,500,000 surplus which will be placed in the State treasury if the constitutionality of the Perkins act is upheld by the Court of Errors and Appeals, and which Mr. Fort proposes to use for the reduction of school taxes. Later on, when speaking of the attempts of the opposing party to again come into power, he again referred to this surplus, saying:

"No wonder our friends who left things in such a condition twelve years ago that there was a deficit of $400,000 in the treasury want to come back and get control. Who wouldn't? Any one would like to take care of a surplus of $3,500,000 in a private basis."

He also urged that his audience vote as their conscience dictated, admonishing them not to sell or barter votes. In conclusion he said:

"And if you vote as I tell you there will be no fear for the future of the republic. The people are always right. I have no fear of them."

Photographed Pupils at Work.

Pupils at the city high school were photographed in the various class rooms at the school today by Thomas Woolston, of New York city. Mr. Woolston is making a tour of the large educational institutions of the State for the purpose of securing photographs. Views of the three laboratories, the auditorium, Principal Travell's office and several of the class rooms where recitations were going on were taken and Mr. Woolston is to given the school an album of the views he took.

Small Boy's Hard Luck.

Kenneth Eganey, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eganey, of West Fourth street, tumbed down stairs at his home Monday night and received a broken arm in addition to several bad bruises. He was attended by Dr. Browning. The little fellow only recently recovered from severe burns caused by his clothes catching fire and which for a time threatened to result fatally.

"Prince" Breaks Another Record.

John Langan's horse, "Prince," which recently broke the sulky record at the Plainfield Driving Park, broke the wagon record at a trial Saturday. The speedy trotter made a mile in 2:16 1-2, the previous best time being 2:23 1-2 made nine years ago. As in the previous trot, "Prince" was driven by Charles Brower. The owner resides in Trenton.

Painters Start Small Blaze.

Painters burning paint from the residence of Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, set fire to a part of the outside woodwork. A still alarm was sent to headquarters and the chemical engine and a hose wagon responded. The blaze was quickly stopped, the resultant damage being about $25.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Billy the Kid," in which Joseph Santley is starring this season, is reported as being one of the best plays of its kind that has gone out of New York this year. It is a melodrama, but it is said to tell a concise and powerful story with a due regard to sequence so often missed by melodramatic writers. The play abounds in strong situations, the dialogue is clever and there is plenty of comedy. The production is a handsome one and the star's supporting company exceedingly well balanced. Joseph Santley is to present "Billy the Kid" at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

"Tom Jones," the new English comic opera that Henry W. Savage will offer at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, has thirty characters, apart from the chorus of fifty young women and men. Inasmuch as the libretto tells a very interesting story, based on Fielding's famous Eighteenth Century romance, many of the characters are especially strong. Indeed, one writer has said that there are several parts that could be played by stars with no loss of dignity. The comedy element is notably pronounced, while the music will delight everybody. "Tom Jones" is old English, and its music consists of dainty part songs, merry and stirring choruses, and there are gay dances to tuneful measures.

The tragedy of the Madison Square Roof Garden, New York, has furnished material for a thrilling melodrama which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. The play is entitled "A Millionaire's Revenge," written by Hal Reid and produced by the Mittenthal Brothers. The story, though well known through the newspapers, should be doubly interesting when pictured by twenty-five able players, acting in the scenic atmosphere of the affair, and truthfully showing not only the tragic circumstance but the motive and consequences. The Unwritten Law is what the author depends on as vindication from the wronged husband. It is often said that truth is stranger than fiction, and Hal Reid's drama is an excellent example of the proverb.

In James O'Neill's elaborate revival of "Virginius," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, direct from its New York triumphant run, special attention has been given, by the manager, Edgar Forrest, to the groupings on the streets of Rome,—Patricians, Plebeians and the other ranks of Roman society are passing to and fro, or standing in groups to discuss the topics of the day. A street in Rome, one of the scenes in "Virginius," is shown with great detail, in the foreground is the bonze statue of the Wolf of Rome suckling the twins, Romulus and Remus; it is in this scene that Appius first beheld the fair Virginia and lusted for her, which led to her and his own death.

A noteworthy production of everybody's favorite drama, "Monte Cristo," will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night by Joseph King's company. The production will be given under the personal supervision of Joseph King, a stage director of reputation and ability, and a highly artistic and meritorious performance is assured. "Monte Cristo" will be presented with a complete scenic production.

Morganatic Marriages.

The term morganatic as applied to marriages found its origin in an ancient custom. In olden times the bridegroom on the day after his marriage gave his bride a morning gift (morganabe). In the case of a nobleman who wedded a wife beneath his station this gift constituted the wife's portion or endowment. It was from this gift that the name morganatic came to be applied to marriages.

A Pertinent Question.

A little English boy, according to a newspaper published in London, went some years ago to a dentist's to have some of his first teeth extracted. After they were out the little fellow felt very unhappy about his loss, when the dentist to comfort him said: "Oh, never mind about that; they'll come in again."

"In time for dinner?" asked the little boy, his face clearing.

LOVE'S TEST.

Where Her Great Help Was Needed Her Heart Was Willing.

"Professor," said the fair co-ed after a pause, "let me ask you if you ever use the phrase 'different than?'"

"Never!" exclaimed the young professor of rhetoric and English literature. "It exasperates me, Miss Pinkle, whenever I see it in print."

"I am glad we have something in common," she rejoined. "Nevertheless, Professor de Purey, I cannot be your wife."

"Mr. Koopong," asked the young woman, with downcast eyes, "now that I happen to think of it, do you ever use the phrase 'different than?'"

"I certainly do not," said the enamored capitalist. "It is not only incorrect, but utterly absurd."

"I am glad to hear you say so. Still, Mr. Koopong, it is useless to urge me. I never can be anything more to you than a friend."

"Let me ask your one question, Mr. Pnoodles," she said. "Do you ever use the phrase 'different than?'"

"Why—er—I presume I have used it carelessly sometimes, Miss P-Pinkle," stammered the embarrassed youth. "But now that you have called my attention to it I shall be careful to say 'different from' hereafter."

"Claude," she exclaimed, clasping her hands ecstatically and gazing at him with soulful eyes, "my answer is yes—yes! You poor, dear boy, you need a helpmate, and I'll be the helpmate!"—Chicago Tribune.

CAMP ON HOTEL ROOF.

Philadelphia Hostelry Supplies Tents For Guests Who Want Them.

Anybody who yearns to "sleep under the stars," who finds a big bedroom too confining, can camp out on the roof of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Philadelphia, now, says a Philadelphia special to the New York World.

A judge arrived at the Bellevue-Stratford from the Adirondacks recently. Next day he complained that the street noises kept him awake and that anyhow a room was too pent up for a man who had been sleeping out of doors. So the manager pitched a tent on the roof, which is incased in glass. The judge has been sleeping like a top, twenty stories up, 310 feet above the street.

Soon there will be a grove of little pine and spruce trees on the roof in which will stand twenty tents, each one with a portable bathtub and a telephone. Servants, dostumed as guides, probably will be in attendance, but the campers must eat their venison and bear steaks in the hotel dining rooms. If the camp's atmosphere grows too close the glass dome can be opened. Then the wind will whistle through the trees. The camp will be maintained all winter probably.

FRESH FISH AT SEA.

Steamship Amerika Has a Trout Pool For Epicures.

On a recent voyage of the steamship Amerika there was a novelty for the passengers. There were four tanks stocked with trout and carp on the deck, and the fish swam around until they fascinated some passenger, who told the steward which one he wanted, and then it was caught and cooked for him.

The fish were in charge of Ernest Marquandt. Dr. George L. Erlwein, an aquarist of Hamburg, had the task of keeping the fish healty, and all that were not eaten made the trip in good condition. The stewart said that about 500 trout and 150 carp were sold on the voyage.

The tanks, big zinc affairs, filled with fresh water, are housed away up on the top of the ship, near the base of the smokestacks. The water is supplied with fresh oxygen by pumping it into the tops of little towers, where through punctures the fresh air comes in touch with it, and thus the trout are kept alive and jumping.

Wanted the Earth.

She had been on the ocean three days and suffered the throes of seasickness all that time.

When all hope of relief had fled, one of those well meaning nuisances came to her and asked her:

"Is there anything I can do for you? What do you want?"

"You can do nothing for me. I want the earth."

And she sincerely did.—Short Stories.

Hat Raising In Germany.

The etiquette of hat raising in Germany is one of those things which may betray the foreigner into unintentional rudeness through sheer ignorance. A correspondent knows of a German lady who was puzzled and hurt because some Englishmen whom she had met before did not raise their hats to her in the street until the explanation came that she expected them to do it of their own accord by the German rule instead of waiting for her to recognize them first by the English. These differences of national etiquette are great pitfalls. A converse case was that of an Englishman staying in a German town who accompanied his host's wife to a concert. Walking home, he gave her the inside of the pavement, according to English manners, but the host, who happened to see this, was rendered painfully suspicious by this unfamiliar attention.—London Chronicle.

Mr. Barnes, American

By Archibald Clavering Gunter

Author of Mr. Barnes of New York, Mr. Potter of Texas, That Frenchman, etc.

A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York

COPYRIGHT, 1907, DODD MEAD & CO. N.Y.

"Why, getting a note from a man the second day she was married and crazy with fear her 48 hours' bridegroom will drop onto her little game."

Barnes gazes upon the infant prodigy and emits a low whistle. "You are certainly a hummer, Maudie," he remarks, solemnly.

"You bet!" assents Miss Chartris, who has just stepped in from an exciting interview with Marina that has run about in this way:

The beautiful Corsican bride, apparently having recovered from the first shock of the letter in the Marseilles depot, being dressed, at Enid's request, for her carriage excursion, seems now full of an excited yet morbid anxiety. Obtaining opportunity when Miss Chartris has entered her bedroom to give her a kiss, tender her condolences and get into the affair "with both feet," as the adolescent intrigante expresses it to herself, Marina whispers; a strange pathos in her eyes: "Maud, dear, you have come to give me that letter you picked up—the one I dropped on the floor of the railroad depot when—when I was overcome with the heat this morning."

"Jinks, that's a nice way of putting it—overcome with the heat? It was the letter knocked you," returns the Chartris infant, with a knowing wink.

"No matter what it was affected me," whispers the young Corsican lady, intensely. "The letter—I must have it at once! He—he must not see it!"

"I—I didn't pick it up!" mutters Maud, doggedly.

"I saw you! Even when my eyes were closing, I saw you! Give me the letter, child, or I shall have to ask your mother to get it from you for me!"

The horrible possibilities of such a demand impress themselves on Maud with distressing effect; she snivels: "Don't tell ma, she'd skin me."

"Then, the letter!" ejaculates Marina, wildly.

"Well, if you must know, I sold it to Barnes for two boxes of marrons glaces."

"Sold that letter? Ay de mi, if he shows it to my husband!" And Marina paces the floor in agitated dread.

"Don't torture me, miserable! I have brought too much misfortune on him already." Tears dim the orbs of the Corsican girl. "Tell dear Mr. Barnes that I must see him; that it is very important."

"Why, sure I'll do it, though I don't think he'll help you put up any job on your—"

"Put up any job? Another base insinuation from your childish lips and I'll tell your mother you had that letter concealed! Away!" Looking like a frenzied goddess, Marina opens her door and Maud speeds from it.

"Gee," remarks the young lady to herself, as she flits along the hotel passageway and notes Anstruther keeping watch outside his wife's door.

Her eyes are still big with suspected intrigue as she continues her conversation with Mr. Barnes by suddenly interjecting: "She wants to see you!"

"Who?"

"Marina, the bride, of course. She wants to give you a hint not to let the cat out of the bag to Edwin about the man whose letter made her faint."

Here, Miss Chartris, who has suddenly looked out of the window, trying to hide a telltale face from the piercing glance of her companion, ejaculates almost tremblingly: "Holy poker!"

"What's the matter?"

"Why, there's the man walking up the street who gave me the note that knocked Marina out of time—the one with the scar over his eye. He's looking up at our windows in the hotel!" Maud dodges back in a frightened way.

But Barnes is already cautiously taking cognizance from another window of the man whose scar identifies him in the throng of passersby on the Rue Noailles. The gentleman he gazes upon is, though actively built, lounging past with a pair of flashing eyes alertly yet intently fixed upon some window of the hotel near where Burton is standing.

Dressed in the deep mourning of southern France, a high Corsican hat lends picturesqueness to his costume. A certain family likeness suggests to Barnes that this man, though nearly 15 years younger, is the half brother of the dead Count Musso Danella. Suddenly the man responds to something he has seen in one of the windows of the hotel by a nasty, sneering grin.

"What did he see in the window?" thinks Barnes, and to Maud's astonishment bolts from the room, runs down the stairs of the hotel, and passes through the office into the street.

In the throng of the rather crowded Rue Noailles he fails to find this man he now feels quite certain must be Corregio Danella.

Then the American glances up at the windows of the hotel and at the third from that in which he had been standing, the one he knows is Marina's chamber, he sees the bride of Edwin Anstruther staggering away.

"Can it be possible that Edwin's wife has given this man some signal from her window that caused his triumph?"

A moment's consideration effaces this thought. "No woman can be more devoted to her husband than the bride of Edwin Anstruther. Whatever the agitated girl has done is intended for her husband's safety. What can that be?"

A second later, he thinks, it must have merely been some sign of woe or fear that had produced the triumph of Corregio Danella.

This reminds Barnes of Marina's request to see him. "I will find out from Mrs. Anstruther the contents of that devilish letter this astute distractor of matrimonial bliss sent her," he thinks, and steps rapidly back into the hotel.

Upon the second floor, finding Edwin still stalking about the passageway and keeping his watch upon his wife's chamber, Burton quite shortly states he has a suggestion or two as regards their yachting trip to make to Marina.

The consequence is that her husband soon after brings her into the parlor the party has secured for their general use. As he does so, Barnes notices something in the bride's manner to her husband that increases his alarm for her. In the morning, though Marina's eyes showed traces of the sufferings their owner had undergone, they were full of hope as they rested on her bridegroom. Now despair appears to have taken its place as her beautiful orbs linger lovingly yet sadly on the man she adores, and then seem to turn from him agitated by some hidden determination.

A moment after Anstruther says, in a loud tone intended for his bride's ears: "Take care of her while I do my packing," adding in a cautious whisper to Barnes: "See if you can find out what is really the matter with my darling. Some devilish thing must have happened to her at the railroad depot. She won't tell me. You discover."

Under these circumstances, Barnes is very eager to learn the balance of the note which had shattered the bride's nerves.

"Glad you're looking so fit, Marina," he remarks, lightly, for they have grown into the habit of addressing each other with the familiarity of coming relatives. "Maud told me you wished to speak to me."

"Why, certainly, Burton, I—you—you have read the letter that struck me down in the railroad station. I must beg you not to be cruel enough to even hint to my husband its contents.

"Why, of course. 'Tis best for Edwin, at present, at all events, to be in the dark," returns Barnes, groping darkly himself; adding assuringly: "You must pick up courage, my dear girl. You faced a greater trial only two days ago."

Her answer confuses and astounds her interrogator. "Faced a greater trial?" she says piteously. "Perhaps in one way." After this she gasps for a moment and suddenly cries: "Then you haven't read the letter."

"See If You Can Find Out What Is Really the Matter with My Darling."

"Read it—most of it. A portion of it hasn't come into my hands yet. Maud said you tore it up."

"Ah, thank God, you missed the last part. Then you might have told my husband and I could never have done it."

"Never have done what?"

"What you will not know till it is done!"

"You'd better tell it to me so that I may advise you," he suggests.

But the beautiful bride pacing the chamber, her hands pressed to her brow, suddenly pauses in front of him and says: "No, I'll be my own counsellor in this matter. I'll fight the dread fight out with myself. I'll try and—"

Her distracted manner adds to Barnes' fear, not of her love and devotion to Edwin, but of her judgment in some project she keeps concealed. He says, imperatively: "You must tell me."

"No, tis between my conscience, my God and my husband. Only tell Edwin, tell him, in case—"

"In case what?"

"Oh, you know the cruel things that may happen in such a blood feud which is again revived, now worse than ever. In case I pass from my husband's sight, tell him that I always loved him; that—that I didn't believe. Should I do something he regrets, he condemns, ask him to forgive me; it was because I loved him better than—than my own soul!"

"Confide in me!" The American's voice is commanding. "If you don't I am compelled to tell your husband of this letter. We can't let you tear yourself into nervous flinders and not know how to aid you." To this he adds, hoping by flippancy to lighten her heart: "Edwin will soon make those pretty lips speak."

"Never, though I adore him!" she cries hoarsely. "I cannot—I will not—it is so craftily, so fiendishly cruel, it strikes my husband and all our future happiness. It is worse than if they killed me as they will some day. They hope to slay not only our bodies, but to destroy even Edwin's love for me before I die."

Barnes thinks how his own immediate wedding to Enid Anstruther has been subtly thwarted by the letter he carries in his pocketbook which he guesses came from the same man. He now knows that his love for his affianced is being assaulted as well as the honeymoon happiness of these two just mated.

"For the sake of all of us you must speak," he commands.

The answer of the Corsican bride mystifies the American more than ever. She says nobly, yet doggedly: "For the sake of my husband, I am silent."

"Then you compel me to tell Edwin of the letter," he says shortly.

As Barnes speaks, the bridegroom enters, and woman's tact destroys his opportunity.

She throws herself enthusiastically but coquettishly into the arms opening for her and cries, half playfully, half tearily: "Edwin, in the railroad depot I received a note that produced my nervous agitation. Mr. Barnes thinks it wise I tell you its contents. I don't. Now, of course, if you say so, I must do as you tell me. I am an obedient wife." She puts her arms caressingly round Edwin's neck and whispers: "Shall I?" then gives him a tempting little kiss.

"Hang it, Barnes," answers Anstruther, under these allurements, "I have too much trust in my darling to want to read her letters."

"You're a very bright girl to have your husband so soon in subjugation," remarks Burton, gloomily. "But, Marina, in such a vital matter, I warn you to beware of playing your enemies' game."

"Pooh," answers Edwin, "what do you, a bachelor, know about women, anyway?" Then he jeers in sailor bluntness: "You and Enid didn't hunt up a minister to-day. You are not so enterprising a fellow as I thought you, Barnes, for I am quite certain that I saw consent in my sister's red cheeks and drooping eyes."

At this, Marina utters a subdued yet ghastly sigh, which is destroyed by the kiss of her young husband, and the unfortunate Burton goes silently away.

By himself, reflecting upon his betrothed's manner to him that has been growing colder and more distant each minute since he has tacitly refused to immediately make himself lord of her trusting loveliness, he cogitates morosely: "Am I not playing our enemies' game also in not wedding Enid?"

But it is too late for a minister now. Their carriage is already at the door to take them away first for a little drive on the Prado to destroy suspicion, then when evening darkness falls upon the land, to the Corniche road, where the boat will be waiting to put them on shipboard.

Barnes carefully inspects his pistols again. Besides these, he has only a walking cane to take with him. As he picks his stick up, Miss Maud Chartris flies in to him, excitement and dismay on her face.

"What do you want—more marrons glaces?" he asks, savagely.

"Why, Marina and Enid say they are only going out for a drive on the Prado, and they have both got their hand-satchels with them."

"To keep their jewelry safe from hellboys," mutters Barnes. "Besides, those satchels have powder puffs in them, I imagine."

"Then—you're—you're not going away now?" This last very nervously.

"Does this look like it?" says Burton, tapping nonchalantly his boot with his cane. "Enquire at the office and see if I've paid my hotel bill."

This Emory by arrangement will settle later.

"Oh—then it's all right!" A great relief ripples the Chartris girl's face. She swishes her two blonde pigtails merrily about.

"Certainly, it's all right, Maudie. Au revoir, till breakfast," and Mr. Barnes goes away with Edwin to take the ladies down to the open barouche that is awaiting them. At the hotel entrance Edwin places both his bride and his sister in the carriage and seats himself in front of them, looking as carefully to the rear as if he expected a white squall. Barnes springs into the barouche, whispers some orders to the driver and they roll away.

PASSING OF A ONCE WELL KNOWN CHARACTER

Mrs. John Lucdoux, who had been an inmate of the Industrial Home since it was opened ten years ago, died at the institution Sunday and was buried yesterday. She had been ill for a long time and her death had been expected for several weeks.

Nobody will recognize the name Lucdoux, but it is stated that the deceased was "Mary Luke," almost everybody in the city and borough will recall the person. Fifteen years ago she was one of the best known characters in Plainfield, as was also her husband, called by young and old "Blind Luke," because of an affliction. They resided in old "Battle Row" on West Fourth street until failing health compelled both to enter the Home.

"Blind Luke" was very quiet in his conduct and manner but his wife was possessed of a violent temper and it was through losing control of it that both became so widely known. For many years she appeared in the city court at almost weekly intervals because of her outbursts on neighbors and it was seldom that the presiding judge escaped without a terrific tongue-lashing. She was about seventy years old and is said to have had a wealthy sister living in Philadelphia.

"Blind Luke," the husband, is still at the Home. He emigrated from France to this country and was at one time a wealthy merchant in the South. He lost everything during the Civil war and shortly afterward came to Plainfield to live. Though absolutely blind he is by no means helpless and is a valued assistant to Superintendent Ten Eyck.

EDWIN ROBERT WALKER NEW VICE CHANCELLOR.

Former City Counsel of Trenton Succeeds Vice Chancellor Bergen.

Chancellor Magie appointed Edwin Robert Walker, of Trenton, vice-chancellor yesterday, to succeed James J. Bergen, who recently resigned to accept the appointment of associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Edwin Robert Walker was born in Rochester, on September 13, 1862. He received his education at the State Model school in Trenton, afterward reading law with S. Meredith Dickinson and Garret D. W. Vroom. He was admitted to the State bar as attorney in 1886 and as counsellor in 1889, and became counsel for the Board of Freeholders of Mercer county in 1891-93.

He served as city counsel of Trenton from 1892 to 1894. Mr. Walker's ancestors were Quakers who settled in Burlington in 1678. In 1679-80 Mahlon Stacy, one of Mr. Walker's forebears, purchased land and built a mill on the site of what is now Trenton. He was the real founder of the city, although Judge Trent was later honored by having the place named after him. Mr. Walker is a member of the New Jersey Society, Sons of the Revolution. He was married June 20, 1891.

In 1906 Colonel Collins appointed Mr. Walker as judge advocate of the Second Regiment, with the rank of captain. When Colonel Collins was elected general of the Second Regiment he reappointed Mr. Walker judge advocate, with the rank of major, which place he still holds.

The new vice-chancellor is a Democrat and was the last Democratic counsel for the Board of Freeholders of Mercer county, and was likewise the last Democratic city solicitor.

PLAN NEW TROLLEY ACROSS THE STATE.

From Fast Line Junction Across the Raritan Direct to Jersey City.

An express trolley line from Camden to Jersey City by the way of Trenton, the installing of the third rail on another branch of the Pennsylvania system, and the building of a trolley line from Moorestown, N. J., to connect with Tacony by ferry at Riverton, are improvements in transportation promised the residents of New Jersey.

Stern & Silverman, of Philadelphia, who are doing business under the corporate title of the New Jersey Short Line, say trolley cars will run to New York in two and a half hours.

They now own the Camden and Trenton Trolley Company and the Trenton and New Brunswick fast line, which comprise the New York-Philadelphia trolley line.

Cars now leave the Camden ferry every hour for Trenton, and there connect with the New Brunswick line, giving express service through a chain of towns. From Milltown, which is a few miles south of New Brunswick, the railway runs to Bound Brook, making a detour through Plainfield and Westfield, greatly adding to the length of the run, but this is where it is expected to save time.

A cut-off is being built between Milltown and Elizabeth. This link will give a straight run from Trenton to Newark over a roadbed that will permit express speed. How the line will reach Newark has not been made public. The elimination of the detour through Bound Brook will make an almost straight road from Camden to the terminal in Jersey City.

It is the intention of the company to provide double tracks all the way, with electric signals and all the safety appliances used on the trunk lines.

The fact that the road runs through many towns and villages prevents the installation of the third-rail system, but the projectors declare that the delays caused by jumping poles in ordinary street service will be done away with. The passengers will be landed in Jersey City where they can make connections with boats for Cortlandt, Desbrosses and Twenty-third street ferries.

Another feature promised by the company is the establishment of express service for the larger cities, including Trenton, Rahway, Elizabeth and Newark, with close connections for New Brunswick and South Amboy.

Perth Amboy Liked "Billy the Kid."

Joseph Santley's new starring vehicle, "Billy the Kid," which will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, was presented to a capacity audience at Manager Counihan's Perth Amboy house last night. Over 100 people bought admission tickets for the privilege of standing. The play caught the fancy of the audience and the young actor and his supporting company received several curtain calls.

Armrights Defeat Ironsides.

The Armright and Ironsides bowling teams met in a five game match on the Plainfield Academy alleys last night. The Armrights took three of the five, all of them by good margins. The winning team consisted of Britton, Campbell, Radin, Skelly and Meyer and the Ironsides, Blatz, Willett, Laing, Nash and Kiely. Skelly was the star bowler of the evening, making an average of 205.

Mr. and Mrs. Brewster, formerly of Plainfield, but now of State of Washington, are visiting friends in town for a few days.

BACTERIA NOW RULES THE WHOLE WORLD

A meeting of the New Jersey Microscopical Society was held last night in Geological Hall, Rutgers College, New Brunswick. The names of Prof. Ralph G. Wright and Percy E. Brown were presented for membership, and referred to the committee, Prof. Thompson and Prof. Smith. The following resignations were received and accepted: Dr. H. H. Janeway, Dr. N. T. Wilson, James Kellogg.

A very interesting paper on "Microorganisms as a Factor in the Making of Human History," was read by Prof. Jacob S. Lipman. A few sentences from his paper is here given:

"In sickness and in health; in times of peace and in times of war, bacteria and other microorganisms have carried good and evil into human existence. So men of past generations microorganisms were known by their manifestations only. Ambition, revenge, and the desire of conquest were all laid at rest at the command of death. The would-be destroyer passed on to oblivion, and the current political events were changed time and again. It is idle to speculate what might have been had warring nations been freed from the onslaught of disease bacteria.

"In the history of our own country epidemic diseases have played a significant part. The fatal work of microorganisms hastened the passing of a once powerful race, and the American Indian belongs to history. The heavy hand of the Spanish taskmaster was not as cruel as the pitless disease. Epidemic diseases were not restricted to the human family. They played havoc with cattle, swine and sheep.

"The various yeasts employed in the preparation of fermented liquors have freely contributed to the men of entire nations. In the soccial and political life of the United States the yeasts, or rather the products of their activities, have played a prominent role. Prohibition, local option, excise, Sunday closing, etc., are terms quite familiar to all of us. But we cannot overlook the bacterial changes in the soil to which we owe our crop and our very existence. A soil without bacteria is a dead soil, and will not sustain plants and animals. And closely interwoven with these we see the depletion and exhaustion of fertile lands, as well as the transformation of barren sandy stretches. In these changes, taking place around us, the invisible bacteria are playing a prominent part, and we may trace their work backward through long years of political and social decadence or regeneration, and forward in the hopes and dreams of the future and its unending possibilities."

The paper was discussed by Dr. Van Dyke, Dr. Smith, Prof. Thompson and Rev. P. Theodore Pockman.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and have initiation.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Temperance, met last night and elected two new members, making thirty in all since the organization.

The past councilors of the local councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will probably hold a meeting Wednesday night, November 6, when steps will be taken to perfect the proposed organization.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH MEETINGS.

Another Large Audience Hears Evangelist Waugh.

Increasing interest marks the progress of the meetings at the Christian church. Last night Evangelist Waugh spoke to a good sized audience on the subject of "The Sinner and His Relation to Christ." This matter-of-fact talk was splendidly illustrated with a series of lantern slides showing Christ as a doctor examining a patient. He found the mind filled with evil thoughts, the eyes corrupt, the tongue speaking vileness, and the heart overflowing with wickedness, but was able by his simple treatment to cleanse him even as the leper. Three solos by the evangelist were illustrated in the course of the sermon and made very impressive.

Unfortunately an impression has become common that admission is charged to this meeting. The church desires very much to correct this. The meeting is free. Every one is welcome and the presence of large audiences desired. The meeting will audiences desired. The meetings will

AGREEMENT IS MADE AS TO ANTI-BRIBERY.

The subjoined agreement has been entered into between the Republican and Democratic State Committees as the result of a meeting which took place yesterday at the State House at Trenton. The arrangement is the outcome of the work done by the Society for the Suppression of Bribery. A conference took place a few days ago at the State House, when it was agreed to postpone further work until a course of action had been formulated. The agreement is as follows:

The Republican State Committee of New Jersey and the Democratic State Committee of New Jersey, by the undersigned thereunto authorized by our respective committees, do hereby mutually agree as follows:

First—That we will to the utmost of our ability endeavor to enforce existing laws against bribery at elections, and that we will discountenance any infraction of the law thereupon, by the committee, or the subordinate committees of our respective parties.

Second—That we will discountenance in every way possible the contribution and distribution of funds by candidate, committees or others, for use in corrupting the ballot.

Third—That we will earnestly recommend to all county and city committees of our respective parties that they unite with each other in their respective jurisdictions in the enforcement of the law and the punishment of offenders.

Fourth—That as State committees we will assist such county committees in the detection and punishment of such crime to the extent of our ability.

Fifth—That we will urge the chairmen of our respective parties in the several counties and cities to mutually agree as to the amount, if any, to be paid for poll workers at election, provided that no one be employed by their party as a poll worker who was not eligible to vote at the primary of that party immediately preceding such election.

Sixth—That we recommend the appointment of a permanent committee of conference to the end that this, our agreement, may be made permanent, and that the respective parties may, by united effort, perfect existing law that it may be made stronger, more readily enforced and more certain in execution, and that said committee be authorized to recommend to the next Legislature such further legislation as they shall deem advisable for the safeguarding of the ballot.

Seventh—That such committee of conference be authorized to formulate for the ensuing year a more perfect alliance between the parties for the enforcement of the law upon this subject.

Funeral of Miss Searing.

The funeral of Miss Susan Hewlett Searing was held yesterday in St. Stephen's church, of which her nephew, Rev. A. S. Peck, is rector. Rev. Dr. Rodman, of this city, and Rev. Dr. Mulford, of Scotch Plains, officiated. The body was afterward taken to Hempstead, L. I., where a further service was held in St. George's church, after which burial was made in Greenfield cemetery.

Mrs. P. Frank Stone, of West Front street, who has been detained at home by illness, is much improved.

Mrs. William Van Duyn, of the borough, who has been visiting friends at Somerville, has returned home.

Henry Frazee, of Richmond street, has gone to Metuchen, where he will make his home for the winter with relatives.

Mrs. A. V. Lunger, of Watchung avenue, returned home today after visiting her sister, Mrs. R. O. Marsh, of Newark.

Rev. Fred Newman, of Trenton, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Newman, of West Fifth street.

—Included in the display of fruits and vegetables at Neuman Brothers' are green and wax beans, cauliflower, egg plant, tomatoes, celery and lettuce; also nice table and cooking apples. New assortment fresh every day.

—Contractor Foley, who has charge of the brick paving work, came back to Plainfield yesterday afternoon and at once started the work of grouting the pavement on Park avenue, between the railroad and Fourth street. When this is completed Somerset street will be finished.

GRIGGS, FRELINGHUYSEN AND BARBER TELL VOTERS WHERE REPUBLICANS STAND ON ISSUES

At Borough Mass Meeting, Former Governor Suggests Supervising Board to Make All Purchases of Supplies For Public Institutions.

STATE SENATOR DEFENDS AMERICAN SABBATH

Mercer's Assemblyman Answers Campaign Arguments of Democrats — Former Councilman Clark Presides.

Repubican political enthusiasm, aroused by a big street parade in which a hundred voters, headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, marched through the principal streets of the borough, carrying transparencies and burning red fire and Roman candles, turned North Plainfield's "Great White Way" upside down with excitement in the biggest political demonstration ever seen in the borough on the occasion of a mammoth mass meeting held in Saengerbund Hall, last night. The Fort Club of Greenbrook was in line. Speeches by former Governor John W. Griggs, Alfred N. Barber, minority leader of the Assembly; State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, W. W. Smalley, Joseph A. Mets, and Robert Kay, the county candidates, were received with applause by nearly four hundred voters, who gathered in the hall. Former Councilman Robert M. Clark, Jr., presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers and Senator Charles A. Reed was also on the platform.

A delegation of about fifty Republicans from Somerville and Bound Brook came to this city in two special trolleys and were met by the parade at Front and Grove streets at shortly after 8 o'clock and escorted to the hall. With them came a colorer drum corps and the Somerville Campaign Glee Club, quartette, which sang "Hold the Fort" and other selections during the meeting. The street demonstration was in charge of W. L. Smalley and Chief Howard Woolston, of the borough fire department, and the paraders marched through a lane of blazing leaves, ignited in the gutters by small boys who ran ahead of the line. Somerset street was light as day with fireworks' glare—largely contributed by a whole wagon load of candles and red fire which went off at once by accident,—when the parade arraived at the hall.

When all were seated in the hall,—and there were about twenty-five women who turned out, occupying seats in the gallery,—Chairman Robert Clark opened the meeting with a few remarks. He said that he was gratified to note the harmony which prevailed in the borough as far as Republican interests were concerned. "I verily believe there has never been a time in the history of North Plainfield when all party interests were so united as they are in this campaign. I trust that this feeling will last, and that all will stand shoulder to shoulder to do everything that will be most conducive to the interests of the Republican party."

After a selection by the Somerville Campaign Club quartette, the chairman introduced the first speaker of the evening, Alfred N. Barber, leader of the minority faction in the assembly during the past winter. Mr. Barber said in part:

"The result of this election will determine whether or not the Republican party will be in the majority in the State. Since Mr. Griggs was elected, it has always stood solid in the support of its candidates, and its power has increased from year to year as Republican principals have been recognized as the best. The issue this year is not between candidates, but between parties. The strength of a party in the nation is the defense of that party. The party is not perfect, but I ask that it be supported because of its past record in comparison with the Democratic party. This party has been in power, and has failed,—corruption of all kinds had brought a stain on the name of the State when the Republicans came into power. Through the efforts of this party laws have been made to protect the use of the public money, the fee system has been abolished in part and the fees have been cut down, so that the people have been saved more than $40,000 a year.

"Reference has been made by the Democratic leaders that the State officers are not spending sufficient time in their duties of office. They are spending all the time necessary, they are putting public interests ahead of private interests, and in the one office especially referred to by the opposing party, $30,000 has been saved.

"They bring up charges of 'gross extravagance' in the spending of the public money. I admit that more money is being spent than ever before, but it is a natural result of the increase in population and business in the State. This question of expenditure is not a question of comparison with the figures of ten years ago. The question is as to whether the people are being over burdened with taxes. It must be remembered that in the operating expenses now are included the payment of salaries of officers holding what used to be fee offices. There has been an increase of 270 per cent. in the departmental receipts, and an increase of 12½ per cent. in the expenses. Is this extravagant use of the people's money?

"In regard to the recent investigation of our State institutions let me say that I was a member of the Hahn investigating committee. The majority report of that committee was prepared as a Democratic campaign document and the Republican members were not given an opportunity to see what was in it until they could read it in the papers. In that report, the allusions to instances in the award of State contracts were incomplete and partisan; some of the highest contractors were not on the stand.

"The Democrats claim that the excise question is not an issue in this campaign. The Democratic chairman was formerly chairman of the Liquor Dealers' Association, and carefully leaves out all mention of excise matters. It is an issue, because every man conducing a liquor business in violation to the law is working against the Republican party. We Republicans did not raise this question of excise as a plank in the campaign platform, but the chairman of the Democratic State convention overstepped the bonds of prudence and made this question an issue. We wanted no politics injected into this bill but now that it is a political issue we will meet the opposing party and fight it out man to man."

W. W. Smalley, the candidate for re-election to the assembly, was the next speaker. He spoke briefly of each of his fellow candidates and asked North Plainfield's support "for the entire ticket, from Governor Fort down."

Senator Frelinghuysen, the next speaker, was greeted with sustained applause. His speech follows:

"There was a pathetic feeling showed last year in the party. There were 370 Republicans in North Plainfield who did not vote as compared with the number of voters in the Presidential election in 1904. See to it this year that you are not one of the stay at homes. Vote! Vote for your principles, vote for the party candidates—they are all good men.

"I am very liberal on the bishops' law. I wish you all could have been present at that appeal of the reverend priest of the Catholic church, when he pleaded to the Republicans to accept the bishops' bill for the prevention of crime and debauchery in the State. Now how do the candidates of the two parties stand? Fort says: 'I am unequivocally for the enforcement of the bishops' bill.' Katzenbach only says: 'I will do what the people want me to do.' This excise question, I believe, is the real issue of the campaign and the people of the State of New Jersey should consider it as of the greatest importance. It is the issue of morality. The people want to know where Katzenbach and the Democrats stand on this question. Destroy the American Sabbath and you destroy American morality; destroy American morality and you destroy the fundamental principles of the American home and the mother's influence; destroy this influence and you destroy the American government. Destroy morality and you will destroy the Union—the same as Rome was destroyed when laxness in the observance of the Sabbath came in. New Jersey has always been the battle ground of the Republic. Will she be again true to her tenets? She has enacted the bishops' law to make the Sabbath holy—to cut out the screens and the 'back rooms,' to protect the women of New Jersey. There is a star in that flag which represents New

ANSWERES MR. ATTERBURY

Mr. Huntington says that Hospital is a Necessity and Tax is for Public Benefit.

EXPENSES ARE GREAT

Question Is, He Says, Whether City Shall Pay a Part Or All of the Running Expenses.

Editor, The Daily Press:

You lately published a letter from Mr. Atterbury, which, I submit, presented a one-sided view of the question of the partial support of Muhlenberg Hospital by the city of Plainfield. He says, "Our American idea of charity is that it should depend on voluntary contributions, and that its activity should be limited by those contributions." And again, "Time was when self-respecting Americans discountenanced public beneficence and relegated all charity to the sphere of private benevolence." This statement is happily indefinite as to time. I venture to say that the time referred to was when there were no hospitals in the country—when the sick and injured got along as best they could, with such help, often ignorant and misdirected, as their friends and relatives could afford. If "our American idea of charity is that it should depend on voluntary contributions," and "charity is and ought to be a personal and voluntary matter," why not carry out these principles consistently, and leave all want and physical suffering to take their chances of relief by private benevolence? Why have any departments of charities, state hospitals for the insane or poor houses? Why not let the rule of the "survival of the fittest" have its perfect work without let or hindrance by any government agency? No one, not even Mr. Atterbury, is logical to that extent. Whatever our political principles may be, we all admit that governments, national, state, county and city, must in this day and in civilized countries do many things besides mere dispensing justice between man and man. The object of a city government is to make the city a comfortable place to live in. If A. feels that he cannot contribute to the support of public schools, why should he be forced to do so by means of a tax? Simply because the commonsense of the public holds it to be for the public good. If B. feels that he cannot contribute to the cost of sprinkling the streets, why should he be forced to do so? For the same reason.

The fact is that, in this year of grace and in a place of this size, a hospital is a practical necessity. We need one with the modern appliances and all needful facilities for treating the sick and injured in accordance with the best developments of medical and surgical science. Moreover, it should be able to do its work for the destitute gratuitously; for those of limited means, at such a cheap rate that they can avail themselves of its facilities. If such an institution could be supported by voluntary contributions, or if it has a sufficient endowment, well and good. But Muhlenberg Hospital has only an insignificant endowment, and the contributions from private sources are very far from enough to maintain it efficiently. The efforts of the board of governors, especially of the finance committee, which have been incessant and energetic, produced during the hospital year ending last June $5,515, being about 31 per cent. of the excess of operating expenses ($29,109) above operating receipts ($11,174), and the income from the endowment of the hospital was $883 less than 5 per cent. of the same deficit.

The main reasons why operating expenses so far exceed receipts from patients are two in number:

1. The regular charge for ward patients ($7 per week) does not nearly cover the cost of maintaining and caring for them. Yet the board of governors consider, I believe, that an increase of that rate would seriously impair the usefulness of the hospital, especially to persons of small or moderate means.

2. It is often impossible to collect the charges of the hospital from persons who are not considered "free patients." This loss can only be avoided by requiring payment in advance from all "pay patients," and even this measure would not wholly suffice, because a patient who has paid for a week or two in advance, cannot be discharged when he ceases to pay in advance, unless so far improved as not to require hospital treatment.

For these reasons I do not believe it possible to carry on the work of the hospital in a proper manner without very substantial aid from the city. Until now the deficit between receipts and expenses, so far as not supplied by individual donations, has been met by such devices as carnivals, kirmesses, charity balls and fairs, entailing an enormous amount

STOCK ISSUE ENJOINED

Shareholders in Manganese Steel Safe Co., Allege Proposed Plan is a "Blind".

OUTLINE THE PURPOSE

Samuel Rodman and His Wife Assert Affairs of the Concern Are In a Bad State.

Alleging that a proposed increase of capital stock from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 is only a blind to cover the insolvency of the concern, Samuel Rodman and his wife, Mrs. Martha Rodman, yesterday made application before Vice Chancellor Howell in the Chancery Court at Newark, for a rule to show cause why The Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city, should not be enjoined from making the proposed change. The bill claims that the capital stock has been wasted to the extent of $350,000 and that in the contemplated move there is a plan to turn the management of the concern into the hands of the Messrs. Mosler, of Hamilton, O., makers of the safe of that name. The application was granted and is returnable before Vice Chancellor Howell on November 7. Mr. and Mrs. Rodman were represented in the proceedings by their counsel, George Ball and W. S. Angleman, of this city.

The Manganese Steel Safe Company is one of Plainfield's most important industries. It was incorporated originally as the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works and first began business in Perth Amboy eight years ago. A larger plant was afterward erected in this city and the one at Perth Amboy was closed. The company manufacturers safes and vaults from manganese steel and has built some of the largest in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodman, who are residents of Washington, D. C., were original stockholders in the old concern and still have large holdings. In their complaint they charge that in the proposed increase the management wants a new classification of a stock. At the present time there is $600,000 common and $400,000 preferred. They want the present preferred shareholders to surrender share for share of the new stock and the present common holders to give two shares for each one of the new second preferred.

The new preferred is to be sold for cash to pay off existing obligations and to have a balance on hand, while the new $1,000,000 common is to go to the Messrs. Mosler, giving them control of the company.

The bill further asks that an inspection be made of the concern's books and that the treasurer submit his report for the past two years, this having been kept from the complainants and others.

Mr. Rodman is one of the inventors of the Manganese safes and is also the holder of numerous patents in other directions. He was formerly a first lieutenant in the Second U. S. artillery and captain of the First U. S. V. Engineers.

SOMERVILLE BURGLARS NABBED IN THIS CITY

Two police officers from Somerville dropped into local headquarters, last night, with warrants for John Sutphen, Joseph Sutphen and Harry Connors, three Somerville young men charged with breaking into the furniture store of W. E. Maxwell and stealing $40 in gold, intended for prizes in a mummers' parade tonight and displayed in the window.

They informed Captain Frederickson that they had traced the trio to this city and that they were in the gallery of the theatre enjoying a performance. At the officers' request, Roundsman Higgins was sent with them and the three men were quietly nabbed. Judge Runyon indorsed the warrants and they were immediately taken to Somerville on the 10:23 train.

The Somerville officers stated that all three prisoners have been implicated in several lawless acts in recent months and that in addition to the Maxwell charge they would have to stand trial for several others.

DEMOCRATS ENTHUSIASTIC

Candidate's Warm Reception in Union County Reaches Climax at Elizabeth.

TALKS IN PLAINFIELD

Remarkable Meeting At Rahway—James E. Martine Escorts Him Through County.

The claim of the State Democratic Committee that chances for Katzenbach's election are picking up wonderfully in the closing days of the campaign was born out pretty well by the receptions he got all through Union county yesterday. At towns that three years ago turned out dozens to greet the Gubernatorial candidate hundreds were in line, and were characterized by a spirit of enthusiasm and cordiality that the Union county politicians declared argued well for election day.

A half hour before the party reached Plainfield, at 5:30, the brass band was on hand and when Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins, chairman of the county committee, James E. Martine and the candidate jumped out of the first auto in front of the Hotel Kensington, the musicians' airs were lost in a mighty shout from the assembled crowd. Mr. Martine introduced the nominee who made a five minutes' speech. Mr. Katzenbach paid an eloquent tribute to the farmer-orator and then talked on Republican graft and mismanagement. The same set speech that he has delivered for the last two weeks was made here.

It was reserved for the county's Democratic stronghold, Elizabeth, to give the candidate for the Governorship one of the warmest welcomes he has received. The crowds in the Lyceum theatre, where the rally was held, and in the street about the entrance, were as large as those which the campaigners got together either in Trenton or Paterson, and the street parade preceding the meeting outclassed the parades of either city.

Mr. Katzenbach did not say anything yesterday that will add new material to his record of campaign speeches, but he talked on all the old issues which he has been pounding upon ever since he took the stump, almost with ferociousness so determined was he in his bearing and manner of delivery. Yet at off times he was light-hearted enough and very much himself, so apparently that many who met him remarked that he was standing the labors of the campaign exceedingly well.

At Rahway, whither the candidate was whisked in a big automobile late last night, after addressing the Elizabeth outpouring, former Judge Thomas S. Henry, as a campaign speaker at a rally in the Auditorium, made comments about Mr. Fort that caused his audience to sit up and listen.

At this Rahway meeting the like remarkable interest as in the meeting noted earlier at Elizabeth was shown. Owing to a delayed schedule at Elizabeth, Mr. Katzenbach was nearly an hour behind time. He arrived at 10:15, but at that time the house, packed to the doors, remained waiting for him, though long before he came it was apparent it had little interest in what other speakers were saying. Two hundred were without seats all this time. There must have been nearly a thousand in attendance, and, as Mayor Cook said, that is going some for Rahway on a Democratic rally.

More than 2,000 persons were in the Democratic street parade at Elizabeth, and all the time they were marching the theatre was filled with as big a crowd. When the parade at length reached the building there were 1,500 and more who, finding it impossible to gain admittance, still remained in the street. James E. Martine, of Plainfield, finally came out and addressed them in the open air, and his fiery eloquence was much to their liking.

The parade was planned to form at 7:45 p. m. at Bond and Second streets, but it was nearly an hour later when the forces were all marshaled. Councilman George Schlotter was grand marshal. He rode ahead, and was followed by an open carriage in which sat the Gubernatorial candidate with General Dennis Collins, Mayor Patrick Ryan and Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth.

Mayor Ryan later became chairman of the meeting, and when he introduced Mr. Katzenbach the audience went nearly out of their heads about him. They gave the noisest reception the candidate has had since the campaign opened. The din kept up for six or seven minutes, until those who produced it were forced from sheer physical exhaustion to desist.

Mr. Katzenbach talked about the taxation issue and that based on allegations of misappropriation of funds at the State capitol. As soon as he had finished speaking most everybody tried to get out of the theatre at once, and there was a

TRAVELERS TO ORGANIZE

Institution of Plainfield Council, U. C. T. of A. Takes Place Here Tomorrow.

25 CHARTER MEMBERS

Past Supreme Counselor Peebles Will Be In Charge—Objects of the Order Enumerated.

Details are about completed for the institutions of Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers of America, and the Grand Council in Knights of Columbus hall Saturday afternoon and night. The Plainfield Council will be instituted at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the Grand Council at night. Past Supreme Counselor M. W. Peebles, of New York, will be in charge of the work, acting under the direction of Supreme Counselor J. C. Hunt, of Lexington, Ky.

There will be present representatives from New York, Brooklyn, Trenton, Newark, Camden and Wilmington, and the event will be an important one here for commercial men. The charter members of Plainfield Council will be H. J. Percy, Frank W. Weed, Herbert P. Hoffman, J. A. G. Pike, Charles A. Sturtevant, J. D. Brant, D. B. Collins, J. A. Wilson, James C. Field, Arthur Organ, A. D. Thompson, Jr., J. E. McClintock, F. H. Coward, J. N. Lewis, Frederick Kling, W. M. Owen, William Taylor, A. I. Laing, Charles C. Randolph, Thomas DeMeza, J. E. Dunn, R. L. Day, R. W. Williams, J. F. Swan, H. A. Griffith.

The formation of the Grand Council of New Jersey and Delaware in the evening puts two States under the control of the Grand Counselor. They are the only two States not under this control, and it will make a total of twenty-five grand councils of the order. There are five men from Trenton, three from Newark, two from Wilmington, two from Camden and two from Plainfield who are eligible to membership in the grand body.

The order of United Commercial Travelers was incorporated twenty years ago. It is a secret fraternity, composed only of commercial travelers and city salesmen, and it is said to be the only secret fraternity in the world composed of one class of men. It was incorporated in the State of Ohio, and its national headquarters is in Columbus. The total membership of the order is 44,000 and there are now in the United States 400 local or subordinate councils and twenty-four grand or State councils.

Plainfield Council will exist under the jurisdiction of the grand council of New Jersey and Delaware. The objects of the order are: First, to unite fraternally all commercial travelers of good moral character; second, to give all moral and material aid in its power to its members and those dependent upon them; also to assist the widows and orphans of deceased members; third, to establish an "indemnity fund" to indemnify its members for diability or death resulting from accidental means; fourth, to secure from all transportation companies and hotels just and equitable favors for commercial travelers as a class; fifth, to elevate the moral and social standing of its members.

Charles W. Rice, of New York, supreme traveling representative, is now stopping at the Iroquois Hotel, making final arrangements for the institution on Saturday. The traveling men are looking forward to this event with much interest.

Park Avenue to Be Opened Soon.

Because employes of the Public Service Corporation failed to properly repair the tracks at Fourth street and Park avenue, it was necessary to tear up the brick and concrete at that point and do the work over again today. This delayed the completion of the brick work on Park avenue. The rest of the block is about finished and it is expected that it will be open for traffic the latter part of the week. The P. S. C. double tracing on Watchung avenue and East Front street is not progressing as fast as it should and City Engineer Gavett was obliged to stir the company up yesterday.

Missionary to Speak.

Mrs. Messler, of McKee, Kentucky, a missionary to the Mountain Whites of Kentucky, will address the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of the church.

Thirty Days for Pandhandler.

Robert Moore, a New Brunswicker who has been pandhandling about the streets for the past couple of weeks, was arrested by Patrolman O'Keefe for drunkenness last night. Judge Runyon gave him thirty days this morning.

—Andrew Thompson Auto Co. sold 15 automobiles this month despite lateness of season.

DECREE FOR MRS. WALTON

Plainfield Woman Obtains a Divorce on Evidence Collected by Her Brother.

AWARD HER ALIMONY

Also Custody of Three Children—Innocent Party Was Formerly Miss Mabel Smith.

Mrs. Mabel B. S. Walton, of Richmond Hill, L. I., who was formerly Miss Mabel B. Smith, of this city, was yesterday granted an interlocutory decree of absolute divorce from her husband, Lester R. Walton, a well-to-do chemist at No. 509 Fifth avenue, New York. The decree was announced by Supreme Court Justice Davis and carries with it alimony of $30 a week.

Testimony in the case was taken by Phoenix Ingraham, of New York, and his report recommended the action followed by the court. In her petition Mrs. Walton said that she was married in Plainfield on June 5, 1901, and that in November last she and her husband separated because of his conduct. She made no application for divorce until furnished with damaging evidence by her brother, H. Clifford Smith, of Scotch Plains, who alleged that he saw Walton in New York and followed him to the Parker House. The husband offered no defense.

In addition to the alimony, Mrs. Walton gets the custody of her three children, Lester R., Jr., Stanley and William Walton. The court stated that the father would be allowed to see them once a week.

Mrs. Walton lived with her parents on Westervelt avenue and was widely known throughout the city and borough. She graduated from the Plainfield High school in 1898 and since her marriage to Mr. Walton had spent much of her time here.

POLICE WILL WATCH HOLLOWE'EN PRANKERS

Chief of Police Kiely announced this morning that he had instructed the regular patrolmen to be on the alert for Hallowe'en pranksters tonight and that under no circumstances would acts of lawlessness be allowed. The majority of the officers will do duty in plain clothes and in addition twenty special officers in civilians' clothes will seek to curb the young men who imagine they are having fun by destroying property. All cases of malicious mischief brought before Judge Runyon last year were dealt with severely and the same rules will prevail in the city court tomorrow.

A canvass of the dealers in Hallowe'en goods reveals the fact that unusual preparations have been made to celebrate the event this year. Hundreds of masks and noise-making instruments have been sold to the youngsters who will roam the streets and from orders received by caterers there will be scores of parties. In Newark, Somerville and other nearby cities there will be mummers' parades and public celebrations.

Men's Club Banquet.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church will hold its first banquet of the season in the chapel of the church on Friday night, November 8, at 7 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Whittaker, of Elizabeth, and Rev. Perry Bascom, of Bound Brook, have been secured as speakers for the occasion. The affair is being arranged by F. O. Dunning, president of the club, and Joseph C. Allen, secretary, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring.

Husband and Wife Both Drunk.

John Bicker and his wife, Margaret Bicker, of Bound Brook, were arrested by Patrolman Meyers at the Watchung avenue trolley stand for drunkennes last night. They left one car to transfer to apother and getting mixed up started a disturbance. Judge Runyon suspended sentence this morning with the understanding that they hustle back to Bound Brook.

A Birthday Surprise.

Miss Bertha Jones, of Essex street, was tendered a surprise party by the members of the Hope chapel Young People's Society last evening. The affair was arranged in honor of her birthday. Games and music were the features of the evening and refreshments were served in conclusion.

Conducted By Rev. T. Moore-Smith.

The funeral of Miss Mary Osborn Hayes, held at her late home in Fanwood, was conducted by Rev. T. Moore-Smith, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and not by Rev. J. S. Braker, of Lynn, Mass., as stated. Mr. Braker was in attendance and spoke.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Lance, of Bedminster, gathered at their home on Saturday to help them celebrate the tenth anniversary of their wedding. The hostess was the recipient of many useful articles in tinware.

Communion services will be held in the Presbyterian church at Liberty Corner next Sunday morning. Rev. John P. Crane, who is a candidate for the pastorate, will occupy the pulpit at the morning and evening services.

A mission study class has been formed in connection with the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin. Miss Alletta Layton is teacher, and the first session was held at her home.

Mrs. Augustus Cramer has returned to her home at Mendham after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Anson Compton, at Pluckemin.

W. R. Wadsworth, of Oil City, Pa., has returned home after a visit with his sister, Mrs. Jeremiah Codington, near Martinsville.

Miss Gertrude Brown, of Somerville, was a recent guest of Miss Sarah Powelson, at Pluckemin.

Mrs. Angeline Rinehart, of Pottersville, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Beekman.

Miss Mary Van Eps, of Somerville, has been a guest at the home of John A. Powelson, near Pluckemin.

Mrs. S. L. Jones, of Philadelphia, has been visiting friends near North Branch Depot.

WESTFIELD.

Under the Perkins act, if sustained by the court, Westfield will have $20,000 in the treasury of the Board of Education toward building a new schoolhouse next year.

Westfield Council has amended the ordinance regarding shows so that whatever kind of a show wants to visit the town it will be able to license it.

Westfield was represented at the meeting of the State Library Association at Trenton yesterday by Miss Cunningham, librarian of the public library.

The new truck of the Westfield Fire Department cost $4,000 and some of the taxpayers are taking exception to the price.

A musicale for the benefit of the church choir will be given at the Westfield Baptist church Friday evening.

Miss Louise McIntyre has been appointed teacher of English in the Westfield Grammar School.

Miss Clara Wolfers, of South Bound Brook, is visiting relatives in Elizabeth.

BASKING RIDGE.

The Board of Education of Bernards township met Tuesday afternoon in the school at that place. Bills were passed for payment to the amount of $2,200. A notification from the township committee requesting the building of sidewalks along all the school property at Bernardsville was laid on the table. It was voted to allow the sale of the Mt. Prospect school to wait until the annual spring school meeting. The resignations of Mrs. Mary E. Swartz, primary teacher at Liberty Corner, and Miss Grace Lannon, of Far Hills, were accepted. The teachers committee was authorized to engage Miss Mary Howell, of Boston, for the new position at Basking Ridge; Miss Monnie Skiff, of New York, for Far Hills, and Miss Adelaide Hall, of New York, for Liberty Corner, at salaries of $50 a month.

Samuel S. Childs will close his summer home, Bairns Brae, today and will occupy a house in Morristown for the winter.

Miss A. M. Alward, who has been seriously ill for several weeks at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. S. Childs, is slowly recovering.

SECRET WRITING.

How Letters May Be Made Safe From Prying Eyes.

Even with the most unromantic of us occasions sometimes arise when we should like to make some memorandum or write some letter which cannot be read except by those we wish to do so. Here is a simple method:

Soak a sheet of note paper in cold water and lay it perfectly flat upon a pane of glass. Place above it another sheet, dry this time, and on the upper sheet write your message with a fairly hard pencil. You now destroy the dry paper and allow all the moisture to evaporate from the wet piece. Don't hold it to the fire, but let it dry naturally. If you then examine it closely you will see not the faintest trace of writing, but if you moisten the paper once more and hold it up to the tight you can read quite plainly all you wrote. It will show up like the water-mark on a postage stamp. This method, by the way, is sometimes adopted by convicts. They use their gruel cans instead of glass and a sharp piece of wood for a pencil.

Another way is less dirty and even more effective. Lay several sheets of paper on a flat surface and write upon the top one. Then remove the bottom one, on which no impression appears. If you hold this in the vapor of iodine, however, the writing will turn brown and be quite legible. The explanation is plain. The note paper contains starch, which on being pressed turns to hydramide, a substance which is acted on by iodine in the manner described.—Answers.

Cutting Steel By Oxygen Gas.

A new method of cutting steel is said to have been patented by a Belgian engineer. The process consists in first heating the metal by means of an oxyhydrogen flame and then cutting it by a small stream of oxygen gas, which unites with the steel and forms a fusible oxide, which flows freely from the cut. It is said that the cut is fully as smooth as that made by the saw and is only one one-thousandth of an inch wide.

THE GROOM MUST PAY.

Queer Marriage Custom Among the Quebec French Canadians.

A singular marriage custom prevails among the French Canadians in Quebec. After the morning marriage service in the church the bridal party in the caleche or carriole make a tour of cells upon relatives and friends during the day and then return again to church for vespers.

Before the evening dance at the bride's new home comes the supper. When the company rise from the table the bride keeps her seat, and some one asks with great dignity: "Why does madam wait? Is she so soon in bad grace?"

She replies: "Somebody has stolen my slipper. I cannot walk."

Then they carry her, chair and all, into the middle of the room, while a loud knocking announces a grotesque ragged vender of boots and shoes. He kneels before the slipperless bride and tries on a long succession of old boots and shoes of every variety and size until at last he finds her missing shoe.

The groom redeems it for a good price, which is spent in treating the company. If the groom is not watchful they steal her hat and cloak, which he redeems in the same way, and they have been known to steal the bride, for which there must be liberal pay. The event of the evening is a good jig, in which a guest volunteers to out-dance the bride. If successful the visitor demands a prize from the groom.—Pearson's Weekly.

When Gunpowder Was New.

A curious feature about the evolution in methods of hunting was the hesitation with which gunpowder was taken up by the great nobles. Not only did it take quite a century to familiarize hunters with it, but the evidence that has come down to us shows that the humble classes were the first to use it for shooting game. Maximilian, ardent sportsman that he was, tells us himself that he could shoot farther and with greater accuracy with his crossbow than his keeper could with the fire tube. To prove this he tells us the well known story of a certain chamois standing at 200 fathoms, which, after being pronounced as too far off by his henchman, who was armed with one of the first sporting firearms mentioned in print, comes tumbling down, pierced at the first attempt by the emperor's bolt. From other sources we learn of strict measures being adopted to prevent poachers and "wood loafers" using firearms, and this at a period when princes still used the cumbrous crossbar and spear. It was only in the last quarter of the sixteenth century that firearms had ousted other weapons for certain forms of the chase, the deer battue being among the latter.—Gentleman's Magazine.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of West Seventh street, is at Battle Creek, Mich., attending a convention of the National Purity Association.

Communion service will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning, when several new members will receive the right-hand-of-fellowship.

The Boys' Athletic Association of the First Baptist church will meet at 7 o'clock tomorrow night to prepare for the coming Sunday-school Athletic League meet.

A quartet, comprising Mrs. W. H. Sebring, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, R. Coles Treadwell and Charles Van Winkle, has been organized to sing at the Sunday-school sessions of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, has been supplying the pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Jordan, who is attending one of the denomination conferences.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held tomorrow afternoon in the church parlor at 3:30 o'clock. The topics will be "Mormons," and "The Mexicans."

Mrs. Frank L. Gray has been admitted to the membership of the Park Avenue Baptist church, upon confession of faith. She was received from the Wertsville Baptist church. Mrs. W. W. James has been received by letter from the Baptist church, Danielson, Conn.

A conference of the Home Mission societies of the East New Jersey Baptist Association will be held in the Westfield Baptist church tomorrow morning and afternoon. It is expected that Mrs. Reuben Mapelsden, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Post, well known home mission workers, will speak.

Councilman Charles C. Randolph, of West Seventh street, who has been detained at home by illness, is much improved and able to return to business again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Willis, of Roselle, have been visiting relatives in town for several days. Mr. Willis recently recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

N. Douglas Drake, formerly of this city, but now of Saranac, N. Y., has been spending a few days in town with relatives and friends. Mr. Drake was recently married and he and Mrs. Drake intend remaining at Saranac for the present.

REV. MR. M'CALL CALLED.

Asked to Take Pastorate of Rich Church in Morristown.

At a meeting of the South Street Presbyterian Church, Morristown, last night, a call was extended to the Rev. Alexander McCall, of Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y., to the pastorate of the church. It is not known whether Mr. McCall will accept. The salary is $4,000 and the use of the parsonage.

The Rev. Dr. Albert Erdman, who had been pastor of the church for thirty-seven years, resigned last spring and was made pastor emeritus, and since then the pastorate has been vacant. The congregation is a large and wealthy one, and the edifice is one of the largest and handsomest in Morristown.

Ex-Justice Fort Mason's Guest.

"Hamlet" with the Prince of Denmark left out came near being paralleled at the Hotel Montclair Monday night, when 250 Masons of Northern New Jersey gave a dinner to J. Franklin Fort, the Republican candidate for Governor. When the hour for the dinner had arrived and Mr. Fort was not on hand the guests sat down to the feast without him. The meal had been finished before Mr. Fort reached the hotel. The tired candidate said he had made eight speeches during the day, but he rallied to the occasion, and gave an interesting address on Masonry only.

THANKSGIVING!

Mighty Stocks, Enormons Variety and Low Prices Make This New Jersey's Best Store.

From the table itself we supply everything for the Thanksgiving feast except the turkey—the linens, the china, the glass, the silver, the cutlery, kitchen needs and most of the edibles.

Beautiful, tasteful and appropriate settings for the Thanksgiving table will be found here in the most prodigious variety. You can choose from a stock embracing the very finest, the medium and the most moderately priced, and in whatever class you make selections you can depend upon the prices being the lowest quoted by any first-class house.

A Great Showing of Linens

Conducting as we do the largest linen store in the State, giving more space to the display and sale of linens than any other store, buying in enormous quantities and anticipating advances, we are able, not only to give you choice of the greatest variety and the very best patterns, but to quote prices other stores cannot possibly meet and live. Assortments this season are larger than ever, which means that the stock shown here is by odds the largest in the State, and greater than is shown in many New York stores, making it unnecessary for you to look beyond this establishment for the better sorts of table coverings.

Damask Tablecloths, Damask Table Sets, Hemstitched Tablecloths, Doilies, Napkins, Tray Cloths, Scarfs and Tea Cloths in every wanted size, and in patterns exclusive with us are here.

During This Thanksgiving Sale

Lowered prices will prevail on most of the table linen stock—prices that are in many instances below the present import cost of equal grades of linens. Only a few of the many excellent values we have are here quoted.

PATTERN TABLECLOTHS.

Hundreds of new and beautiful designs in Pattern Tablecloths are shown in this great linen stock, and we are confident not only will the beauty of the pattern and the excellence of the quality win your patronage, but prices will induce immediate purchases in anticipation of your Thanksgiving needs.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Millionaire's Revenge," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, may probably be admitted to be the great melodramatic sensation of the season, inasmuch as it is a stage story truthfully illustrating the Madison Square Roof Garden tragedy, which startled the world a few months ago. Hal Reid, the author, has carefully gathered every detail of the unfortunate affair, and gives many scenes in the private lives of the principals, which will go far to show the true cause of the killing and, possibly, justify the act. The roof garden scene will be a powerful piece of realism, requiring a full and crowded stage.

In James O'Neill's elaborate revival of "Virginius," which appears at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, direct from its New York triumphant run, special attention has been given by the manager, Edgar Forrest, to the groupings on the streets of Rome—Patricians, Plebeians and the other ranks of Roman society are passing to and fro, or standing in groups to discuss the topics of the day. The street in Rome, one of the scenes in "Virginius," is shown with great detail, in the foreground is the bronze statue of the Wolf of Rome suckling the twins Romulus and Remus. It is in this scene that Appius first beheld the fair Virginia and lusted for her, which led to her and his own death.

"Monte Cristo" is almost half a century old, yet people are as vividly stirred by it now as those of the Civil War were, and as the ones in the next fifty years will be. Joseph King, who produced the "Ninety and Nine," the great rural play that ran six months at the Academy of Music in New York, will present his New York company in this wonderful play with a complete scenic production at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

One of the attractions that is sure to fill the New Plainfield theatre and to please the patrons is Miss Mamie Fleming in the sensational western melodrama, "Girl of Eagle Ranch." It is booked for Election Day, afternoon and night. The first act takes place in a typical western barroom near Eagle Pass, the second act is Eagle Pass, showing the bridge across the canyon, the explosion of the powder house and the burning of the bridge; the fourth act is the parlor of the mountain house in Denver, Col. Manager N. H. Gracey has engaged an excellent company to support Miss Fleming. Specialties of a high class will be introduced by Miss Fleming, Valley Forge quartette, Baby Myrtle, W. H. Gracey and others.

To those who enjoy tuneful music, pretty costumes, beautiful scenery and real comedy, the opportunity will be offered next Wednesday night, when "The Girl in the Barracks" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre. This play met with great success when Louis Mann and Clara Lipman appeared in it as co-stars. The plot is novel in theme and it is said to be decidedly humorous. Jos. Standish and Miss Marie Beaugarde, who appear in the steller roles this season, are prominently identified with musical comedy. In support of Mr. Standish and Miss Beaugarde, Allan E. Reid, who presents this clever musical farce, has engaged the following cast of well-known players: Cora Belle Greene; Virginia Ackerman, Louise Moyers, Frances Francis, Gladys Greene, Mae Hubbard, Wm. H. Woodside, Robert Strauss, Charles N. Kinsley, Goofroy H. Heath, Louis Fitz Roy, Arthur Kelly, Wm. S. Davis and Edward Swift.

CENTRAL ENGINEER IS CRUSHED UNDER ENGINE.

Phillipsburg, Oct. 31.—George Lear, of this place, an engineer of the New Jersey Central Railroad, was killed in a wreck between this place and Hampton Junction yesterday morning. Lear had charge of a local "pusher" engine assisting the fast eastbound freight up the grade, and was sidetracked into another train through the mistake of a brakeman.

Lear attempted to jump off his engine when he saw the approaching danger, but was crushed to death. His engine was hurled from the track and upset.

Robert Davis, fireman on the "pusher" engine, also a resident of this place, escaped with slight injury. The body of the engineer was under the engine for several hours. He leaves two children, Mabel and Earl Lear, at home. He was a member of the Wesley M. E. church and of the B. of L. E.

MURDERERS TAKEN TO PRISON.

John E. Schuyler and Michael Tomasi, Latter Condemned to Die in State Prison.

Flemington, Oct. 31.—John E. Schuyler, whose death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and Michael Tomasi, sentenced to death in the electric chair by Justice Alfred Reed Monday afternoon, were taken to the Trenton institution by Deputy Sheriff Jacob Dilts and Chief of Police Elmer E. Hann yesterday morning.

Justice Reed came here Monday afternoon and sentenced Tomasi. Rudolph A. Braun, of Newark, one of Tomasi's attorneys, made a motion for a new trial. Justice Reed refused to grant it. It was not specified when Tomasi will be put to death.

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION.

It is rather extraordinary that so little interest is manifested in the special election next Tuesday to decide whether Muhlenberg hospital shall be partially supported by the city. The proposition to be submitted to the voters at that time provides for a tax of one-third of a mill on every $100 for that purpose, and if approved by the voters and not attacked in the courts, the local taxpayers will be assessed for its benefit annually just the same as if it were a public institution.

Naturally a protest may be expected, particularly from large property owners who must bear the greater burden if such a scheme is to go into effect. In the eye of the law, the institution is not of a public character and for that reason it is very doubtful if the courts would sustain such a tax if such recourse were taken. But aside from that, Muhlenberg is but one of the many worthy charities deserving of support and because of this, it is argued that a dangerous and expensive precedent would be made were the people to be taxed for its benefit. A large body of citizens could then present a sound argument that the parochial school should receive a share of the city's taxes for surely the work it carries on relieves the city of bearing the expense of educating the children of no inconsiderable proportion of taxpayers.

If the hospital is to be included in the tax budget, the argument is used that it should be made a public institution. In other words that the city should have a voice in its management. True it is that the mayor is permitted to be an ex-officio member of the governing body, but this is insufficient. The city should control the institution. This argument is advanced by both former Mayor Buckle and State Senator Reed in this paper yesterday.

This paper invites expressions of opinion from the local taxpayers and will gladly publish any communications they may see fit to write.

THE MORAL ISSUE.

Speaking at Burlington last night, Governor Stokes declared that the proposition to submit the Ten Commandments, or any part of them to a vote of the people, is an insult to Almighty God. This statement he made in referring to the attitude of the Democratic party on the Bishops' law, Mr. Katzenbach having evaded the issue by saying that he would do as the people willed. The same line of argument was used by Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen in his courageous and commendable defense of the American Sabbath in a talk at a meeting of the North Plainfield Republicans last night. In fact it is the position taken by the solid Republican party in the present campaign and despite the equivocal, and side-stepping utterances of the Democrats, it is the paramount issue of the present political contest.

What have the ministers of the gospel to say on this subject? Fortunately some have already come to the front and are fighting shoulder to should with the Republicans for the continuance of the American Sabbath. Others are sure to get on the firing line within the next forty-eight hours. Morality is at stake. The question is, will the Christian people of this State allow the American Sabbath to be desecrated? Are we to have a Sunday similar to that of the late Continental Sabbath? That is the sum and substance of the whole agitation. It is the biggest issue in the campaign, and there is not the least doubt that before election day, the clergy will speak out fearlessly in behalf of the American Sabbath for which Mr. Fort stands. We would be glad to hear from them.

NEWSPAPERMAN WEDS CHARMING YOUNG WOMAN

At a quiet home wedding, Miss Helen F. Robins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Robins, of Norwood avenue, and Francis K. Anderson, also of this city, were married last evening, only a few relatives and intimate friends being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the bride is a member.

The maid of honor was Miss Bessie W. Bond, of this city, while the groom was attended by his best man, Harold S. Robins, brother of the bride. Miss Beatrice Sniffen and Master Franklin Field, of Brooklyn, were ribbon bearers. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

White and green were the prevailing colors, the rooms being attractively decorated in smilax, with chrysanthemums and palms. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered the parlor.

The bride was gowned in a white lace robe over white satin, and her veil was caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of white mousselaine de soie and carried pink chrysanthemums.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which the bride and groom left for a wedding trip. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside in Plainfield.

Mr. Anderson is a graduate of the Plainfield High School. He was formerly on the staff of The Daily Press and is now editor of The Elizabeth Times.

ANSWERS MR. ATTERBURY

of work upon the women of the auxiliary board and other friends of the hospital. There are evident signs visible to those acquainted with the facts, that these sources of income are precarious and cannot be permanently relied upon. The expenses of the hospital, like those of housekeeping generally, have increased and are increasing. The Common Council some time ago urged the hospital board to provide a building for contagious diseases, such as scarlet fever and diptheria. Such a building is nearly completed and its care and management will cause additional expense to the institution.

So it seems to me that, if we are to have a hospital, the practical question is whether it shall be a private one supported in part by the city, or a public one managed and paid for wholly by the city; more concretely, whether the city will pay one-fifth or one-quarter of the expense, or the whole thereof.

SAMUEL HUNTINGTON.

FELL DEAD.

Westfield Youth Fatally Stricken Riding Bike.

While riding to his home on a bicycle yesterday morning, Dornie R. Sorter, the son of Charles Sorter, of North Broad street, Westfield, suddenly dismounted from his wheel in the centre of the road. Mr. Bissel, who had been riding behind him, rode up and asked what the matter was. Sorter said, "I feel dizzy." He had no sooner uttered the words than he feel to the ground in a dead faint. A blanket was obtained from a nearby house and Sorter was placed upon it at the side of the road. He had hardly been there a minute when he died.

The body was taken to the home and the doctor was summoned who attributed the death to heart failure. The funeral was held this afternoon at the late home. Dr. Stearns officiated. Interment will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Injured "Jumping" a Freight.

Patsy Diovolo, one of the section gang employed on the New Jersey Central in the western part of the city, attempted to "jump" a fast freight at the Grant avenue station this afternoon. His right foot slipped, going under the train and it was frightfully crushed. Fellow-workmen hastened to the man's assistance and he was quickly taken to the hospital in the ambulance. Later the foot was amputated. The man will recover.

KATZENBACH BY 13,200 MAJOR LENTZ PREDICTS

Some interest was felt among politicians yesterday at Trenton over the election forecast of Major Carl Lentz, the deposed Essex county Republican "boss." It is as follows:

Counties.	Fort, R.	Katzenbach, D.
Atlantic	1,500	—
Bergen	1,000	—
Burlington	2,500	—
Camden	6,000	—
Cape May	500	—
Cumberland	2,500	—
Essex	—	5,000
Gloucester	1,500	—
Hudson	—	20,000
Hunterdon		1,500
Mercer	1,000	—
Monmouth	—	1,200
Middlesex	—	1,000
Morris	1,000	—
Ocean	500	—
Passaic	—	1,000
Salem	500	—
Somerset	1,000	—
Sussex	—	1,000
Union	—	1,000
Warren	—	1,000
Totals	19,500	32,700
Katzenbach's majority		13,200

Not much importance was attached to these figures, as the Major, it is said, feels his nose painfully out of joint over being laid off as chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee and the selection of Alfred N. Dalrymple in his place. "Dal," as he is called, is putting up a great fight on the Republican ticket in Essex and claims the county by five thousand or more.

The Heat in the Human Body.

If none of the heat generated in the human body was lost, in half an hour it would increase the temperature of the body 2 degrees. It is conceded that a temperature of 106 degrees is fatal. If the facility of insensible adjustment to external changes of heat and cold was suddenly lost the entire race would die inside of four hours. Translating the total heat of the body generated in twenty-four hours into work as pure heat it would raise six and a half gallons of water instantaneously to the boiling point. — Minneapolic Journal.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Another holdup was reported Tuesday night on Mountain avenue, near Dr. J. Ackerman Cole's place. The highwayman seems to have changed his place of operation, the other two taking place on Park avenue near the borough line. This makes the third holdup within two months. Doesn't speak very well for the town, yet you hear some people say that the police appropriation of $800 should not be carried.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., Democratic nominee for Governor, together with a number of well known county Democrats, were in town yesterday afternoon meeting the voters.

Tonight is Hallowe'en night. If you loose your gate or any other piece of portable property within pilfering distance it is your own fault.

Thomas Whitman has purchased William Spicer's interest in the ice business, the two have been conducting during the past summer.

The North Plainfield Republican rally held last night was attended by several of the local workers from here.

James Fitzgerald has returned from a visit with friends at Madison.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meet tonight in the Library rooms.

The Bible Study class met for an evening reading and study last night.

DUNELLEN.

Political spirit broke loose in a most enthusiastic way at the Democratic mass meeting in the borough hall last night. There were about eighty voters present at the meeting, and Harry Swackhammer, the Democratic candidate for mayor of the borough, presided. Senator Silzer was scheduled to address the meeting, but did not put in appearance. The principal speaker of the meeting was Surrogate Daly, who made a ringing speech, calling the voters to the support of the local and county candidates, calling the voters to the support of the local and county candidates of the party. Other speakers were Candidates Solomon and Kelly, on the party ticket for freeholders. They were well received. The county speakers, with Surrogate Daly, came to the borough in an auto from South Plainfield, where a small but enthusiastic meeting was held earlier in the evening. Local politics for the Democracy have taken a big boom by the meeting and with the increased registration reported by the registry committee there seems to be a great deal of interest taken in the mayorality race.

Michael Gallipher got possession of the building occupied by the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company at North and Washington avenues in a transfer effected last night. Mr. Galligher has not yet announced what he intends to do with the property, but it is reported that he will make extensive improvements. The consideration has not been made public, but the property is considered one of the most valuable sites in the borough.

Plans have been completed for a musicale and entertainment to be held in Friendship hall Monday, November 4, for the benefit of the piano fund of the New Market school. A feature of the entertainment will be J. Wotley Gangloff, humorist, dialect story teller and impersonator. There will be vocal and instrumental music. The advance sale of tickets has already begun.

The G. E. Club, of New Market, is planning a musicale in which the members of the club will take part with vocal and instrumental selections. No date has yet been announced.

The Sunshine Guild of Holy Innocents church will hold a fair December 6 and 7, and committees have been appointed to arrange the details of the affair.

John Evans has been making several improvements on his house.

INDIAN MISSIONARY HERE

Rev. Frank Hall Wright Makes Plea for Work in the Far West.

AT TRINITY CHURCH

Tells What Other Denominations Are Doing and Urges Reformed Church People to Greater Effort.

Before a large and deeply interested audience at Trinity Reformed church, last night, Rev. Frank Hall Wright, the Indian evangelist and missionary, presented an earnest and effective appeal for greater support of the cause of home missions, especially in Oklahoma and throughout the Western part of Texas. Mr. Wright has been sent out by the General Synod and Women's Executive Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church in America especially for the purpose of arousing more interest in the home mission work among the Indians and whites of the far west.

Mr. Wright visited Plainfield fifteen years ago on an evangelistic tour and there were many present last night who remembered him and were glad of the opportunity to hear him again.

In his own peculiar earnest manner he touched the hearts of all by his appeal for funds and missionaries to rally to the great work in the far west. He said that the Reformed church although first in the field in missionary enterprise has apparently neglected a great opportunity to carry the gospel to these people, yet its membership is 121,000. He believed the time had come when the church should look out for its laurels. Last year there were 1,855 gained in membership over the preceding year, and the speaker added that the church should now number a million.

The evangelist cited facts and figures showing how much more the Baptists, Presbyterians and Methodists are doing in that section of the country, than the Reformed church and pictured the need in such a vivid manner that everyone felt more deeply his responsibility. Mr. Wright said that he was the pioneer for the church in this mission work and his description of scenes and incidents in his labors among the various tribes of Indians touched the hearts of all.

He thought the policy of the Reformed church in the past, was wrong, in that it adhered too strongly to the Dutch blood, while there are so many native Americans who are thirsting for the gospel of Christ. He declared it to be a debt the church owes not only to the great army who know not Christ, but to Christ and the country which has given to everyone glorious liberty.

"Why," said Mr. Wright, "you have a class of aliens right here that we do not know in the west. Tonight while walking your streets I inquired of a man a certain direction and he could not understand me. You have a mission here among such people. Ninety-five per cent. of the people in Oklahoma are pure Americans. They have settled there to make their fortunes and they are anxious to have the gospel brought to them. The opportunity is ours and we must accept it right now. They are the best people in the world to evangelize and they are hungry to learn about Christ. Last year we tried to raise $200,000 for home mission work and failed. This year we want to secure $50,000 more than last year."

After presenting the darker side of the picture in his effort to arouse his hearers to a sense of their responsibility, he related a more hopeful story, showing the advance made by the church. He told how the work in Oklahoma was started with $3,000 and there is today church property there valued at $50,000 and the church has a membership of 260 including a large and thriving Sunday-school.

Mr. Wright stated that he belonged to a Choctaw tribe of Indians and that it was his father that gave to Oklahoma its name. The many incidents he related describing his experiences with the Indians awakened great interest, and most impressive was a letter which he read at the close of his remarks. This was from an Indian who had lost his wife and child by death. He had been converted and he told in the letter how his faith in Christ had not been shaken, but that he would strive the harder to serve Him. Mr. Wright closed his remarks with the singing of an inspiring hymn, "There is a Beautiful Land."

The service was in charge of F. E. Smith, superintendent of the Sunday-school, who explained the object of it, and told of the efforts of the General Synod and Women's Executive Committee to raise more money for this most important work in the West.

Old Time Capital Crimes.

In England during the sixteenth century stealing above the value of twelve-pence, burning a haystack, killing or stealing sheep, breaking a dike or bridge, breaking a bank of a fish pond, cutting down a tree in an orchard and the malicious tearing or defacing of the garments of a person in the street were all capital offenses and were punished as such by death.—Westminster Gazette.

MISS COOLEY MARRIED BY FRIENDS CEREMONY

Miss Edith Haviland Cooley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Justus H. Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, and Robert Moore Steer, of Baltimore, were married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Friends Meeting-house on Watchung avenue. The quaint ceremony of the Religious Society of Friends was used. The bride and groom married themselves without the offices of a clergyman, although Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, a close friend of the couple, offered a closing prrayer. W. D. Williams, a local speaker at the meeting, made a few remarks.

The old meeting-house was thronged with relatives and friends of the couple and all were deeply impressed with the simple and odd ceremony. The bride was gowned in a traveling costume of brown broadcloth and wore a hat. She was attended by her niece, Elizabeth Jenkins, aged three years, while Walter K. Cooley, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., a cousin of the bride, was best man. After the ceremony the couple received congratulations. Later they departed on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Baltimore. As they left the meeting-house they were showered with confetti, while the coach was elaborately decorated with white ribbon.

The bride is the second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cooley and is a graduate of Sawrthmore College. The groom formerly lived in Waterford, Va., but is now associated with the Lord Baltimore Printing and Publishing Company, of Baltimore, where he and his bride will reside after the honeymoon. The couple received a great many handsome gifts.

Work Was Defective.

In court today at Elizabeth, a verdict for the full amount of the claim, $926, was awarded the Commonwealth Roofing Company in its suit against the Clawson Brothers for alleged defective work in building a local structure. The trial lasted three days.

Pleasure Trip to Jamaica.

Dr. M. B. Long and son, Walter Long, of Park avenue, sailed last night for Jamaica on a pleasure trip. They will be away only a short time.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 3.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Acquainted with God.—Job xxii, 21, 22.

To know God has been the cry of the human heart through all generations. From the ignorant savage, from the cultured pagan and the races between them, has gone up the cry, "Oh, that I might know where I might find Him!" And now it is our blessed privilege not only to know Him, to know what He is and all that He has done, but to have Him as an acquaintance, a friend and the dearest of them all. With such a possibility before us, how can any one decline it? Who would refuse the acquaintance of the president of the United States or the world's greatest and best men? Yet many who would highly prize such privileges treat lightly and even ignore the possibility of acquaintance with God.

It is a great blessing to know God intimately, to be on such familiar terms with Him as were Enoch and Noah, of whom it was said that they walked with God—walked with Him and talked with Him as acquaintance with acquaintance—to know Him as Abraham knew Him, of whom it was said that he was "the friend of God." And so well was this friendship known that those about him called him "the friend," referring to his intimate relationship. Such acquaintanceship is possible to us. Have we attained to it? If not, we should, for with it come peace and prosperity. "Acquaint now thyself with Him and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee."

God may be known in several ways. We may know Him through nature, through the Scriptures and, best of all, through His Son Jesus Christ. Through Christ alone can we know Him to the salvation of our souls. "No man knoweth the Father except the Son and he to whom the Son revealeth Him."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. v, 22; Ex. xxxiii, 11; Deut. vi, 4-7; Ps. i, 1-6; xix, 1, 2; xxiii, 1-6; lxxxiv, 1-12; John xiv, 1-6; xv, 1-10; Gal. v, 16.

One of Norway's Leading Endeavorers.

P. G. Reiersen, one of the leading Christian Endeavorers of Norway, has been especially earnest in the translation of Christian Endeavor literature into Norwegian and in the establishment of new societies. He spent part of his two months' vacation last year in attendance upon the Geneva convention and in Christian Endeavor work with Secretary Blecher of Germany. A month of it was spent in an extended Christian Endeavor journey in Norway, speaking in many towns and sowing Christian Endeavor seed all the way. His latest work is the furnishing of regular and extended comments on the Christian Endeavor prayer meeting topics to the Norwegian societies through a supplement to a leading Lutheran paper. He is a young man of great earnestness and devoutness, and is a hearty believer in Christian Endeavor. God is prospering his consecrated labors.

P. G. REIERSEN.

The Christ of the Andes.

On the border line between the republics of Chile and Argentina, on the crest of the Andes where the only pass over the mountains is more than 12,000 feet nearer the stars, stands a gigantic figure of our Lord Christ holding His cross and with His upraised finger pointing every traveler to the skies. It was erected to celebrate the conclusion of the boundary dispute between the two republics which long threatened a disastrous war. On the base of the statue are symbolic figures of the two republics in bas-relief representing Argentina and Chile clasping hands, and underneath is the motto, "He is our peace, who hath made both one."

This may well be our motto too. He, the Lord Jesus Christ, is our peace, and He hath made us all one—all denominations, all nations, one in endeavor for Him. He is our peace, who hath made us all one.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., at Seattle Convention.

Power For Union.

An Australian visitor to this country has been speaking of the power of the Christian Endeavor movement in making for the union of the churches. "If ever," he said, "union takes place between Methodists and Presbyterians it will be due in a great degree to the influence of Christian Endeavor. The next generation will see a great change as the outcome of the fellowship which the young people of the present generation have in connection with our Christian Endeavor meetings."—Irish Endeavorer.

Nov. 3: "According to our works." "If a man love me he will keep my word."—John xiv, 23.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Matt. xxi, 28-32; Mal. i, 6-8; I John ii, 5; iii, 7; v, 3.

This seems very simple, yet how beclouded it has often been made! How can you know that one is a Christian? How can I know that I am a Christian? What a deal of discussion has been had on this and what a vast amount of nonsense written and spoken!

Yet here is the answer plain as daylight. Would you know if you are a Christian? Then compare your life with the teachings of Christ. If you keep His commands, you are His, no matter how you may chance to feel. If you do not keep His words, be assured you are none of His, no matter how you feel or what you think.

One serious difficulty in all this business is that many do not know what Christ's words and commands are. Oh, in a general sense they have a misty idea of Christian duty, but as to any definite, clear cut conception of New Testament piety and heart communion it is as unknown to them as the language in which He spoke.

How can one know what He commands if he does not take time to read what He said and to ponder over it, to meditate on it, turn it over in mind and apply it to the circumstances of one's daily life?

No wonder that the ordinary life of Christians is so far below the New Testament standard when so little time is spent by most of them in learning what Jesus said for their guidance.

The thirty minute sermon heard occasionally and a short reading from the Bible is very inadequate guidance in forming a Christian character.

The serious part of this is that we are to be judged according to our works. We are placed here in a practical training school. We are becoming fixed in habits and disposition and confirmed in our ways of life. It is important that we grow rightly now. There is little likelihood that we shall be able hereafter to ungrow the crooks and twists we grow into ourselves here. It is better to grow straight in the first place, but to do so we must have a straight standard to tie up to, and must be kept close to it, until the fiber of our nature has hardened into shape.

Is your standard all right? Are you keeping close to it? Failure on either of these points will be fatal.

It costs to be straight, but it pays in the end. It pays all the way along. There is never a day when it is not better and more satisfactory to be learning of Jesus in a teachable spirit than to be indifferent or hostile. Better be what you know you ought to be and what is worth while and be it all the time.

Common Days.

One of the chief dangers of life is trusting occasions. We think that conspicuous events, striking experiences, exalted moments, have most to do with our character and capacity. We are wrong. Common days, monotonous hours, wearisome paths, plain old tools and everyday clothes tell the real story. Good habits are not made on birthdays nor Christian character at the new year. The vision may dawn, the dream may waken, the heart may leap with a new inspiration on some mountain top, but the test, the triumph, is at the foot of the mountain, on the level plain. The workshop of character is everyday life. The uneventful and commonplace hour is where the battle is won or lost. Thank God for a new truth, a beautiful idea, a glowing experience, but remember that unless we bring it down to the ground and teach it to walk with feet, work with hands and stand the strain of daily life we have worse than lost it—we have been hurt by it. A new light in our heart makes an occasion, but an occasion is an opportunity, not for building a tabernacle and feeling thankful and looking back to a blessed memory, but for shedding the new light on the old path and doing old duties with new inspiration. The uncommon life is the child of the common day lived in an uncommon way.—Maltbie Davenport Babcock.

Worth Remembering.

The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness.—Montaigne.

Keep your soul in the free and open wherever your body may be.—"Out West."

The spirit of brotherhood never needs to hire billboards to have its good deeds made known.—Henry F. Cope.

Live in a thankful spirit and you will find more to be thankful for.—Brooke Herford.

The best reformers the world has ever had are those who have commenced on themselves.—W. H. Shaw.

Break one thread in the border of virtue and you don't know how much you may unravel.—Cunningham Geikie.

The time is the worst employed which we give up to regrets unless we learn from them lessons for the future.—Levis.

All and In All.

His kingdom ruleth over all—therefore thou cans't find nothing which is not matter for praise, since there is nothing which is not the matter of thy Lord's gracious permission or planning or control. Over all—nowhere cans't thou step aside His realm nor in anything get beyond His care and government. Over all—therefore take all as from God, hold all as from God, and by thy gratitude give all back to God again, and thus complete the circle, making Him the alpha and omega, the beginning and the ending of all things.—Rev. Mark Guy Pearse.

Gazing on the carriage as it rolls away, Maud says contentedly to herself: "Cracky, I was scared Burton was going before I told it to him," then adds contentedly: "Gee, I'm as smart as a diplomatist," as she fishes a fourth piece of paper out of the bosom of her frock. "If I'd sold all that letter to Barnes at the first jump, I'd have been out of stock in trade." So Miss Chartris goes up to a bread and butter tea with her governess quite contentedly and munches marrons glaces surreptitiously over her lessons for the two succeeding hours. Then the carriage not returning with the driving party, the intrigante grows anxious. She sneaks down to the hotel office and whispers to the clerk: "Have they come back yet? You know, our friends—Mr. Barnes of New York and his party?"

"Not yet, Mademoiselle, though I believe their carriage has returned."

"Their carriage returned?" Maud darts nervously to her mother's parlor.

"Why are you rushing in upon me, you horrid child?" cries her mother, angry at being interrupted.

"Oh, ma, I thought you'd like to know. Miss Marston says I had such a good lesson in arithmetic."

"Very well, tell Miss Marston to give you another and a longer one."

"Yes, but it's too late now. It's ten o'clock and Mr. Barnes and Enid and the rest haven't come back. When do you expect them, ma?"

"I don't expect them."

"What?" Maud's eyes roll in a dazed way.

"They have gone away."

"Where?"

"To London, I imagine."

Maud flies from the room and alone in her own chamber sobs, groans and rends her hair, muttering: "Oh, I could have sold Barnes the other part of Marina's letter for lots, and now he's gone away and it ain't worth tuppence."

She is about to go despairingly to bed when curiosity mingling with her disappointment, she ejaculates: "I wonder what it is, anyway," and goes to studying the little quarter of a sheet of letter paper she has drawn from the bosom of her frock.

It is a mixture of French and Italian. She cannot entirely decipher the foreign handwriting; indeed, she can scarcely understand it.

But some passages in it produce such a terrible effect upon the child's nerves that after she has gone to bed she tosses about and sleep will not come to her. Suddenly her very pigtails seem to stiffen with terror; she rises half out of bed and mutters to herself: "Oh, what do they mean by killing her, if she does; and killing her husband, if she doesn't?"

CHAPTER IV.

"Suspect Everybody!"

As Barnes seats himself in the carriage, it dashes past the numerous magnificent cafes of the Rue Noailles and turns into the wide Rue de Rome, the horses keeping up a smart gait. They flit between the elms and plane trees with which this beautiful avenue is planted, and passing the Obelisk, enter the even broader Prado.

Under ordinary circumstances, the four would enjoy their carriage exercise greatly, but when sudden death hangs over one and every sense is strained to guard against the intangible, pleasure is necessarily far distant. In addition, the two written communications sent, Barnes now is satisfied, by Corregio Cipriano Danella, are doing some nasty yet very subtle work upon at least three of the members of the party.

Then Barnes and His Party Drive on Again.

Marina, though her beauty attracts the eyes of many who roll by her in carriages, appears to have but one thought, the safety of her husband.

Several times she glances apprehensively at the horsemen who canter after their carriage, keeping always at discreet distance.

Marina's nervousness quickens Barnes' searching eyes that now seem to be everywhere. If a beggar approaches and takes off his hat, demanding alms, he is watched as carefully as if he were a rattlesnake coiled to spring. If another carriage rolls too closely by them, every man in it is regarded by the American as if he were a road agent in disguise.

As they drive on Enid's eyes blaze like blue stars. Her manner is daintily ethereal, yet she laughs almost heartily as a lame and blind beggar who had stood demanding alms in front of their approaching equipage, suddenly opens his sightless eyes and springs aside agilely with his paralyzed legs to avoid being run down by their reckless coachman. Still, when the crowd of carriages near the Chauteau des Fleurs compels their coachman to draw rein, her eyes grow resolute to meet any unknown danger that may come upon them.

Perhaps this is produced by the two men on horseback attracting her attention.

"Who are they?" she whispers.

And Edwin adds: "I have been keeping a weather eye on those two devils."

Marina only gazes at them and shudders. Her slight hand clings to her husband's sleeve. Her agitation is so great Barnes is compelled to explain that Emory has engaged the men for their protection.

"You think our danger is so imminent as all this?" asks Anstruther.

"I think it wise to take every precaution." Barnes turns his eyes upon the men, but the gloom of approaching night has become so deep that their faces are now absolutely indistinguishable.

Then Barnes and his party drive on again and the American's eyes rest appealingly on his beautiful fiancee as she sits opposite to him, but hers do not answer the tenderness of his glance. In fact, they grow colder under his appeal. Her manner seems to say: "You had your golden opportunity, laggard. It will be a long time before you obtain another."

Meantime they are approaching the Mediterranean. The equipages grow less numerous upon the avenue which they had filled out half an hour ago.

"Do you think it is too early to put the girls on the yacht yet?" whispers Edwin.

"Yes, not dark enough," and Barnes directs the coachman to take the narrower drive called the Mazargues and go past the race course, reaching the Corniche road.

All the time the two horsemen jog on behind them at a discreet distance. The sea breeze freshens, the night deepens and they reach the Corniche road that skirts the sea. All other equipages have left it. Here Barnes changes their course and they return in the direction of the city towards the Roucas Blanc.

Their carriage soon stops near the two small bays upon which are situated the bathhouses. At a little landing place Barnes can just discern in the mist of the water, which adds to the gloom of the evening, a boat with two seamen.

To be certain, he hails and is answered by Emory's voice.

"It's all right," he whispers to the ladies and springs out of the carriage.

The next moment Emory has run up from the landing and is standing beside him. Emory whispers suspiciously to Barnes: "You get the ladies into the boat quick. I told my men not to come near you unless there was danger. I hear their steps coming down. I'll see what they want." Barnes and Edwin carefully escort their charges through the gloom down the little steps that lead to the boat. Their hand satchels being placed beside them, a carriage robe is carefully tucked by Barnes about Miss Anstruther.

Performing a like service for his wife, Edwin seizes the tiller, seats himself at the stern and remarks comfortably: "Now all's shipshape! As soon as your sleuth is on board we'll pull out to the yacht." Then he asks one of the two oarsmen: "Have you the Seagull's bearings?"

"Aye, aye, sir. She is lying off about a quarter of a mile nigh due south of here.

"All right," says Edwin, examining a pocket compass he produces. "She might have been difficult to find in the darkness without her bearings. She's a light up, of course?"

"A mast head anchor-glim, sir," replies the man.

Suddenly Edwin whispers to Barnes: "We've boarders!" and springing up, seizes a boathook and pushes the cutter away from the dock. "Pull quick, my men!" he commands, for the voice of the American detective rings out in the night air: "Look out for yourselves!" and they hear the patter of feet in the darkness running down the walk mingled with a couple of foreign oaths.

Next there is a splash in the water and Barnes says, coolly: "Hold up for a minute, Edwin," and calls: "Is that you, Emory?"

"Yes, thank God!" answers the detective, who is swimming after them.

"Very well, if anybody jumps over after you, I think I can catch him even in the darkness." The American's pistol is in his hand.

Twenty seconds after they drag the dripping sleuth into the cutter.

"You have nothing to wait for now," says Emory, spitting out some salt water. "Get me to the yacht where I can find dry clothes of some kind."

At this, Edwin orders the men to give way, which the Scotch sailors do with alacrity.

"By the blessing of God, you all had a mighty narrow escape," remarks Emory, his voice quivering. "Though how the deuce the men who are after potting you took the places of the ones I hired to guard you, is more than I can tell. When I heard the approaching steps, I reckoned there must be danger. I went straight to 'em and by gum, they jumped me. Half a second and I was a dead man."

Football and General Sports

FOOTBALL.

Princeton still leads in number of points scored with 242. Pennsylvania is second with 195.

O'Rourke is a hero at Cornell. His red hair always indicated where the hottest part of the battle with the Tigers was.

Walder is the biggest man, in the estimation of the Cornell students, on the Big Red team.

Eckedsall said after watching the game on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday, that he feared the Indians would beat Chicago.

The second half of the Michigan-Ohio State game Saturday was played in a cold rain. Rheinschild, of Michigan, ran thirty-five yards for a touchdown on a forward pass, and Magoffin ran twenty-five yards for a score on a like play.

Captain Biglow, of Yale, missed three goals from touchdowns out of eight Saturday.

Gresham Poe, the famous Princetonian, turned up as referee of the Navy-Lafayette game.

"Hurry Up" Yost is complaining of Michigan's small schedule. He says the Wolverines have not enough games for practise contests.

"Ted" Coy, Yale's punting fullback, is only nineteen years old.

Coach McCoy, of University of Maine, says that Brown has a back field that is even better than Harvard. He predicts that Brown will cross the Crimson goal line when the two teams meet next Saturday.

Alley, a 215-pound guard who reported with the Harvard squad early in the season, has either quit of his own accord or has received the tip to make himself scarce. He played with an Oklahoma college team two years ago, and was rated as a find. The coaches refuse to discuss the case, but it is thought that Alley did not have a fair chance.

Much regret is expressed in college football circles that the Carlisle Indians do not meet Yale. Figured on the work of the teams in games where all the big teams have met the same opponents of different times, the Indians stand a good show of defeating Princeton and Harvard.

The Army and Navy appear to be traveling at about the same gait at the present time. This year's contest between the teams promises to be unusually close and interesting.

Tuft's football team this year is one of the best that ever represented the college. Dr. Whelan, head coach, may go to Dartmouth next year.

GOLF.

Mrs. W. L. DeWolf, of Onwentsia, was elected president of the Women's Western Golf Association on Monday at the annual meeting of the organization held at the Union League Club, Chicago. The other officers are: Vice president, Mrs. W. T. Beatty; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Towner, Exmoor; treasurer, Miss Margaret Hately, Lake Geneva. The report of the secretary before the election showed that the association had progressed rapidly in the last year, fourteen new clubs having been taken in, making the membership thirty-two active and nine associate clubs.

Despite the fact that the Plainfield Country Club made special effort to attract the women golfers to the course this year, the fair sex have not taken advantage of it to any extent. It is seldom that any number of women follow the game at the local course, and it cannot be said that in this respect the season's schedule for the women has been a success.

Mrs. N. Pendelton Rogers since moving from the city has not been a frequent visitor on the Plainfield Country Club course. She has occasionally played at Baltusrol, but other duties have kept her away from the game.

Another month will see the active golf season closed in this city. Taking all in all it has been a successful one and both the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club have done well.

One prominent feature of the season at the Plainfield Country Club was the one-day open tournament to members of the Metropolitan Golf Association. This brought out a large field of crack golfers and the competition for the various prizes was keen. No doubt this will be an annual event at the club and the members sincerely hope it will be. There are few better courses in the Metropolitan district than the Plainfield Country Club and many who visited it for the first time at the open tournament expressed great pleasure concerning its fine condition.

DEMOCRATS ENTHUSIASTIC

great jam. Assemblyman Joseph P. Tumulty, of Jersey City, spoke, but had a hard time of it, and LeRoy Gibby, candidate for Surrogate, had the same difficulty in getting attention. The people wanted to see the Gubernatorial candidate, and they didn't care a whistle for anything or anybody else. That was the spirit of the meeting.

TRAIN LEAVES TRACK NEAR THE NEWARK DRAW.

Train No. 219, on the Central, which left Jersey City at 6:11 p. m. last night for Plainfield, jumped the track near the Elizabethport end of the Newark Bay drawbridge, and a serious accident was averted only through the prompt action of the engineer, who succeeded in bringing the train to a stop before five of the six cars had left the track.

The train, consisting of six passenger coaches filled with commuters, is known as the Plainfield local, and was going at a fair rate of speed when the accident occurred. It is said to have been due to spreading of the rails. The locomoive left the track entirely, as, also did the first car. The five remaining cars showed a tendency to topple over, throwing the passengers into a semi-panic, but managed to cling to the rails. Prompt manipulation of the air-brake by the engineer brought the train to a stop before any harm was done. Traffic was held up for an hour and a half. A yard engine was run out from Bayonne and pulled five cars into Plainfield with a badly scared lot of passengers.

Joseph Santley, the star of "Billy the Kid" was a passenger on the train and as a result of the delay the opening of the performance at the New Plainfield theatre last night was delayed forty-five minutes.

BOROUGH MASS MEETING

Jersey. Let there be no dimming of its brghtness, maintained by generations of patriots, who have given their life's blood that it might remain unstained."

After the State Senator had taken his seat, the chairman introduced the principal speaker of the meeting, former Governor John W. Griggs. Mr. Griggs was received with enthusiastic applause. He said:

"I have always been a Republican, though I haven't always agreed with what the party representatives have done. It is not a perfect party; it has had men who have disgraced its name, but on the whole, following its record through all history, it seems to me to have a record better than the other party.

"We now come again to one of those trial days when the people sit in judgment of the party. We ask them to elect a Republican governor,—not on the grounds that we have atttained perfection, but on our record in comparison with that of the Democratic party. Compare our record with that of our opponents; count our blemishes, and then count theirs—if you can. I don't agree with the attitude assumed by some of the Republican newspapers in reference to the recent investigations by a committee of the House of Assembly. It was a wise and timely thing to do, and if one were held every day, it would be much better for the State.

"Think of the scattered State institutions. They are all governed by non partisan boards appointed by the Governor, but there is no person to whom these boards are directly accountable. Each is separate and independent by itself,—the Governor alone has the power to know, but it is impossible for him to attend to the affairs of each institution. This investigation is a commendable thing, only it should be done every year. Nay, I'll go further that that,—there are so many of these institutions and there is so much chance for graft that there ought to be a board of inspection to see that these institutions conform to the laws of the State and are economical. And I'll go further than that, I would fix it so that all supplies purchased for these institutions should be purchased by this supervising board from the lowest responsible bidder. By this means the State of New Jersey will save a quarter of a million dollars a year. I believe that it is only necessary to have me suggest this thing by this sort of a hint to have Mr. Frelinghuysen and Mr. Smalley take up this matter of supervising boards and bear it through. It is up to the Republican party to do this thing, for that party has always had the courage and integrity to put through just such measures. Public honesty has always been one of the party principles, the party has never promised to accomplish miracles.

"I want to say a word about the candidate for Governor,—Judge Franklin Fort. The convention which nominated that man was marked by freedom and liberty of criticism, it was no boss-ridden convention. Mr. Fort seemed to be the one man on whom the judgment of the people centred, and the nomination came spontaneously. I have known him since his young manhood and I honor him and trust him as all should. He is a grave man, as he has shown by his action in breaking up the gambling houses of Monmouth county when he was judge of the Supreme Court. He has been a politician from his youth up, and as an observer and student of public affairs in State and country, he has always kept in touch with his party and its progress, studying all those things which an American voter ought to study if he would discharge his duty as citizen.

"I had the time, I'd like to talk about the broader national politics. There is to be an election for President next year; the air is not clear now, and it is hard to tell what lines are being drawn. I want to remind your that this is a conservative country. This is no land of a French revolution; it is a land of liberty, but a land of law. The Democratic party is no longer anything but a name; you can't recognize it by any principles which it anciently professed. Who is going to be the leader next year? Look who was Democratic candidate in the campaign for governor in New York State last year. The Democratic candidate for president will be some radical, socialistic leader; he will be either Mr. Bryan or somebody else worse. The Republican party will again be a rock of refuge for the conservative people of the nations,—regardless of their previous political beliefs, just as it was in '96 when they flocked to the standard of McKinley.

"A great agitation is going on at present. Propositions are being brought up to change the form of laws against all fundamental principles of government,—propositions that are revolutionary, socialistic, anarchistic. Be easy and careless this year and you'll regret it next; be strong now and it will be easy then for you to quell this hydra-headed monster in whatever form it may present itself. Have the laws right and then get sane and honest men to administer them and to see that they are enforced. This I believe should be the policy of all good Republicans, and I appeal to you on the past record of the party,—stand by the Republican party and its candidates."

The meeting was brought to a conclusion by the singing of "America," after a few remarks by Joseph A. Mets, the candidate for surrogate, and Robert Kay, the candidate for sheriff. Both men were well received, and asked for support from the voters.

DERBY HAT SMASHED AS HONEYMOON STARTS

Miss Ida May Thomas and Howard G. Mook, both of Metuchen, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents in that place, and hoping to escape the rousing sendoff that their friends had planned for them, arranged with J. A. Wilson, of this city, to assist them in eluding the crowd. The escape was planned all right, but the couple did not anticipate the result.

Following the ceremony Mr. Wilson met the couple with an automobile and brought them to this city in record-breaking time, it being arranged that they should take the 11:28 train from the Netherwood Station. The bride and groom reached the station in plenty of time, but when the train arrived, to their dismay, they were met by about fifty relatives and friends, who had got aboard at Plainfield with the intention of catching them at Netherwood. The train was delayed for nearly fifteen minutes while the crowd showered them with confetti. In the effort to give Mr. and Mrs. Mook a royal sendoff many derby hats were smashed. After the couple got away from the crowd it was sometime before they could recover from the shakeup.

The groom is assistant manager for the Van Dyck Churchill Company, of New York, and both he and his wife have many friends in this city.

BLAZING RED LIGHT STICK IGNITES THE WHOLE SUPPLY

When the Republican paraders approached Saengerbund hall last night for the meeting, they had no reason to feel that they were being slighted in the way of a reception. "The Great White Way" of Somerset street was glaring red, with the shooting balls of Roman candles adding to the effect of ovation. On a closer approach it was seen that the demonstration was for the most part involuntary, and two firemen were playing streams from chemical extinguishers on a wagon load of compressed pyrotechnic demonstration, which was expanding in every direction, shooting Roman candle balls horizontally at the crowd which stood coughing with the fumes of the red fire.

It was all Charlie Lewis' fault. That worthy colored assistant of Dog Catcher Jim Babbitt was on the wagon where the fireworks were stored. It was W. L. Smalley's wagon, and there's a hole burned in it today. Fact is, Lewis got so interested in the exercises of the colored band on the curb near him that he lighted a red fire stick over a pile of fireworks in the wagon. The "demonstration" began immediately, or even a minute or two sooner. Charlie left his seat and fled to safety. The horse was unhitched and the firemen summoned. The wagon was badly damaged by the fire and the supply of fireworks was immediately exhausted.

Mock Trial At High School.

In the first mock trial ever held by the debating society of the city high school, William H. Briggs, the defendant, was sentenced to eighty years imprisonment for stealing a cup of cocoa by William T. Lambert, who acted as judge. The trial was held at the school yesterday afternoon. Percy Mygrant was clerk of court and the plaintiff was Charles Prior, who won his suit. Briggs retained Sallo Kahn as his attorney, and lost the case. The demi-jury consisted of Miss Luara Woolston, Miss Louise Nichols, Miss Grace Palmer, George Durar, John Schofield and Isador Rottberg. The witnesses called were F. R. Williams, Sherwood Parsons, Stanley Karner, Stanley Parsons and George H. Fisher, Jr.

Mrs. Chauncey P. Wheeler.

Mrs. Chauncey P. Wheeler, a well-known resident of the borough, died shortly before noon today at her home on Somerset street. She had been ailing for a long time and yesterday suffered a further stroke of paralysis that resulted in death. Mrs. Wheeler was a member of Trinity Reformed church and was greatly liked for her many estimable qualities. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Charles D. and Elmer D. Wheeler.

"Tom Jones" Tonight.

Manager Henry W. Savage's newest and largest production, "Tom Jones," will be presented in this city tonight for the first time in America. The company numbers ninety people and includes six of Broadway's best known stars. The advance sale of seats for the performance has been very large and indications point to a capacity audience.

H. J. Pierson, of Newark, a returned missionary from China, will address the Alliance meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

NEWARK ORPHAN ASYLUM.

Celebrates Sixtieth Anniversary at Mountainside.

The sixtieth anniversary of the Newark Orphan Asylum was duly celebreted yesterday at 'Mountainside," the country home of the institution, at Westfield. About 100 children gathered in the assembly hall and participated in a program of songs and recitations.

The report of the treasurer showed that $1,300 had been expended, and that there was a balance of $417. Mrs. Newton A. Merritt, who gave the report of the corresponding secretary read the minutes of the first meeting, held November 5, 1847. The report showed that an Elizabethtown Auxiliary was added in 1848, as was one in Paterson. In 1849 a charter was obtained and the cornerstone of the present building, at High and Bleecker streets, was laid September 17, 1856, the old building being at High and Court streets. Continuing, Mrs. Merritt said:

"The records tell us that in 1856 the domestic committee rejoiced in the receipt of two lamps, the gift of Major Kearny, with the promise of two more each week until the entire flock was gone."

The secretary next told of the addition of the Bloomfield, Newton, Orange, New Brunswick and Morristown auxiliaries. She also referred appreciatively to the gift of the present home at Westfield by Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of 500 garments made by the Crazy Jane Society and of ninety-eight made by the Needlework Guild of Westfield, of aid from the local guild and from the press of Newark and Westfield.

The secretary reported the death of Mrs. Warren Ackerman, a life member of the association, and that of Mrs. C. Edgar Sutphen, one of the trustees.

MILITIA BILL DEFECTIVE.

New One Must Be Passed to Comply With Dick Law.

Governor Stokes has filed a bill designed by the Legislature to entitle the State of New Jersey to $47,000 from the government toward the maintenance of the National Guard, but as the bill was minus a clause designating the date when it was intended to become effective, it will not do, and a new one must be drafted.

The bill was drawn under the supervision of the State Military Board. It is unlikely that a special legislative session will be called in the matter, as that body will convene before January 21, before which date the bill must be acted upon to go into effect, and the act could then be passed at the beginning of the legislative term and comply with the Dick bill.
